Mr. Farewell found the garment in about 4 feet of water in the marsh close to the lake, while setting his traps. The water was clear and he saw it caught at the bottom among some stumps. The garment was later turned over to the police and identified by friends of the missing girl. The discovery of the shawl has turned the attention of searchers for Miss Wright's body to the marsh, which lies in some places to a depth of ten to fifteen feet and is half a mile wide in places.

A Mile From Bridge.

The shawl was found a mile from the bridge on the Kingston highway. It was stated that finding the shawl such a distance from the bridge indicates the body of the young woman was carried right into Lake Ontario. Efforts to find the body under the mass of broken concrete at the bridge have not been abandoned, however and when the present swollen condition of the creek subsides efforts will be made to drain it and make a thorough search of the creek bed for the body.

Warning Against Companionate Marriage Evils Moved By Moderator Of Presbyterian Assembly

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 1.—(Canadian Press)—The moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, Rev. Dr. Buchanan, sprang a surprise on the Synod of Hamilton and London in session at Paris, Ont., this morning when he moved a resolution warning young people throughout the Dominion against the evils of companionate marriage and birth control. The moderator's motion met with protest from several parts of the auditorium from those desiring further discussion before such a resolution be put before the Synod and issued to the press. The matter was finally referred to a committee to be brought befor the Synod at a later date.

STRIKE IN BUILDING TRADES AFFECTS 1,400 TORONTO MEN

GENERALLY PEACEFUL.

Small Demonstrations In European Capitals Are Only Incidents of Day.

TORONTO, Ont., May 1 (C.P.).—Four unions in the building trades industry are out on strike to-day, including the stone cutters, painters and decorators, plasterers and lathers and about 60 per cent of the plumbers and steamfitters, numbering in all about 1,400 men.

"The negotiating committees of all the unions will be holding themselves in readiness to meet the contractors," said William Varley, secretary of the Building Trades Council, "though negotiations are temporarily broken off by the men walking out on strike."

Sheet metal workers are still negotiating for a 40-hour week and an increase in wages, and have given the contractors till Friday to make a settlement.

The strike is the result of several weeks' unsuccessful negotiations be-

NAVY PROBLEM IS PARAMOUNT

Belief Grows At Geneva That Preliminary Understanding Is Needed.

CENTRE SHIFTS.

GENEVA, May 1 (Canadian Press).—Belief was growing here to-day that the future of disarmament lay in Washington, not in Geneva.

The tendency to consider the naval problem as essentially that of the United States and Great Britain reinforced this view. It was pointed out that England and America had in making certain land force concessions placed themselves in a position to lead in a measure, too, in that phase of disarmament in which they are not so much interested.

The White House, the Washington State Department, and Downing Street were all believed to be agreed that a preliminary agreement between the United States and Great Britain along general lines was wise before the preparatory commission on disarmament engaged in further public naval discussions.

BATTERS WIFE; DRINKS POISON

No Cause Known For Actions of Well Known Selkirk Farmer.

DIES IN AGONY.

SELKIRK, Man., May 1.—(C.P.)—After battering his wife into unconsciousness with a lead pipe, Fred Boschuk, a farmer living near Libeau, to-day ended his life by drinking a solution of Paris green. At Selkirk General Hospital, Mrs. Boschuk was reported to be in a serious condition.

Attracted by screams, neighbors found Mrs. Boschuk lying on the floor of the kitchen of the farm home, her head bleeding and grievously bruised. She was rushed to the Selkirk Hospital, 25 miles distant, for immediate medical attention.

A police officer, summoned from Selkirk, discovered the body of Boschuk who had apparently died in agony after consuming a fatal dose of Paris green. Motives for an attack upon his wife with a lead pipe by the well known farmer could not be established, immediately.

DIARY ON AIRPLANE RUDDER TELLS TRAGIC FATE OF MEN

Relief Plane Found By Searchers, With Hitchcock's Body.

DIED APRIL 12.

Last Entry Tells Suffering of Aviators From Thirst.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., May 1.—(Canadian Press).—The tragic aftermath of the search for the airplane Southern Cross was closed to-day with the report from a land party of searchers that the body of Robert Hitchcock had been found under a wing of the airplane and the body of Lieut. Keith Anderson about forty yards away.

The land party was led by Lieut. Eaton from Wave Hill in an effort to solve the mystery of the fate of the two aviators, who had made a forced landing in the wild bush of the northern territory while searching for the missing airplane Southern Cross and Captain Charles Kingsford Smith.

Lieut Eaton's party reached the Kookaburra yesterday but so difficult of access is the region that contact with it could not be established until to-day.

Lieut. Anderson's plane was located in the wastes of the Tanimi bush on April 21, when a body was seen lying motionless under one of the wings. Little hope for finding either of the flyers alive had been held out.

Where it affects Peterborough if on standard time, and Toronto on daylight saving, is that industries and especially those who have head offices in Toronto are very much held up in the matter of the transaction of business. Offices opening at 8 o'clock daying saving time in Toronto when

TO THE RATEPAYERS:

FRIDAY, MAY 3, 1929, you are asked to support the by-law for the extension and betterments of the Nicholls Hospital. The Trustee Board, after very careful and thorough investigation, endorse the by-law. The board believes that the work has been delayed far beyond the time it should have been taken in hand, and that there is now no other alternative but to make progress or fall behind.

The ratepayers may rest assured that the funds asked for will be carefully administered and put to the very best use. It is not the intention to build a monument, but from a standpoint of utility, every detail will be studied. Let us make the Nicholls Hospital worthy of our growing city.

CAMPBELLFORD IS ASKED TO RESTORE SWIMMIN' HOLE

Suggestion Made By Old Boy In Anticipation of Re-union.

SWIMMERS' DELIGHT.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 1 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—It has been suggested that the town restore the old swimming places for Old Home Week. The Old Boy who made the suggestion was aware that in many cases this would be an impossibility, but there is still the hope that some of them may be ready to receive the "Boys" who are so minded. In days gone by, Campbellford has been blessed with a multitude of swimming holes. Practically the whole stretch of the Trent River afforded suitable or unsuitable places for bathing. Then there was Trout Creek as well.

As a rule, the beginners or more timid swimmers, started their training in Trout Creek. The "Greasy" was a favorite spot. But it has passed with the coming of the canal and the alteration of the creek bed. In those days it emptied its waters into the river at the southern extremity of the town. Now it discharges into the river at a point two blocks south of Tice street. Thus one of the old swimmin' holes has passed. From its name it might not be supposed to be a very desirable spot. But like many of the places named by small boys, the word Greasy did not indicate that the water was unclean or the surroundings either. Where or how the name originated can not be ascertained. Certain it is that the place was called the Greasy and that more than a few of the Old Boys took their early swimming lessons there. It will still be possible for the swimmers to arrange their swimming at "Beatty's." This is another place in Trout Creek and its name was taken from the fact that the spot is close to Beatty's Grove, west of the town limits. The favorite method of travelling there was to "flip" a freight train and get off when it was going up the grade through the west cut.

Along the river where it passes through the town, were favorite places for practically every boy and most of the girls in town. The Boarding House opposite the Fair Grounds has enjoyed wide popularity in days gone by. Even yet it is patronized by some. Then there was the old saw mill, operated by the Rathburn Lumber company. The current was strong there, and only the more venturesome frequented the spot. The Tannery on the west bank and inside the town limits was another spot. Like the sawmill it had a strong current, but it was popular nevertheless. Keir's mill has also passed away as a swimming hole. The mill is still there and doing business, but the concrete canal wall has spoiled the sport. The old log pier has made way for the canal and as far as swimming goes, the place is off the map for the old boys.

Some of the strong swimmers and those of a more venturesome nature, used to find pleasure in swimming under the bridge in the middle of the town and just above the old wooden dam that used to run diagonally across the river a few feet below the Bridge street bridge. The raceway which ran down the east side, behind Smith's mill, the Dickson Bros. foundry and the Weston Shoe Factory was a favorite spot for a Sunday morning dip for those who did not feel like walking too far for a plunge. At the sfoot of the piers of the old railroad bridge at the edge of the big eddy was where the more daring took their exercise.

Then came a day when an accident revealed the most attractive and dangerous place of all. Two local young men of the time, decided to shoot the rapids in the gorge below the Ranney Falls. Their craft was a sixteen-foot canoe. It was launched at the lower edge of the whirlpool and the journey begun. The voyageours did not last long in their perilous journey. Before they had any more than nicely started, their craft was overturned in the giant rollers and they were forced to swim for it. One of them at least had a narrow escape from a watery grave. But the cat was out. It had been found possible to swim the Gorge and Ferris' Woods became the latest and most dangerous site for young swimmers. The dam at Haig's reach has removed much of the danger, and the spot is not popular of late years. But fifteen years ago the boys used to go there. The established custom was to partially disrobe on the top of the forty-foot limestone cliff. A stout rope attached to a birch tree and, for the sake of additional safety, to a stump as well, led the way down the perpendicular face of the stratified rock to the narrow ledge close to the water. From there it was a case of hanging on by toes and finger tips till the would-be swimmer managed to work his way up to the lower edge of the whirlpool. Once arrived there all that was necessary was to let go and swim. The place where it was possible to get out again was several hundred yards down stream. This perilous journey enjoyed increasing popularity till some of the older members of the families of several of the

LUCK HELPS NOME FLYERS

CONTINUE TO-DAY.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 1 (C.P.)—Gliding through darkness to a strange field, Parker Cramer and W. S. Gamble, Nome to New York fliers, landed safely at the Edmonton airdrome late last night.

Officials of the Edmonton Aero club had set out flares to mark the runways, but these were misunderstood by the aviators as indicating obstacles. Sheer luck coupled with flying skill alone saved the flyers from disaster. They wander off the regular runways but managed to bring the plane safely to the hangar.

Cramer and Gamble expect to take off from Edmonton some time to-day on the next leg of their eastward journey.

PLUMBERS' WAR IS MYSTERIOUS

Both Parties Refuse To State Cause Or Progress of Disagreement.

CRISIS TO-DAY.

TORONTO, Ont., May 1.—(C.P.)—For the past week rumblings have indicated that war has been waging in the ranks of the plumbers of Toronto. This reached a crisis, involving, it is claimed, master plumbers, journeymen and the wholesale houses which supply the trade when during the past few days representatives of the Plumbers and Steamfitters Union announced new agreements would not be made with any shop which had not become by today, a member of the recently formed Plumbers' Guild.

Late last night the Union held a special meeting, following which an announcement was refused. Prior to the meeting, however, it was announced a walkout would be called for to-day from all shops which had not joined the Guild. The war has been shrouded in complete mystery. Members of the Guild refused to state why the journeymen have thrown out the ultimatum to master plumbers. The latter refused to state why they would not join.

Matters were first brought to a head when Crown Attorney James Allen, Windsor, Ont., stated yesterday he had received complaints that a Plumbers Guild of that city was creating what savored of a combine by which they were closing jobbing houses to master plumbers who were not members of the local chapter of the Plumbers' Guild. Mr. Allen stated he was making representations to the Attorney-General calling for an investigation of a condition which, he believed was province wide.

A. W. Rogers, of the Provincial Attorney-General's office late last night stated that as far as he knew no notice had been received. Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, is at present out of the city.

Dismissal Follows Trial of Orillia Man For Brennan Shooting.

LINDSAY, May 1. — (C.P.)—A charge of "shooting to maim" against Provincial Constable Sydney Cook, of Orillia, Ont., was dismissed by Judge Swayze in police court yesterday.

The chardge arose out of the shooting of Pete Brennan, who in company with Orval Shaw, attempted to evade arrest by provincial officers at Bolsolver last winter. Shaw escaped in neighboring fields but Brennan was shot when he began to run and died a few minutes later.

CAHAN TELLS U. S. ABOUT JOINT AFFAIRS

SEEKS CORDIALITY.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 1 (C.P.)—Relations between Canada and the United States from a wide variety of angles, were reviewed here to-day by C. H. Cahan, K.C., M.P., of Montreal in an address before the United States Chamber of Commerce. While making it clear he was voicing only his personal opinions and not those of Canadians as a whole, of the Canadian Government or even of the Conservative Party, Mr. Cahan spoke frankly and forcefully of the tariff, liquor smuggling and the I'm Alone case and the proposed development of the St. Lawrence waterway.

He suggested the business men of both countries who were vitally interested in the maintenance of cordial relations between the two countries should insist that their respective governments should exercise their rights in such a way as to entirely prevent such provocative incidents as the I'm Alone sinking. He declared there was a widely prevalent opinion in Canada that the sinking of the Canadian schooner was not a reasonable exercise of the extra-territorial privileges conferred by the Washington Convention of 1924.

Canada, however, while recognizing no moral or legal liability for the enforcement of the sumptuary laws of the United States, would never encourage the commission of offences against those laws, and as a matter of neighborly courtesy furnished United States officers with information as to liquor shipments leaving her ports. He reminded his hearers, however, that when some Canadian provinces had prohibitive laws and Bourbon whiskey was being freely distilled and smuggled into Canada it never occurred to anyone to ask the United States to assist in enforcing Canadian laws by prohibiting export of liquor to Canada.

Objections to Waterway

Mr. Cahan saido he felt the St. Lawrence waterway project had not been enthusiastically entertained in Canada because of the weight of the financial obligations it would prematurely impose on the limited population of the country and at a time when other expenditures were more pressing and because it involved vesting additional rights in the United States in that part of the river which lies wholly within Canadian territory.

He outlined at length canal developments already completed by both countries and pointed to the rights enjoyed by the United States free of tolls in the Welland canal and in those of the St. Lawrence. He suggested the St. Lawrence scheme should be considered by resolving it into its elements instead of looking at it as a whole. Canada and the United States might presently negotiate an agreement for the development for purposes of power and navigation the international section of the river from Lake Ontario to the Quebec boundary. This would cost about $146,000,000 and the water power developed would be shared equally by the two countries.

"The Federal Government of Canada,' he said, "would then be at liberty to improve, within a reasonable time, the St. Lawrence river from the International boundary to Montreal harbor, a distance of about 60 miles by joint agreements with the province of Quebec.' Such limited proposals, Mr. Cahan thought, would be more acceptable to the Canadian people if, as a preliminary step, it were made clear that the present diversion of water at Chicago should forever cease and that the water of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence should never again be diverted to another watershed to the prejudice of navigation and power rights.

Tariff Not Resented.

Speaking of the tariff, Mr. Cahan said he felt sure the United States would not resent any changes Canada was required to make from time to time in her economic interest just as Canada did not resent the present United States tariff. The Fordney-McCumber tariff was a severe blow to many Canadian producers, he said, but the losses occasioned by it had been made good by building up markets in other parts of the world.

He pointed to the great success of Canadian imports from the United States over Canadian exports to this country and remarked that if Canada imported as little in proportion to her population as the United States does, United States' exports to this country would be very small. He felt Canada should seek to bring about the production of most of the manufactured commodities now imported from the United States within her own borders.

"I think all Canadians sincerely trust that you will fully appreciate our peculiar position," he said, "and

The Weather

During the month of April we had 12 days on which rain fell, and one day on which snow came down. The total precipitation for the month was 4.14. This is considerably above the average, but much more rain fell farther west than here. In Toronto the rainfall was well over 6 inches, and was the heaviest April rain since 1840. The heaviest rainfall here was on the 6th, namely 1.25. The month was also unusually cloudy, and the sun shone but seldom. The warmest day was the 6th, when the temperature rose to 75 degrees in the shade. The lowest temperature was on the morning of the 3rd, with 12 degrees. The snowfall during the month was only one-half inch. This was also unusual. Thunderstorms occurred on three days. One of the notable events of the month was the gale that prevailed on the 1st. While the grass is becoming green, and lawn mowers are in use in some places, there has been but little other growth as yet.—W. P.

COURT ISN'T BLAMED FOR BABY'S DEATH

Jury Exonerates Hamilton Magistrate and Police Force.

CONFLICTING TESTIMONY.

Mrs. Minnigan's Statement That Condition Was Known Is Denied.

HAMILTON, Ont., May 1 (C.P.).—A jury which investigated the death of a baby born to Mrs. Annie Minnigan in Hamilton jail, April 17, last, returned a verdict last night exonerating the magistrate who sentenced the woman for a breach of the Liquor Control Act and police and jail officials from all blame. The verdict found that the birth of twins to the woman was premature and that the first infant was stillborn.

The verdict stated the jury was "shocked at the inadequate facilities for women and men prisoners and for the officers in charge of the administration" of the jail. It recommended that all prisoners be medically examined upon admittance and that sick prisoners be segregated and given medical attention.

Conflicting testimony was adduced during the hearing. Mrs. Minnigan testified she had mentioned her condition within Magistrate Jelf's hearing and later to numerous officials. This was denied by Magistrate Jelfs and officials of the court and jail. Mrs. Minnigan also swore she believed her first child was born alive, as she heard its cries. Dr. L. A. Richmond, who assisted at the birth of the second twin, asserted this would have been impossible as the child had died at least 24 hours before the second was born. The death of the first child might have caused the premature delivery.

Dr. W. J. Deadman, city pathologist, also testified the first child was stillborn. His examination showed, he said, that the child had never breathed.

High Lake Waters Menace Dyke Walls

CHATHAM, Ont., May 1.—(Canadian Press).—Another serious situation has developed at Erieau, Ontario, owing to the high level of Lake Erie it was reported here yesterday. The water is believed to have risen during the past two weeks and is now three feet higher than the peak level last summer.

During the week-end, adverse winds caused waves to pound the dykes of the Burke drainage scheme which protests hundreds of acres of reclaimed land. In four places the water washed over the top but did not cause any serious damage.

SKYSCRAPER PLANNED.

NEW YORK, May 1 (Canadian Press). — The auctioneer's hammer was poised to-day to toll the knell of the Waldorf-Astoria and knock down to the highest bidder rugs and carpets upon which royalty trod in the heyda yof the famous hotel.

The grand ball room, whose walls have looked down on many of the world's most famous men and most celebrated beauties, will be alight for the last time to-night when 800 guests gather to give a farewell toast at the final dinner.

The Waldorf-Astoria closes to-day, its furnishings to be sold and the building torn down to make way for a skyscraper office building.

A new Waldorf-Astoria which will have rooms and galleries designated by the names of those in the old, is to be erected at Park Avenue and Fiftieth Street. It is to be opened in the autumn of 1931.

VENIOT CENTRE OF CRITICISM

Postmaster-General Fails To Have Single Dollar Passed.

CHARGES DENIED.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 1 (Canadian Press). — Postmaster-General Hon. Peter J. Veniot spent another whole day under terrific blast of Conservative criticism and new indictments, and at the closing hour last night once again was forced to move that the committee rise without having passed a single dollar of his $35,000,000 worth of Post Office Department estimates.

Hon. Richard B. Bennett, Conservative leader, and John A. Clark (Conservative, Vancouver-Burrard) levelled new accusations at the Postmaster-General, which engaged the Commons in controversy throughout all but a few minutes of the entire sitting.

Mr. Veniot fiercely denied them and, in respect of the New Brunswick district situation, which was the basis of Mr. Bennett's assault, had the support of New Brunswick Liberal members.

Illness Kept Her From Work

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so sick every month that I had to keep my bed for two days and I suffered so that I felt badly all the time. I had been working in a factory but for a long time was not able to work as I was so run-down and nervous. My friends told me of the Vegetable Compound. I am now sound and well and have gone back to work. I have a good appetite, my color is good and I am in good spirits."—Evelyn Bourque, 132 Alma Street, Moncton, New Brunswick.

boys, saw their younger brothers climbing down the cliff and performing the dangerous stunt. The matter was reported and the damper was shut down tight.

Now the stretch of fast water that used to be the Trent River in the vicinity of Campbellford has become a comparatively tranquil stream, suitable for boating and with great possibilities for development of hydro-electric power.

The old swimming holes have passed as the new order came into being. A few of the older old boys and girls who are expected home this summer will see a marked difference from the days of the old wooden bridge. Many will recall the steel arched-span structure which supplanted the original wooden structure. To some, the giant lift bridge will be a new sight. Certain it is that practically every one of the old boys and girls will notice a great difference in the town and in the various details which have endeared the place to their memories. It is the sincere desire of the committee and every citizen to create an atmosphere of true hospitality that will make the visitors feel that they are once more part and parcel of their home town of days gone by.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, May 1.—A strong feeling was in evidence on the wholesale egg market yesterday, and quotations to country shippers for ungraded eggs delivered and cases returned, were as follows: Fresh extras, 27c to 28c per dozen; firsts, 25c to 26c, and seconds, 22c to 23c per dozen.

Large dealers reported that receipts were not as heavy as they were one week ago, which indicates that storing is active at country points. Montreal storage holdings are ahead of last year at this time, and the report of Toronto storage holdings will be issued to-morrow.

The decrease in receipts has imparted strength to the local market, and in some cases quotations are slightly higher, but the bulk of the sales were reported at the above range.

Butter Prices Steady.

Trading in butter remained quiet on the wholesale market, and prices held steady at 39c per pound for No. 1 finest creamery. The large shipment of New Zealand butter is due to arrive on track here the end of the week, and domestic production is increasing daily.

Fresh supplies of cheese arrived on the market, and prices were slightly easier at from 20c to 20½c per pound for No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and Government graded supplies.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 1.—A firm tone prevailed on the wheat market yesterday and prices closed 1 1-8c to 1 3-8c higher for the day. Trading was largely local in character, exporters taking little interest in the pit.

Demand for the cash grain appeared and values advanced fractionally. Export business in this market overnight was moderate. No. 1 and No. 2 feed in oats were well bought yesterday at higher prices. Prices in the futures held an advance of 2½c. Trading in barley, flax and rye was small.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 1. — Indications that selling had been overdone on recent price breaks that carried wheat down about 20c a bushel led to brisk rallies at times yesterday. The upturns were especially notable as taking place notwithstanding predictions that deliveries on Chicago May wheat contracts to-day would be on a big scale, totalling as much perhaps as 6,000,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1 1-4c to 2 1-8c net higher with corn varying from 3-8c off to 1-2c up; oats 14c to 3-4c advance, and provisions 2c to 17c down.

Late Trading is Strong.

Highest prices reached yesterday for wheat came in the late transactions when offerings had become scarce and many previous sellers were evidently nervous as to whether setbacks had not been carried beyond a point where all bearish factors were more than allowed for. Reports of too much rain in parts of Kansas with a forecast of frost last night in west and southwest tended also to stimulate rallies and so likewise did the fact that the Liverpool market yesterday showed an unexpected upturn. Moreover buying here on the part of houses with foreign connections was also a subject of attention.

Heavy Selling in Corn.

Liquidating sales by holders of the May delivery of corn were much in evidence to-day, and it was asserted that fully 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 bushels of corn would be tendered here today in settlement of May contracts. The market was also bearishly affeced as a result of reports of corn planting having progressed as far north as Lafayette, Ind. Weather conditions over the corn belt as a whole were rather favorable but many complaints of the soil having been too wet continued to be received. Oats averaged higher owing to scantiness of receipts.

Cavan

CAVAN, May 1 (Examiner Correspondence). — Mr. Robb, of Peterborough had charge of the service in Cavan Church on Sunday evening, the pastor, Rev. F. Carpenter, being absent.

The W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid of Cavan Church will meet on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. David Hunter.

Mrs. Rowen spent a few days of last week with friends in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Heaslip, of Janetville, were week-end guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. R. Matchett.

Miss A. Stark was a visitor to Peterborough on Monday.

The heavy rain on Sunday was another delay in the spring work, as the ground was too wet to work on Monday.

Farmers are hoping for fine weather in order to get through with the spring work, as feed is scarce.

Very few have more hay than will be needed, and several are already having to buy. Straw is also scarce.

The weather has been too cold for the grass to make rapid growth.

OFFICIALS FAIL TO ALLAY FEARS

Deny Glover Girl Is Suffering Dread Malady, But Suppress Facts.

GLENCOE, Ont., May 1.—(Canadian Press) — With a 17-year-old girl seriously sick from the fatal infection and three others reported affected, Ekfrid township is once again alarmed over the possibility of a new outbreak of streptococcus haemolyticus, which features the mysterious malady which has already claimed four lives in this township.

Although no definite details of the latest cases were forthcoming from attending doctors, nurses, or Dr. R. D. Dewar, M.O.H., it was learned that hopes for the life of young Mary Glover are very slim. The others believed to have contracted the dread disease are three young children of Thomas Brown and all four patients are quarantined in the Brown home near here. They are being attended by four doctors and a nurse.

After a period of alarming silence the first official statement was issued by Dr. T. J. McNally, Provincial Health Inspector, at London last night. He says in part: "I want to state emphatically that there is absolutely no connection between the death of the Brown boys two weeks ago with the illness in the Brown home now.

"The illness of Miss Glover is that of acute brain fever, known as acute infectious (purulent) berebro spinal meningitis." This, Dr. McNally declared, showed no symptoms of streptococcus. A strict censorship on news from the bedside, it is claimed, has been enforced and fears that another epidemic was imminent went unallayed without reassuring reports from official sources to the contrary.

Kidney Trouble is very common among all classes of people, both young and old. A lot of very valuable time is usually wasted by using unsuitable treatments. Madoc

MADOC, May 1 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Madoc Women's Institute held the closing meeting of the year on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Smith, with the president in charge.

Community singing was indulged in for a short time concluding with the Opening Ode. Reports of committees were then called for. The music committee reported through the secretary that arrangements were made for the music for May 13, and Mrs. Hough and Mrs. Eagleson were asked to complete the arrangements for Friday evening.

The relief committee, through Mrs. W. E. Connor, reported fifteen dollars and fifty cents donated for flannelette, etc., for layettes for Bancroft and Coe Hill hospitals, and five dollars for local charity. The expenditure was itemized and amounted to nineteen dollars, fifty cents, and postage forty-five cents, leaving a balance of fifty-five cents. Correspondence was read concerning the girl's conference in Guelph, but no action was taken.

Mrs. George Bailey, of Harold, president of the district, spoke vigorously and well on "What is the W. I. and What Does it Stand for?" She urged hearty co-operation with the officers and hearty support of the plans and work of the local branch, concluding by congratulating the members of Madoc branch on the beautiful memorial in Thompson Memorial Park.

The regular program was to be given by the grandmothers of the Institute and was in charge of Mrs. George Huffman. A chorus, "Old Folks at Home" was given by the grandmothers. Mrs. M. Bronson gave an excellent paper on "The Growth of the Women's Institutes in Canada and Great Britain.

Mrs. James Whytock gave a grandmother's advice to mothers, "Send the children to bed with a kiss." "The Face Without a Smile" was given by Mrs. E. West. Mrs. E. Phillips furnished one of the old childhood recitations, "Grandmother."

Mrs. Huffman, in her usual humorous style, gave "Two Old Pals." Mrs. F. A. Comerford, an honored visitor, gave a short address on "What will the next grandmothers be like?"

Mrs. James Kincaid followed in eulogy of the efficiency and thoroughness of the present-day mother, supported in her argument by Mrs. Moorcroft. Mrs. Kilpatrick thanked the members for their kindness during the winter and hoped to be able to attend during the summer months.

Proceeding with the business, Mrs. E. M. Tumulty tendered her resignation as chairman of the cemetery committee, suggesting that the time has come that other hands take the responsibility and care of this department.

After discussion, it was decided that the resignation of Mrs. Tumulty be accepted and that the secretary notify Mr. West that the Institute with draws from the care of the cemetery but will support any other committee in this work.

Mrs. E. West, seconded by Mrs. Hough, moved a hearty vote of thanks to the grandmothers for their excellent program.

Committees were appointed for the social evening. It was decided on motion, that the federation fees for the year be paid.

The roll call was answered by garden hints to which most of the members responded with very pertinent hints.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 1, 1929

JUST A TRIFLE LATE.

Opposition to the Nicholls Hospital by-law is offered because of the composition of the Hospital Board and of the manner in which it is chosen.

It may be that the system is not ideal, but as a matter of fact, isn't criticism is this regard about 44 years late?

Peterborough was glad to accept a gift of a hospital under the conditions laid down by the benevolent citizen which included this service as one of a series of splendid donations to the community.

It is a trifle late now, nearly half a century after, to object to these conditions and to advance them as a reason why Peterborough should not keep abreast of the times in the matter of hospital accommodation.

Just to keep the record clear, this community was delighted to accept the Nicholls Hospital, and there is little evidence of gratitude in conjuring up objections based on the original conditions of the gift and offering them as an excuse for not bringing the city up to date in the matter of hospital service.

DOING THEIR PART.

As an illustration of how seriously Peterborough's old boys and girls are taking the Old Home Week reunion, the formation of a Peterborough club by former residents of this city living in Rochester may be quoted.

These ex-Peterboroughians are buckling to the work of organizing their share in the demonstration with a spirit that challenges local enthusiasm.

Holding weekly meetings, they are preparing for a descent en masse on their native town, arranging for a float in the procession and in general planning a real outing for themselves, as well as a helpful part in Peterborough's big demonstration.

The idea of coming back for a huge re-union has sold itself to them all, and so far as they are concerned the re-union is already "in."

It remains for us here at home to match their enthusiasm with a similar display of interest, and the result will be the greatest demonstration in Peterborough's history.

LOSE SEVEN SECONDS AND SAVE 50 YEARS.

The tragedy of such terrible accidents as the wiping out of a family of ten in a level crossing mishap at Middleton, N. Y., is intensified by a realization of the fact that the average time it takes a fast railway train to pass a crossing is only seven seconds.

7,000 motorists who couldn't wait that trifling period of time were killed at grade crossings last year, and as a contemporary forcibly puts it, "They will wait where they are until Gabriel blows his trumpet, for there is no way of beating that."

To lose seven seconds may be to save fifty years—and yet there were 7,000 funerals last year because people thought they could get over a crossing ahead of a train, or else were careless and failed to notice the train coming.

The elimination of the level crossing is the only sure way of making such accidents invisible, but that is a slow and expensive process, and while it is being carried out the death list will continue to mount unless all drivers realize that the only safe way is to stop at a crossing and make sure that there is no train close.

"Stop, look and listen" is a hackneyed slogan, but if it were followed there would be few grade crossing tragedies to record.

SUPPORT THE PARK BY-LAW.

A critic of the Inverlea Park improvement proposals suggests that it would save time and expense to take the $10,000 to the river and throw it in.

The Examiner would hate to think that such a remark is typical of the frame of mind in which Peterborough citizens approach matters of community benefit and interest.

A city with a population made up of individuals so callously selfish would be a decidedly uncomfortable place in which to live—and it is to be imagined that few people would care to remain there any longer than absolutely necessary.

There is no waste of money in spending $10,000 in making Inverlea beach worthy of a community that prides itself upon being alive and progressive.

In health benefits alone the work would pay for itself many times over.

The value of swimming under proper conditions as a factor in building up healthy bodies cannot be overestimated; Annette Kellerman is not the only sound adult to develop from a sickly childhood through the beneficial effects of this invigorating exercise.

Furthermore, Inverlea beach is the summer playground of the city—the only playground many Peterborough families know during the hot weather.

In their interest let us make this park a place worth while, where bathing can be enjoyed without risk of injury, with decent dressing-rooms and sanitary conveniences.

The Inverlea Park by-law means health and recreation for Peterborough's children, an adequate picnic ground for Peterborough's families.

Surely the addition of a few cents to the annual tax bills is not going to loom up as more important than a program that will help the whole community.

Support the Inverlea Park by-law; it offers more for the average citizen than any measure that has come before the people in years.

RADIO DEVELOPMENT.

The Royal Radio Commission, which is at present conducting its investigations in Western Canada, was assured by the Premier of Alberta in Edmonton yesterday that his Government "is ready and willing to enter into negotiations with the Government of Canada and the Governments of the various Provinces of Canada with a view to the organization of radio broadcasting on a basis of public service by some method that may be mutually agreed upon by the said Governments." It may be confidently predicted that all other provincial administrations will be as willing as Alberta to co-operate in the effort to put radio broadcasting in Canada on a national basis, for the purpose of fostering a strong united sentiment throughout the country. The use of radio was one of the important topics considered at the National Council of Education conference recently concluded in Vancouver, and Hamilton has been privileged to hear one of the British delegates to the conference, Mr. J. C. Stobart, education director of the British Broadcasting Corporation, who told a local audience about some of the things which have been accomplished for the benefit of the public in the Old Country. Of special interest was the portion of his address which described the "broadcasting for schools." Very little indeed in this direction has been done as yet on this continent; but the experiment has been carried very far, with the most gratifying results, in Great Britain.

The Carnegie United Kingdom Trustees have issued a report, in which it is stated: "Every Monday afternoon at half-past two the director-general of the British Broadcasting Corporation, after the manner of the well-known French Minister of Education, can take out his watch and say: 'At this moment 70,000 children are taking a wireless history lesson; music on Tuesday; English on Wednesday, and so on throughout the week.' Two years ago he would not have claimed 20,000 pupils. In ten years, who can say how many boys and girls will have come under his influence?" These lessons, from the best instructors, last two hours, and some of them are intended for advanced students, though most are for use in the elementary schools. Pamphlets illustrating the lectures are supplied in almost all cases.

The possibilities of work along this line are obviously very great indeed; especially would such instruction be invaluable for the "shut-ins"—for the little invalids, who are kept from school temporarily or permanently. For those, too, who cannot afford to attend the university, what a great boon it would be to enjoy the lectures over the air! If the present jangle of monotonous rag-time and the insipid programs which are such a waste of time and money could be replaced by worth-while educational broadcasts, at convenient hours, the increased popularity of radio would prove as beneficial commercially, as it would undoubtedly be one of the greatest benefits ever conferred upon the public.—Hamilton Spectator.

THE PRIME MINISTER ON THE AIR.

Premier King's address over the radio on Thursday evening was an admirable performance. He possesses, to begin with, an excellent radio voice, clear and well modulated, and his enunciation leaves nothing to be desired. In this respect, indeed, Mr. King is far superior to either Governor Smith or President Hoover, whose voices became familiar to Canadian radio audiences last fall.

But it was Mr. King's message, even more than his deliverance of it, that was most admirable. There was not a word in his address to which the most bigoted partisan could take exception; the same speech, in precisely the same language, might have been delivered by Mr. Bennett. Mr. King simply confined himself to a brief but very comprehensive survey of the activities of the Government, explaining its functions, its organization, its various departments, and its methods of procedure. His explanations were so simple, so free from technical terms and phrases, that they could be understood by the average student in collegiate.

The Canadian National Railways are to be congratulated in arranging for a series of such addresses. In these days, when government has become so complex, when it is compelled to reach out into so many fields of human activity, anything that enables the average citizen to have a clearer grasp of what it is all about, and also the responsibilities it entails, is a splendid thing.

There was one passage in Mr. King's address, one in which he put the most feeling, which must have been particularly appealing to his audience in Ottawa. It was that in which, as an old public servant himself, he dealt with the loyalty and efficiency of Canadian public servants. Said Mr. King:

> "As one who, some 30 years ago, began his association with the administration of our country's affairs as a member of the Civil Service of Canada, and who ever since has had increasing opportunities to gain first-hand knowledge of the work of its membership, I think I may lay claim to say that I speak with authority when I say that the Civil Service of our Dominion will bear comparison with similar services of any country in the world, alike in its standards of useful public service and in its fidelity to high ideals of public duty."

Many people who live outside Ottawa have but a dim conception of what the public service means. Too often, we fear, their conceptions are far removed from realities, and do but slight justice to an able, conscientious and loyal force in the nation's government. In raising his voice to remove these misconceptions, Mr. King was not only loyal to his old comrades and associates; he was doing justice to the public service and making for a more informed public opinion.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The importance of the issues to be decided on Friday demands a large vote. Those on the lists should not fail to exercise their franchise.

27,000 people killed, 800,000 injured in automobile accidents in the United States last year, is a record that should startle the most careless driver.

Of Winston Churchill it can at least be said he is never dull. His speeches are adding color to the British election campaign.

CANADIAN LEGION B.E.S.L.

Peterborough Branch

The committee chairmen met last night to discuss plans for the carnival, and indications at the meeting are that arrangements are progressing very favorably.

Comrade Cutmore has the war exhibit well in line; Comrade Armstrong has a good line-up for the wheel; Comrade Clancy is all set with Bingo; all Comrade Gant needs for the Dugout is an old shell case to use as a gas alarm; Comrade Jamieson has the draw tickets all ready, with prizes donated . . . in fact, every committee is on its mark, set.

The concert committee, under Comrade Chapman, has room for two or three entertainers. The program is a splendid one, and will go over in a big way. Comrades willing to help should phone Comrade Chapman at 3044W.

Tickets are going well—90 is the record so far, held by Comrade Armstrong. The unique nature of the tickets should make their sale easy, and every member is urged to push sales during the next week.

New supplies may be obtained at the Legion office from 6 to 10 on Saturday, or at The Examiner Office any day, or will be sent by mail on phone order.

Draw tickets went out to-day to all members' wives, who are being enlisted in the campaign to help out the Legion. The president hopes that not one ticket will come back unsold—because the money thus gathered will make the work of caring for returned soldiers so much more effective.

The pictures of the Legion Hall printed yesterday have stirred up a lot of comment. Many didn't know so splendid quarters were available for entertaining.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

CRUSHED STONE.

The writer was much interested in the article signed "Motorist," which appeared in the "Voice of the People" column of the Examiner, where he spoke of the condition of the Keene road, due to the way the crushed stone has been used to surface it. Until last year the Keene road was one of the best and smoothest of the county roads in this locality, but for some unknown reason it was decided to apply a surface of crushed stone to part of it. No attempt was made to roll it in or apply a finer bonding material. The result of this has been very injurious to automobile tires and has also caused a very choppy series of holes along the ruts where the stone has been scattered into the ditch by the action of the tires. Very little, if any, of the stone has taken a bond in the road bed and what was put on last year is still as loose and injurious as what is being applied this year. If the idea was to keep motorists from using the Keene road they have succeeded to some extent, but if it was done for any other purpose the road maker has wasted a great deal of time and effort.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

(By Douglas Malloch)

SELF-FOOLED

We smile at children's toy balloons,
Hand-organs grinding squaky tunes
And paper crowns that children wear
And wooden swords and guns they bear—
And then inflate our gaudy dreams,
While clinking money music seems.
And prance around, and sweat our pores,
And fight our little mimic wars.

Yes, who is wiser anyway?
The children know it all is play,
And, when the red balloon has burst,
Knew that would happen from the first—
While we, so solemn and so old,
Think ev'ry gilded thing is gold,
And that our little sword or crown
Will turn the whole world upside down.

I think the children are the wise,
The children that we patronize,
Although illusions they have known
Are never victims of their own.
Their swords they clank, their coins they slink,
Make solemn speech, with a wink,
And, though they talk to us of elves,
They never really fool themselves.

First Fatality Of Fishing Season

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 1 (Canadian Press). — The first fatality of the fishing season occurred here yesterday when William McNaughton, 9, was drowned in the river just a few feet from the dam. Just how the boy managed to fall in the river is unknown. Up until a late hour last night the body had not been recovered.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

She felt better when she had eaten; she felt much better, as Jessica had predicted, after the hot bath; then Jessica fetched her car and they drove back to Wimbledon.

The sun was shining, and nothing ever seems so bad when the sun is shining Ana's hope and courage rose as they drove through the fresh air. Anthony had said he would write, and Anthony was a man of his word. There might even be a letter when she got home—certainly there would be one in the morning.

Jessica refused to come in when they reached Wimbledon.

"I'll toddle back," she said. "And don't forget, don't stay here alone and mope. Just run round to me any time you feel dull. I'm not much company perhaps, but I'm better than the blue devils."

When she had gone, Ana went indoors, drew up the blinds, and opened the windows. Already she was ashamed of herself for last night's despair.

After all, if the poor little General had really met with an accident how could Anthony leave him? She had been most unreasonable in her judgment. She went up to her room feeling almost cheerful, and then her eyes fell on the suitcase which she had packed to take with her to Paradise and which she had not had the courage to unpack when she came in last evening.

She stood for a moment in the doorway looking at it, then she went hurriedly forward and thrust it out of sight under the bed. She felt as if her lost happiness was mocking her, and yet—if things had gone as she had hoped and believed, how would she have felt this morning??

Had Life stepped in once more for some purpose of its own?—some good purpose?

"I shall never have such a chance of happiness again," Ana told herself with passionate resentment Why did Life need to interfere? And yet it was always like that—nobody was ever allowed to be quite happy.

The midday post brought a letter from Miss Sawyer. The weather had improved, and Brighton did not seem such a bad place after all, she wrote, grudgingly.

"I may stay a few days longer—I badly need a rest—I hope you went to church on Sunday—"

Ana laughed at that—it was so like Miss Sawyer.

In the afternoon, just as she was thinking of going for a walk, there was a ring at the front door bell.

Ana's heart leaped. Supposing it was Anthony! She ran to open the door. Her pulses were racing and she could hardly breathe, but it was only Mrs. Inglis with a large bunch of roses which, so she explained, Tom had insisted upon bringing.

"He was so worried about you, you dear thing," she said. "I think we were all worried, you looked so perfectly ghastly! But I must say you seem all right this morning. You've got such a lovely color."

But Ana's color was fading as quickly as it had come, and her thudding heartbeats had died down.

"It's very kind of him, and of you to have come all this way," she said. "I'm quite all right. I on't know what possessed me last night. I've never fainted before."

"Tom sent his love, and wants you to come back with me to tea," Mrs. Inglis told her. "I've got a car and I'm a better driver than he is. Do come, or he'll say I haven't persuaded you sufficiently."

Ana was glad to go. It was not that she wanted to see Drake, but that it would help while the hours away, and to-morrow she was sure there would be a letter from Hambledon.

Drake was very charming to her. He made her feel, without saying it in so many words, that her happiness mattered very much to him.

When she left, Ana felt strangely soothed and comforted. She had had so little kindness, and it helped to give her back something of her self-esteem which she felt she had lost during those long weary hours of waiting in the hotel.

She slep well that night, and only woke to the sound of the postman's knock ringing through the house.

She ran downstairs in her night-gown and bare-footed Three letters lay on the doormat. A circular—a bill, and a notice from the Women's Guild for Miss Sawyer. Nothing from Anthony.

Ana stood for a long time on the cold linoleum staring incredulously before her. He had not written.

She tried hard to understand why; to be fair to him. The General must be very ill; perhaps Anthony had not been able to leave him.

Ana turned and went slowly back to her room.

'He could have found time to write if he had wanted to," she told herself. "I could have found time."

She sat down on the side of the bed and shut her eyes.

"This is what comes of making myself cheap," she thought bitterly. "I must have been mad. How could I have done such a thing?"

Her whole body felt burning with shame as she looked back.

Hambledon was a married man, and yet she had been willing to go away with him; she had thought of nothing except her own passionate desire for happiness. Now, in the light of her disappointment and bitter doubts, that happiness seemed microscopic in comparison with everything else; with self-respect and the condemnation of the world — and the ruin of the future.

"I suppose he despises me — they say men always despise women who let them see they care."

Such thoughts ran like red-hot needles through Ana's brain, goading her almost to despair. She felt that if Anthony did not write she would die of shame, and yet at the end of the week, when still no word had come, she was going on dusting the house and cooking meals for herself and sponging the aspidistra. But she felt as if something had slowly died in her heart and that life would never be the same again.

Mollie had not written, and Ana dared not write to her. She felt like a blind man groping in the darkness, not knowing what she might knock up against next that would hurt her afresh.

Then Miss Sawyer wrote that she was coming home. Ana was glad—it would give her something to think about at least. She began systematically to clean the little house down from top to bottom.

She was washing the few old bits of china that ornamented the sitting-room mantelpiece one morning when the garden gate slammed and glancing toward the window Ana saw Anthony Hambledon coming up the path. For a moment she could not move. She felt as if she were turned to stone. Then he rang the bell, and Ana mechanically dried her wet hands and arms on a glass-cloth and went to open the door.

It was a dream, she kept telling herself. She was sure that when she opened the door she would find nobody there—she would find she had just imagined that she saw him.

Her fingers shook and she bungled the latch, so it was some seconds before she could draw it back; but when the door was open, it was really Anthony who stood there.

He looked tired, as if he had not slept for a long time, and his face twitched a little when he tried to smile.

"I suppose you thought I was never coming," he said.

"Yes—no—" Ana hardly knew what she answered.

They looked at one another silently. Then Hambledon asked:

"Well, may I come in?"

"Yes—I'm quite alone, but—yes, come in." Ana said, and she stood aside to let him enter.

The dreamlike feeling was still upon her, and as he passed her she put out one shaking hand and touched his coat. He was real; after all the long days and nights of unbearable anguish, he was here with her again.

"There is a fire in the sitting-room," she said. "I was washing the china. I hope you don't mind. I had to do something to pass the time," she added, unconscious of the pathos of her own words.

But it was all right now. In a moment she would be in his arms—in a moment his kisses would have wiped out for ever the pain she had suffered.

She followed him into the sitting-room and began to pick up the bowl of soapy water, and the tray on which she had stood the china to drain.

"I'm sorry to be in such a muddle. You should have let me know you were coming," she said. She felt almost light-hearted; she felt years younger.

But when she turned to the door, Anthony stopped her. He took the bowl from her and put it back on the table.

"Never mind those things," He said harshly. "Don't waste time, Ana—don't waste the last short time we shall ever have together"

Ana fell a step backward, leaning heavily against the door.

"The last short time we shall ever have together." Those were the words he had said; words that he meant. He had come to say good-bye. She stood staring at him blankly.

Uncle Wiggily

UNCLE WIGGILY AND SKIPPIE'S TAIL

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

Once upon a time a little squirrel boy named Skippie lived next door to Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow. Skippie was a brother of Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, those funny squirrel boys about whom I have told you many stories.

Skippie was such a little squirrel that he wasn't allowed to go very far away from his hollow tree home to play. He was too small to go to school, but often he walked a little way with Johnnie and Billie. Then they would stop, turn him around and make him start back for home while they watched to see that no automobiles ran over him.

"Whatever you do, Skippie," Johnnie used to say to his baby brother, "don't lose your tail."

"Why shouldn't I lose my tail?" Skippie would ask.

"Because, if you do," Johnnie would say, "you can never jump around in the branches and leap from one tree to another. A squirrel needs his big, bushy tail to balance him and help him jump."

"All right," Skippie would say. "I'll be careful not to lose my tail." And all the way home, after he had gone part way to school with his brothers, Skippie would turn around every now and again and look to make sure that he had his tail with him. And, up to now, every time Skippie and his tail reached home safely together, except that, always, Skippie's tail was a little late, for it was the last part of him, you see.

He hurried over to the stump bungalow.

Now one day, after Skippie had scampered to his hollow tree home, having gone part way to school with his brothers, he heard jolly noises in Uncle Wiggily's stump bungalow next door.

"What's all that noise I hear in Unkie Wig's bungalow" chattered Skippie to his mother.

"Oh," said Mrs. Bushytail, "that's just Uncle Wiggily having fun with some of his little rabbit boys and girls. I spoke to Nurse Jane a moment over the back fence. She said some of the little bunnies have the measles so they had to stay home from school today, and Uncle Wiggily is amusing them as they have to stay in."

"They're having lots of fun, even if they have the measles, said Skippie, as he heard the merry shouts and laughter from the bungalow next door.

"Yes, I guess they haven't the measles very hard," said the lady squirrel.

'I—I—now—I wish I could go next door and have some fun with Unkie Wig and the little bunnies," chattered Skippie. "I've had the measles; haven't I, mother?"

"Yes," replied Mrs. Bushytail, "you have and I think it would do you no harm to go in and play with Uncle Wiggily. I'll telephone and ask if you may go over."

Soon, over the telephone wire, Uncle Wiggily said:

"Send Skippie right along! We'll give him a good time!"

"You may go, Skippie," said his mother. "But be sure not to lose your nice tail."

"Oh, mother, I'll be very careful! Very!" promised Skippie.

So he hurried over to the stump bungalow and inside he found Uncle Wiggily playing a game with Blister and Twister, Custer and Buster and Jamby and Pamby, six of the little girl and boy rabbits who had the measles. Uncle Wiggily had taken a shallow box and cut some holes in the bottom. Then he turned the box bottom up, so the holes showed and he let the children take turns with a rubber ball, trying to see who could roll it down one or another of the holes.

"We call this 'Baby in the Hole,' said Custer to Skippie. "Here is how we play it!" He rolled the rubber ball, which went down a hole with a number 5 painted near it. "See!" cried Custer, "I get five!"

"Oh, what a fine game!" cried Skippie. "Let me play!" So he played "Baby in the Hole" with the rabbits and Uncle Wiggily and, after a while they played another game until Skippie got tired and sat down on the box Uncle Wiggily had made.

After Nurse Jane had given the children some cookies, the telephone bell rang and Mrs. Bushytail said it was time for Skippie to come home. He started to get up to go, but he looked behind him to see that he had his tail with him. And, Oh! How terrible it was when he couldn't see his nice bushy tail!

"Oh! Oh! Oh, dear!" cried Skippie. "Oh, how awful!"

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I've lost my tail!" sobbed Skippie, and, surely enough his tail wasn't to be seen. "Oh, I don't dare go home without it!" he said.

But don't worry. Everything is going to be all right. And if the gas stove will let the rice pudding sit on its lap when it bakes the potato, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the 'fraid cat.

I.O.O.F. LODGE ATTENDS SERVICE

Instructive Address Heard By Members of Millbrook Order—Special Music.

MILLBROOK, May 1.—(Examiner Correspondence).— Millbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 308, held its annual parade and attended divine worship at the United Church on Sunday evening, the membership being well represented considering the heavy rain which continued all day, and kept many of those living in the country from being present.

The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. H. W. Johnston, prepared special music for the service, the anthem, "I Will Extol Thee, My God O King", and a quartette, "Abide With Me", by W. H. Coombe, H. W. Johnston, M. McDowell, and V. C. Lambert, preceding the sermon, while following it was a second anthem, "The Day Is Past and Over". Mr. and Mrs. Johnston taking the tenor and soprano obligato, respectively.

The pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., whose membership is in the Oddfellows' Lodge at Bowmanville, welcomed the Order to the church on behalf of his Session, and himself, reading for his scriptural lessons Isaiah 61, and Luke 10, because I believe these passages express the spirit of Oddfellowship.

The text was chosen from Ecclesiastes II:1, "Cast thy bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days," and after a brief reference to the authorship and contents of the book, these words were spoken of as picturing an Egyptian farmer scattering broadcast his seed, in the spring time when the Nile had overflowed its banks, in faith that the harvest would follow in due time.

"By its moral application I believe I am justified in making to the practice of Oddfellowship in scattering the bread of friendship upon the waters of human life. This has been God's way since the earliest dawn of human history, through prophets, priests, the temple services, John the Baptist, and finally Jesus Christ, Who came to tell that God is not an enemy, but a Father. Sitting at the feet of Christ, our Brother Man, we have the cue to our activities as an Order, which binds men together in a common life, and a common power of human service.

"Our charter is a vision of power, a heart of sympathy, a mind of sincerity, a zeal for right, and a readiness to share a common hope and to enter upon service for our fellowmen. I think that Oddfellowship, more than any other Order that I know of, finds its inspiration for its ideals and practices in the example of God in Christ Jesus. Who came to do us good and to stand by our side.

The priests and Levites, in the story from Luke's gospel, were not hypocrites, but believed that they could unite devotion to God with contempt for man. Their descendants are still living, folk who think religion is a dreamy, emotional thing, altogether divorced from practical help for others. The Samaritan was an alien to Jewish faith and practice, but he had a heart that beat with sympathy, and I think would have made a good candidate for an Oddfellows' Lodge, since he did what needed to be done, even paying for the service which he could not remain to render. And what of the robbers? It needed an organization to oppose them and clean up the highway so that little children might safely pass from Jerusalem to Jericho."

There was a deep undercurrent of emotion as the speaker gave as a concrete example of individual friendship the story of Grant Adams who lost his right hand in his devoted service to the Welsh and Irish miners, and then continued by mentioning an example of international friendship when Canada and South Africa having been granted self-government by the Imperial Parliament, years later, when the Motherland stood up in defence of the 'little nations' in 1914, these colonies cabled the message, 'We are with you to the last man and the last dollar'—truly the bread of friendship cast upon the waters brings its harvest after many days."

In conclusion the application of the text was widened to include all men with the spirit of true brotherhood in their hearts, the poem recited at the close bringing the suggestion 'fall in' as a final thought.

The usual votes of thanks were passed upon return to the I.O.O.F. Hall. H. A. Fallis, D.D.G.M., acted as Marshal in connection with the church parade on Sunday evening. C. B. Sutton is Noble Grand of the local Lodge this year.

GIVES ADDRESS.

Mrs. William Allan Speaker at St. James' Church Sunday School Banquet.

Mrs. William Allan, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, gave a splendid address at St. James' United Church Monday night when the officers and teachers of the Sunday School were banqueted.

Her talk dealt chiefly with methods of teaching and training, from the primary department to the higher grades. About sixty were present and a short program was staged by the primary classes which was most interesting.

ROYAL BANK ADVANCES.

TORONTO, May 1. (C.P.)—Though reaction which set in close to the noon hour brought many of the leaders down from their morning's high mark, prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning gave evidence of further recovery. Such stocks as Tip-Top Tailors, Royal Bank, Imperial Oil and Home Oil, all showed substantial advances at the noon prices, while the market leaders, Ford Motors, International Nickel, Brazilian and Massey Harris were all a little higher.

Ford Motor came out actively and shot up to a peak of 70 before slipping back to 67 3-4 for a fractional increase, while International Nickel, once again leading the list in point of activity, reached a high of 51 1-2, the noon price at 50 7-8, indicating a gain of 3-4. Brazilian and Massey were both slightly stronger at 57 3-8 and 75 respectively.

Royal Bank led the morning advances, scoring 4 points to 369, while Tip-Top Tailors followed with a 3 3-4 points gain to 48. Imperial Oil held at the morning's high of 117 1-4, up 2 3-4, while Home gained 1.00 to 22.00. The other oils were firm.

NEW CHAIN OF KRESGE STORES

First Unit Opens in Kitchener On Thursday Next.

ONE STORE HERE.

TORONTO, May 1. — Keener competition in the field of low-price-range merchandise is assured by the impending establishment of a chain of Kresge stores in Canada.

The first unit in this new chain is to be opened in Kitchener, Ont., on Thursday, May 2. Early in June two stores will be opened in Toronto and one in Windsor. The first of several Montreal units will be established late in July. Ottawa and Peterborough stores will follow late in August.

During the last four months of the year, still further units will be established in Winnipeg, Brantford, Quebec (2), Sault Ste. Marie, Fort William, Port Arthur, Kingston, Montreal (3 additional), and Toronto (3 additional).

Thus by the end of the year there will be a chain of 21 stores in actual operation. During 1930 and subsequent years many other cities will be included.

The Kresge investment in Canada will be even more substantial than is indicated by the number of retail units, however. In practically every case the store property will be owned outright by the company, and in a large majority of cases of new buildings will be erected to house these stores. For example, it is stated that of the 21 units to be opened this year, only two will be in reconstructed premises. The other 19 will all be new buildings, erected to comply with Kresge requirements. Many of these are already under way.

WILLIAM C. FISHER.

In every store the sales force will be employed locally. The same policy will be applied in Canada which prevails in the company's 500-odd American units, in the matter of paid vacations for all employees after a year with the company, Christmas bonuses, rest rooms, lunch rooms, and so on. It is intended that, so far as possble, the store managers will be Canadians. There are already a number of Canadian-born managers and assistant managers in the company's American chain. It is hoped to bring back to Canada as many as possible of these, and also to train men here for the responsible posts. Already the headquarters staff of the Canadian company is preponderantly Canadian-born. The managing director, William C. Fisher, is a native of Ontario.

Canadian goods will also be given preference in the company's merchandising. It is stated that roughly 60 per cent. of the items stocked will be produced in Canada.

With a price range of 5c to 25c, a wide variety of merchandise is available. Each store has 27 departments, and the full range of goods on sale runs to four or five thousand different items.

W. D. Beath Shares Offered to Public

Bankers Bond and Playfair Paterson are offering 95,000 class "A" participating shares of W. D. Beath and Son, Limited, at a price of $26.50 per share and accrued dividend. In addition to the fixed dividend of $1.60 per annum, holders of class "A" shares participate equally in all dividends paid or declared in any year in excess of the dividend of $1.60 per share and a non-cumulative dividend not exceeding $1 per share on the class "B" common shares.

W. D. Beath & Son, Limited, has acquired the business formerly carried on by a company of the same name, which previously acquired the business founded by W. D. Beath and L. R. Beath as a partnership in 1904. Proceeds of the issue are being used to provide part of the purchase price of the business and to provide additional working capital.

The company manufactures steel products, including steel containers of various kinds, grain and dump truck bodies, steel barrels, drums, conveyors and tanks, pumps and service station equipment. Fixed assets have been appraised at $871,372, and total net assets amount to $2,567,500, which is in excess of the issue price of the class "A" shares. Earnings after provision for income tax and adequate depreciation, and after eliminating the income from certain investments not acquired by the present company are as follows:

For year ended December 31, 1925, $120,740; 1926, $186,084; 1927, $234,183; 1928, $307,315, and it is estimated that the earnings for the current year will be in excess of $350,000. More than 80,000 of the 95,000 shares have already been subscribed prior to this public offering.

Asbestos Shipments Grew in March.

An indication of the better mining conditions prevailing in the asbestos industry of Canada is to be found in the increase in shipments for March, 1929, not only over February but also far in excess of the corresponding month of last year. In March of this year higher grade asbestos shipments amounted to 12,300 tons, which brought a monetary return of $864,780. In February there were 9,448 tons exported, at a value of $656,223. In March of last year there were 3,418 tons sent out of the country the price received being $696,775. A somewhat disappointing factor in the situation, however, is that the price received for the higher grades of asbestos in March of this year was lower than February by some $6 per ton, and $2 per ton less than in March of last year, the figures comparing as follows: March, 1929, $71 per ton; February, 1929, $77 per ton; and March, 1928, $73 per ton.

Durant Motors Employs 1,000 Men

Production during the first three months of 1929 showed an increase of 70.1 per cent over the corresponding period of 1928, which was the best previous year in the company's history. The management take this record as conclusive evidence of public confidence in its products.

In 1928 the company earned $1.85 per share on the stock, or 18½ per cent. This was after substantial write-offs. This year profits should be almost double those of 1928.

The enlarged manufacturing facilities are being taxed to the limit, and the question arises of the need for greater plant accommodation. Should this be decided on, the company is in a secure working position, net working capital at the close of 1928 standing at $2,695,057. The company evidently has established an important place in the automobile business of this country.

C.P.R. Profits Higher

MONTREAL, May 1.—A statement of earnings and expenses issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway shows an increase of $323,068 in net profits for the month of March, 1929, over the corresponding month of last year. Gross earnings also show an increase of $731,084. The gross earnings were shown at $17,538,589 and the working expenses $13,582,309, leaving a net profit for the month of March, 1929, at $3996,275.

For the three months to end of March this year gross earnings were $47,862,429, an increase of $761,641 over the corresponding period of last year. Net profits for the three months were $7,643,579, a decrease as compared with last year of $470,721.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

An official report of progress of the Favorable Lake Mining and Exploration Company shows satisfactory progress to have been made. Drilling has been going on for several months and a total of 18 shallow holes have been put down. Values were secured in each hole, not one being a blank, and all assays were easily commercial. The average cost per foot was about $66.50. Two drilling machines are now on the ground and work will proceed energetically throughout the summer. Fred M. Connell of Toronto, is president of the company, with whom is associated J. D. Perrin, Alan Cockeram, and K. A. MacPhaden. Capital is set at $1,000,000 in dollar shares, of which about 600,000 shares are outstanding.

It is expected that the Copper Mountain property of the Barbara-Marshay mines will be brought into production in about two months. This property is situated in Arizona and officials inform the Financial News Bureau that a substantial tonnage of ore has already been blocked out. Barbara-Marshay also controls several properties in Canada, principally in the Sudbury district.

The Financial News Bureau learns that a 250 ton mill will soon be erected on the property of the Stirling Mine, located in Nova Scotia. A substantial tonnage of ore has already been blocked out, sufficient to run a mill of the size mentioned for some four years. The Eastern Mining and Milling Company has substantial holdings in the Stirling Mine which is also held by the British Metals Corporation (Canada) Ltd.

Favorable results have been secured at the Kirkland Lake Gold Mines since the first of the year, the Financial News Bureau is informed by J. W. Tyrrell, managing director. Operations up to the first of the year were detailed in the company's annual report which was issued last week. The company has not yet penetrated the diabase dyke through to the east but will no doubt explore the virgin territory to the east when greater depth is attained. Some good bodies of ore were encountered to the west of the dyke in about the same location as higher levels.

A blast furnace and two rotary converters are now said to be on order for the Falconbridge Nickel Mines, for the projected smelter. These are scheduled for delivery in September and it is understood that the cost of this equipment is in the neighborhood of $80,000. The furnace is said to have a capacity of 225 tons per day.

A despatch from Boston Creek states that the drift of the 600-foot level of the Amity is now coming into the ore zone while the last few rounds are said to have shown the chalcopyrite to be coming in much stronger.

CALMONT.

Calmont's managing director, J. C. Dallas, says Calmont No. will be started in sixty days on Dallas site adjoining Home. This week start should be made on first well on this property and two more are to follow quickly.

BUILDING RECORD LIKELY THIS YEAR

cribed the major building operations in the city, as shown on the building permits issued from the City Engineer's office. Within the past week, in addition to a number of garages, repairs to roofs and such like small work, loomed the alterations to be made at the Canadian Pacific Railway station, at an approximate cost of $8,000, the work to be finished by June 15, in time to take care of Peterborough's Old Home Week visitors. Unusual for the cost of the alterations is their simplicity for the main work in hand will be the tearing down of one wall, and attached partitions, and re-building, on cement foundation, of an enlarged section. A brick wall, a new hot water heating system, and the customary slate roofing, will be features of the new station, the building of which is in the hands of the Patterson Construction Company of Belleville. The work has already begun.

PLUMBING INSTALLATIONS.

According to records kept at the office of the Plumbing Inspector and Relief Officer A. G. Metheral, thirty permits for plumbing were issued in the month of April, providing for the installation of 18 closets, 14 baths, 18 basins, 22 sinks, and four floor drains, while inspections, totalling 120, were comprised of 26 water tests, 34 smoke tests, 11 lay-outs, and 49 miscellaneous. Certificates of completion issued numbered 55, while 15 more old buildings were connected with the city sewage sytsem during the month.

RELIEF DEPARTMENT

In the city relief department, Mr. Metheral issued 97 orders for provisions, 30 orders for fuel, one order for an indigent patient, one order for the ambulance, and refused four patients. Inspections and investigations totalled 21.

TRAPPER FINDS SHAWL IN WATER

beginning of this week when the dam which had been built was washed away. The rains of the past week caused the creek to rise to a high level again, and the pressure of water tore out the dam. Previously, owing to the effect of the dam, the water below the bridge was very low and the search in the deep hole beneath the old bridge, where it was hoped that the body would be found, was being pressed. Although many articles which had been at the bottom of the creek for years were brought to the surface, no other results repaid the searchers.

A giant steam shovel is now being put to work to dig an entirely new channel for the creek. The big bow or curve that the creek took in its approach to the old bridge is being cut out, and the stream will follow a straight course. It is thought that the sweep of the waters around the curve beat continually against the piers of the bridge, undermining them and causing the collapse, which resulted in the loss of two lives.

LIST ADVANCES ACTIVE TRADING

Revival of Pool Activity Reflected On New York Exchange.

TIME MONEY FIRM.

(By Stanley W. Prenosil, Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 1.—Easing credit conditions and favorable trade news provided the background for another broad advance in prices in to-day's stock market. Revival of pool activity, and a marked expansion in public participation, was reflected in an increased volume of trading. Extreme gains in the active issues ran from 2 to nearly 16 points, with at least 30 stocks pushed to new high levels for the year.

Call money renewed at 11 per cent. as again 14 yesterday, and dropped to 10 around mid-day. There appeared to be a plentiful supply of funds at the lower figure and the rate is expected to work lower within the next few days. There was no quotable change in time money and commercial paper rates although an easier undertone was apparent.

LIGHT GAINS IN POPULAR ISSUES

Mine List Receives Setback After Development of Much Irregularity.

WAINWELL OIL DOWN.

TORONTO, Ont. May 1 (Canadian Press).—After the development of much irregularity, prices were pushed toward the softer side on the Standard Mining Market this morning. Though Noranda and a few of the more popular stocks made a little headway, Wainwell and Ajax Oils which have featured the market for the past few days were subject to profit-taking, and eased downward. Wainwell breaking 2 cents to 59, and Ajax 6 to 1.32. South-West Petroleum sold up to a peak of 6.50 and held at 6.30, up 95 cents, while Home advanced 50 to 21.50. Mayland was off 85 at 13.10.

Noranda was a little more active, moving up 1.00 to 53.25, while Pend Oreille improved 25 to 6.90. Sherritt-Gordon, Falconbridge and Ventures were all steady at 8.40, 11.25 and 9.50 respectively, while Sudbury Basin was slightly lower at 8.65.

DAYLIGHT SAVING DESERVES CHANCE

it is 7 o'clock standard time here lose this business hour. Another hour is lost at lunch when the lunch hour is different, and still another hour when Toronto closes business at what is four o'clock here.

The advocates of daylight saving would like the people of Peterborough to give the bylaw just another chance this year to try it out for the much shorter period. Those who are in favor of it will be inconvenienced for a period that it is in effect in Toronto and not here and those who are opposed while they still many not desire it could see how it works out in the school holiday term.

Dozens of women who would strongly oppose it for a longer term are inclined to try it out this year, and advocates hope for a spirit of compromise and co-operation to give it a trial.

TO INVEST $23,000 SURPLUS IN CITY

Utilities Commission Holds Monthly Meeting To Discuss Business.

Decisions to temporarily invest $23,000 of a cash balance in City of Peterborough debentures, to cancel charges for private fire protection except in the cases where water is taken through the same service for manufacturing purposes, and to renew the Commission's membership in the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, were reached at the regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, held in the City Buildings this afternoon. It was also announced during the meeting that the electrical department has a bank balance of $31,000, while the water department has a balance of $41,000.

Presided over by Chairman G. S. Matthews, the meeting first considered a communication from John Carroll, in which he applied for a water main to cross a new sub-division of 37 building lots, being opened up in the south part of the city near Park Street. The Commission decided to build that section of the main, crossing Park Street, immediately, so that there would be no need of tearing up the new paving to be laid this summer. The remainder of the work will be completed when final arrangements have been made with the applicant.

A second communication was received from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, stating that it would pay a charge of $2,200 for the year's operation by the Peterborough Commission, of the rural power system, and this offer was approved. With regard to the investing of the $23,000 cash balance, this sum will be divided. $13,000 worth of the debentures to go to the electrical and $10,000 worth to the water department of the Commission.

Discuss Fire Protection.

Tuesday night, at the annual meeting of the Peterborough branch, Canadian Manufacturers' Assbciation, the Commission took up with that body the matter of charges for water kept in mains and sprinkler systems for fire protection in factories and other public places. The manufacturers disapproved of the charges on the grounds that it was a municipal duty to provide such protection. The Commission, recognizing the merit of such argument, but having to contend with cases where water is being used through the fire protection service for manufacturing purposes, on Wednesday decided that it would be wise to abolish such charges except in cases where the fire service equipment served the dual purpose.

BROKERS LEASE NEW OFFICES

F. G. Oke and Company Will Take Up Quarters in Jeanette Store.

ABOUT MAY 15.

F. G. Oke and Company, Stock Brokers, have leased the store formerly occupied by the Jeanette Store at 388 George street. They expect to move into it from their present offices on Charlotte street on or about May 15.

The necessary alterations to make the store an up-to-date office are already in progress. It is the plan to make this office one of the most complete brokerage offices in the city. Dissatisfaction with their present quarters and greater convenience to their clientele in the new office was said to be the reason that decided the move.

of the airplane's rudder revealed that the two airmen were forced down by engine trouble on April 10. They repaired their machine and attempted to get off again but found the run too short.

They were unable to find water and they steadily grew weaker from thirst until they were unable to make a further attempt after April 11.

The diary's last entry was on April 12 and it was believed that they died on that date.

A Strong Link in Canada's Industrial Chain

WHEN the complete story is written of the world's industrial development during the last half century a glowing chapter will be devoted to Canadian manufacture.

It will describe the valiant struggle of a young nation competing against giant industrial countries. It will show the gradual rise of Canada to her present position as a great and ever growing factor in the world's affairs.

This epic tale will prove that Canada stands seventh in world manufacture . . . that she is first in the making of newsprint, fourth in the automobile industry, in flour-milling and in rubber manufacture, has some of the largest chemical plants and plans to occupy one of the leading positions in metallurgy. Canada has good reason to be proud of her manufacturers.

The manufacturers of the past relied with confidence upon The Canadian Bank of Commerce. Those of to-day are of the same faith and, looking forward, use to the fullest extent the services of this Bank . . . an integral part of Canada's industrial structure.

WET WEATHER HALTS WORK

Farmers in Bailieboro District Unable To Continue Plowing.

LITTLE SOWING DONE.

BAILIEBORO, May 1 (Examiner Correspondence).—The recent heavy rain storms in the Bailieboro district have completely stopped Spring work. The low-lying land which was nearly dry, is once more saturated with water. Only a small percentage of the land had been sown, but a large amount of it was cultivated ready to sow. However, a couple of days of warm sunny weather will, at this time of year, soon dry up the land, so that cultivating and seeding can again commence.

Although the rain has held up Spring seeding for a while, still the farmers greatly benefit by the better conditions of the fall wheat and clover, and since these are very essential crop for the farmer, a little warm, rainy weather is no so disagreeable after all.

SIX HOUR DAY IS DEMANDED

New York Socialists Issue Manifesto To Mark May Day.

POLICE READY.

NEW YORK, May 1. — Special precautionary measures to guard against possible disorders on May Day will be issued to the police to-day by Chief Inspector John O'Brien. The orders will be along the line of the annual May Day instructions, with special emphasis on the protection of churches, public buildings and the citizens. Special guards will be placed at all such places. While police reserves will be kept on special duty in all station houses from 4 o'clock on Tuesday morning until 8 o'clock on Thursday morning, the bomb squad under Captain John Lyons, will keep a close watch on prominent radicals and anarchists.

Wednesday, May 1, will be celebrated by Socialists, Communists and other radicals in the manner in which they have always marked labor's international holiday. This holiday being of European origin, most of the unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, take no part in the celebration. Labor Day in September is the day which these organizations regard as peculiarly their own.

The main feature of the May Day celebration here will be a mass meeting organized by the Socialist in co-operation with trade unions in Madison Square Garden. Norman Thomas will preside. A musical program will precede the speaking.

The Communists, who have been barred by the Socialists from the Madison Square Garden meeting, will hold a parade, followed by a mass meeting in the Coliseum in East 177th street, in the Bronx.

In a May day manifesto addressed to all workers yesterday the Socialists demand a six hour day, abolition of injunctions in labor disputes, maintenance of the right to picket in strikes, adoption of social insurance, and old age pension laws in the state and nation, the release of Tom Mooney and Warren K Billings from California prisons, and the creation of a Labor party with the Socialist Party as the nucleus.

The May Day parade of the Communists will be the first of its kind since 1916. Permission for the parade was given by Police Commissioner Whalen yesterday, on condition that the parade proceed in an orderly manner, and that no incendiary placards be displayed and that the American flag be carried in the march. These conditions were pronounced acceptable at the office of the Workers (Communist) Party in Union Square. It was said there that 10,000 workers are expected to participate in the parade.

To Look Your Best
You Must Feel Your Best!

When humanity was young, men and women relied upon the cleansing, purifying action of rain, wind, sun and exercise to keep the skin clean and healthy.

Today—hampered by modern living and modern clothing—your skin pores become sluggish, clog up, fail to do their duty in carrying off poisonous waste.

Nature needs help in righting this undesirable condition. A simple, easy, sure expedient is the daily bath with Lifebuoy Soap.

Lifebuoy's creamy lather is nature's own restorative. It does more than just cleanse. Its gentle but certain action opens up skin pores, lets them breathe, helps them to function properly . . . tired, tensed muscles are relieved, nerves are soothed and you feel like a new person.

LIFEBUOY
THE BATH SOAP SUPREME Purifies and Protects

HEALTHY DOCTOR OBJECTS TO REPORTS OF HIS DEATH.

CALGARY, Alta., May 1 (Canadian Press). — Dr. W. H. S. Scott, of Vauxhall, Alta., has on two occasions been obliged to deny reports of his demise. The most recent report, a newspaper story, described the probation of his will bequeathing $5,000 and a section of land to a war-time friend.

"I am still alive and in A1 condition," stated Dr. Scott when the item was called to his attention. "I have thirty years yet to run around the country. I am not exactly sure who wants me dead, but this is the second time in eight months that my death has been published. . . ."

PLAN CHANNEL TUNNEL.

LONDON, May 1. — Plans for a tunnel under the English Channel to connect England and France are again being considered. The idea, as originated in 1924, was for two single-track tunnels, each 35 miles long. The cost of construction was estimated at $145,000,000. It would furnish employment to about 12,000 men for about five years.

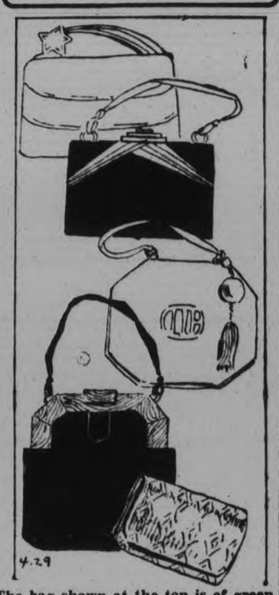
The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall



The bag shown at the top is of green suede with silver metal handle and clasp combined. Next to this is a black calfskin bag with modernist metal clasp, then a bag of tan leather with interesting handle and amber ball. This bag opens at the bottom. The large bag shown below at the left is of brown antelope with wooden mounting and the small evening purse at the right is of silver and gold brocade.

The handbag should never be given a focal place in the ensemble. This is a rule set for themselves by many well-dressed women and to follow it is to play safe. There are times when a beautiful handbag of the finest qquality may be the most conspicuous of the accessories, but usually it should play a secondary role in the dress scheme.

It is for this reason that bags of various beige, gray and grege and natural tones are so much in demand among well-dressed women. Snakeskins bags of a grayish beige have enjoyed extremely good reputation of late. Good quality pigskin bags go well with tailored and sports ensembles of beige woollens.

With green or blue cloth or silk costumes one may carry a bag of suede leather of color to match.

Black handbags go well with black or with the black and beige scheme. Tan leather is also very good at the present time.

Inconspicuousness is a rule that applies not only to color and material but also to shape. A freak type of bag, no matter of how good materials, may ruin the entire effect of a costume.

Pouches and envelopes divide the honors, and bags of medium size or fairly small size are preferred this season to the very roomy sort that look as if they might do duty as overnight bags.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

Some women try to simplify the problem of keeping their things in order by having as few things as possible. Others by having a convenient place in which to keep all sorts of things. Women of the first group are forever eliminating. They do not feel justified in possessing a new wall picture until they have got rid of one already in their possession. They sell or give away some books they have read before they will get new shelves in which to keep new books. They are ever and anon fighting against that innate desire to save this, that or the other object of interest.

Of course keeping house is a lot easier in the house where there is no very large collection of things. It is far easier to move or to travel when one has few necessary personal effects. On the other hand, existence seems to be richer to those who have all sorts of personal possessions about them.

One very attractive feature about the new type of furniture is that it provides so much convenient storage space for one's personal possessions. As one decorator working in the new spirit put it, in any work room, bedroom, or general living room there should be the maximum of classified storing space for personal belongings, papers, books, and various objects of interest or usefulness. These storage places may be in the form of drawers, cupboards or open shelves arranged in the actual furniture or against the wall, as part of the background of the room.

One objection that some housewives make to an abundance of such space is that it just provides space for clutter But whether you want to make such space mere clutter traps or not is of course a matter for you to decide. A little thought and attention taken each day will keep one's personal possessions in a well classified and well organized arrangement.

That Body of Yours

By Dr. J. Barton

(By JAS. W. BARTON, M.D.)

BODY SUPPLIES EXTRA SUGAR WHEN NECESSARY

I have spoken before about Sandow the strong man who always ate taffy a few minutes before he went on the stage to do the heavy lifting and other feats of strength that made up his vaudeville act. Also about football players and other athletics, who ate chocolate bars or other candy at the rest period, during a game.

The reason that these athletes ate candy was that it was simply sugar in an agreeable form to eat, and past experience had proven that sugar helped to sustain them better than other foods. Why?

Because sugar or starch is what is used to manufacture the heat in the large muscles that cover the body to supply the energy that is needed. Sometimes you have marvelled at the strength shown by yourself or someone else during an emergency.

Perhaps it was necessary to life a heavy weight and carry it some distance.

Perhaps you have tried to repeat the performance and find that you can't do it.

Why?

Because there is now no actual need; nothing is at stake, no life to save or other condition that so excited or stimulated you.

Because when there is need or an emergency the glands of the body, particularly the little adrenal glands, which are situated on top of each kidney ,immediately send out an extra supply of their secretion, that is adrenalin, into the blood, and it, as you know, gives the muscles added strength by making more sugar immediately available for the muscles to use.

Normal cats excited by a dog show a marked increase in blood sugar; in fact from 30 to 90 per cent.

There are just two points to keep in mind.

First, sugar is an excellent food, a cheap food, and is in condition to be used by the system in a shorter time than other foods.

Second, it is comforting to know that the Creator is ahead of our needs here just as in so many other ways.

Remember, however, that while sugar and starches are the fuel, the body used to create energy, it is eggs and meat and also cereals that repair the tissues of the body that get worn out by this work or exercise.

Hense heavy workers need meat, eggs, or cereals.

MARION'S MAIL

"Dear Marion: It is quite a while since I wrote to our page, and I have not had time to make the recipe cabinet yet either. Thank you all the same for the very plain instructions, which I am saving, hoping to use soon. Last night Leatherhead asked for a recipe for rhubarb jam. I am sending one which I call 'marmalade' but which I like very much. You are quite right in to-night's 'What-Not' about telling the truth to children. It may not always be wise to tell the whole truth, and if you feel you should not tell them what they ask. It is much better just to say 'I can't tell you.' I have quite a grown up family and I am glad to say not one of them can ever say I told them an untruth.

"Ella May asks some things about farmers' wives. Well, I too, have milked cows and lived on a farm although I am not on one now. There are compensation in any life. In some ways the farm is away ahead of the town or city, and it would not do if they had all the advantages. As for work, believe me, the man in town who works from seven to six, with one hour at noon to walk home swallow his dinner, and walk back to work, has no holiday. If he wants to take a half day to attend to any other business he has to 'ask the boss,' and even should his long lost brother come to see him he has to 'punch in.' This is not an argument and I know both sides of the question; but a man or woman who wants to make anything of life, whether in the town or city, has to hustle, and hustle hard. The work is different, but none the less work. I think I had better say no more this time.

"Where is 'Highflyer?' For a high-flyer she has some good ideas. I enjoy all the letters anyway even when I don't just agree with what is said. I wonder if anyone else chose their pen name for the reason I did? It was an old nick-name when I was young though it is not at all like my name. SUSIE."

Thank you, "Susie," for your nice letter. You have the right idea in appreciating the mail, even when opinions don't coincide with yours. It would be a humdrum world indeed if everyone thought alike!

NATURE'S WONDER

OLD SONGS

FAIR ELLEN

(Contributed by Diana.)

One evening the moon shone brightly,
As brightly as ever it glowed,
A young and fearless lover,
To fair Ellen's cottage strode.

He said, 'Come let us wander,
Those woods and valleys so gay,'
He says, "Come let us on er,
To-morrows our wedding day.'

Those woods and valleys look dreary
And I'm so afraid to stray,
Of wondering I am so weary,
So I will retrace my way

Retrace your way—no, never,
Those fields you'll ne'er see more,
So bid a lieu forever,
Kind friends you do adore.

You haven't the wings of an eagle
Nor from me can you fly,
No mortal soul can hear you
You instantly must die.

Down on her knees before him
She begged him to spare her life
Deep, deep into her bosom,
He plunged that fatal knife.

Oh, Edmund, I'll forgive you
With my last an dying breath,
Never have I received you,
As she closed her eyes in death.

Come all of you fair young maidens
Be warned by me this day,
Ne'er give your hearts to young men
For they will you betray,
Like Edmund did fair Ellen
All on her wedding day.

WHERE THE RIVER SHANNON FLOWS

(Contributed by "Erin's Youth.")

Where the River Shannon flows
There's a pretty spot in Ireland,
The land I love—my sireland—
Where the name and fame of heroes
Will never, never die,
And I face the future gaily,
As my heart goes back there daily
To the girl I left behind me when we Kissed and said goodbye.

Chorus.

Where the dear old Shannon's flowing,
Where the three-leav'd shamrock grows,
Where my heart is I am going
To my little Irish rose.
And moment that I meet her,
With kiss and smile I'll greet her,
For there's not a colleen sweeter
Where the river Shannon flows.

Sure no letter I'll be mailing,
For soon I will be sailing,
And I'll bless the ship that takes me
Back to dear old Erin's shore.
There I'll settle down for ever—I'll leave the old place never
And I'll whisper to my sweetheart,
"Come and take my name, asthore."

CANNED TOMATOES MORE POTENT IN VITAMIN "C" THAN ORANGE JUICE

Having conducted a thorough research into the dietetic value of canned foods, the New Health Society of Great Britain finds that "canned foods are safe sources of nutriment, giving the full protein, caloric and vitamin value of the fresh foods from which they are prepared, and may be used with every confidence to complete the daily ration where, for any reason, whether productive, economic or for convenience the entire use of fresh foods is impracticable."

In confirmation of a claim that properly preserved fruits retain their Vitamin "C" (the important anti-scorbutic watersoluble Vitamin) intact, the Society quotes the exhaustive series of experiments conducted by four distinguished scientists of the Columbia University, New York, who found canned tomatoes to be more potent in Vitamin "C" than fresh orange juice, and canned apples, peaches and strawberries to be equal to the fresh fruit.

"We may thus conclude", says the report, "that properly canned fruit is a reliable source of Vitamin "C" and gives practically all the dietetic advantages of fresh fruit and is superior in all respects to kitchen-cooked fruit."

HOLLYWOOD–LOS ANGELES–PASADENA

Interior of one of the ten famous Weaver-Jackson Shops in Hollywood—patronized by more than half of the celebrities of the moving picture world. The Weaver-Jackson Company Shops are known throughout Los Angeles, Pasadena and Hollywood.

HOLLYWOOD, mecca of beauty, listens to its beauty specialists with the same respect that it accords to its physicians.

For in Hollywood, beauty means success, and a lovely skin means more than anywhere in the world. And what those experts say is vital beauty news!

Listen, then, to what the Weaver-Jackson Company experts say . . . who number among their patrons half of the famous stars of Cinema Land.

Where Hollywood is beautified

"Among our patrons are the smartest, the most fastidious, the most prominent women in Hollywood, Los Angeles and Pasadena. We take pride in serving fully half of the women in the motion picture industry.

"We operate a system of ten distinguished shops which form the largest one city beauty service unit in the world, and prominent among our shops is the world-known unit in the Ambassador Hotel.

"Society here is very cosmopolitan. So is our clientele. So we must know all the beauty treatments in vogue on the continent.

Operators working in the Paris salon of L'Institut de Beauté, presided over by the distinguished Madame Valentin le Brun. Madame le Brun advises all her smart patrons to use one soap—and one only—Palmolive.

"Among these the most famous is the Palmolive Soap treatment. You take this soap which is made from the oils of the Palm tree and the Olive tree. You massage it gently into the face—so(with some warm water, of course), until you see the skin is clean. Then wash it off, still with gently warm water following with cold. There you have a beauty treatment used by famous beauties throughout Europe."

Dozens of experts in Hollywood recommend this famous treatment involving Palmolive Soap! And over four thousand specialists all over the country give their patrons this same advice.

In Paris, home of beauty, all the experts tell you the same thing. Lina Cavalieri, for instance, the former opera star, who now tells the smartest women in Paris how to keep their priceless beauty; Madame Valentin le Brun, the acknowledged dean of all Parisienne beauty specialists; Massé, Vincent, Delord et Bion, Payot—all the beauty specialists of note in the beauty loving capital of France recommend Palmolive Soap to their distinguished patrons; and in Vienna, Berlin, Budapest, Rome, Madrid, London—in all the great capitals of Europe you hear this same advice, "safeguard beauty with Palmolive Soap."

IT'S A FAR cry from Peterborough to the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York, but thoughts about Old Home Week and the closing of the famous hostelry to-night compel me to take the mental trip.

* * * * * *

There is something fascinating, to me at least, in the thought of "last" things. There is something terrifying in the finality of events one knows can never happen again.

* * * * * *

I wonder how many neighbors are impressed the same way? Do you feel badly, when moving, for instance, as you take the last drink of water from the tap you have used day in and day out for years?

* * * * * *

Even trivialities like that make a profound impression on me—and when loved ones have died it was not the first poignant moment of loss that most moved me, but the finality of the closing casket lid, the last glimpse of the casket as it sank into the grave.

* * * * * *

These things are so utterly and absolutely final. There is no appeal from them.

* * * * * *

In Peterborough, these days, we are watching the demolition of the building until recently occupied by the Kingan Hardware Company and the Hall store. It is disappearing, literally, under our eyes.

* * * * * *

THAT is final. No power on earth can put it back in just the condition it was two weeks ago, even if such an objective were sought.

* * * * * *

The bricks and lumber will be carried off and used again; the window glass will serve for many years in some other location, but the building as we knew it can never again appear.

* * * * * *

No one of us would have the world stand still, but that does not prevent our feeling a pang as the old landmarks fall away in the sweep of progress.

* * * * * *

To-night there passes one of the landmarks of all the world—the Waldorf-Astoria. Everyone who has not been there had read about this famous hotel, host to the mighty and entertainer of the select.

* * * * * *

To-night for the last time the resplendent halls will do service. In them will assemble for a final banquet, representatives of the societies that have held their festivities regularly in the wonderful ballroom under blue skies painted by Lashfield.

* * * * * *

What memories will be called forth of great men, of their ringing speeches and the toasts that brought echoing cheers! "Oscar of the Waldorf" one of the most noted hotel men in the world, will throw wide the doors; the music will burst into full swing; the diners will take their places, and for the last time in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria the spirit of to-day will commune with the spirit that was yesterday's—then....curtain!

* * * * * *

It is not alone by those who participated in the famous dinners and dances that the Waldorf will be missed. There were triumphs of art in the preparation of these banquets. Oscar recalls the Guggenheim dinner of 1899, when nightingales sang in rose bushes; grape vines grew over arbors, with pendant purple clusters; and in the centre of the table was a lake that reflected the pale blossoms of orchids growing at its side. The dinner cost ten thousand dollars.

* * * * * *

There were many great events in the history of the Waldorf-Astoria, and many great personages will recall them with fond memories in years to come.

* * * * * *

Debutantes have made their bow to the social world in its ballrooms, and have then returned to the hotel to spend their honeymoon days. Then, when their daughters reached the age of beaux and banquets, sentiment prompted them to give a supper-dance at the Waldorf-Astoria, with Oscar officiating as he had done twenty-five years before.

* * * * * *

Many have written asking to purchase the furniture of certain suites endeared to them by memory. "I would like to buy the furniture in ——suite" writes one. "It was there I spent my early married days. And I am an old woman now."

* * * * * *

A fragile little woman came to the hotel one day recently. All she asked for was a ballroom chair—one of the gilt chairs into whose tapestried seat a lute is woven. She fumbled for a second in her purse, then drew out a yellowed bit of newspaper. On it was a picture of a slender girl, standing beside one of the chairs she wished to own. The resemblance between the girl and the woman who held the clipping in her hand was strong. She left knowing that the chair would be hers.

* * * * * *

Peacock Alley, the hospitable foyer of the hotel, has been a trysting place of generations. In it the elite of fashion preened themselves, while lesser folk, tolerated by the hotel though they never spent a cent there, looked on.

* * * * * *

This, too, shall pass away—and probably there never will be another, because the efficiently managed hotels of to-day's vintage cannot afford the space.

* * * * * *

Within a month the effects of the hotel will have been sold out—the auctioneer takes over to-morrow morning—and then will begin its demolition to make way for a skyscraper. The Waldorf-Astoria will be but a heap of rubble.

Shrine of the mighty! can it be,
That this is all remains of thee?

* * * * * *

Thus, on New York's Fifth avenue as on Peterborough's George street, change holds sway. The old is giving way to the new. Progress demands space where it may erect the products of its ideas, and the old must go.

* * * * * *

Those who return for Old Home Week after absences of thirty or forty years will scarcely know the old town. There still remain, however, some familiar places, and I am heartily in sympathy with the idea presented some time ago of having guides to point them out to the visitors.

* * * * * *

Let a man find three or four places he remembers—the swimming hole, the old school, the old Church, one or two old stores—and he will feel at home. Don't boast too much the improvements we have made. This is OLD HOME WEEK. Let's get into the spirit of the event, and really make the visitors feel AT HOME.

* * * * * *

That's MY idea of an Old Home Reunion. It's not an occasion for boasting about ourselves—our progress will be obvious—it's a great opportunity for us to bring a little joy to many hearts by recalling memories of their youth.

* * * * * *

Let's do that, and we will find Old Home Week a real joy to us as well as to those we entertain.

Rotary Club Persuades Chicago's Mayor To Be Courteous To Australians.

CHICAGO, Ills., May 1.—(Special to The Examiner.)—King George V to-day lost one of the best enemys a King of England ever had, with the announcement that Mayor William Hale Thompson had invited the party of 160 Australian cadets touring the continent to be his guests on Thursday afternoon at the meeting of the Chicago city council.

Major J. J. Simmons, conducting the party, accepted the invitation. "This act of good will is one of the most gratifying extended to us during our tour from the Pacific to the Atlantic," he declared.

The arranging of the visit came after a good deal of back stage manipulation by the Chicago Rotary Club. When the party arrived in Chicago last week, it found the customary visit to the Mayor lacking. Major Simmons stated that such a visit was in the hands of the party's hosts, the Rotary Club, and if they did not care to arrange it, it was of little consequence. The Rotary Club declared that if the boys wished to visit the Mayor the visit could be arranged at once.

The young men of the party discreetly remained silent, and it was not until numerous telephone conversations had been held between Rotary officials, Mayor Thompson's secretary, and the manager of the hotel at which the Australians are stopping that the visit was arranged.

Chairman—W. C. Ackerman, secretary-treasurer of the B. F. Ackerman Son and Company, Ltd.

Secretary—G. W. Green of the G. W. Green Company, Ltd.

Chairman's Report

For the past year, Gordon S. Matthews, in addition to his activities as chairman of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, has presided in a similar office at the head of the Peterborough Manufacturers' Association and for that reason his report covered the year's activities thoroughly. Mr. Matthews said in part:—

"In the year just closed, in addition to taking care of all business which had a bearing directly on the manufacturers of Peterborough, the Association co-operated in the usual way with the Chamber of Commerce and the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board. We are continuing to exercise supervision over the Manufacturers' Building for the latter body and the Association assisted the Chamber of Commerce in financing its publicity work during the past year by continuing the usual grant of $500.00. At the commencement of the year our finances seemed to warrant making this grant and on hearing the Treasurer's Report the members will be glad to note that we have been fortunate in being able to balance our budget for the year and keep our membership roll intact. One new member was added during the year, giving us a total membership of nineteen.

On Monday, the 17th of October last, your Executive had the pleasure of entertaining a delegation of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, composed of the Secretary of the Division with some central and western Ontario manufacturers. The success of the entertainment was greatly enhanced by the fact that the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., the Quaker Oats Company, and the Western Clock Co., Ltd. authorized our having the delegation shown through these important premises. The delegation was afterwards entertained at dinner at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club when some fourteen Peterborough manufacturers sat down to dinner with the delegation, who afterwards left for Toronto intimating that at a later date they would be glad to arrange for a larger delegation of the Ontario Division to come to Peterborough to see as many of the Peterborough plants as possible.

Perhaps the most important matter to come to our attention this year is the discriminative freight rate schedule. That we should be forced to pay 30c per ton more on coal than the citizens of Belleville or Cobourg pay, and that other freight rates should be equally discriminative, is a very serious matter for Peterborough. Some progress has been made in the survey of the situation which was undertaken by Mr. George A. Macdonald of the Quaker Oats Company, and we understand that there is a likelihood of our having the matter at least partially adjusted during the present year.

At this time I need to say nothing more than to thank the other officers of the Association for their support during the year just closed, and to thank the membership generally for their co-operation with their Executive Council whenever called upon."

In the unavoidable absence of the 1928 treasurer, John R. Marshall, the corresponding secretary, F. G. Stinson, read the financial statement of the local branch which indicated a balanced budget for the year just closed as well as an encouragingly well sustained membership role. Immediately after it was approved, the matter of sending a delegation to the annual meeting of the parent body at Halifax, or June 4, 5, 6, was given consideration and it was decided that the Peterborough representation need not be entirely composed of manufacturers but might include other citizens who would be free to make the trip at that time.

Investigating Rates

A satisfactory written report was received during the evening from E. Vernon Morphet, traffic manager of the Quaker Oats Company, who is acting on a committee investigating discriminatory freight rates. At the present time, in the case of coal coming to Peterborough, the rate is 30 cents a ton higher than on coal shipped to Trenton, Belleville, Cobourg and other centres of equal mileage. The fact that these other places are on the lakefront, is an argument which the railroad companies are using in support of the discriminatory rates, but the local association's committee will endeavor to show that with Trent Canal facilities available to Peterborough, there should be no difference in rates.

The week of May 25 to June 1 was approved during the meeting last night, as a good time for the holding of Empire shopping Week in Peterborouh, and it was decided that the Manufacturers' Association should co-operate to the fullest degree with merchants of the city in the display of Empire-made goods.

The communication from the Peterborough Utilities Commission suggesting the matter of having manufacturers pay a fee for water kept available for fire protection, was one which did not meet with popular acclaim at the meeting as it was felt that no water should be paid for except that actually used in the factories, and that the municipality should keep water available in the hydrants and sprinkler systems for use in cases of emergencies.

Leafs Even Newark Series--Yanks Win by One Run

O'NEILL CLAN BEATS BEARS BY 10-1 SCORE

Martin Holds Newark To Two Hits To Win Third Game.

AT HOME TO-DAY.

Leafs Recover From Batting Slump and Make Sixteen Hits.

NEWARK, May 1.—Abe Martin, Toronto's elongated southpaw, turned in a big league pitching exhibition here yesterday to give the Leafs a 10-to-1 victory over the Newark Bears in the final game of the series. It was Martin's third victory of the season, and not only earned him the title of Toronto's southpaw ace, but gained him recognition as one of the most effective lefthanders in the International, and one of the best pitching prospects in the minor leagues. Martin was inclined to be wild, walking four men, but he was master in the pinches, and he humbled the Bears with two hits, one of which was a three-bagger, by Malone, and paved the way for Newark's only run.

The Bears got their first hit, a single by Wrightstone, in the second inning, and after Malone tripled in the fourth they did not even connect for one that had the semblance of being a safety. It was a brilliant manner in which the Leafs closed their first road trip of the season, as, while Martin's pitching was the outstanding feature of the contest, the most important point was the fact that the Leafs emerged from their batting slump, and how. It took them three innings to get warmed up, but when they got started they hammered the offerings of Don Brennan, Bill Moore and Harvey Reese to all corners of the park, collecting no less than 16 safeties, a record for the season.

At Home To-Day.

"Fresh to strong winds, unsettled, showers or thunderstorms," is the way the weatherman sums up the possibilities for to-day. Most discouraging is this prediction, but showers or thunderstorms wouldn't keep the dyed-in-the-wool fans away from Leaf Stadium this afternoon if it is possible to play the game. They'll be out there rooting for Steve O'Neill's men and the "Wild Orioles" will get a hot reception.

While the Leafs do not appear to be a wrecking crew with the willow, they are strong defensively, and Manager O'Neill is confident that his pitching staff will be the best in the International League. O'Neill, who catches in most of the games, should know what he is talking about. To date only Guy Cantrell, who will pitch to-day, and 'Lefty' Martin have been victorious, each winning three games and losing none, but "Hoot" Gibson and Jess Doyle, who have been beaten twice and three times, respectively, have been unfortunate. O'Neill believes that they will soon be in their winning stride.

ORIOLES IN SECOND PLACE

BALTIMORE, May 1.—Baltimore slipped back into second place when the Rochester Red Wings took the final game of the series, 9 to 6, in another free-hitting contest.

SKEETERS COP SERIES

JERSEY CITY, May 1 (C.P.).—Jersey City won the third and deciding game of the series here yesterday, defeating Montreal Royals by a score of 8 to 1. The Black Cats won two out of three to cop the series.

KEYS WIN HOME GAME

READING, May 1 (C.P.).—Reading ended its home stay by losing to Buffalo here yesterday 6 to 3. Curly Ogden, who had a trial with the New York Giants, held Reading to eight hits, while Bob Osborn, who was sent to Reading by the Chicago Cubs, was pounded off the hill in four frames, during which time the Herd scored all its runs on nine hits.

BRAVES DROP NATIONALS

PHILADELPHIA, May 1 (C.P.).—In a free-swinging hard-hitting game here yesterday Boston defeated the Philadelphia Nationals 14 to 12. The Braves bunched hits with some bad pitching in three innings, grabbing eight runs in the seventh inning.

LACROSSE CLUBS ORGANIZED IN CAMPBELLFORD AND MILLBROOK

Fostered By O.A.L.A. in Order To Develop the Younger Players.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 1.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—This morning a corps of salesmen started to work in Campbellford. But they are not high pressure men and their goods are not high priced. They are selling shares in a local Lacrosse organization at twenty-five cents each. The money will be used to purchase supplies for the three teams that have been organized. Fred C. Waghorne, of the O.A.L.A. has been in the district for several days and is attempting to revive the interest in Canada's national sport. Monday night there was a meeting held in the public library basement and more than fifty men and boys attended. It was interesting to note that this is the largest turnout that any sport has been able to attract when meetings have been called. A complete list of officers was elected and everything possible done to get the sport started. Johnny Sutherland occupied the chair. The speakers were F. C. Waghorne, A. J. Meyers, C. E. Speedie and the chairman. It was also learned at the meeting that Campbellford has been invited to play an intermediate fixture with Oshawa in Deserton at the U.E.L. celebration there. The date set for the game is June 19th and it is understood that a team will be organized for the purpose.

This year the local organization will be in the juvenile class. There will be three teams, Tecumsehs, Maple Leafs and Canadians. Their captains will be Eddie Bush, M. Reid and M. L. Lloyd.

The officers elected:

Patrons: Mayor Davidson, C. H. Nadoo, J. McArthur, James Kerr; Hon. President, A. J. Meyers; Hon. Vice President, C. E. Speedie; President, J. Sutherland; 1st Vice President, Chas. Montogmery; 2nd Vice President, Hector McArthur; Secretary, M. Reid; Treasurer, N. W. Reynolds; Committee: Chas. Holmes, D. Runions and R. McPherson.

ORGANIZED AT MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK, May 1.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Canada's national game, lacrosse, is apparently to be revived locally this season, the effort to bring this sport back to its popularity throughout the Dominion leading to the visit of a government representative at the schools here last Tuesday, when an initial organization was effected as follows:

President, Eddie Nattress; vice-president, Gerald Raper; secretary-treasurer, Cameron Vance; supervisors, H. Jordan, assistant principal of the Continuation school, and B. B. Dawson, principal of the public school.

Committees were appointed to campaign for the selling of shares, 'the fund derived from the sale of shares to be devoted solely to helping the boys of this town in playing what is recognized as the world's greatest game.'

Twenty-five cents purchases a share. Holding one to three shares makes one a "Follower"; four shares a 'Supporter'; more than four shares a 'Booster'

Fostered Many Stars.

Millbrook has had some famous lacrosse players in earlier years, and there are one or two even yet who are decidedly enthusiastic over the revival of the game. During the Old Boys' Reunion held here in 1922 a game of lacrosse was one of the attractions at the big gathering on the Agricultural grounds on Monday afternoon, the final day of the reunion, when some of the old players, such as the Gautt boys from Toronto, again handled the stick, putting plenty of vim and vigor into the struggle for the hardly-contested goals. The spectators were obliged to side-step in lively fashion several times while the game lasted, as it was occasionally featured by a free-for-all scrimmage, which however only added to the fun, the charging old boys being intent upon one thing, and one thing only—the ball.

When the Souris lacrosse team, champions of Western Canada, played here several years ago, the local boys were the winners, and it was counted a red-letter day in the community's history. The desire is general that the present movement to revive the game, which was such a popular feature of the athletic program of former years, will prove decidedly successful.

Brooklyn Play Spectacular Ball To Win Decision Over New Yorkers.

FOLHAZZLER STARS.

BROOKLYN, May 1. Lured by the magnificence that is the right arm of Arthur Vance, 20,000 Flatbush folk gathered at Ebbets Field to sit by while the dazzler made the Giants dance at his bidding. The premier pitcher of the National league let down the aspiring young men of John J. McGraw, with three very small hits, appropriately scattered, and one Brooklyn flurry netted the home team enough edge for a 2-to-0 victory.

Bill Walker gave the Robins just four hits, but three of these were bunched in the fifth for the two Brooklyn markers. The Dazzler fanned six.

SPORTS COMMITTEES CHOSEN AT REORGANIZATION MEETING OF ROSENEATH ASSOCIATION

Reports Show That Association Has Had Most Successful Season.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Sports Interest Rapidly Developing in Village—Will Have Baseball Team.

ROSENEATH, May 1. (Examiner Correspondence). — The Roseneath Amateur Athletic Association held their annual meeting recently, when a goodly number were present. J. Hallett, manager of the Royal Bank, was re-elected president for the year 1929, and Howard H. Lapp was re-elected secretary.

On motion, a vote of thanks was extended to H. H. Lapp, J. Hallett and Rev. R. M. Brown for their efforts in making the skating rink a decided success during the winter months. On motion William Arnold, C. W. Varcoe, Dr. Hershey, M. D. Brown act as directors of the R. A.A.A. M. D. Brown and Howard Lapp were appointed as a committee to organize the baseball and take control of the situation until such time as a captain and manager be selected.

Dr. Hershey, M. D. Brown, Clark Lapp, William Arnold, and Delbert Brisbin act as grounds committee. They also are to organize a tennis club. Charlton Grigg has the responsibility and full control of the hockey team for the season.

Rev. M. R. Brown and C. W. Varcoe were appointed to attend the baseball meeting held in Harwood.

Mrs. Delbert Brisbin and Mrs (Dr) Hershey were appointed to organize sports for women and girls for the summer months. Marcena Davey was appointed baseball scorer for the season.

Association Growing.

The Athletic Association is growing rapidly, not only the young are interested, but everybody. During the winter months the skating rink was well patronized when everyone enjoyed themselves in the new rink. Now summer is approaching when ice is forgotten and the baseball games are popular. Last season Roseneath did splendidly, but unfortunately lost the cup by one game. This however, may never occur again as every season seems to be gaining on the last and the people are becoming more enthusiastic to make these sports successful. The boys have been put to a big expense during the past year and still have a small deficit, and will be very grateful for any help from the public.

Although there was over $500 received the expenses amounted to over $600, which they are anxious to clear in the near future. Any donations in aid of the association will be gratefully received by the secretary, Howard H. Lapp.

Mr. and Mrs. George Herrington have come to live in the village, having sold their farm to Mr. Frank Adams, who moved from the village on Thursday.

MATCH CANCELLED.

Cricket Match With the Grove School Postponed On Account of Wet Grounds.

The match scheduled with the Grove School next Saturday at the Oval has been cancelled as the grounds are unfit to play on.

All members are urged to turn out Friday evening at 6.15 and Saturday afternoon at 2.45, at the Oval.

Reds Rally In Ninth To Defeat the Cubs 5-4

CINCINNATI, May 1 (Canadian Press). — The Cincinnati Reds took a 5 to 4 victory from the Chicago Cubs here yesterday, staging a ninth-inning rally which brought them two runs and the game.

HUGMEN WIN IN THE TENTH

Durocher Scores On Double From Heimach To Allow 10-9 Victory.

YANKEES OUTHIT 17-13..

NEW YORK, May 1.—The Washington Senators waged a hard, uphill fight against the Yankees here yesterday, but the world champions managed to win in the tenth by 10 to 9. Each team called upon three pitchers, and Fred Heimach, last of the Yankee defenders, won his own game in the tenth with a hot double, which ripped through Goslin's hands, permitting Durocher to score. The shortstop had opened the inning with a pass and had advanced on a sacrifice.

Washington outhit the Yankees by 17 to 13, but had 15 men left on base. The tenth was the only inning in which the Senators failed to gain the paths.

Lou Gehrig hit the big blow for the Hugmen, a home run in the third with Combs and Ruth on base. It was his third homer.

Who wants a white collar job, anyway?

Ability counts

IT'S a joy to meet a craftsman who'd rather be a first-rate workman in overalls than a tenth-rate man in a white collar job.

If you were to ask him his rules for success, he'd probably tell you with a twinkle in his eye, "Same as for any other job, I guess. Hard work. Steady plugging. And good health. I've never missed a day's work from illness. I made sure of that years ago. Whatever your line of work, take a tip from my experience. Keep fit with Nujol."

Nujol is not a medicine. It is a pure natural substance (perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Avenue, New York). It not only prevents an excess of body poisons from forming (we all have them), but aids in their removal. It's these poisons that sap your strength and energy, kill ambition, make you old before your time.

Start Nujol today. It can't possibly upset you or disagree with you. Contains absolutely no medicine or drugs.

Worth a try, isn't it? You'll find Nujol at all drug stores in sealed packages. Get a bottle today.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN", THE MIGHTY $2,000.00 ELEVEN REEL UNIVERSAL PRODUCTION OPENS AT THE CAPITOL TO-MORROW.

The Capitol management is proud to announce that what they believe to be one of the greatest productions in the history of motion pictures, will have it's premiere at this theatre to-morrow.

Over $2,000,000 was spent in the making of Universal's photo-dramatization of Harriet Beecher Stowe's novel, taking nineteen months for the actual filming. More than five thousand players appear in the massive production in support of a cast of all-star magnitude.

For nearly two years the press has acclaimed the screening of this picture and its showing here is the fruition of the desires of innumerable motion picture enthusiasts.

Harry Pollard, the director of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," fulfilled a life-long ambition when he completed the production. Probably no other picture has had the extensive preparation of this one. Pollard having spent eleven years in research. It was in 1914 that Pollard knew he would some day direct his masterpiece and every waking hour since then, when he was not engaged upon other pictures, was devoted to plans for the making of "Uncle Tom."

Extensive trips by artisans and craftsmen were made throughout the entire South for eight months prior to commencement of filming in order that historical atmospheric and physical details might be authentic.

Later, the entire company visited the actual scene of the famous novel, filming sequences in the very surroundings immortalized by Mrs. Stowe. The "Kate Adams," noted Mississippi side-wheeler was chartered for nine weeks, two weeks having been spent by technicians in its metamorphosis into the "La Belle Riviere", of the book.

The most pretentious sets ever erected were constructed at Universal City, exact replicas of actual homes in the South being made to the Shelby, St. Clare and Legree plantations as well as the many other interesting and unusual settings.

The poignant love story of Eliza and George permeates the massive production, a beautiful contrast to the epic sweep of the powerful story.

The cast is a noted one, headed by such famous artists as Margarita Fischer, Arthur Edmund Carew, George Siegmann, Lucien Littlefield, John Roche, Gertrude Astor, Nelson McDowell, James B. Lowe, and a host of others.

VIEWS ON SPORT

The rain to-day will hold up some of the ball practises that would otherwise be held on many a sand lot.

BOXING CLASSES AT BELLEVILLE

Boxing is awakening throughout the province and Belleville has been the next town to catch the fistic fever. Eddie Lee, known to followers of the ring as "Irish Lee" a professional, who boxed in and around New York City, will open up classes in the Quinte town.

It is doubtful if any sport has caught on in this city just as readily as has boxing during the few short months that the classes have been in progress at the Y.M.C.A. Starting with a mere handful of raw boys, who were eager to learn and willing, the class has steadily increased until now there are nearly thirty enrolled.

Its whole success is due primarily to the spirit of good sportsmanship and the high plane upon which the classes have been directed. Coach Wilfred Jones and Doug. Loomis, physical director at the "Y" have combined to put the class far above the usual status of boxing. This difference could be felt during the two tourneys that have been staged. While the boys slugged each other with a will, there was never a ruffle in the even tenor of fair play and sportsmanship.

The class will be continued until the weather becomes too hot to allow boxing inside, when a halt will be called until the autumn. It is planned that in the fall the class will resume work early in order to have some of the boxers in shape for a try at provincial honors.

VETERANS OF THE RING

Johnny Dundee and Jack Britton are without doubt the Iron Men of the boxing ring to-day. Twelve years ago when Dundee was knocked cold in Philadelphia and lost his featherweight crown, it was announced that he was through. Seven years ago it was similarly stated when Britton was flattened by Mickey Walker that the Old Ring General was on the toboggan.

To-day both are hard at the game. The combined boxing records of Dundee and Britton would total over a thousand bouts. Britton is a 44-year-old campaigner and Dundee is a mere youth of 36 years.

SOCCER LEAGUE FAVORS DAYLIGHT SAVING

The Soccer League has gone on record as favoring daylight saving, along with every other sporting organiaztion in the city. But whether the by-law gets the majority at the polls on Friday or not, the league will start their evening games on Wednesday, May 8, when the Canadian General squad will play the Brintnon A.A. team. The kick-off is scheduled for six o'clock. The games will be greatly handicapped if the extra hour of daylight measure does not pass successfully.

GOOD BALL IN PUBLIC SCHOOL LEAGUE

The brand of ball diplayed by the players in the Public School League delighted all those who were present to see the opening games. The boys stepped into the game with pep. There was plenty of hitting snappy fielding and close competition. The boys are glad to be playing hardball again, and naturally, each has the secret wish to be a Babe Ruth or Ty Cobb.

SENIOR TEAM WORKOUT TO-NIGHT

The Central Leaguers will congregate in the "Y" gym this evening at seven bells to get in some valuable hardening exercise on their muscles. Doug. Loomis will likely give the ball tossers a merry half hour of P.T. The players are all eager to be in the best of trim for the season and the management is taking a wise move in having them have some workouts at the gymnasium. With the players fighting for positions on the team; each would be advised to take advantage of these preliminary steps to a successful season.

Ravinsky Faces Charge of Slaying Employer, Katz.

MAPLE CREEK, Sask., May 1. — (Canadian Press).—It was during a motor trip with Herman Ravinsky from Medicine Hat, Alberta, to Swift Current, Sask., that David Katz, of Toronto, disappeared, it was brought out here yesterday on the first day of Ravinsky's trial for the murder of Katz. While no evidence as to details of the alleged crime was produced, witnesses told of the poverty of Ravinsky, former Picton and Hamilton, Ont., clothing salesman, and the affluence of Katz, a state of affairs which was said to have existed up to June 11, when the two set out for Swift Current from the Alberta city. Katz was never seen again alive, witnesses testified, while Ravinsky was noted driving the car of his late employer in several Western towns.

Katz is alleged to have been murdered a few miles north-west of Carmichael on or about June 10, 1923. His body was found buried in the sand dunes near Carmichael last fall after Ravinsky had led police to the point following his arrest.

CYCLISTS BEWARE!

Police Say Bicycles Must Be Stopped at "Stop" Signs.

The police agree that much of the confusion in motor traffic in the city during the noon day rush hour is caused by bicycles. It was stated that the bicycles run helter skelter through the street on erratic courses and many fail to observe the stop rule when entering upon through streets. One observer speaking on this subject said, "I nearly grew grey-headed watching some of those careless bicycle riders dodging through traffic yesterday at noon."

The police stated that the bicycles must observe the stop signs as well as motor vehicles, and that they must travel with due care, or some fines will be imposed. They pointed as an example to an accident of some two weeks ago when a man suffered injuries when he was knocked from his bicycle, failing to stop at a sign.

HOMES OF GREAT GUARDED TO-DAY

One-third of New York Police Force On May Day Service.

NEW YORK, May 1. (C.P.) — Five thousand policemen, one-third of the city's force, have been assigned to special duty to-day to protect city officials, prominent persons and public buildings from possible May day disturbances.

Policemen have been assigned to guard the homes of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., J. Pierpont Morgan, Mayor Walker, city, state and federal judges and many public and municipal buildings. The police also have been ordered to stop any illegal distribution of hand bills and to examine any suspicious looking packages.

Mass meetings were planned by both the Socialist and Communist organizations, the latter receiving a permit to hold a parade for the first time since 1916. The permit was granted by Police Commissioner Whalen on the promise that no incendiary placards would be carried and that the American flag would be borne aloft at the head of the procession.

Service To Patient Of Moderate Means

In every community the Hospital is called upon to serve three general classes:

(1) The financially well-to-do.
(2) The citizen of moderate means.
(3) The indigent.

The first class is financially able to take advantage of every possible service. The indigent patient also, whether he can pay or not, has every service available. The situation, however, in respect to the man of moderate means is, unfortunately, not so satisfactory. This class may be termed the backbone of the community, and includes the citizen who, while able to meet his full community responsibility, yet finds prolonged hospital treatment a financial burden. He cannot afford to pay the bills and is too independent to accept charity. The result is a foregoing of Hospital service. The Nicholls Hospital is striving in every way to adjust satisfactorily the above problem. In common with other Hospitals in Ontario, our efforts are greatly handicapped by the fact that the payments received from the municipalities and Province for the support of indigent patients are not sufficient to cover the cost of service to these particular patients. Government officials and municipal representatives are each year becoming more and more sympathetic to the adjusting of the situation, so that the man of moderate means may take more advantage of hospital care and attention.

We feel certain that, as public opinion becomes better informed, both the municipalities and the Provincial Government will find themselves strongly supported in any move which will pay more adequately for service to the poor patient. By doing so they will allow the hospital to make a general reduction in the pay patient rate.

In spite of the above handicap the Nicholls Hospital has been able to balance its budget, thanks to the income from the Endowment given by Mrs. Nicholls, without which the ratepayers must have been called upon to supply, at least, $12,000 a year.

CARD OF THANKS
Mrs. G. Trotter of Frazerville is returning home after a severe illness extending over several weeks under the care of her sister, Mrs. F. Millard, Louis street, and under the attention of the doctor, to whom she tenders most sincere thanks for their kindness in aiding her in her recovery.—Mrs. G. Trotter.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR
Some Scripture statements and words are so twisted and misinterpreted, by many professed leaders of the people, that they are made to appear to mean something altogether contrary to the real truth they express; and on account of this, widespread error abounds. Some men and women, who think for themselves, no doubt are astounded and perplexed at what is given forth from pulpit and desk, for the truth of God. The writer thinks he has had to face nearly all the bugbears that Satan and his agents had tried to palm off, as being belonging to real Christianity. In sending forth abbreviated communications from time to time, under the above heading, we do so not as a mere novice, nor as an expert expounder, but simply using our commonsense, and giving forth light that we have, in order to dispel error. Not being connected with any religious organization, we are not tied up to any particular course of action, and are not muzzled in any sense of the word.—M. T. Butcher.

McCORMICK-DEERING NEWS
"Good equipment makes a good farmer better"
Published by
W. BURNS
THE FARM EQUIPMENT MAN

Vol. 1, No. 6 Peterboro Wednesday, May 1, 1929

Watch for the "News" each week. Suggestions and news items invited.
W. Burns, Editor.

This hint for mothers originally was passed along in an advertisement: "When the baby is done drinking, it should be unscrewed and laid in a cool place or under the tap. If the baby does not thrive on fresh milk, it should be boiled."

If you are thinking about buying a new plow, or if your present plow is not satisfactory, by all means come in and see our McCormick - Deering No. 8 Little Genius Tractor Plow. It will be time well spent because you'll get acquainted with the best plow money can buy.

Large, Fat Lady: "Officer, could you see me across the street?"

Summer-fallow needs a lot of work, and a lot of work is what you can do with the McCormick - Deering Tractor, Plow and Cultivator.

This year's styles are to cut evening gowns still lower in the back — which will be good news for the mosquitoes.

Just received another carload of Tractors. Come in and get one and get your crop in quickly. You will give your land more work in less time and thus ensure a better crop.

A teacher of geography asked little Johnnie if he knew how many poles there were. Whereupon Johnnie replied: "No ma'm, but 17 lives next door to us."

The new McCormick-Deering Manure Spreader is not a built-over model, but a distinctly new type —a machine embodying the highest principles of design, workmanship, and manufacturing skill.

tween contractors and the workmen. The lathers and plasterers have twice refused an offer of an increase of 12 cents an hour, providing they revert to the 44-hour week, while the stone cutters want their wages increased to $1.30 per hour and a 40-hour week. The painters demand 90 cents an hour and a 44-hour week, instead of 80 cents an hour, with an increase to $1.00 an hour for the year 1930-31 on the 40-hour week basis.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., May 1 (C.P.).—Carpenters to the number of 150 went on strike this morning in a wage dispute with the builders. The men who have been receiving 90 cents an hour, demanded $1. The contractors offered 95 cents, which was refused. Both sides anticipate an early settlement.

POLICE SAVE STUDENTS
LONDON, May 1 (C.P.).—Mounted police came to the rescue of a score of students from one of the London universities who got into a mixup with Communist members of a crowd while listening to one of the many May Day orations in Hyde Park.
Otherwise there were no reports of trouble during the May Day celebration, which consisted chiefly of a Parade of several hundred Communists along the Embankment to Hyde Park, where meetings were held.
The students apparently made some remarks during the speaking and those in the crowd resented it, closing in on them immediately. For a moment it looked as though there would be a lively little fracas, but the police quickly intervened and escorted the students from the park with a large crowd at their heels.

Two Arrested
ANTWERP, Belgium, May 1 (C.P.).—Trouble broke out at a Communist meeting here to celebrate May Day, between partisans of Stalin and partisans of Trotsky, representing two conflicting tendencies in the Communist party. The police intervened and re-established order. Two Stalin supporters were arrested.

Peaceful in Turkey
CONSTANTINOPLE, May 1 (C.P.).—May Day was calm in Turkey. The only incident was the arrest of a small group of tobacco factory hands, including two Turkish women, for holding an organization meeting in contravention of the government's taboo.

Demonstrations Banned
MONTREAL, Que., May 1 (C.P.).—The plans of units of the Communistic and Red organizations in Montreal for the carrying out of the annual May First celebration were frustrated by the announcement from police headquarters banning all public demonstrations on this labor holiday. No disturbances were noted during the morning.

Clashes in Berlin
BERLIN, May 1 (C.P.).—Numerous clashes between police and Communists took place at various points in Berlin this afternoon, about two hundred arrests being made.

15,000 in Parade
TOKYO, May 1 (C.P.).—A heavy drizzle dampened the ardor of May Day celebrants and the day passed with few incidents to mar it.
Fifteen thousand paraded across the city while 3,000 police watched them closely.

Paris Peaceful
PARIS, May 1 (C.P.).—Aside from a number of arrests regarded as a preventive measure early, May Day passed without incident in Paris. Business went on about as usual in the city, but about 90 per cent of the workers in suburban factories remained away from work.

Variety Of Blooms For Old Home Week

There is quite a number of enquiries about what to grow to get blooms about decoration day and Old Home Week. Some of the following may supply the need. Late varieties of peonies and iris, aquilegia (columbine) the long spurred varieties are most beautiful; delphiniums, stately spikes of various shades of blue; hardy dianthus (pinks) which includes sweet william (dianthus barbatus) canterbury bells, if large plants are available. Pyrethrum, both single and double are useful for cutting. Snapdragons may be had in bloom if early started seedlings are planted. Of course there are other flowering plants such as geraniums etc., which may be had at the greenhouses. The queen of flowers, the rose, is just beginning to bloom about this time. Dwarf polyantha roses should be more extensively grown. They bloom so freely and their clusters of small blooms are most useful for table decoration. Some varieties of gladiolus may be in bloom if planted now, varieties that bloom in 66 days from time of planting.

STORY UNTRUE.

Relatives Deny Lindsay Shooting Followed Family Quarrel.

LINDSAY, Ont., May 1 (Canadian Press).—A statement that the shooting of Mrs. Hilliard Hickson, on March 31, by William Challis, hired man on the Hickson farm, occurred after an "unexplained quarrel in the Hickson home," is incorrect, according to relatives of Mrs. Hickson, who died April 2. Challis killed himself after shooting his employer's wife. Coroner Collinson, of Lindsay, after investigation, decided an inquest was unnecessary.

TAG DAY TO BE HELD ON SATURDAY NEXT

An Opportunity To Be Given To Every Citizen To Contribute To Male Voice Choir Appearance in New York Contest.

The committee in charge of the canvass to ensure the appearance of the Male Voice Choir in the contest of Associated Glee Clubs in New York on May 25th have had a fine response from those interviewed.
It has been suggested, however, that hundreds are interested in this event who desire to contribute in a smaller way, and a tag day has been arranged for Saturday, May 4th, when it is hoped the citizens will do what they can to make it possible for Peterborough to be associated with one of the greatest musical events in our history.

How Chiropractic Gets You Well

People who have been benefitted by Chiropractic adjustments are often at a loss to know just why this has been so. They perhaps were of the opinion that Chiropractic might be of value in cases of spinal curvature or nervous disorders, but utterly fail to grasp the reason for the tremendous success which Chiropractors have in those diseases which apparently have their seat in organs remote from the spine.
They fail to take into consideration the importance of the intricate nervous system in every conscious and subconscious function of the human mechanism.
When the hand is thoughtlessly placed in very hot water, it is suddenly jerked away. This is without conscious thought. From the hand a telegraphic message is flashed to the brain through nerves, and messages are immediately sent from the brain to certain muscles which suddenly contract and remove the hand from danger. If all the nerves leading to the hand were cut, the person would not be conscious of pain nor would he have the ability to move the hand, no matter how much he should will to do so.
We readily grasp this idea as it is illustrated above, yet we fail to realize that the same process occurs in other functions. For example, when food is taken into the stomach, messages are flashed to the brain. A call is made for the glands of the stomach to pour out those juices which will digest the foods and make them fit material to be absorbed and used by the body. All this process is the result of telegraphic messages going to and fro between the stomach and the brain. If all the nerves leading to the stomach were cut, digestion could not occur there. So it is with the kidneys, the liver, the heart, and, in fact, all the organs and tissues of the body. In order for these organs to function properly it is necessary that the intricate nervous system be free to transmit its messages.
There are millions of these tiny nerve fibres. They supply every portion of the body. Every one of them, either directly or indirectly, passes to the brain, which is the great central switchboard. It is here that the messages are received and it is here that, either consciously or sub-consciously, they are interpreted and return messages are sent out which lead to the proper action.
The spinal cord is the great cable which extends downward from the brain, incased in the spinal column. Between the segments of this spinal column are many small openings through which nerve trunks make their exits. These segments of the spinal column are subject to slight displacements. When this occurs, the openings between them are decreased in size and the nerves which traverse them are subject to being squeezed.
It is the Chiropractor's business to discover just where the nerve trunks are impinged. Having found them he restores the spinal segments to their normal position and relieves the interference. When this is done, health is the result as a natural consequence, and it has been accomplished in a natural, common-sense way.

Verdict Is Waited For Detroit Police Constable Is Being Held in London Jail.

INQUEST TO-NIGHT.

In Provincial Police Circles There Is a Wide Feeling of Sympathy For Officer.

TORONTO, Ont., May 2 (C.P.).—No decision as to whether D. N. McClellan, Detroit police constable, will be prosecuted for the shooting of Robert Schacht near London in an attempted hold-up of the constable yesterday morning, is to be made by the Attorney General's department until after the inquest, Hon. Charles McCrea, acting Attorney General, stated to-day. Attorney General Price is at present in the United States meeting Mrs. Price, who is returning from a holiday in the South.

"The constable will be held until the result of the inquest," said Hon. Mr. McCrea, "the Attorney General's department has asked to have the inquest held as speedily as possible and have ordered it for to-night. After the finding, we will know the proper thing to do, and it will be done."

Wide Feeling of Sympathy

In Provincial police circles, where constables have been prosecuted for shooting wanted men, there is a wide feeling of sympathy and approval of the Detroit constable's act in shooting.

A medal for the Detroit officer is the suggestion of Deputy Commissioner of Provincial Police Alfred Cuddy

In connection with the Detroit officer carrying a gun, Deputy Commissioner Cuddy observed that a Canadian officer travelling in the United States is never questioned as to whether he carries firearms.

"The same procedure should be followed here," said Mr. Cuddy. "It is a legitimate matter for a constable to have a gun with him, and it was a fortunate thing that he had his gun on this occasion."

Mr. Cuddy would not prosecute the officer for his act.

Advocates of Home Rule for Scotland talk of contesting a number of Scottish seats and Farmer candidates may try their fortunes in a few constituencies.

In 20 constituencies the Conservative candidate has yet to be adopted.

FINANCE COMMITTEE MAKES GRANT TO OLD HOME WEEK

LOCATION ENDORSED.

Property Committee of City Council Inspect Site For New Rest Room.

When the Finance Committee of the City Council met last night the chief item of discussion was the matter of making further funds available to the various committees of the Old Home Week organization, as the committee was informed by a communication from F. Adams, the original grant of $1,000, had become almost exhausted.

On motion of Alderman Hamilton, seconded by Walter Stocker, it was decided to authorize Mayor Denne, Mr. Adams and Alderman Phelan to open an account and create an over draft in a local bank, to tide the Old Home Week committee over the celebration when it is expected, the revenue will be adequate to meet that overdraft.

Meeting under the Chairmanship of Alderman C. H. Huffman, the Property Committee held an informal discussion of the proposed new public rest rooms, to provide for which a bylaw has already been given its first reading. To end further discussion as to the exact location, the meeting adjourned and the members went out to the market place, where details of the new building's location were worked out. When the bylaw is brought up for second and third readings at the next meeting of the council, it will in all likelihood, be passed without hesitation, since all of the councillors present last night expressed themselves in favor of it.

The other two items slated for the Property Committee's attention were the passing of regular accounts, and the communication received from the Merchants' Press Company, stating that the printing of the auditors' report would be carried out in Peterborough, that company's tender for the work having been accepted by the committee.

White Emden Goose Lays Three Yoke Egg

Mrs. R. A. Dobbin of R. R. No. 3, Peterboro, is proud owner of a white Emden goose which has a decided penchant (as our French cousins so classily phrase it) for laying eggs with extraordinary yolks. Not content with the ordinary single supply of yellow material, this goose last year laid two eggs with a double portion. Yesterday, she came across with an egg which had three yolks.

FATE OF PARLEY RESTS ON REPLY

Little Optimism Exists Amongst Members of Reparations Conference.

DR. SCHACHT RETURNS.

PARIS, May 2.—(Canadian Press) —The fate of the conference of experts on reparations, seeking to effect a settlement of Germany's ponderous post-war debt problem, be known definitely to-day or tomorrow.

If Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German spokesman, returning to Paris from Berlin to-day maintains the same intransigeant attitude which made failure of the conference imminent almost two weeks ago the experts will have only quickly to finish their final report and go home.

If on the other hand his stay at Berlin has put him in a position to make new suggestions meriting serious consideration of the representatives of the creditor nations negotiations probably will be resumed.

This latter alternative was regarded to-day, however, as extremely doubtful. Information from Berlin was that Dr. Schacht would make a new proposal but there was little indication it would be anything like satisfactory to the allied nations.

Revert to Dawes Plan

BERLIN, May 2 .— (Canadian Press)—Dr. Hjalmar Schatch expressed the opinion, prior to his departure for Paris last night, that no offer he could make Germany's creditors could serve as a basis for permanent settlement of the reparations problem.

Even a "provisional solution" which official circles favored for a long time, no longer seemed satisfactory and German officialdom was inclined to the view that it was better to have the Dawes plan continue than to accept a provisional settlement with its new uncertainties.

It was said this change of attitude was due to the realization that any provisional solution to be acceptable to the allies must entail giving up the transfer protection guaranteed in the Dawes plan.

Brigade Receives Call, Ironing Board Takes Fire

Perhaps it was the call of spring that caused the maid at 483 Homewood Avenue to go out hastily forgetting to turn off the electric iron and leaving it standing on the board, anyway neighbors saw the smoke pouring from the window and put in a call to the fire department at 4.27 yesterday afternoon.

When the brigade arrived a man had turned off the switch and was using water freely on the ironing board.

There was no damage except to the board.

REASONS GIVEN FOR SINKING OF ILL-FATED SHIP

Several Causes Are Named By Chief Officer Johnston At Board Inquiry.

PICKED UP TUESDAY.

Situation of Steamship Vestris Became Serious On Sunday Declares Officer.

LONDON, May 2 (C.P.).—Chief Officer F. W Johnston of the ill-fated liner Vestris, testifying before the enquiry court of the British Board of Trade to-day, expressed the opinion that the sinking of the vessel last November was due to not one but several causes.

"I think I can safely say that there were three distinct combinations acting together. The fact that we met bad weather, the fact that the ship was 'tender," and the fact that water entered the between-deck and did not find its way below, thus capsizing the ship," Johnston declared.

"In my opinion there was too much topweight on the ship."

Johnston, who is the senior surviving officer of the liner, had previously described successive stages of her difficulties, beginning with her listing and taking water.

Situation Serious

He said the situation became serious late Sunday, when after steadily increasing list the Vestris seemed to have hit heavy seas and some of the cargo broke loose.

Things grew constantly worse and at 4 o'clock Monday morning the list had reached 20 degrees. The first S O S was sent out at 10 a.m. Monday when the list was 25 degrees.

Johnston then described the sinking of the Vestris and how the passengers got away. He himself was picked up Tuesday morning. He had no fault to find with the behavior of the crew.

In reply to a question from counsel for the engineer officers, however, he stated that three times in the last minutes before the ship sank, the firemen had left their work and he had been obliged to order them back.

SUMMER TIME BEING FAVORED

Less Opposition To Daylight Saving Scheme is Evident This Year.

TERM CUT IN TWO.

The discussion of the daylight saving by-law this year by those taking opposite sides has not been nearly as strenuous as in previous years. Hitherto when daylight saving was voted on many mothers, and fathers as well, had in mind the two years it was in effect for a period of five months, the difficulties of getting the children to bed, and of getting them up in time in good humor to go to school, they were cross and got on everybody's nerves. However, the compromise of those favorable to the passing of the by-law to cut the operating time practically in half, and that period altogether the school holiday term, has had the effect of a number previously opposed to the by-law inclined to give it a chance this year, and also due to the fact that numbers of business houses are very much upset with one time in Toronto and another time nere.

Other years those opposed felt something was being put over them for the benefit of a few sports, but that or any other such angle is forgotten altogether in the fact that business transactions in dozens of business houses in the city are adversely affected by two sets of time, one in Toronto and another here.

If Toronto was on standard time there would be no thought of Peterborough asking for daylight saving.

Those desirous of daylight saving ask the co-operation of those opposed just to try it out for the shorter period this year, and it is felt if it works out all right, no effort will ever be made to make the term longer, as a half-loaf is better than none at all, and many of those now supporting the present by-law would vote against one for a longer term.

GRAF ZEPPELIN ON SHORT CRUISE.

VIENNA, May 2 (Canadian Press). — The Graf Zeppelin flew over Vienna at 9.15 a.m., four hours and five minutes after leaving Friedrichshafen, Germany, on a short Austrian cruise.

CLAIMED TO HAVE BEEN PUT OFF TRAIN STRANGER IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION

BROCKVILLE,Ont., May 2 (Canadian Press). — Believed to be, from a motor license found in his pocket, Herbert R. Leahey, 920 Broadway, Albany, N.Y., a man of middle age was found on Tuesday staggering along the Canadian National right of way near Yonge Mills Station by William Neddow, of that place. The man has since been a patient in the General Hospital here, unconscious and believed to be suffering from internal injuries as well from severe cuts on the head and face. Neddow saw the man staggering along at the foot of a steep embankment on the railway line. A freight train was approaching, and Neddow went to his assistance. Noting the man's injured condition, he asked him what had happened. With the reply "They pushed me off," the stranger collapsed and has since remained unconscious. Physicians attending him believe from marks upon his face, into which cinders have been embedded, that he pitched headlong from a train, being either pushed off it or having jumped from it. He was ticketed from Montreal to Detroit.

PRINCE HENRY ARRIVES IN JAPAN RECEIVES WELCOME FROM PRINCE

BRILLIANT PROCESSION.

Crown Prince Chichibu and Duke of Gloucester Cheered By Large Crowds.

TOKYO, May 2 (C.P.).—The head of the oldest reigning house in the world extended such a welcome to the third oldest son of King George today as Japan has not known in a decade.

Emperor Hirohito met Prince Henry of England, Duke of Gloucester, at the railway station as he arrived from Yokohama on his mission to bestow the Order of the Garter on the Japanese ruler.

The Emperor grasped the hand of the English prince and chatted with him for a moment after he had descended from the coach to the station platform. Then he watched smilingly as Crown Prince Chichibu left with him in a brilliant procession to the Kasumigaseki, which is to be his temporary residence.

At the entrance the Princess Chichibu, acting as the Empire's hostess on behalf of the Empress who expects soon to become a mother for the third time, greeted the royal guest. The Princess wore a smart European afternoon frock.

Both wore full dress uniforms, the English Prince that of the Tenth Hussars, and Prince Chichibu of the Third Regiment. As they were driven up the street both smiled and saluted in acknowledgment of the applause from the multitudes.

The Emperor returned to his own palace in a motor car unostentatiously a few minutes after the Princes' colorful procession.

Atlantic Liner Is Damaged By Fire

LONDON, May 2 (C.P.).—Fire last night in the number two hold of the White Star liner Megantic will not delay its scheduled sailing for Montreal to-morrow. Fire and water damaged the ship's hold and passenger quarters on the starboard side, though not to any great extent.

ALASKA FLIGHT IS COMPLETED

Aviator Arrives in Windy City After Flying From Alaska.

CONTEMPLATES FLIGHT.

CHICAGO, Ills., May 2 (Canadian Press).—Several hours overdue, Parker Cramer, aviator, returning from an air trip to Alaska and the Bering Straits, landed at the municipal airport to-day from Lacrosse, Wis., where he had been forced to stop last night.

Cramer left St. Paul at 6.30 last night and was expected to fly directly to Chicago. Some anxiety was felt when he failed to make an appearance last night. He chose to land at Lacrosse rather than hazard the night flight on into Chicago.

Last Friday Cramer flew alone from Nome to East Cape, Siberia, 200 miles across the Strait, and returned without landing.

FISHERMEN ARE USING SPEARS AND HOOKS TO CATCH PICKEREL

Many Are Being Hauled Out Under the Guise of Sucker Fishing.

RULING IS SOUGHT.

Efforts of Local Game and Fish Association To Protect Fish Are Little Appreciated.

Complaints too numerous to be lightly cast aside as poorly founded, have reached the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association during the past twenty four hours, regarding the destruction of the pickerel by means of spears and gaff hooks, at the locks below the Little Lake. With the opening of the pickerel fishing season, by shore methods on May 1, many local fishermen were to be seen along the Otonabee casting or still fishing in a perfectly legal manner, with but fair success attending their efforts, while at the locks a number of persons, not sportsmen, were taking the pickerel with spears and gaff hooks, under the guise of sucker fishing. As well as reaching the Fish and Game Association, many of the complaints reached The Examiner, and appeared to be well founded.

Changed Season.

It is not long since efforts were put forth by local sportsmen and authorities on fishing, to have the pickerel season altered from the same restrictions as governed bass and maskelonge, and it was thought that fishermen would respect the new privileges, but it would now appear that the old regulation should again be adopted if the pickerel are to be saved from slaughter by gaff hooks.

Progress Is Being Made With Old Age Pensions

TORONTO, Ont., May 2 (Canadian Press).—Progress is being made in the organization for launching the Ontario Government's Old Age Pension Scheme, Premier G. Howard Ferguson stated to-day.

"Copies of the Act are being sent to all county councils to whom applications have to be made," said Premier Ferguson. "The councils, however, do not meet until June, when they will discuss the question."

Premier Ferguson added that the agreement with the Dominion Government who pay fifty per cent. of the burden is at present being drafted.

Many sportsmen are seeking a ruling regarding the use of these hooks and there seems but little doubt that the evil has reached such proportions as to warrant a strong campaign against such short sport methods.

Remanded For One Week

RECORD DATES TO 1911.

"They'll Never Get Me in Kingston," Declares Prisoner To Detective Campbell.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 2.—(C.P.)—Jack Parks, a fugitive from the Peterborough jail, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to the theft of an automobile from Oscar E. Fleming, K.C., of this city, and was remanded until May 10 for sentence by Magistrate David M. Brodie.

The prisoner was hand-cuffed in the prisoner's box to Detective James Yokum. Police say Parks' long criminal record had its inception with an automobile theft charge in his home community of Otterville in 1911.

This was the threat to-day of Jack Parks, according to Detective James Campbell, who escorted the fugitive to this city from the west.

Parks was arrested in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan. The stolen car was in his possession then along with Pearl Bowerman, his sweetheart, who had travelled to the west with him.

WALL OF HOUSE IS DESTROYED

SLIGHT DAMAGE.

Speaking of Peterborough's Old Boys' re-union — when a Canadian National locomotive gets the old home urge, the result is likely to be just too bad. Take last night for instance——

For years, in fact since it was built along with the station, in 1878, the old engine house bordering on King and Bethune streets, has proved a haven of shelter for tired shunters. Truly with a carload of cinders and a single engine within, quarters are apt to be a bit cramped, but——

Last night, about eleven o'clock, when a threatening sky made indoors look attractive, the local yard shunter, which had been left standing just south of the entrance, apparently felt the need for shelter. Moving off on its own volition, the iron montser ambled into the building—and right on through the north wall, coming to an unceremonious stop with a disgruntled snort as the rails left off.

A broken whistle rod and hand rail, and a badly crushed head light was the extent of the damage so far as the engine was concerned but the wall was completely torn down, and this morning lies a mass of tangled roofing, beams and wires. Since a similar incident occurred about four years ago, it had not been re-bricked.

One engineer who had been called to get the engine back into place, could not explain its movement unless the releasing of the airbrakes at the end of the day's work had been responsible. Officials of the company had not decided whether a new building would or would not be erected to replace the partly demolished old one.

LIQUOR STORE HAS TO CLOSE

Voting On By-laws Causes a Pause in Sale of Alcoholic Refreshment.

Peterborough will be officially "dry" to-morrow as a result of the vote on the by-laws. Under the Liquor Control Act that vote counts as a municipal election and necessarily the local vendor's store will have to be closed all day to-morrow.

LONDON, May 2 (Canadian Press). — Lord Birkenhead, moving in the House of Lords for approval of the principle of the famous Balfour note, declared to-day that Great Britain had never had the credit she was entitled to for being prepared at the end of the Great War "to forego every war debt owed her on the basis of complete cancellation."

The House of Lords, where usually only a handful of nobles are in attendance, was comparatively crowded when Lord Birkenhead moved approval of the British stand not to demand more from new debtors than would suffice to pay her own debt service to the United States.

STREET CAR MOTORMAN BLAMED FOR DEATH OF JOHN W. BARNES

Inquest Is Held Into Cause of Death of Toronto Business Man.

AMPLE TIME TO STOP.

Automobile Was Standing Stationary On Portion of Car Tracks.

TORONTO, Ont., May 2 (C.P.).—John W. Barnes, Toronto businessman, was burned to death which his automobile caught fire after being struck byq a street car, the coroner's jury which sat last night decided. Barnes died early on the morning of April 20. First reports were that he had run into the street car, but after an investigation, the motorman of the street car, Charles Cairns, was placed under arrest.

Evidence given at the inquest indicated that a tire on Barnes' automobile blew out, causing the car to swerve into a light standard. The street car, it was testified, crashed into the motor car from the rear. Both burst into flames.

Burned to Death

The jury verdict held that Barnes "came to his death by being burned to death in a collision with his auto and a street car."

"From the evidence we are unanimously of the opinion," the verdict added, "that the street car ran into the rear of the auto while the auto was standing stationary on a portion of the car tracks and the motorman, Charles Cairns, was operating the street car, and from the evidence had ample time to stop the street car and avoid the collision that caused the fire that brought about the death."

Cairns was present at the inquest but was not called upon to give testimony. Detective Fred Skinner reported that the motorman had stated after the accident that the automobile ran into the street car.

STOMACH OUT OF ORDER Until He Tried TANLAC.

All pains are bad, but some are worse than others. About the worst are Stomach pains. A real cramp in the stomach just about doubles one up. Mr. F. Gauthier, of Great Falls, Man., was very sick because of Stomach Trouble. Ordinary meals brought on terrible cramps. He lost weight; could not sleep; and became very nervous. Tried various medicines but nothing seemed to do him any good. Then, he writes, "I was advised to try TANLAC, and I want to say that TANLAC filled the bill. Indigestion, stomach trouble, nervousness, sleeplessness have all disappeared; and I am eating, sleeping, and working as a healthy, vigorous man should." If everything you eat distresses you, if you are pale, weak and nervous let TANLAC help you. It is made from roots, barks, and herbs. Nature's own medicines for the sick and costs less than 2c a dose. Get a bottle at your druggist's today—your money back if it does not help you.

MARRIAGE AGES LOWERED

ROME, May 1.—(Canadian Press)—Premier Mussolini, in the hope of increasing the number of Italian offspring, has caused the lowering of the legal marriage ages from 18 to 16 for the husband, and from 15 to 14 for the wife.

It is explained the governmental measure will have a certain sociological value as well, inasmuch as it will afford a means of combatting the practices of common law marriage, or free union which is particularly prevalent in industrial centres.

Unexpected Fireworks Display Is Given Toronto Citizens

TORONTO, Ont., May 2 (Canadian Press). — An unexpected fireworks display last night caused a fire which gutted the interior of a local cigar store. The fireworks were set off by the touching of a cigarette against a package of firecrackers which were being displayed in the window. There was a loud explosion, and the entire stock of fireworks was soon in flames. Skyrockets and streamers went shooting about the store, the flames from some of them igniting papers and periodicals which were in the store.

Police arrested a 14-year-old boy alleged to have caused the blaze. The boy was charged with arson. The damage done by the blaze was estimated at $700.

University Students Prevent Communists From Singing The "Internationale"

TORONTO, Ont., May 2 (C.P.).—A May Day gathering of 250 Communists staged a free speech meeting here yesterday. The meeting was watched by 10 constables from police headquarters. At the conclusion of the last speaker's remarks, students from the University of Toronto appeared on the scene, drowning out any attempt of the Communists to sing the "Internationale" by collaborating lustily in rendering "The Maple Leaf Forever" and the National Anthem.

Chief of Police Draper issued explicit instructions that any seditious utterance or statements against the government of Canada would result in the breaking-up of the meeting. No arrest were made, however. The remarks of the speakers were mostly against capitalism and leaders of the trade unionist movement.

There were only a few minutes remaining before the house adjourned for the evening at six o'clock, however, and no progress was made in passing appropriations.

COMMUNISTS CONQUER STREET IN BIG MAY DAY CELEBRATION

Eight Are Dead and Seventy-Eight Seriously Injured in City of Berlin.

HOLD BACK POLICE.

Armored Motor Cars Are Called Into Action To Scatter Rioters.

BERLIN, May 2 (Canadian Press)—Communists in an attempt to "conquer the streets" for May Day, caused an ugly riot last night in the working-class quarter in northern Berlin. They erected barricades, using street repair material, and held off police with rifle and pistol fire until armored cars forced the obstructions and enabled the authorities to clear out the surrounding houses.

At midnight the casualties for the day had mounted to eight dead and 78 seriously injured. Hundreds of others suffered bruises from missiles or policemen's clubs.

The rioters erected barricades in the main thoroughfare of the Pankstrasse and its side streets. The police charged them repeatedly with batons until the commanding officer realized that his force was too weak for these tactics, and ordered his men to open fire. Then armoured cars were brought up and the police finally captured the barricades.

Communist ambulances and first-aid squads were overwhelmed by the number of victims brought from the fighting front.

Fighting was also reported from eastern and south-eastern parts of the city. Those sections were plunged into darkness.

ANGLERS OPEN FISHING SEASON

FISH PLENTIFUL.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2. — Yesterday was the first legal day for trout fishing and lovers of the sport had all thei rtackle in readiness for the big event.

Gordon Fox and his nephew, "Nig" Copperthwaite, are of the opinion that Dame Fortune has smiled on them. They were up and at it early and back in town before the schools were called in the morning. Gordon has a specimen that measures fifteen and one half inches and weighs 26 ounces. He thinks he has something that will be hard to beat. Another specimen of brook trout which he had on display, was slightly smaller, and there were several of the usual size. He did not withhold the information regarding the spot where he got them. "There are more of the same kind in the same place," he said; "and I am going to drop them a line."

Strange as it may seem, this fish, whose size might be creditable to a small mouth black bass, was caught in a stream that any person of average agility might step across. The spot is not far from town and may be reached in less than an hour even on foot. Gordon has exhibited his catch to several of the local fishermen and is anxious to hear whether or not anyone has anything larger to stack up against it.

MONTHLY MEETING OF ASSOCIATION

The regular monthly meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association was held on Monday evening in the kindergarten room with a large attendance. The banner for the largest number of parents present was won by Miss Myra Baird's class.

The president, Mrs. George Davies presided and welcomed the members and friends of the Association. A splendid report of the work was given by the Secretary Mrs. H. Beatty and a short business session followed, after which the following program was presented:

Chorus by Miss Baird's class; recitation in unision, by four girls of Miss Baird's class; piano duett, Misses Mary Brooks and Verna Huffman; chorus, by the "Wide Awake" C.G.I.T. girls of Knox church.

The outstanding number on the program was an illustrated lecture on Palestine by Rev. C. V. McLean of St. Andrew's United church. Mr. McLean gave a description of his travels through the Holy Land, saying by way of introduction, that the land had three phases of interest to a traveller. A human interest, a patriotic interest and an intensely religious interest, as it is the cradle of three great religions, the Jews consider Mount Zion the most holy place in the world, while the Christian looks in the same way on Bethlehem and Jerusalem. To the Moslem, Mecca is the holiest place in the world.

Many historic scenes were shown and described, such as Jerusalem, the port of Jaffa, the plain where David battled, the room where the last supper took place, the reputed tomb of King David, the site of the Temple of Solomon, the wonderful pulpit of pearl and ivory which which was placed in the house of Allah by the Sultan Saldidin at the time of the Crusaders.

The lantern was ably operated by Mr. Munro. A heart vote of thanks was accorded Rev. Mr. McLean for his very interesting talk.

WORK COMMENCES ON ALCOHOL PLANT

Canadian Distillers Limited Are Erecting a Plant in Lindsay.

LINDSAY, May 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—Ground was broken this week on the new alcohol plant, which the Canadian Distillers, Limited is building just outside the northern boundary of the town. At present some sixty men are engaged, and the number will be increased as the work progresses. The plant promises to be one of the largest of its kind in the province. The C.N.R. is planning to instal at least twelve switches on the property. The wood for the plant will be securied in Haliburton, and a big staff of men will be employed in getting it out. Lindsay will have the unique distinction of having two alcohol plants as well as a distillery within its borders.

When Chivalry Failed.

It happened at Chemong. Two girls actually started to walk home. This is not a College Humor joke but an actual fact. A party of two girls and two men started out for the dance at that popular resort, but there was no dance, and as these young ladies were in a hurry to get home when they discovered this fact and as their escorts were lacking in the necessary qualities of chivalry, they took it upon themselves to seek the highway on foot. Their hiking did not take them very far as another party who had also been disappointed because there was no dance, overheard the conversation and came to their rescue, bringing them safely to the bright lights of the city once more.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, May 2.—Trade in cattle yesterday was active from the start on a light offering. The most conservative estimate places the advance in price at 15 cents a hundredweight, while many salesmen admit a gain of 25 cents a hundredweight over Tuesday and an advance of 50 cents for the week on top steers and cows.

American markets are strong and buyers are bidding high for Canadian cattle at country points to go direct to the States. One straight load of choice heavy steers around 1,300 pounds sent in by David Bell of Shakespeare sold early at 11¾ cents a pound.

Baby beeves are firm up to 13½ cents, and good cows were worth 8¾ to 9¼ cents a pound. Good choice butcher heifers are bringing 10¾ to 11¼ cents.

Store cattle were in good demand with 9¾ to 10¼ cents a pound asked for feeders and 9 to 9½ cents for plain to good stockers. Milch cows were steady at $100 each for the best and good springers are worth $115 to $125 each. Calves were a light supply but the market continued weak at yesterday's decline. Choice veal sold from 14 to 15 cents a pound, medium kind 9 to 13 cents and common calves 7 to 8.

There were not enough yearling lambs to make the market. Spring lambs were lower in price at $14 to $15 each for the best. Sheep prices were steady at 8 to 9 cents a pound for good light butchers. Most culls sold from 5 to 6 cents a pound. Hog prices were unsettled as regards to the bulk. The packers bid was the same as yesterday at 13½ cents for W. O. C. select, which was a quarter lower for the week. Some road hogs marked this morning at 13¼ cents which equivalent to 13½ W.O.C. It looks as if the Packers bid would be effective on the bulk of the offering.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 2.—More than 16,000,000 bushels of grain were delivered on Chicago Board of Trade May contracts yesterday without causing any material disturbance of prices. The total, which was much larger than in general had been looked for, is a record seldom equalled except in war-time. Chicago May deliveries of wheat alone yesterday aggregated 9,324,000 bushels as aganst May deliveries of 2,298,000 bushels yesterday at Liverpool.

Closing quotations on wheat yesterday were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finished to ¾c off, with the downturn owing chiefly to unofficial crop estimates to-day expected to prove bearish. Corn closed ¾c to ⅞c up; oats at ½c decline to 2c advance, and provisions varying from 15c setback to a rise of 40c.

Fluctuations in Chicago wheat values yesterday were at no time beyond a range of 1⅝c, the market keeping within narrower limits than usual, despite the immense deliveries taking place here. Most of the day, prices averaged higher than the previous close, traders taking into account a prevailing general belief that the wheat delivered here had passed into strong hands where the volume would be unlikely to act as a burden on the market. Another strengthening influence was the fact that there was a good export demand yesterday for North American wheat, European takings being estimated at 1,000,000 bushels.

Domestic Estimate is Higher

Monthly private crop reports to be given out to-day are expected to show that the probable yield of domestic winter wheat is well above the 1928 final estimate, 579,000,000 bushels.

Corn developed a fairly strong tone in the face of big deliveries yesterday of 5,588,000 bushels on May contracts here. Wet weather hampering field work was largely responsible for corn price upturns. The oats market featured a sharp advance in May as a result of only 183,000 bushels of oats having been delivered in Chicago yesterday to meet May contracts.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, May 2.—Butter was reduced ½ cent per pound on the wholesale market yesterday and dealers were quoting No. 1 finest New Zealand creamery at 38½ cents. Trading was quiet as buyers are awaiting the arrival of fresh stock which is due on track here toward the end of the week.

Reports from the country indicate that domestic production is increasing daily and that supplies from this source are ahead of one year ago at this time.

Quotations to the retail trade were steady at 42 cents per pound for No. 1 creamery and 41 cents per pound for No. 2 grade.

Egg Prices Steady

Prices held steady on the wholesale egg market and dealers were quoting country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, as follows: Fresh extras, 27c to 28c per dozen; firsts, 25c to 26c per dozen, and seconds, 22c to 23c.

It was stated that the report of eggs in storage at the present time in Montreal and Toronto shows an increase of 17,000 cases over one year ago. In view of the unsatisfactory experience that dealers had with storage eggs during the past winter, the increase in storage supplies is somewhat surprising. Large dealers reported that they are not going to reach out for eggs at the present levels and that the market appears to have an easier undertone.

Quotations to the retail trade were as follows: Fresh extras, in cartons, 35c per dozen; loose, 33c; firsts 31c and seconds, 27c per dozen.

The cheese market was quiet and prices were unchanged at from 20c to 20½c per pound, for No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and Government graded supplies.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 2.—Butter was half a cent cheaper in a wholesale way yesterday. The market for Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized was quoted at 36 cents and New Zealand finest at 37½c, with New Zealand first grade at 37c. To the retail trade the prices were 39-40c for solids and 40c-41c for prints. The market was reported quiet. Receipts were 269 boxes.

No changes were reported in the egg market. Receipts were 1,846 cases.

Cheese held steady. The trade reported that at May 1 there was an increase of 212,000 boxes of cheese held on English markets, as compared with a year ago, which was interpreted as indicating there wopuld be little interest in more Canadian cheese for some time. Receipts were 385 boxes.

Quotations—Eggs, fresh extras, 33c to 34c; eggs, fresh firsts, 31c to 32c.

WINNIPEG, May 2.—Wheat prices climbed as high as 1⅝c above Tuesday's close on yesterday's grain market, but heavy selling and some profit-taking in the last few minutes of trading closed the market with gains of ½c to ⅝c for the day. Trading was of local character, export trade continuing dull.

Prices were unchanged in the cash grain, and the volume of trading was small.

Exporters bought a good quantity of oats, forcing the values 1c to 1½c higher. Little interest was taken in barley, rye and flax, but prices were fractionally higher.

The Senate will sit.

Yesterday in the House, a general motion of censure of Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, in connection with the administration of the Post Office Department, moved by H. A. USE YOUR FRANCHISE TO-MORROW.

Three important issues are to be decided at the polls to-morrow, and The Examiner urges all those citizens who are eligible to vote on the respective measures to make use of their franchise.

In the case of the daylight saving by-law, all citizens whose names were on the last municipal list are entitled to vote.

The by-law seeking authorization for the issuing of debentures for $10,000 to carry out a program of improvements at Inverlea bathing beach may be voted on by all property-owners.

Those entitled to vote on the $300,000 Nicholls Hospital by-law are property-owners who are public school supporters.

All citizens eligible to vote on any or all of these measures owe it to themselves as well as to the community to discharge their responsibilities as voters.

The verdict on all these important matters should be thoroughly representative of public opinion—and the duty of reaching such a verdict should be discharged by the whole body of eligible voters—not left to a handful of the electorate.

Every worth-while citizen who has the right to cast a ballot to-morrow will see to it that his franchise is used.

MAKE SURE OF THE PARK BY-LAW.

The Examiner, having for years urged that Inverlea beach should be developed into an adequate swimming place and summer playground for the benefit of the whole community, has naturally no hesitation in urging the ratepayers to endorse the park by-law to-morrow.

For a few cents on an assessment of $1,000, this spot can be made one of the finest beaches in any inland city of the Province, and The Examiner would consider it almost a criminal neglect of a golden opportunity were the measure to be defeated.

It is by long odds the best chance to do something to make healthier and happier the lives of the members of the average family in Peterborough, that has been offered the citizens.

There is nothing extravagant in what is proposed, merely the cleaning out of the beach itself where large pieces of cement, roots and other traps lie in wait for the unwary, the erection of decent, clean, ventilated dressing-rooms affording a measure of privacy, and the installation of modern sanitary conveniences to replace the disgraceful structures now in use.

Every family with children in Peterborough will benefit by the passing of the Inverlea beach by-law—and to those families without means of transportation to lake resorts the contemplated improvements will be a veritable God-send.

VOTE FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING.

The daylight saving by-law should receive favorable consideration from the electors to-morrow.

Minor inconveniences may be occasioned by the adoption of a period of summer time here during the hot weather, but the extra hour of sunlight gained from daylight saving more than compensates for these inconveniences

It is a boon that can be obtained without any cost and that means more daylight time in the out-of-doors for our people, young and old.

In this country of long winters, surely we should store up all the sunlight that we can get hold of during the summer months—and daylight saving gives us an extra hour a day, seven hours a week, over three full days of sunlight that we would otherwise lose over the period the system is to operate.

Those long, bright summer evenings that are made possible by daylight saving mean health and longer life to everybody if they are used to advantage.

The summer is all too short—the long months when dark and cold keep us indoors are only a brief span ahead; why not get all the sunshine we can squeeze out of the warm months?

The Globe says the extra hour gained in this way is more precious than gold—an opinion based on years of experience of daylight saving conditions.

The daylight saving measure should carry—it offers an unusual chance to get something decidedly worth while without costing us anything.

It will carry if its friends get out and vote—see that your ballot is cast in favor of this boon.

THE HOSPITAL BY-LAW.

The composition of the Nicholls Hospital Board, which is asking the ratepayers of Peterborough to support the hospital by-law to-morrow, is in itself a strong argument for the passing of the measure.

The trustees are: B. F. Ackerman, Thos. Brown, L. G. Dobbin, Mayor R. Denne, Vincent Eastwood, Robert Fair, E. B. Fowler, R. J. Kidd, Wm. Langford, E. F. Mason, Dr. J. M. McCulloch, H. J. McCannan, Dr. G. R. Scott, J. J. Turner.

There is a representative body of well-known business and professional men, many of them experienced in municipal affairs!

They have considered the hospital question from every angle, and after thorough and careful investigation offer the proposal to the ratepayers as the only solution of a pressing problem.

Out of a sense of duty, and realizing that they are entrusted with the responsibility of giving Peterborough adequate hospital accommodation, these citizens, not given to hasty decisions or in advocating extravagant proposals, commend the hospital by-law as entirely worthy of support.

If these hard-headed business men, thoroughly conversant with the hospital situation as well as with municipal matters generally, are satisfied that the proposed program is imperatively needed, it should take a lengthy list of serious objections to refute the board's opinion.

No such objections have been brought forward.

The main opposition to the proposal has taken the form of pin-pricking criticism, mostly founded on a lack of knowledge of the actual situation.

We have had hospital service here for 44 years without a cent of cost to the city for maintenance purposes, and now that we are asked to bring the accommodation to a level with present-day needs, a spirit of gratitude, if nothing else, should urge us to assume this responsibility.

The Examiner is convinced that the hospital by-law has been brought forward as a business proposition by business men, and it would be good business to accept their advice and keep Peterborough up-to-date in the matter of hospital service and accommodation.

TIMES AND CHANGES.

Daylight-saving time is here again. Wise school teachers have already warned ingenious small boys that no "10 o'clock scholars" will to-day be permitted to plead the ignorance of yesterday's change in time as an excuse. The rest of the people are duly prepared for a missed train or two, mix-ups about out-of-town appointments, but withal an extra daily hour of sunshine is more precious than gold, and more than compensating for minor inconvenience. In one sense, the present go-as-you-please local application of the sensible daylight-saving principle beclouds a great Canadian monument. Writing in the spring issue of the Queen's Quarterly, Sir Andrew Macphail says: "Sir Sandford Fleming had one main idea, which few men have. By his own energy he developed it into universal use. Every man who looks at his watch, and observes a standard time, comes face to fact with an idea."

When Mr. Ferguson's Vol. II. of Great Men of Canada comes off the press, schoolboys will discover that Sir Sandford Fleming did much more than agitate for and secure world-wide agreement on standard time. But he did that, and it was no mean feat.—The Globe.

WELCOMING THE STRANGERS.

The people in Eastwood district of Oxford County set a good example when they gave a hearty welcome to an Irish family of twelve people which came to settle in that district. Their neighbors-to-be tendered the newcomers a supper on the lawn of their new home. No doubt the supper was very acceptable to the arrivals, especially the younger boys and girls, and it goes without saying that "ample justice" was done to the good things which the farmers' wives and daughters so generously and thoughtfully provided.

But it was what lay behind the supper that carried the greater appeal, especially to the older members of the Irish family. The thought that they were welcome, that they were desired, and that they had readily been accepted as members of the community must have struck a chord in their hearts that will sound as long as life lasts. Nobody, unless he or she has passed through a similar experience, knows what such a welcome means. What water is to the thirsty in a desert, a cordial welcome is to the strangers in a strange land. It assuages the pangs of homesickness, and modifies the feelings of loneliness that all experience who have left native lands and friends behind.

If all communities were to follow the Golden Rule there would be more of such welcomes. There should be more of them. Good citizenship and common neighborliness demand it. The way to make strangers good citizens and good neighbors is to welcome them without reserve and without question. The majority will undoubtedly endeavor to show that they are worthy of such trust by taking their places and performing their parts in the community life. They will strive to merit the friendliness and neighborliness manifested toward them. In this, as in other matters, like begets like. If strangers are received with suspicion or with indifference, they will be inclined to be suspicious of and indifferent to their neighbors. If, on the other hand, they are received with open arms, they will be ready to meet friendship with friendship.

We should like, therefore, to see these welcomes to immigrants, especially those of our own flesh and blood, extended to every community. Nor would we confine them to families. We would have them just as hearty for the single arrivals. Often these need them more than the families, the members of which have one another for companionship. Community gatherings may not be possible where the arrivals come singly, although if there is more than one, a joint welcome might be given them. But whether this is possible or not, the single arrivals should be made to feel, by kindly words and helpful deeds, that they are welcome. We know of nothing that will tend more to make a contented immigration.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Use your franchise to-morrow. The issues are important and the vote should be a representative one.

To revive the old slogan, "Vote as you like but vote."

The postoffice estimates are not creating any new speed records in their passage through the House.

Mayor McBride made a hit off Premier Ferguson's delivery at the opening ball game yesterday, and Mr. Sinclair would doubtless be glad to learn how it was done.

Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, has sailed for America without letting the public know of his departure. Max will never be a champion that way.

Toronto is suffering from a big strike in the building trades—a strike that promises to be costly all around if it continues long.

Lloyd George promised to conquer unemployment in Great Britain, but the Wizard of Wales has made other promises in the past that were never implemented.

Give daylight saving a chance—at the worst it can't do much harm in ten weeks.

He called his car "true love" because it never ran smoothly.—Montreal Star.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXIX.

Yes, he looked unhappy; here was no happy man come to the woman he loved.

Ana felt cold from head to foot; cold with a dreadful sort of nervelessness that was more mental than physical.

"Come here," Anthony said.

He took her hand and drew her across the room to the fire which she had lit because the morning was chilly. It blazed and crackled cheerily, as if in merry competition with the sun that shone through the window and threatened to fade Miss Sawyer's best carpet. Ana realized that the blind ought to be down; Miss Sawyer always drew down the blind when the sun shone.

Anthony was speaking again, and with a great effort she dragged her thoughts back to listen to what he was saying.

"I tried to write to you. I wrote a dozen letters and destroyed them all. What have you been thinking of me, Ana?"

Ana tried to answer, but she seemed to have no control over her lips, and she shook her head dumbly.

Anthony let her hand go and turned away, leaning his elbow on the mantelshelf, much to the danger of Miss Sawyer's bits of china and countless photograph frames.

"The General had a horrible accident," he said hoarsely. "He was climbing on one of the groins—you know how often I'd warned him to keep off them. It was one of those high ones on the town side. He slipped and fell with his leg under him—his bad leg. They say he may never be able to walk again."

Ana made a little convulsive movement; she half put out her hand to touch him, then drew it away again. She was sorry the General was hurt, of course, dreadfully sorry—she loved the General, but not so much as she loved Anthony, and Anthony had come to say good-bye—to count her out of his life.

He went on talking, not seeming to notice her silence.

"It was the morning his mother came back. She was in a terrible state, of course. We did everything possible—specialists down from town—they could not move him — afraid to, I suppose. He is still there in the cottage—in your room, Ana."

Again Ana tried unsuccessfully to speak. She knew something was expected of her, words of sympathy or comfort, but she could find none. It seemed absurd that she should stand here dumb, while the man she loved with every beat of her heart told her that he was in trouble, in great trouble; absurd that for the moment, at any rate, she could only think of herself, and of the culminating tragedy which she knew was drawing nearer every moment.

Anthony went on again:

"We thought at first the boy would die—I was almost sure that he would, and Mollie—" He paused. "It seemed quite to change her. I should never have believed it possible"—he turned and looked at Ana for the first time. "We had a long talk one night, she and I—the night the doctors said he would live I think it was, but I'm so confused it all seems such a muddle"—he passed a hand wearily across his eyes. "It had drawn us together, somehow—the boy's accident, and we seemed to understand each other better than we had ever done before."

"Yes," said Ana. The word broke from her before she was aware of it, and her voice was all harsh and jarring.

She wanted to burst into frightful, mocking laughter. She had guessed this all along. Life had been kind to Mollie if it had been cruel to her. Life had sent this accident to the General just at a moment when Mollie needed something to throw into the scales against her impending loss of Anthony. Mollie had played her cards well, of course; she could be trusted to seize upon every small opportunity and make the most of it; she could be a consummate actress when it suited her.

Anthony went on unsuspectingly:

"She told me everything—all about Mahon—everything! The money she had borrawed from him—her foolish vanity—"

Ana bit her lips till they bled to keep back passionate words that came crowding to them.

"Yes, after I told her you knew! Of course she would be clever enough to make a clean breast of it when she knew she was found out. What a fool I was! Why did I ever go to her? Oh, God, I've ruined my own happiness."

But not one word escaped her; she just stood there staring at Hambledon with tragic eyes, while he blundered on, trying to be just to his wife, trying to spare Ana all he could, while with every word he drove knives into his own heart.

"She asked me to forgive her—for the sake of the boy, even if I no longer cared for her myself. She asked me to forgive her, Ana"—he said again almost piteously, as if imploring her to help him, to see things as he had been forced to see them.

"Yes," said Ana.

Stupid that she could find no other word. She longed so passionately to help him; her only desire was to put her arms round his neck, and to draw his face down to hers, and say, "I love you," and yet she stood there motionless, repeating in a parrot-like way, yes"—and then again "yes," as if there was no other word in all the world. She felt as if she had fallen into a kind of stupor out of which she struggled with a mighty effort to attend once more to what he was saying.

"After all, she is my wife, and the General's mother. God knows I'm no saint to refuse forgiveness to anyone. What could I do?—I—I—and the boy so ill—" His voice trailed away into silence, as if he had exhausted the few poor arguments and defences at his command.

Then for some moments neither of them spoke.

Ana found herself thinking with a sort of impatience, "Oh, if only the sun wouldn't shine—if only it could be gray and dreary." The sunshine seemed such a mockery; life was one great mockery.

"Ana," said Hambledon hoarsely.

He held out his hand to her, but she stood back shaking her head, trying to smile.

"That won't help us, will it?" she asked, and she was amazed at the deadly quietness of her own voice. How could anyone speak with such deadly quietness when one's heart was being torn—torn!

"So you will sail—when?" she asked.

"How do I know? We can't move the boy yet awhile. It altres everything." He spoke almost angrily; then suddenly he turned and before she could guess his intention he took her in his arms.

"Kiss me, Ana—for God's sake, kiss me."

"No"—she tried to thrust him away. "I can't—please don't! — I can't!"

"I've longed for you so. That night—don't you think it was hell to me to know you were there—waiting—I thought of you more than I thought of the General, even though he is my son, and you—"

"And I'm nothing," Ana said

She tried to smile, but her lips felt as if they were grimacing. "It's all right, dear"—she put up one hand and touched his shoulder. "Don't blame yourself, or be hurt—it's just—life! One of these things that happen, and which nobody can explain. It doesn't matter. I shall be all right—I can go on as I was before. I can go on—" But she knew she could not; she knew that Life had stepped in and taken away peace and contentment and happiness for ever.

"I love you with eevry ebat of my heart," Hambledon said. "It's as if you are part of me—always with me. There isn't a moment of the day or night when I don't think about you and want you."

And shook her head.

"It won't help to talk like that, Anthony, you know it won't. I suppose it serves us right—me, at all events. I knew all the time you were married—I ought to be ashamed"—her cheeks flamed suddenly. "I was ashamed — when you didn't come—when you didn't write—"

"Oh, my dear—"

She swayed suddenly in his grasp.

"Oh, please let me go," she whispered.

"It's silly. I'm just — tired! It's been rather a dreadful week," she explained tremulously. "I think if you don't mind, you'd better go now. I shall be all right, really, quite all right." Then suddenly she broke down, and hid her face in her hands. She thought frantically. "If only he would go—if he would go before I make a fool of myself and beg him not to leave me—if only he would go before I say that I can't live without him, that I don't care for anything else, if only I can have him!" She beat her clenched hands against her eyes trying to keep back the tears, but they would come, raining down her face, and her whole body was shaken with terrible sobbing.

But even as she implored him, his arms were about her, and her head pressed down against his shoulder.

"I love you, I love you, I love you!" he said, his lips against her hair. "It breaks my heart to hear you cry. Oh, for God's sake, Ana, don't cry like that."

She struggled hard for composure; she was afraid of her own grief and despair. If she felt like this now, with his arms about her, how would she feel to-morrow, and in all the years to come, when he was far away?

He went on passionately:

"It's all my fault. I'd cut off my right hand to make you happy, and I've hurt you like this. It's my abominable selfishness—I ought never to have told you how much I cared."

Ana put up her arm suddenly, drawing his head down more closely to her.

"Don't say that—don't! It's been so wonderful to know that you love me. Nobody can take that away, whatever happens. It's something to remember when I'm an old woman"—she tried to laugh, such a poor little laugh, broken with sobbing.

"And you were so nearly mine, Ana, if this hadn't happened."

She could find no words with which to answer him. If this hadn't happened! If things had gone as they meant them to go—but life never goes as one means it to go; it goes its own irrevocable way.

Anthony kissed her hair again and again.

"Ana, did you hate me very much for not coming that night? What did you do? I pictured you—it was torment to me."

"I went home—after your wire came." She shivered in his arms, "I went home like a whipped schoolgirl!"

"Ana!"

THE HOSPITAL BY-LAW.

Dear sir:

In his circular, published this week, Mr. Burnham quotes me as opposing the Nicholls Hospital by-law and as asking, "What about the Barnardo Home?" I merely expressed the opinion that perhaps the amount asked for was big enough to make difficult the passing of the by-law. He himself mentioned the Barnardo Home idea, not I, and the whole quotation gives a wrong idea altogether of my views.

BOARD ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Editor, Examiner, Peterborough.

Dear sir:

"An interested ratepayer" in your issue of the 30th ult., asks for certain information which the Board is anxious to give.

The questions 1, 2, and 3 may be blocked together as they are all covered by the Act of Incorporation under which the Board functions.

1. The Board consists of 15 members, which includes His Worship the Mayor, who is ex-officio and member of the Board.

2 and 3. Two members are appointed by St. Paul's Church 1, two by St. Andrew's Church, and, one by each other Protestant church in the city.

4. Those entitled to vote are Protestant property owners and Public school supporters.

5. The books of the Hospital, under the Act, are open to the inspection of the Mayor, Council, Clerk or Treasurer of the City at all times, the accounts required to be audited, annually, by the City Auditor, hence a full and accurate statement is and must be made to the rate payers.

Yours truly,
For the Hospital Board,
JOHN CRANE,
Secretary.

SAYS FARMERS WILL NOT TRADE HERE.

Editor of Examiner.

Dear sir:

Please allow me a little space in your valuable paper to ask all the citizens who are not in favor of daylight saving to turn out in full force and use their franchise on Friday. The sporting community and others who want the change of time will be on their jobs and it is up to those who desire the continuance of standard time to do their duty at the polls or be satisfied with the results. Do not be influenced by the short period of time which the daylight saving advocates mention. If the summer time passes here they may be satisfied with a short period this year, but it will likely be lengthened each year until we have five months of daylight saving like they have in Toronto.

It is up to the merchants of Peterborough to turn down the measure as they will lose the trade of the farmers and residents outside the cities. The railways will operate on Standard time and I see no necessity for a change.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space.

I remain,
Yours sincerely,
STANDARD TIME.

To the Editor, Examiner, Peterboro.

Dear Sir,—I would like to have the opportunity of stating a few reasons why I am voting for daylight saving this year, although I have consistently opposed it on every vote taken since the first, when it was looked upon as a war time measure, and I would oppose it again if it was for as long a term as before and not for the school holiday term only.

I know in the office in which I work business is very much upset by daylight saving time in Toronto and standard time here, and from what I learn it is the same in a number of other offices and factories, so that all the talk about the boys having a good time is not so much thought of as the carrying of the by-law for purely business reasons.

I do believe, however, if the by-law carries it will be some hardship on the farming community, but I am trying to look at it from a business standpoint. The time has been shortened up almost one-half, and if those opposed to the by-law would try it out this year and the farmer and city man co-operate as we should it might be that no great harm would be done to either party.

Ten weeks of daylight saving instead of five months, if accepted by both sides, would be a compromise by both, and is worth, in my mind, a trial.—Yours truly,

READER.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

FRIDAY, MAY 3, 1929.

Benefic and malefic aspects counter-balance in this day's horoscope which has certain contradictory indications, according to astrology.

Women should find the planetary influences exceedingly energizing and stimulating under this direction of the stars.

It is a time when wives and mothers will find much joy in domestic interests, the seers announce. Dress also will claim a new sort of attention.

Individualism, so strongly manifested now by women as well as men, will be expressed more definitely than in recent years, the seers prophesy.

This is read as a fortunate day for theatres and for all who act in them, making for finer attainments in dramatic presentation.

All the signs appear to be most favorable to bankers and financiers. For more than a year immense consolidation of international interests has been foretold and while certain prophecies have been fulfilled greater amalgamations are prognosticated.

The seers declare that the planetary influences which have been read as inspiring co-operation will affect all lines of business.

Under this sway secrecy and even deception may be expected, for there is an aspect making for double-dealing.

It is not a fortunate day for signing contracts or leases. Oil deals may be peculiarly unlucky, it is forecast.

Women are especially warned not to speculate for they will be inclined to take more chances than men.

The feminine mind will be more open than the masculine to the influence of the stars that encourage daring and recklessness while this sway prevails.

Flirtation may be peculiarly dangerous, also, for the tendency may be toward what is unconventional.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a successful year. They should be cautious lest they encounter some sort of treachery.

Children born on this day probably will be aspiring in mind and exceedingly loyal in nature. These subjects of Taurus are likely to be intense in their emotions, but able to control their minds to rule.

Edward Dowden, famous critic, was born on this date, 1843. Horatio Hall famous ethnologist, also claimed this as his birthday.

"A PRECIOUS HOUR OF GOLD" IS NAME GIVEN EXTRA HOUR DAYLIGHT SAVING PROVIDES

New York Newspaper Tells Advantages of System To Workers.

UNIVERSAL JOY.

"Daylight saving came to town today for another Summer's stay. Until October the chronometers of the city will pretend that 6 o'clock in the morning is a sensible rising time, that 11 is high noon and that 3 o'clock is the hour for 4 o'clock tea. Their mendacity we all condone for the sake of the precious hour of sunlight thus added to our day.

Concerning that hour there is much hazy talk and little scientific information. It is praised by press, pulpit and the Merchants' Association as being good for us. But just what good does it do? What use do people make of it?

Almost everything else has to undergo a survey in these inquiring times, so why not the greatly blurbed hour of saved daylight? "How doth the busy citizen improve the shining hour?"

The question brings quick and hearty answers from some and blank looks from others. People in astonishing numbers seem unaware of any advantages that daylight saving showers upon them. They enjoy its blessings without knowing that they do, much as they enjoy the oxygen of the air and the protection of the Star-Spangled Banner.

Unconscious of Blessings

When these indifferent ones pause to reflect they may be grateful, but that is as far as they go. Having earned the golden hour, they do nothing with it. They leave their comfortable beds at an unearthly 6 o'clock, sun time; they speed up their work through the day so as to be done at 4, also sun time, and thereafter they behave in the manner of the famous character who ran desperately across the railroad track ahead of the fast express and then halted, breathless, to watch the train go by.

But not all New Yorkers are exhausted by the regimen that daylight saving imposes. Legions of them, after getting up before the sparrow and hurrying all day long to finish their stint before the natural quitting time, still have energy left. These cherish the extra hour as an opportunity too valuable to be accepted sitting down. Is man a vegetable, that he should not rise to the gift from heaven of an extra hour of sunshine?

"What do you do with your hour?"

One earnest man replies: "I walk home through the park, a thing I do not enjoy doing by Eastern Standard Time, under which the enterprising thugs of this latitude operate. From October to April I travel home in the avenue, where lights, police, bystanders, eyewitnesses and good Samaritans are plentiful. After April, with an hour of honest daylight between me and the underworld, I follow the park paths, listening to the birds and admiring the flowers, confident that no sandbags or blackjacks lurk behind the bushes."

The Opportunities Created

Thus for hundreds of city folk daylight saving enhances the usefulness of the parks. In the avenues, too, it cheats for one hour the evening darkness, which is not the refreshment to city toilers that it used to be. Not many persons go for pleasure strolls after dark any more. The streets are so full of a number of things—bumpers and wheels, screaming brakes, oily vapors and the dazzle of headlights, to name just a few.

In the daylight-saving season there come a kindly hour when the sun is setting behind the Palisades, when the sky-scraper towers stand gold-tipped against the blue of the long evening and the Summer air grows cool enough for mild exercise. One can overlook the traffic then and let the attention dwell on the always picturesque and the often beautiful in the city scene.

Advantages for Motorists

That is also the pleasure-motoring hour. Your city family would not go driving for enjoyment on a Standard-time evening in March, even if March were as balmy as June. There is little fun in driving after dark anywhere within miles of Times Square.

But in the bright after-dinner hour under daylight saving the soberest teetotaler can find pleasure at the wheel. Thanks to the white lie that the clocks tell, his car need not stand in an expensive garage from Sunday evening until Saturday noon in the good old Summer time. How many of his kind there are who welcome the chance to take the road is for some Einstein of higher mathematics to calculate. The oil companies report that daylight saving boosts their gasoline sales enormously.

More, if not better, athletics result from this readjustment of the clock than from the five-day week and the Continental Sunday put together. Find a deserted tennis court, if you can, when the Summer night is beginning to lower; or an idle croquet ground, or a silent cricket lawn or a roque arena doing nothing for the health of the community. Barring rain, there will be no such things in the gloaming hereabout in the next five months.

Tired Business Men Relax

The gain to the national game is immeasurable. The Twilight Baseball League of Summit, N.J., may be chosen at random from a field of a hundred such leagues as an example of what a little added hour can do. This organization consists of six teams of tired business men. They play three seven-inning games a week, thus providing exercise and diversion for fifty-four men, not counting substitutes, pinch hitters and bat boys, and wholesome entertainment for their neighbors. Not many of the fifty-four would have a moment to swing a bat or steal a base or intimidate an umpire in a Summer conducted on sun time.

Along with the physical well-being of the players, the esprit de corps of the firms they represent is fostered, which is good for business. Without daylight saving, most of these leagues would be lukewarm and desultory affairs, and many would disband. Twilight baseball is the answer that a fair-sized army can give to the question before the house.

A Precious Hour of Gold

The golfer hails Daylight Saving Time with three braw, lang cheers. It may be thought that golf is a game for none but the forunate few who have their afternoons off, and their mornings, too, if they wish. It may be supposed that the world's golfing is nicely finished and the bonnie brassies put away in the locker long before the merry post-script hour arrives, and it may be asked, "How does daylight saving affect this sport of the well-to-do?" He who so thinks and supposes and asks has not kept his eye on the universal democratization of the game. He does not know that the machine age in which we live has also become the mashie age.

Golf is almost everybody's game now, and almost everybody has to labor long and late in order to earn the wherewithal to buy the gutta-percha accessories of his recreation. Ordinarily, by the time he has attained that end, the day is done and the shades of night are falling fast. But now, when his golf ball is earned, lo! and behold, here is a daylight hour left in which to take the wee thing to the links and whack it a mile down the fairway, or into the rough, as the case may be. The congestion on greens in this vicinity of a pleasant Summer evening would appall any Broadway traffic officer.

What Near-By Waters Offer

The oarsmen on the Harlem, the sailboat fans along the city's shores and the fishermen in the outlying bays have a quite definite use for the hour of grace that daylight time offers. So have the half-million, more or less, of amphibious small boys who dive off the thousand docks of the seaport, emulating the feats once performed in these same harbor waters by their friend and hero, Alfred Hmanuel Smith, whose sport time for natatorial adventure was briefer than their because daylight saving had not been invented in his youth.

The crowds at the beaches know how to value the supplemental hour that makes so agreeable a corollary to the city day. So does the studious person whose pleasure in literature is limited to the amount of fatigue his eyes can endure. He can read his daily chapter now by daylight. He can keep up with the Book-of-the Hour Club at last.

But the commuter enjoys the change of time most of all men. Through the month of April he has been reaching his home in Lawnville-by-the-Stream at dusk, too late to weed his garden after dinner, too late to gloat over his Orange Phoenix daffodils, too late to roll his blue-grass lawn unless by the light of his lantern. Sometimes he wonders sadly why he persists in dwelling away out there when he sees so little of his home and his pansy bed.

An Hour in the Vineyards

His discouragement ends to-day. Hereafter until Autumn he can toil in the vineyard a whole blissful hour each evening before the curfew knell sends him plodding his weary way down cellar to kick off his garden shoes.

"What do people do with the hour of saved daylight?" The more the question is propounded and answered, the stronger becomes the conviction that most people look upon the hour as a large, rich bonus, receiving it joyously and spending it enthusiastically for what they need. Which conclusion a survey respectfully submits.—L. H. R."

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

NO NOW

There is no now, no present quite alone.
Whatever is, its past has always known.
To-day I shall do well for having done
Some past thing well,
Do something poorly
Because some yesterday I slipped and fell,
I walked less surely.

There is no now, no present now and all.
Tomorrow I shall rise or I shall fall
Because to-day I either fell or rose,
Made foes or friends.
No path man goes
Has sudden sorrow;
Upon the path I walk to-day depends
The path to-morrow.

There is no now, for in the now combine
The past and future of this life of mine.
The things I think so many things will touch,
The things I say
Shape life so much,
I must think straightly,
Because to every other day each day
Will matter greatly.

Mayland Oils Plan Extensive Program

CALGARY, May 1 (Special to Examiner).—Consolidation of the 280 acres of Mayland leases in the southern end of Turney Valley with a similar acreage of Royalite Oil Co. leases adjoining and partially surrounding Mayland leases, with the Imperial Oil supervising drilling operations on a program calling for three wells to be drilled this year, was announced by directors of Mayland Oils, Limited yesterday afternoon.

Capitalization of the Mayland Oils Limited will be increased to 1,000,000 shares, 500,000 of which will be held by the Royalite Oil Co., and not offered to the public. Present capital stock of Mayland Oils has been 500,000 shares. The consolidation gives the Mayland Oils, Limited, which retains its identity despite the addition of 280 acres of Royalite leases, 560 acres in section 17, which reach completely across the known structure from east to west, immediately south and adjoining the Home Oils and Northwest Associated properties. It makes Mayland Oils, Limited, one of the largest independent oil companies operating in Turney Valley field.

Directors of Mayland Oils announce further that the company has $600,000 in cash with which to finance the drilling campaign and that the contract with the Imperial Oil Co. has been closed on a liberal basis. Coincident with the announcement of the consolidation with the Royalite properties, officials of the company outlined the future plans with regard to drilling. Mayland No. 1 well will probably be cemented at the present depth of about 5,383 feet, where a quantity of crude oil and gas has made running casing advisable. A rotary drill will be obtained to complete the well as soon as possible.

MANY FACTORS NOW COMBINE TO AUGMENT THE PRODUCTION OF COPPER FROM ALL SOURCES

Important New Copper Areas Expected To Result in Increased Supply.

LARGE RESERVES.

Located in Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba and British Columbia.

(By Arthur Buisson, Mines Branch, Department of Mines.)

The discovery of important copper deposits in the Rouyn area of Western Quebec; at the Frood and Frood Extension copper-nickel mines and at the Errington zinc-copper mine in Sudbury district, Ontario; the successful development work in progress at the Flin Flon and Sherritt-Gordon mines in The Pas district, Northern Manitoba; the additions to plant equipment to Anyox, Britannia Beach, and Copper Mountain, and the successful results obtained at the Coast Copper property on Quatsino Sound in British Columbia, are all new factors likely to make a substantial increase to the production of copper.

The completion of the Noranda smelter in the Rouyn area has raised Quebec to the rank of an important producer. One unit only of the smelter, originally designed for treating 500 tons of ore per day; has already reached a capacity of nearly 1,000 tons; the addition of a few more roasters and two more converters and the blowing in of the second smelting furnace already completed will double the capacity. When the development work now in progress is completed the mine will be capable of supplying sufficient ore to feed the smelter at full capacity.

Large Reserves

The very successful development campaign of the International Nickel Company at the Frood mine, the shaft of which has been sunk to a depth of 3,000 feet and equipped to hoist 10,000 tons of rock daily, and in which levels are being driven at 2,000. 2,400 and 2,800 feet; and that of the Mond Nickel Company at its Frood Extension mine, with a shaft down to 3,350 feet and levels at 2,800, 3,100 and 3,300 feet, has opened up enormous reserves of good grade copper-nickel ore. The International is also proceeding with the erection at Copper Cliff of a large concentrator and a new 4,000-ton copper smelter, which will be supplemented with a copper refinery, probably to be located at Port Colborne, where the company is already operating a nickel refinery capable of treating 100,000 tons of nickel-copper matte and producing 36,000 tons of refined nickel yearly.

Another Campaign

The Errington zinc-copper mine near Sudbury has been proceeding with its development campaign. No. 1 and No. 2 shafts, which are 4,000 feet apart, have been connected on the third level and are being connected on the fifth level. No. 3 shaft, located about 2 miles east of No. 2, has been sunk to a depth of over 400 feet and lateral work started. Additional equipment in the mill has brought its capacity to 300 tons; it is now treating about 250 tons a day, producing zinc, lead, and copper concentrates. While the present process of concentration has proven very satisfactory no large scale operations will be undertaken until more is known of the character and extent of the ore body.

At the Flin Flon property in northern Manitoba the ore reserves are estimated at 16,000,000 tons to a depth of 900 feet. The ore body averages 1.7 per cent. copper, 3.5 per cent. zinc, with low grade values in gold and silver. Plans include the erection of a 3,000-ton concentrator and a smelter of sufficient capacity to handle the concentrates from the mill, which should be in operation in 1930.

Encouraging Results

Results at the Sherritt-Gordon have been very encouraging, and the property is being actively developed. The ore zone has been traced for several miles and two ore bodies definitely proven. Of these the eastern is said to contain 2,000,000 tons and the western 3,000,000 tons to a depth of 500 feet. The average assay of the ore has been given as: copper 2.3 per cent., zinc 5.9 per cent., with small amounts of gold and silver. Recent development, particularly on the newly acquired Ook claim, has added considerably to the known ore reserves.

Important new developments are reported from British Columbia at some of the producing properties and new discoveries are also reported.

The prevailing low price of copper during the past few years has been offset to some extent by improved methods of concentration and metallurgical treatment and the recent strengthening of copper prices should have a very stimulating effect on Canadian production.

Wheat Becomes Stronger Favorable Crop Reports

CHICAGO, Ills., May 2 (C.P.).—Unofficial crop estimates issued to-day confirmed predictions that they would prove bearish and early consequent early declines brought in good buying and wheat prices rallied quickly. To-day's estimates of the 1929 probable domestic yield of winter wheat averaged 618,000,000 bushels compared with last month's predictions of 575,000,000 bushels.

Opening at a shade to 1 cent lower, wheat afterward scored fractional gains. Corn, oats and provisions developed firmness also, with corn starting ⅝ off to ⅜ up, and later showing a general advance.

April Steel Output Tops March Record

(Special to The Examiner.)

PITTSBURGH, May 2. — Steel is holding up when in most years at this time it has developed a downturn. By actual computation covering the last six years the average date of peak production in steel has been March 25. At the present time there are no visible decreases in steel demand by any consuming industry, and there are some cases of increases being in progress. All the actual data at command indicate that demand for steel is increasing at the present time.

The volume of orders on the books for automobile steel, the pressure being exerted for deliveries and the specifications being filled, do not presage any decrease in automobile production for a month, the time involved for the manufacture of this steel and its conversion into cars and trucks.

Steel rail production usually has begun slowing down early in June. This year it is said deliveries are somewhat in arrears, whereby there will be heavy production of rails even in July.

Increases now in progress or which began not more than about a month ago are impressive. Largely increased shipments of plates to Milwaukee for making electrically welded line pipe began about a month ago and regular pipe mills have more line pipe business than in March.

MINE MARKET IS IRREGULAR

Light Declines Suffered By Cheaper-Priced Stocks On Standard.

NO MARKED CHANGES.

TORONTO, Ont., May 2 (Canadian Press).—Prices on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day again swung back into their indefinite course. There were no marked changes, however, and the declines were suffered largely by the cheaper-priced stocks. Ajax Oil, Amulet and Abana were typical examples of this class. Ajax in active trading, breaking 5 cents to 1.30, while Amulet dipped 7 to 1.73. Abana remained at the morning's low of 2.05, a loss of 12 cents. Big Missouri was off 4 at 1.62, and Premier 5 at 1.95. Wainwell was not nearly so active and held 1½ cents higher at 57½.

Noranda held at the morning's high of 53.50, up 25 cents, while Falconbridge improved 25 to 11.25. Sherritt-Gordon at 8.40 and Sudbury Basin at 8.60 were both off five cents.

The oils generally showed a slight improvement. Home gained 1.50 to 23.50, Mayland 40 to 13.50, Foothills 40 to 8.90, and South-West Petroleum 10 to 6.60.

LIST RALLIES LATE SESSION

Many Issues Reach New High in Heavy Buying Session.

CALL MONEY STEADY.

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 2.—(By Stanley W. Prenosil, Associated Press Financial Editor). — The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form to-day, selling down sharply in the morning on fears of a large increase in brokers' loans after the close and then rallying briskly when heavy buying developed in a few of the so-called "Morgan stocks."

Call money renewed at 10 per cent. as against 11 yesterday, and held steady at that rate throughout the morning and early afternoon. Easier rates are looked for next week.

Radio returned to its old position as a market leader by climbing more than 5 points to a new high record for the present issue above $112 a share. One block of 18,000 shares changing hands at 112. Johns Manville ran up 10 points to 194¾, or nearly 40 points above the March low. Air Reduction soared more than 10 points to a new top at 129½, and Ludium Steel moved up nearly 9 to a new high at 95½.

American Radiator, International partment Stores, Simmons, Keith-partment Stores, SCimmons, Keith-Albee Common and Preferred, Borg Warner, Wilcox Rick A and B, Hersey Chocolate Preferred, and American Radiator and Standard Sanitary all sold 3 to 7 points higher, some of them at new high records.

WORLD COURT JUDGE SAILS.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 1 (Canadian Press).—Charles Evans Hughes, former Secretary of State, sails late to-day on the Cunard liner Mauretania, en route to Geneva, to take up his duties as judge of the World Court.

The Court will hold a session beginning May 15.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

NICKEL

Purchasers of Nickel at current level which represents decline of 23 points from year's peak, undoubtedly influenced by report that insiders have been accumulating in substantial way. Buying much similar in character to that in old shares around same level. One of best known Montreal houses has been receiving buying orders from Belgium, which is another indication that shares of International Nickel are becoming widely distributed.

McMILLAN GOLD

Complete examination of McMillan Gold Mines at West River being made by Percy E. Hopkins, consulting geologist. Complete sampling will be made in order to check figures of company engineers.

FALCONBRIDGE NICKEL

Blast furnace and two rotary converters are now on order by Falconbridge Nickel Mines, for projected smelter scheduled for delivery in September. Understood cost of this equipment is in neighborhood of $80,000. Furnace capacity 225 tons per day.

VENTURES

Ventures Limited are now next to International Nickel Limited in matter of property acreage held in Sudbury District. Estimated total acreage held by Ventures is 24,000. Group of claims on Worthington offset, northeast of Worthington Mine, recently taken over by Ventures. They have contact protected on north nickel range for distance of four to five miles. The company also has 2,000 acres between Murray and Blezard Mines.

McDOUGALL EXPLORATION

McDougall Exploration may be split ten for one. Calgary says believe company has applied to Ottawa for permission to do this.

NEWS FROM THE MINES

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

NIPISSING

Nipissing shareholders told company will carry on active prospecting campaign this summer.

TOWAGMAC

Shareholders Towagmac, which owns 27 per cent. Aldermac, Monday told of change taking place in fortunes of venture due to finding good grade copper ore at depth. Lake Geneva progressing favorably, with west drift 200 feet in ore. Underground work started on Michael option.

MAYLAND

Mayland directors Monday ratified deal with Imperial Oil whereby Mayland will become subsidiary of Royalite, which in turn is controlled by Imperial Oil. Negotiations between Mayland heads carried on at Imperial Oil head office. Mayland capital will be increased to 1,000,000 shares and Royalite will get 500,500 or control. Mayland gets two blocks Royalite ground adjoining on east which gives company 560 acres, so laid out that its footage on the structure will be about a mile each way. Royalite's new No. 25 well now becomes Mayland 2. Imperial Oil officials will oversee bringning in of Mayland No. 1, now full of oil and just about on top of lime.

AJAX

Officially stated Ajax Oil has secured 1500 acres Cypress Oil area, south of Medicine Hat. Imperial, Marland, Cypress Oil active on structure.

ALDERMAC.

Confidence expressed by officials of Aldermac that corner has been turned in fortunes of the property, says our Rouyn man. On 1,125 foot level a real ore body has been developed. Part of this—at present about 30 feet—would be sufficiently high-grade to be straight smelter feed. However, plans for a concentrator are now being formulated and should ore body continue to develop in present satisfactory manner, no time will be lost in construction of concentrator. Replacement of pyrrhotite by chalcopyrite has taken place to a great degree on 1,125 level and should same improvement be maintained as depth is attained, an ore body of great value will be outcome. Intended to sink new shaft, nearer present known ore. Exploration will continue from present shaft and body will be explored from 700 level.

WAITE MONTGOMERY.

As further work is being done on Waite ore body this is showing up a grade of ore much better than drilling indicated. Drillers have broken through to surface, and it is becoming an open stope proposition. Grade of ore being shipped to the smelter around 11 per cent.

NORANDA.

Concentrator is now on three shifts and working satisfactorily. Tonnage going through will be gradually stepped up.

AMITY.

The drift on 600 is now coming into ore zone. For last few rounds chalcopyrite has been coming in much stronger.

PREMIER MOVES CLOSURE

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, May 1. (C. P.) — Closure rules will become effective in the Manitoba Legislature to-day if Premier John Bracken has his way. Dissatisfied with the progress of government business, mainly as the result of various "blockades" enforced by Conservative members, the Premier gave notice of closure last night. A motion to do away with the present early adjournment rule will be moved by Mr. Bracken when the House meets this afternoon, and if it is adopted, closure, limiting speeches to 30 minutes, will become effective immediately.

HEAVY EXPANSION PROGRAM OF CANADIAN PACIFIC TOLD OF BY RAILWAY PRESIDENT

Beatty, At Annual Meeting, Touches On Freight Rates Problems.

PROSPECTS FOR CROPS.

Four Resolutions Passed Unanimously—Directors Re-elected.

MONTREAL, May 2. — Favorable crop reports, the further expansion of the company's system in Alberta through branch lines and the building of a hotel in London, England, were points dealt with in the annual report of President E. W. Beatty to the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific Railway at their annual meeting yesterday.

Following the meeting, at which retiring directors were re-elected, four resolutions were passed unanimously. They dealt with the ratification of the agreement between the Alberta Government and the Canadian National Railways for the taking over of certain railway lines, authorization of an issue of debentures for the construction of branch lines in the Canadian West, authorization of an issue of 4 per cent. debenture stock to cover the $2,044,000 cost of two new British Columbia coastal steamers and authorization of a debenture issue to provide for the construction of the hotel in London.

Strong Financial Position

In his statement to shareholders at the annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific Railway held at the head office here to-day, President E. W. Beatty said:

"I am probably only reiterating the views of the shareholders when I say that the report of the company's operations for the year 1928, which has been before you for some time, is eminently satisfactory. Not only are the results gratifying from the standpoint of revenue returns, but even more so when viewed in the light of their reflection of the improved conditions existing throughout Canada during the last calendar year.

The company's operations and various services were all maintained in a high state of efficiency, and its position in the financial centres of the world remains exceptionally strong.

The operations for the first three months of this year show an increase in gross earnings of $761,641, and a decrease in net earnings of $470,721; the latter being due to a variety of causes which affected the revenues for the first quarter of the year. Because of the heavy movement of grain during the latter half of 1928, there was a relatively lighter movement of this commodity during February and that affected the gross earnings for the month.

Our expenses were somewhat increased during the period by interruptions to traffic in the mountains, an unusually heavy and early shipping program n order to make way for the finishing of the new equipment under contract which will be completed in the company's Angus shops and to the increased maintenance changes against locomotives and freight cars, due to continuous and heavy usage during the fall of 1928. The results on the whole are satisfactory.

Good Crop Prospects

While it is too soon to estimate with any degree of accuracy the crop prospects for the present year, it may be interesting to the shareholders to know that in Western Canada the weather in October, November and December was unusually mild and dry. January and February were extremely cold with good frost penetration and the March thaw was not accompanied by the usually high winds. During the past few weeks, the Prairies have had heavy snowfalls and rain and all agricultural authorities agree that the seed bed at the moment is in satisfactory condition. It is obvious of course in order to have a grain yield approaching that of the last two years that Spring rains throughout the three provinces and the heavy June rainfall will be requisite.

Expansion Program

The shareholders will have observed from persual of the annual report that fairly extensive expansion is planned in all the major services of the company. The branch line program approved by Parliament is a substantial one, but more than warranted by the prospective developments in the Western Provinces. It wil with your approval from time to time obtained, be given effect to over the next few years as conditions justify the completion of the lines for the construction of which authority has been secured, satisfactory arrangements having been secured with the National Railways in those cases where the plans of the two companies conflicted. The additions to your ocean and coastal fleets have already received your approval and with these vessels provided, company's strength and prestige will be further enhanced. The extensions to the hotels are warranted by our experience and the future prospects of the cities they serve and supplementary to the company's transportaton operations. The substantial additions to equipment are rendered necessary if the company is to enjoy and satisfactorily handle its full share of the freight and passenger business of the country.

Freight Rate Situation.

In previous addresses to the shareholders I made reference to the freight rate situation. There is at present pending an appeal to the Governor - General-in-Council, designed to secure reductions in the scale of rates between Prairie points and the Pacific coast, and locally in British Columbia, notwithstanding that these rates have been fixed by the railway commission after extensive inquiry. These periodical agitations for the purpose of whittling down the revenues of the Canadian railways are at times difficult to understand. Local ambitions and rivalries are responsible for applications for reductions in rates which are often not warranted by the cost of service or any consideration of sound economies. They are, of course, dealt with judicially and the position of the companies in every case is fully presented. It cannot, I think, be gainsaid that the companies are making a pronounced contribution, not only to industrial efficiency and commercial progress, but the Canadian development as well, and this contribution is only possible when revenues are such as to permit the ready obtaining of new capital. I am naturally only speaking of the position of the Canadian Pacific in this respect, as the ownership of the national system by the Government and the provision of its funds out of Government moneys and through Government credit distinguished its position in its essential features from that of a privately-owned company. I am led to make this observation because it has been frequently stated that, because the revenues of the companies are in the main secured from freight and passenger tolls paid by the shipper and passenger the credit situation of both companies is identical. This to me surprising theory is expressed by Frederick Palmer in his report on the Montreal Terminal situation in the following language:

"Another argument is that the Government can enable the C.N.R. to carry out any scheme, even if an extravagant one because it can provide the capital at the expense of the taxpayer, whereas the C.P.R. has to obtain new capital from its shareholders. Both these assumptions are perfectly true, but, really, they amount to one and the same thing as will be shown. The source from which the capital comes is not important. Money is readily available everywhere if (1) the security is beyond doubt, and (2) the return thereon is good. In both railways the security is first-class—the return comes from th population of Canada. The shareholder is the receiver, not the payer, of the return and whether that return comes from railway charges only, or from railway charges plus taxes, it amounts to the same thing—the public have to pay in any case, because the railway freighter, the taxpayer, the railway passenger is one and the same—"the public."

TO SURVEY TRAP LINES FROM THE AIR.

FORT SMITH, N.W.T., April 29.—(By the Canadian Press.) —Though he has followed a trap line over the same country for ten years, Frank Conibear, trapper and trader, thinks so much of an airplane survey of the area that he has arranged for an airplane to take him for a flight over the lines.

It is pointed out that there are thousands of miles of country that have never been trapped over because of the difficulty of getting in and out, but which now become accessible to the trapper who can fly in by plane.

It is anticipated that in the future planes will pick up trappers and their outfits from the steamer routes on the Athabaska, Slace and Mackenzie rivers and carry them four or five hundred miles into the interior hinterland, where the trapper will find himself in virgin country.

LIBERALS TO CONVENE.

HAWKESBURY, Ont., May 1. — (Canadian Press).—At the annual meeting and election of officers of the Prescott County Liberal Association, held yesterday, it was decided to hold a convention on May 21 to select a candidate for the coming Federal by-election. The vacancy was left by the resignation of Louis Auger.

MR. P. PARNELL TYLER,

President of Lever Brothers, Limited, and Associated Companies of Canada, who made the announcement at the annual banquet held Friday, April 26th, attended by over 500 employees, that a group life insurance plan would be put into effect forthwith. Under this plan, entered into with the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, not only are all employees to receive life insurance in generous amounts, but Lever Brothers, Limited, have undertaken to pay the entire cost.

LEAD ISSUES HOLD INTEREST

OIL SECTION QUIET.

TORONTO, May 2. (C.P.) —But for the interest maintained by the more prominent stocks, trading would have been extremely dull on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. As it was the total sales were low with the average turnover only aggregating 10 and 25 shares. In the unlisted section only 27 issues came out of approximately 95.

International Nickel came back in its old form and in a turnover of more than 17,500 shares, sold up one point to 53. Ford Motor was fairly active, climbing up 1 1-4 points to 65 3-4. Canadian Canners second was prominent in trading, gaining 1 1-4 points to 25 3-4, while Durant Motors shot up 3 points to 23. Massey-Harris was 1-2 points stronger at 74½.

Oils were quiet with McColl-Frontenac spurting 2 points to 36, while Home gained 2 to 24½. Imperial was unchanged and Southwest Petroleum rose 80c to 7.00.

KASHAWEOGAMA PROMISING SECTION

Active Developments Planned By Mine Companies for the Summer.

The new Kashawaeogama Lake area received some attention last summer, most in prospecting and staking claims along an indicated main break, that had been traced for some nine miles north easterly, commencing at a point a little west of Kashaweogama Lake. Before the summer was over the area was staked solid. Situated only 12 miles north of Savant Lake Railway Station, it is almost on the direct line of travel into Pickle Crow and the Shonia-Gat Lake sections.

Preliminary explorations has shown favorable geological conditions and the presence of visible gold at several points along the north shore of the lake. Syndicates, with headquarters at New Liskeard and Cobalt managed to get it all with the exception of one group that was secured, just in time, by the Kashouilette Syndicate, a Toronto organization. Joe Chouinard and W Miller are now being sent in to take charge of operations before the break up as it is the intention of the Syndicate management to have several promising veins explored and opened up, they being the continuation of the McRae-Simmons discovery of high gold values made late last fall in a series of parallel veins The McRae-Simmons group immediately adjoins the Kashouilette holdings on the east side where the veins on both groups join. The geology here is very favorable, consisting as it does of Keewatin rocks, cut by intrusives. Temiskaming conglomerates occur at the north and centre sections of the lake with granite outcrops farther on, and south-east. These conditions are known throughout the length of the nine mile break where considerable stripping and trenching has been done.

Adjoining the McRae-Simmons, to the east, the Frisby-Sedore 24 claims lie. Now known as Island Lake Gold Mines Limited. It is understood that considerable diamond drilling is to be done this year by four of the Syndicates now operating along the break.

There is a pronounced fracturing where the veins occur and wide veins seem to be the rule. The over-burden is light, therefore prospecting is easy.

At Ouilette Lake the Kashouilette Syndicate has another group of claims, about 3 1-2 miles north of the St. Anthony at Sturgeon Lake.

Work has been going on all winter on this group, mainly in exploring at depth as well as surface stripping and trenching.

The veins that were exposed lie chiefly along the contact of the greenstones and quartz porphyry and at several points along one vein visible gold appeared, in association with the sulphides, and channel sampling across from 3 to 5 feet of vein matter gives assays running $8.20, $12.30 and $16.40 to the ton in gold. Copper appears occasionally but not in sufficient quantities to be considered.

Supplies are being moved in before the break-up, for several camps, and as present indications show there will be some real development work on an extensive scale, carried on through the summer at Kashaweogama as well as the Ouilette Lake (Sturgeon) properties.

PILES GO QUICK

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds, because it relieves this congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has given quick, safe and lasting relief to thousands of Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store, and druggists everywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

HOME.

Home 2 and 3 may be diamond drilled into production at same time. Manager McLeod, Imperial Oil, is in Alberta at moment pondering over such plan.

C.G.E. CONCERT WELL RECEIVED

Canadian Legion Hall Is Filled To Capacity To Hear Initial Performance.

REPEATED TO-NIGHT.

The Canadian Legion Hall was crowded to its utmost seating capacity last evening for the initial performance of the C. G. E. minstrels, which will be repeated on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. Loud applause greeted the various members of the troupe and all were enthusiastic in their praise of the splendid evening's entertainment.

The first number on the program was a rollicking chorus by the entire company followed by humorous jokes in dialogue "Tender Skin" and "The Bald Headed Man" a song by Ted Suddards. "Everything's funny to me" was well received. This was followed by more jokes. "I don't remember no more", "Doodle Doo" by Hope Porter, Suddars and Interlocuter. A comic song "Dark town Strutter's Ball" by Jack Wade was enthusiastically applauled by the audience. A number of local hits on prominent Peterborough citizens was the subject of jokes by Hope and an original song by Neil Porter in which Mayor Denne, Alderman Cotton, the Peterborough Fire Brigade and the police force, were not forgotten. This was followed by jokes on "Seven years' itch." Details by mail, "Ten to" bf Porter, Powers and Cotton.

A splendid tenor solo "Mother Machree" was rendered by Walter Binks who again delighted all with another song "Just a Lullaby" in which his rich tenor voice was heard to splendid advantage.

Jokes on "Don't throw the lamp" "My gal's lips" and "Silent Bells" enlivened the program at this stage before the solo "Etiquette Blues" by Kink Powers. A bone selection by Spencer Hope and Teddy Suddards with step dance by Deacon O'Brien proved to be a very popular number.

More jokes followed, "My hound Dog Died" "Booze tester for a Blind Millionaire", "Lord's Prayer" by Runnett, Porter and the Interlocuter.

A negro spiritual song by Jack Cairns "Swing log sweet Chariot" the entire company joining in the chorus was one of the outstanding numbers on the program.

The good old mother-in-law so often the subject of jokes came in for her usual share in the sketches by Deacon O'Brien and the dialogue "A little bit of give and take" by Bob. Runnett and Kink Powers caused much merriment.

Ted Bartley rendered a very fine bass solo "Asleep in the Deep" his deep resonant bass voice echoing the breakers on the shore.

Before the concluding chorus of Act I., "Golden Slippers" and "Maryland," sang by the entire company, Ted Suddards gave some amusing jokes on Peterborough celebrities.

A splendid duet, "Away to Fight the Foe," was rendered by Jack Wade and Walter Binks.

When the curtain rose for the third act a very effective camp-fire scene was portrayed with T. Parker, L. Wickwire, L. McGillen, R. Derrick, O. Cranfield and Millard seated on logs around the fire, over which was suspended the iron pot. They played many popular airs on various instruments, while Neil Porter presided at the piano. Tom Parker, in fine voice, sang "Carolina Moon," as he poked the fire and stirred the boiling meat.

The concluding number on the program was a decidedly comic blackface skit, "I Wonder What's Become of Sally?" by Deacon O'Brien, attired in a wonderful feminine garb, acted the part of Sally, and Spencer Hope as her deserted husband to whom she returns. They become reconciled and Sally dances a jig and the act ends with a duet, "I Wonder What's Become of Sally, That Ole Gal of Mine."

The concert closes with the National Anthem.

DAYLIGHT SAVING IN SUMMER OF 1919

Peterborough had daylight saving during the summer of 1919. and on that occasion the citizens did not get an opportunity to vote to show their sympathy for or against the measure.

At a special meeting of the City Council held on April 1 the City Council voted solidly for the measure, with the exception of two members who declined to vote either way. It passed with little discussion.

At 1 o'clock April 2, the clocks were moved forward one hour, and during the whole summer the citizens rollicked in the extra hour of sunshine. During that summer, too, sport, outdoor life and gardening, took on a greater activity, and was joined in by more citizens than in any previous summer.

At the Council meeting, when the measure was passed, it was stated that the Retail Merchants were heartily in favor of it, and the only body who expressed any sign of protest was the street railway men.

During the war, Daylight Saving was a National Measure throughout the country. It was during those war years when every effort at conservation was made, that the plan was first adopted to conserve daylight, and Peterborough along with every other city and town and country side in Canada turned their clocks on one hour.

INSTRUCTIVE TALK.

Dr. Murray Fraser Addresses Members of St. John's Ambulance Brigade.

An enthusiastic meeting of the local corps of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade was held in the Canadian Legion Hall last evening. Dr. Murray Fraser delivered a very instructive lecture on fractures and dislocations and their treatment and he also demonstrated bandaging.

The corps believe that they are realizing their aims of organizing a strong band of men trained in First Aid work in the city. Over thirty letters were sent out two weeks ago to various manufacturing plants, so that they could have the opportunity of interesting their employees in the care of injured.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, May 7, and all qualified First Aid men and those interested are invited.

Eczema

"I have for some years been troubled with eczema, which spices, ointments, medicated baths and various systems of dieting did no more than temporarily relieve. A doctor remarked that my complaint was chronic. One day this year I bought a bottle of Kruschen, without having much faith in it.

"However, after a fortnight, the burning and irritation, which was the worst feature of the disease, had left me. Naturally I got another bottle and in less than two months all traces of eczema had vanished, and my skin became as white and clean as that of a new-born child. Nor has there since been any return of the trouble.

Original letter on file for inspection.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at drug and department stores in Canada at 75c. a bottle. A bottle contains enough to last for 4 or 5 months—good health for half-a-cent a day.

"WE'RE RUINED" — AND. HOW

Mister Editor:

An earful of talk I overheard yesterday from two citizens that I'd imagine had once engaged in what the politicians call the basic occupation, agriculture, has set me thinking.

Those two sad-faced individuals were lamenting the high tax rate that according to them was grinding the faces of the poor and turning this once prosperous city into a poverty-stricken community.

Aint it the truth?

On every side of us there are signs of pinching and poverty.

Take motor cars; did you ever stop to think that there are working men's families in this town forced to drive round in last year's models of touring cars? Imagine that! An industrious bread winner working his 5½ days a week and in spite of his toil he has to suffer the humiliation of knowing his family has no other means of transportation save an open car! You, who drive in your sedan or coach, imagine how you'd feel if you had nothing but a touring model. Dire poverty; nothing else.

And radios, too. Here in this tax-ridden city there are families actually using battery sets. Think of it; while others enjoy the advantage of an electric radio, these poor destitute families have to struggle along with an 8 or 9 tube battery outfit. I'm told, too that in some cases they haven't even single dial control.

Poverty everywhere, families having to content themselves with two or three visits a week to the picture show; making last year's electric washing machine do another year; scarcely able to keep enough away from the tax collector to get a vacuum cleaner.

Back in the days of low taxes when Peterborough was prosperous our girls wore warm cotton stockings. Alas, you'd look for them in vain today. Gone are the cotton leg coverings of the golden era and now the females of our impoverished generation have to brave the elements with flimsy silk stockings. Think of it!

Poverty on every hand—and on every leg.

Gas companies building catedral-like service stations; big chain stores scrapping for locations on the main street; picture shows only able to scrape up $20,000 for for talkie equipment; family after family who are lucky to know where their next car is coming from; the golf club forced to enlarge their course to 18 holes to give employment to some tax-crushed landscape expert; the bowlers struggling along with a mere pittance of $10,000 to construct new greens; only a few miles of streets likely to be paved; hungry children buying over two thousand ice cream cones in one afternoon at one store—everywhere dire indications of destitution.

Davis Cup Tennis Trials Postponed

TORONTO, Ont., May 2 (C.P.).—Rain to-day was responsible for the postponement of the Davis Cup tennis trials. The program scheduled will be carried out to-morrow unless Marcel Rainville, who returned to Montreal on account of the death of his father-in-law, leaves for Toronto to-night. In that case the games might be rearranged.

Games scheduled for to-morrow are as follows:

Willard Crocker vs. Arthur Ham.
Jack Wright vs. Gilbert Nunns.
Crocker and Wright vs. Ham and Nunns.

In Police Court

Another light slate greeted the Police Magistrate this morning with only one case scheduled. At eleven o'clock last night, Ned Simmons, resident of Adeline Avenue, was taken into custody, and this morning, when faced with a charge of beating his wife, elected trial by judge and jury. The case was therefore remanded to next Tuesday for preliminary hearing, while bail was set at two sureties of $1,000 each.

Adanacs took the game, 18 to 15, with a thrilling last half rally to overcome the two point margin the Windsor squad had compiled in the first game of the series Monday night.

Plans were made to give Shields a warm welcome when he jogs through the town.

Johnny Salo, Passaic, N.J., policeman, second in elapsed time, cut down the lead of Pete Gavuzzi, Southampton, England, to 3.13.45 hours yesterday when he led the caravan into Joplin from Miller. Gavuzzi finished in sixth place.

FRECKLES

Tells How to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots and Have a Beautiful Complexion

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine from any drug or department store and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove your freckles.

Barnardo Home Wouldn't Give Hospital Economy

At the last minute, before the opening of the polls, some have brought forward suggestions for the Nicholls Hospital Board, which the Boar dis eager to answer in a way to show that the propositions are impossible.

It is proposed, for instance, that the Board should take over the Barnardo Home and run it as a maternity hospital. To anyone who has ever handled public institutions it is obvious that this is economically impracticable.

Combine Nicholls Hospital and the Isolation Hospital, and they could both be run more economically; separated, the Queen Mary Hospital is costing the taxpayers thousands of dollars. The same would happen if some departments of the Nicholls Hospital were removed to the Barnardo Home building.

Just the same principle makes the heating of the present Nicholls Hospital expensive—the new wings were added piecemeal, and the result is there are eight or ten furnace mouths to feed with coal. If the plant were modern and consolidated one would be sufficient.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— by John Hix

IF YOU DOUBT THIS, WRITE FOR PROOF TO THE AUTHOR.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

Dear Sir:

RE DAYLIGHT SAVING BY-LAW

In last evening's Examiner there was an article making a plea for daylight saving, in order that the difference in time between Peterborough and Toronto would be overcome as it handicapped concerns having officers in Toronto.

The situation is similar with people living in the surrounding territory as far away as Campbellford and Marmora; they find it very awkward to do business in Peterborough, should it adopt daylight saving, while the surrounding district is on standard time.

There are a good many reason that might be quoted against daylight saving with which the people are familiar and will act accordingly. To hear the advocates for daylight saving you would think they were going to compel the sun to shine two hours longer a day.

We know that the farming community opposes this measure and it has been voted down twice, and the plea that we just give it a trial in order that the thin edge of the wedge may be inserted is not likely to find favor.

"An Old Timer."

HOSPITAL BY-LAW

It appears to me that the Nicholls Hospital Board might have been more frank with the ratepayers, who have not been told why the Board should not take over the Barnardo Home, a splendid property which can be acquired for $10,000, and would make a splendid Maternity Home and should remove the present congeston from the hospital.

It is said that possibly $1.25 per thousand of assessment would cover the sinking fund; but that might go as high as $2.00, and we have no guarantee that as the smaller hospital has only been able to balance its budget, that the probability is the larger hospital would mean further demand on the ratepayers for maintenance.

Having an assessment for $10,000 this would mean at least $20 per year, and while we are told it is our hospital it is not likely we would recognised if we had to go there and the rate would be the same to us as to a stranger within our gates. However, the voters in their wisdom will probably take the wisest course.

RE BATHING BEACH BY-LAW

So far as I'm concerned with the information I have, I will not hesitate to wote "no." I could build a seven roomed brick house having all conveniences in Inverlea Park for $4,500; surely the balance of the $10,000 is not to be spent in sand.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.

I am, Yours truly,
Ratepayer.

Hospital Questions Answered

Eo the Editor of The Examiner:—

The Board of the Nicholls Hospital is anxious to discuss, or reply to any questions which will put matters pertaining to the By-Law in their true perspective.

The letter of "Protestant Ratepayer" again draws attention to the question of increased representation by the city council.

FIRST—May I say that the mayor is ex-officio a member of the Board and, as such, should be the logical custodian of the city's interests, even assuming that as thoroughly a representative body of reputable citizens as the Hospital Board are so wanting in business acumen or honesty of purpose, as not to function properly.

SECOND—The special Act, under which the hospital is incorporated provides that "The books of the trust shall at all times be open to inspection by members of the council, the clerk and treasurer thereof and that the books shall be audited annually, by the city auditor."

"Protestant Ratepayer" stands possibly, not informed that the Hospital Board and city council discussed fully the idea of increased representation and arrived at the decision that the composition of the Board better not be disturbed for the following reasons:—

While the Board is not adverse to any change of the form of government at present in use—it is well to remember that the Hospital and its endowment were accepted by the council many years ago under certain terms laid down in the "deed of gift", afterward incorporated into an act of incorporation by the legislation it is a question borne out by legal opinion, whether, if the terms of the gift, or, the Act of Incorporation following that gift, were tampered with it might not have the effect of imperrilling the endowment of nearly a quarter of a million dollars now owned by the Protestant citizens of Peterborough—it seems reasonable to assume—indeed expect—that the terms of a donor of wealth—should be respected as fully as the terms laid down say in a will—no natter what private opinion may prevail, the courts would, it is thought, never consent to altering the terms of the document, considered by the council of the people to be just and adequate and accepted in the full knowledge of its provisions and, which has functioned fortunately for 44 years, satisfactorily.

The statement, that the Hospital, being used by the county, the county should contribute toward the cost of enlargement—this question is answered in the editorial columns of The Examiner under even date. No provision is made in the legislative enactments to provide for such levy.

The Board has no apologies to offer for any apparent delay in undertaking enlargement. To any student of events it is a known fact that hospital attendance by the public is a rapid growth of comparative recent years—for two years the Board have been studying a situation which is now before the ratepayers.

The "alleged overcrowding" is not caused by the Hospital being used as a "nursing home" as your correspondent calls it—but the Hospital MUST BY LAW, admit the sick, irrespective of their origin, their ability to pay, the possibility of their stay being temporary or otherwise, and the fact that the 90 beds (so rated) are all or not all occupied—does not mean that the Hospital is not crowded. Patients of each sex have to be segregated and do not enter the hospital in pairs.

The final question of "Protestant Ratepayer" deals with finance—for the year ending Sept. 30, 1928 the city contributed $1,600.00 to clear up the cost of furnishing the Nurses Home. No demand has been made for 1928 and 1929. If your correspondent will tell us how many people will be sick and how many will go, as patients, to the Hospital—after it is enlarged and improved it would not be so difficult to answer the question. It can be said, however, that so far as our information goes whenever there have been extensions, the need being thoroughly considered, as in this case, the extension has justified itself in a very reasonable time.

Yours truly,
Nicholls Hospital Trust.
John Crane, Secretary.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,—At a special meeting of your Executive held Thursday, April 25th, the Nicholls Hospital By-Law was thoroughly discussed. Two representatives from the Nicholls Hospital Board were present, making it possible for the members of the Executive to receive immediate answers to questions and to obtain first-hand information in forming their policy in connection with the proposed By-Law. Following thorough investigation of the facts and considered discussion of the By-Law, it was resolved that your Executive would unanimously endorse the By-Law, recommend it for possible consideration, and the Secretary was instructed to publish this decision to the general membership of the Chamber.

IMMIGRANT BOYS CARED FOR BY FATHERLY G. A. GILLESPIE

Seventy-five Lads Placed Through His Guidance Last Year.

FREE SERVICE.

Time and Work Donated in Spirit of Public Service.

The British Immigration and Colonial Association is carrying on excellent work in bringing out lads from England, Ireland, and Scotland, while G. A. Gillespie, the local representative of this work, is giving his service and time gratis in the interests of placing and making these British boys satisfied in their new home.

Last year in the city there were approximately 75 boys placed through his care, and when the men and boys are counted together, there are more than 200 who have found situations through this channel.

The association has its headquarters in Montreal, with A. I. Morrison in charge. For boys under nineteen years of age the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railways, who also operate colonization bureaus, and the British organization co-operate, and the Immigration and Colonization Association is responsible for the care of the lads.

The men are more or less responsible for themselves. The association assigns the boys direct to the farms through farmers' applications sent in through the representatives, and the local men do not hear of the boys until they are dissatisfied, and then attention is given to situate them in a more favorable place, and they are changed until they are satisfied. But only 10 per cent. are heard from in this way, while the balance usually strike suitable homes The chief causes for discontentment are the boys themselves not being satisfied with the first position or being unfortunate enough to come into contact with an undesirable home.

After th lads reach the age of 19 they pass from the care of the association, but up to that age the immigrants are kept under its care and contracts are made yearly when they strike suitable places and the wages are set according to the manner which the boy is found suitable to the work and the way he adapts himself.

The men sent here by the railway organizations have no definite place assigned to them as have the boys. but positions are located through applications made to Mr. Gillespie by the local farmers for this district.

Philanthropist Gives Four Million To New York

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 2.—(C.P.) — Abandoning plans for solving the city's housing problem, on which he had spent three years, August Heckscher, 80 year old philanthorpist, has announced a gift of $4,000,000 for estabilishment of day nurseries, dental clinics, playgrounds and camps.

Mr. Heckscher said his new project would occupy all his philanthroupic plans and activities for the future and was decided upon when it became evident that the housing problem of congested cities would not be solved or even seriously considered at this time.

While interviewing Mr. Gillespie, The Examiner met one of the boys. Arthur Bartlet, 18, who came over from London, England, and who was dissatisfied with his first place. He tells the following story to the paper:

About two months ago Arthur decided to come to Canada, and having finished public school and served for a number of years as mess boy on the transatlantic liners sailing into Montreal, he had some idea of the country, so he put in an application at the association bureau in Trafalgar Square in London, where he received his ticket and transportation.

Then with 32 other lads he left his home in London, and crossed the Atlantic again, this time as passenger aboard the Montcalm, travelling in the cabin class. Being a sailor he did not feel the qualms of seasickness, and concerts helped to wile away the time.

About a week ago he arrived in Quebec and travelled by rail to Montreal, where he spent the night in the association headquarters, and then went to Campbellford, where he stayed a day, but did not like his new home. He became homesick and decided to return home, but on talking with Mr. Gillespie decided to try again, this time not as a farmer but as a cheesemaker under Thomas Borland at Warsaw, and Mr. Borland drove into the city last night at seven o'clock to receive his new assistant.

When he became dissatisfied Arthur Bartlet wired the association headquarters, and they notified Mr. Gillespie, in the meantime advising the boy to get in touch with him. This is an example of the working of the institution. The boy was placed direct from Montreal, and Mr. Gillespie was unaware of the placement but the minute dissatisfaction arose he was notified, and did all in his power to make the boy satisfied.

SIX KILLED IN TORNADO

Arkansas Is Swept By Second Series of Tornadoes in Month.

MANY INJURED.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 2.—(C. P.)—The second series of tornadoes in Arkansas in less than a month yesterday took a toll of at least six dead and probably 50 injured, with property damage running high.

Striking a few hours apart in both east and west parts of the State late yesterday and last night, the tornadoes so completely demoralized communication systems that full reports of the number of dead and injured was not obtainable early today.

The six known dead were at Brinkley and Wheatley, a few miles apart, in Northeast Arkansas. Three of them were white persons.

The number of dead was expected to be increased by a thorough survey of the section around Wheatley.

DIRECTORS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Canadian Press Elects Officers For Year; Expand London News Service.

TORONTO, Ont., May 2 (C.P.).—The annual meeting of the board of directors and the members of the Canadian Press, the Co-operative News Association of the Daily Newspapers of Canada, extending over three days, were concluded yesterday afternoon by the election of officers for the year as follows: Honorary President, E. Norman Smith, Ottawa Journal; President, John Scott, Toronto Mail and Empire; First Vice-President, M. E. Nichols, Winnipeg Tribune; Second Vice-President, Henri Gagnon, Quebec Le Soleil. J. F. B. Livesay is general manager and secretary.

The annual meeting, at which over half of the entire membership was represented unanimously approved the principle recommended to it by the board of directors establishing a cost differential contributed by the membership at large in favor of the French language members, because of the loss of time and expense they incur translating the news service from English into French.

Recommendations of the management for the expansion of the news services, particularly in the direction of an enlarged direct service from London covering the news of Britain and the Empire, were unanimously adopted.

Jealousy Is Blamed For Husband's Rash Act

WHITE PLAINS, May 2 (Canadian Press).—Jealousy was seen to-day as a possible motive for the act of Earl F. Peacox, who has confessed to strangling his 20-year-old wife, Dorothy, and setting fire to the body.

The existence of a rival for his wife's affections in the person of a former schoolmate of Peacox's was revealed when Eugene Bussey, a student at Johns Hopkins University, told of a flirtation with Mrs. Peacox and of the husband's angry protest when he learned of it.

WOMAN FACES MURDER CHARGE

Voluntary Guest of Oxford County Jail Will Be Charged With Murder.

FARMER BURNED.

SOUTH PARIS, Me., May 2 (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Ane Merrill Welch, 26-year-old mother, a voluntary guest at the Oxford County Jail since the death of Elihu Turner, elderly Hartford farmer, in his home eight days ago, to-day awaited the serving of a warrant charging her with murder in connection with Turner's death County Attorney William J. Flanagan announced last night that the charge would be made "some time" to -day.

The woman, held in the County Jail here as a material witness since she was found wandering around the smouldering ruins of the Turner homestead a week ago yesterday, denied any knowledge of the crime.

Under repeated questioning, Mrs. Welch, who alleged that the aged farmer was the father of her infant daughter, consistently asserted that she visited Turner the night of the first to effect a money settlement, that she remained overnight, was awakened by the flames, and could not find the farmer.

LABOR AMENDMENT DEFEATED IN HOUSE

Motion Calls For Appointment of Hydro Commission To Make Manitoba Survey.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 2 (Canadian Press). — An amendment moved by S. J. Farmer, Labor, to the effect that a hydro commission of three persons known to be favorable to public ownership be appointed to make a survey of available water powers in northern Manitoba and that in the meantime the Minister of the Interior should be requested to grant no priority permits or leases for any such sites, was rejected by 38 to 4 in the Manitoba Legislature yesterday. J. W. Pratt, Independent and former Government member for Birtle, was the only one to support the three Labor members.

Another amendment moved by W. Sanford Evans, Conservative, that "the House viewed with great concern the serious increase in the scale of expenditure in the Province," also was rejected. Premier John Bracken pointed out that the scale of increased expenditure had been less than in any of the four Western Provinces.

TWO PARADES ARE PLANNED

Arrangements Rapidly Going Forward For Campbellford Old Home Week.

MANY FLOATS.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Something definite in arranging for the parades to be held during Old Home Week here was done at the committee meeting held on Tuesday night in E C. Dolman's store. There were seven members of the committee present, and from beginning to end there was nothing but business discussed. A. T. Linton had some excellent suggestions, and the committee decided to adopt most of them.

According to present arrangements and these may be taken as authentic and practically final, there will be two parades which will be of the nature of a major attraction. In the discussion on Tuesday night, the first was referred to as a dignified parade. The second is being arranged as a calithumpian procession. Several societies and organizations have already accepted invitations to take part on both occasions, and other acceptances are coming in daily. Floats are being promised, and there will be prizes given for the best decorated cars. The oldest citizen in the district is also to be honored with a place near the front.

Many of the Old Boys will recall Campbellford's first fire engine, and the pride with which it was exhibited in days gone by. It was known as Britannia, and the present generation refers to the relic as "Old Britannia." But whether new or old, the hand pumper is expected to be fully manned by uniformed firemen of forty years ago. An Old Boys' Band will also be in evidence in the parades. There were many other details discussed, but not definitely settled for the time being. When the next meeting of the Old Home Week executive is called, the parade committee chairman, H. N. Carr, will have something definte to report and recommend.

EUCHRE PARTY.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — The members of St. Mary's Parish and many of their friends spent a pleasant evening on Tuesday night in the Queen's Hotel, Front Street, when euchre was the order of the evening. There were thirty tables of cards and the ladies of the parish served an excellent lunch. Rev. Father Phelan presented the prizes, and expressed his appreciation for the large number present, and hoped everyone had enjoyed the evening. The prizes were won by Ernest Ouger and Thomas Crawford; Mrs. B. H. Beatty and Mrs. Mary Shannon for the largest number of games. The prizes for lone hands were won by Mrs. Ed. Henson and James Black. Mrs. William Sarginson and Thomas Collins, Jr., won the consolation prizes.

CHOIR BEING SENT BY PETERBOROUGH

Tag days are a lot of work to those getting them up, not an enviable job at all, and are looked upon by the public from different viewpoints. Some feel they are a nuisance, while others deem it is a privilege to donate what they are able to a worthy cause, as it is very often their only opportunity of doing so.

The Male Voice Choir is not going to New York—it is being sent by the public of Peterborough to compete in the greatest musical contest that Peterborough musicians have had the opportunity of participating in. To the individual members it will be lost time, a hard trip, hard work while there, and towards the expenses they have already contributed $1,200.00.

The Committee of Citizens behind the project hope the public will feel that this is a worth-while effort and sacrifice on the part of the choir for the honor of the city and contribute to the tag day fund as their circumstances will permit.

CANNED TOMATOES DAILY ESSENTIAL TO A BALANCED DIET

The verdict of medical science is that there are three essential Vitamins, without which no daily diet is nutritious enough for good health, vitality and vigor. The problem of proper menu selection thus becomes one of choosing foods of maximum Vitamin content.

Tomatoes contain all three Vitamins, more of them than any other fruit or vegetable, and in the form which nature likes best and uses most. A properly balanced diet would seem, then, to require tomatoes, the great, Canadian Vitamin Vegetable, at all seasons.

This is both possible and inexpensive. Modern canning methods provide at all seasons of the year tomatoes that are actually richer in flavor and Vitamins than the tomatoes ordinarly sold in so-called "fresh" state. Unpacked tomatoes quickly lose their "freshness", whereas canned tomatoes bring this freshness right to the user's table. That is why medical science pronounces canned tomatoes more beneficial than those eaten uncanned.

The tomatoes are picked and packed at the height of their natural ripeness and freshness, while tomatoes intended for market sale are taken from the vine before maturity, and lose flavor and freshness from wilting and incipient decay. Commercial canning, unlike home cooking, preserves the Vitamins right to the table.

This, doubtless, explains why doctors and hospital authorities now prescribe tomato juice for children and adults whose constitutions are run down and why tomatoes are recommended as a part of the daily menu at all seasons.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

Am enclosing order for pattern which appeared in to-night's paper.

I find your page very interesting, particularly "The Old Songs." A number of years ago a recitation, "Asleep at the Switch," was published in a Montreal paper. I wonder if some of Our Neighbors have it stored up somewhere. I would appreciate it very much if it appeared in your column. I recited it a good many times, but have forgotten part of it. I have a scrap book which contains all my favorite songs and verses, and I'd like very much to add this one to it.

Thanking you in advance for the pattern,—I am,

Prest-O."

I hope someone sends the poem you desire, "Prest-O." It is nice to know that you like our pages.

"Dear Marion:

Oh, what a wonderful letter that was in the column last evening from "Lucinda!" There is a whole sermon in those words, "A mother write her daughter's price tag!" It should be printed in big, black type in every paper in the country, not to mention her saying "It gives a girl a background to have a mother who is careful of her." Now, Marion, I am very much afraid that half of the mothers and many of the daughters did not see those words — everyone reads the Whatnot, but many never read the letters from readers. A letter like that is such a help and comfort to mothers who are trying to keep their girls pure. I have two very pretty daughters in their early 'teens, and Marion, the struggle I have had with them this winter! Raising them and nursing them through all the childhood diseases was simply nothing in comparison to it. But after watching them so carefully through babyhood, I don't intend to sit idly by and see them lose their youthful bloom and beauty by the time they are twenty and to have a doubtful reputation as well.

I refer to these 'teen age necking parties which take place after shows and parties almost without exception. I am told "Everybody does it; why should we be so different from the rest?" But I have insisted that they be home at a certain (respectable) time, and I always sit up to see that they do get home at that time. The boys think I am a terror, but they still ask to take my daughters out, and they are finding out that they can have a good time and keep their self-respect as well. If we could only make girls see that it reacts to their own advantage to behave properly, the battle would be won.

Please, Marion, give us one of your wonderful sermonettes in the Whatnot on "A Mother Writes Her Daughter's Price Tag."

I really think that we should ask "Lucinda' 'to write that Whatnot—her letter was so splendid. Will you, "Lucinda"?

Thank you for your letter. "Mother,' 'whiwch is so encouraging to mothers doubtful about their girls.

Marion

Delving into the records of old times is a fascinating occupation. Peterborough's history is not less interesting than that of any other portion of the province, except that it lacked, happily enough, the stories of terrors from marauding and unfriendly Indian tribes that crossed the histories of earlier settlements, both in Ontario and Quebec. The "Massassaugas" as the old histories spell the word, were a friendly tribe of Indians, and they molested the first settlers hereabouts, very little. (Two other little variations in present-day spellings of district names are those of "Stony Lake" for the present Stoney, and "Kitcheoum" Lake for that which is now known as "Catchecoma."

Among the many legends of Indian origin that surround the present City of Peterborough is the one having to do with the lovely Polly Cow. The Rev. Charles Mulvany of Toronto, who published a "History of the County of Peterborough" in the year 1884, a work which is most instructive and interesting, tells the story in this way:

"In the north-west corner of the Township of Methuen and about eight miles north-east of Stoney Lake, with which it is connected by Jack's Creek, is a lake the real and common of which is Jack's Lake, although on one map, at least, it is called White Lake. It derived its name from Handsome Jack, an Indian chief, who claimed all the streams and lands in this locality as his fishing and hunting grounds. He was considered the handsomest man among the Chippewas, than commanded by "Cap" Paudash of Rice Lake; he stood six feet four inches in height and weighed fully 250 pounds. He belonged to the Cow family, and among the whites was known as Jack Cow. Stoney Lake, Loon Lake in the township of Chandos, and all the streams south of Loon Lake were claimed by him as his inherited property. He was most tenacious of his rights, and would invariably destroy all the traps of white men he found set on his streams. But he would allow the pale face to hunt for deer and partridge, or to fish in the streams so long as no furs were taken. Handsome Jack usually lived in a birch-bark wigwam, which he moved from place to place as circumstances required. Although he never missed an opportunity of rather greedily asserting his right to his streams and hunting grounds he, nevertheless, was very hispitable to those who were friendly with him. He would often invite the whites to his wigwam and would order his squaw to prepare a good meal of rice, beaver, and partridge boiled with a little pounded corn. This was "Te Pake" a hodge-podge mixture, somewhat akin to an Irish stew. The hospitable Indian would sit by and apparently enjoy seeing the white man eat at his fireside. When the repast was finished he would light his pipe and relate thrilling scenes of his old life in hunting the bear, wolf, deer, and other animals with which the woods were alive. Handsome Jack was the father of two lovel ygirls named "Baby Cow" and "Polly Cow," both of whom inherited their father's extreme beauty and perfectaymmetry of form. The latter grew up a most beautiful maiden; her soft-tinted complexion, heightened by the rosy-hued blossom of health, and her long black hair reaching nearly to the ground, rendered her an object of envy to other dusky damsels. She possessed a fine voice, and on many a moonlight night have the pine-crowned islands of Stoney Lake re-echoed the sweet melody of her quaint and weird native songs, the faint ripple of the waters keeping time as she paddled her canoe beneath the shadows of the overhanging boughs or out on the open lake in the splendor of the full moon. She was the ever-worshipped idol of her father and of many others, who were alarmed when, at the age of sixteen years, she grew ill of a fever. The best efforts of the "medicine men" were futile to stay the ravages of the disease, and Handsome Jack was inconsolable. So died the beautiful Polly Cow on an evening when the setting sun shot golden shafts through the frost-bitten leaves that fluttered in the autumn wind. The old Indian chief was heart-broken. He was determined that his darling daughter should sleep in a fitting grave, and accordingly repaired to one, the most southern, of the three islands at the point where the waters of Clear Lake run into Katchewanooka—the Water of Many Rapids. On this island, about ten feet from the water's edge, he dug the grave with his own hands and walled it up with stones. Then, placing the body in a birch-bark coffin, he paddled it down the lake in his canoe and buried it in the grave he had prepared beneath a balsam tree, which is still standing to mark the lonely grave of Handsome Jack's daughter. This disconsolate father then cleared away the trees and brushwood between the grave and the water's edge, so that the dead girl's spirit could wander there daily for water, as was the Indian belief. Night after night did the sad-heartened chief watch by the grave, until he joined his daughter in the Happy Hunting Grounds in 1835. Since the occurrence of this touching incident, these islands have been called the Polly Cow Islands. They are only about half a mile below the small village of Young's Point, and can be easily visited by the tourist or others who would like to stand under the balsam tree and shades Polly Cow's grave. A few years ago, some young Englishmen who were residing in the neighborhood arranged a plan to steal the remains of the lovely Indian maiden and send them to England as a curiosity, together with the story of her marvellous beauty, her death and burial; but, happily, the act of vandalism was frustrated. The squaw of Handsome Jack survived him many years, and married an Indian named Snowstorm."

OLD SONGS

COLLIGAN—(Call Again.)
(Contributed by "Doreen.")

Collie was a tailor, used to always make me clothes
And I always used to pay so much a week;
But sometime ago from Colligan, a pair of pants I bought
And he proved himself a dirty nasty sneak.
Sometime ago from Colligan a pair of pants I bought
And since I bought the trousers now my work has fallen short
When Collie called upon me for his cash the other day
Said I to him, "Now Call again, for I haven't the cash to pay."

Chorus:
Said I to Colligan you'll have to call again
For I haven't got your money anyway
Call again, no daffie wouldn't call again.
He swore he'd have the coppers on my track
So my temper rose within and said I to Colligan
You can call again and take your trousers back.

Collie then quite angry said no longer would he wait
So I told him that I'd pay him fair and square
I walked right up to him and like a gentleman did state
That them was all I had got to wear
Take them off, said Colligan and I'll take them back with me,
And I let you have them back when you can pay the money.
Said I to him what shall I be without a pair of pants?
Says he a living picture in your hootchy, rootchy dance.

No wonder COLGATE'S CLEANS TEETH BETTER

It contains the world's best cleansing agent..a penetrating foam that cleans where the tooth-brush cannot reach.

A scientist has recently proved why Colgate's cleans better. He made an important experiment with toothpastes . . . He measured their power to penetrate the tiny crevices in teeth and gums . . . He found that some dentifrices merely scrub the outer surfaces of the teeth. Others go partly down into the larger crevices . . . Then he discovered that Colgate's has a higher penetrating power than any of the leading dentifrices on the market today.

This is the secret of Colgate's remarkable ability to clean—it gets down deep into the hard-to-clean places where the toothbrush cannot reach. Colgate's superior penetrating power is due to the fact that it contains the world's greatest cleansing agent.

When brushed, this cleansing agent bursts into a sparkling, snow-white foam that sweeps over teeth and gums. This foam possesses a remarkable property (low "surface-tension") which enables it to go deep down into the tiny tooth crevices where decay starts. There, it dislodges clinging food particles and mucin, washing away these impurities in a detergent wave.

In this foam is carried a fine chalk-powder—a polishing material used by dentists—which polishes the enamel safely, brilliantly. Thus Colgate's cleans and beautifies; purifies and refreshes the entire mouth, restoring natural loveliness of teeth and gums.

How Colgate's Cleans Where The Tooth-brush Cannot Reach

This diagram shows how Colgate's active foam (having low "surface-tension") penetrates deep down into the crevice, cleansing it completely where the tooth-brush cannot reach.

A Page of Household Hints

Edited by HILDA DORAN ROSS
Home Economics Counselor

Will never give you red hands

Princess Soap Flakes contain no harsh chemicals or harmful free caustic, which are so hard on fine fabrics and on your hands. And they are inexpensive, too. They come in this big brim full yellow box and, being all pure soap, and not a lot of cheap chemical filler, a little goes a long way.

Guarantee

Palmolive guarantee to replace any washable garment which, by reason of its having been washed with Princess Soap Flakes, has been damaged in texture or its colour made to run, provided such garment has been washed in accordance with instructions. We suggest that you test garments in plain, tepid water to make sure they are washable and that the colour will not run.

Don't Have Red Hands

The Proper Care of Brushes

Did you ever stop to count the brushes used in your home? Hairbrushes, clothes brushes, vegetable brushes, whisks, and so forth—all wonderfully useful for cleaning and equally useless when not clean themselves. But a brush has not reached the end of usefulness when it becomes dirty—simply wash it and it is new again.

Hairbrushes should be washed several times between shampoos. Use Princess Soap Flakes. They will not harm either the bristles or the handle. When washing ivory brushes, however, make sure the water is not too hot or it will discolour the ivory. The colour can be restored to ivory by washing it in a fairly strong solution of peroxide of hydrogen.

And ebony hairbrushes should be rubbed with vaseline before the brush is put into water. After washing, dry well and rub olive oil into the wood. Polish with a soft cloth. If the bristles remain soft after washing, dip them into a strong solution of alum water or in a solution of equal parts of milk and water, then dry before a fire.

As it is impossible to shake all the dust off fabric brushes, such as mops and dusters, after each time you use them, they also should be washed in Princess Soap Flakes occasionally—then hung up to dry.

The same things apply to clothes brushes and whisks. They must be washed frequently, too—when they get very dirty you will notice that they brush more dirt on your clothes than they take off.

The brush from your vacuum cleaner, too will be greatly benefitted by a good wash in Princess suds.

Brushes are particularly useful in the kitchen for cleaning wire strainers and cheese graters; cupboard shelves; for the refrigerator, the stove and porcelain table tops. Vegetable, sink, and other kitchen brushes should be washed in Princess suds after every dirty job.

Especially useful are long-handled brushes for cleaning milk bottles and gem jars; and small brushes that can be used for brushing the dirt and dust from the corners of your furniture or woodwork.

A good brush is undoubtedly one of the most useful articles in housework. With Princess Soap Flakes and a good brush any household cleaning task is simplified, even to floors, woodwork and furniture. Princess Soap Flakes are the most efficient household soap I have been able to discover in years of test and experiment. They are splendid for the family washing, and will not hurt your daintiest, filmiest things—it is safe to use Princess Soap Flakes for anything that will stand the touch of plain tepid water.

If you would like to try Princess Soap Flakes write and let me know. I will be glad to see that you receive a free trial package if you will enclose 4c in stamps for postage. When you write, tell me about any of your washing problems, and if I can help you, I will be only too pleased to do so. My address is 64 Natalie Street, Toronto 8, Ontario.

Mrs. G. L. Mahoney now gladly says "Clothes last longer"

"Rinso certainly works wonders! It makes such creamy, cleansing suds that all the dirt and stains soak out by themselves. I really have a soft 'snap' on washday now. And the clothes wear better—the life isn't scrubbed out of them.

"I also use Rinso for the dishes, floors, pots and pans, etc. I even keep a package in the bathroom for the tiles and basins, it does such a wonderful cleaning job."

An entertanmeat for the staff and students of the Peterborough Normal School was an event of much interest in the Sunday School rooms of George Street United Church, on Tuesday evening, when guests from the school, numbering about two hundred, were entertained by the United Young People's Association of the church. The program, well planned and carred out, was directed by Miss Esther Thornton, vice president of the society, in the absence, through illness, of the president. The guests were welcomed by a recepton committee that included the Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Todd, the Misses Musa Cox, Evelyn Scott and Ruth Fanning, and Mr. Ralph Cox. The entertainment consisted of three circles of games, which ran concurrently. The "Vacant Chair," a very amusing game, was in charge of the Misses Verna Strong and Mary Squire and Mr. Walter Outram. "Electric Shock," was another good game, led by the Misses Aileen Clark and Helen Burns and Mr. Clare Northey. "Find the Leader," which provoked a great deal of merriment, was directed by Miss Bessie Chambers, Messrs. Don Munro and Andy Rutter. Next on the program was the Grand March, which was preceded by a few words of welcome from the Rev. Mr. Todd. The Grand March was a very enjoyable affair, ably directed by Mr. Trevor Miller, although the large Sunday School room was hardly large enough to allow for the many manoeuvres planned. Miss Musa Cox played the piano for the March, assisted by Ted Kingdon with the drum. At the conclusion, the crowd was divided into ten groups and group contests were entered into, these being somewhat educational in type and stmulating a great deal of thought among those taking part. The "Ainmal, Mineral and Vegetable" contest was directed by Miss Dorothy Wainman, while Miss Guelda Roseborough directed the "Famous Persons" contest, and Miss Irene Cox the "Musical Wedding." The latter was possibly the favorite of the program, as all enjoyed linking up songs, old and new, into a lovely story. At the finishing of the contests, the guests were seated n front of the stage of the auditorum and were led in a singsong by Mr. Trevor Miller. A welcome song to the students and their reply constituted the first offering, the reply being sung to the tune of "Bye, Bye, Blackbird." Next came a parody of "Tipperary" and "Old King Cole," which was well done. A pantomime entitled "Pierrot and Pierrette' was then offered. The setting was lovely and the parts were taken in exceptionally good style. The cast included Lionel Chapman, A.P.C.M., as Pierrot; Ruby Theobald as Pierrette; Rodney Theobald, as the father of Pierrette; George Allson, as a servant, and George Combe, as Harlequin, a peddler. After this, the students of the Normal School entertained their hosts with a program which was very enjoyable, and inciuded two readings by Miss Mildred Lloyd, a vocal solo and encore by Miss Dowdell, and a piano solo by Miss Dike. Refreshments were then served, in charge of Mr. Russell Lewis' group. The evening's entertainment was brought to a close by the "Clash and Clatter" band, under the direction of Andy Rutter, playing "Honolulu Moon," "Old Man Sunshine" and "Good Night, Ladies," also the National Anthem.

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

IF THERE IS any one person in Peterborough less affected by the question of daylight saving than another, I am that person. I have'nt any regular hours to keep.

* * * * * * *

But I have been interested in the controversy raging around me, with industrial workers asking for the change and farmers threatening to boycott the stores if Peterborough passes the by-law.

* * * * * * *

Both sides show some absurdity, because each side is looking only at its own angle—a dangerous thing at all times.

* * * * * * *

But—how many "buts" I seem to have to-day!—it does appear to me that those in favor of daylight saving have the best of the arguments.

* * * * * * *

Daylight saving will bring an added hour of sunshine to everyone who lives in the district where it operates. Not only is this beneficial through the sports which it makes possible, otherwise barred, but the value of the sunlight itself is inestimable. Nowadays, the extra hour is lost by being screened through our window shades as we sleep.

* * * * * * *

Then, think of the pleaure for those who do not indulge in sports—the motorist, the gardener, and she who just wishes to sit on the porch in the cool of the evening and read. No need, then, to light the porch lamp and draw the pesky mosquitos around!

* * * * * * *

In fact, there seem to be advantages for nearly everyone in the plan, and the permanent fixture it is in Toronto and hundreds of other cities is a big recommendation.

* * * * * * *

Among the main objectors are the farming communities, and here I am at an utter loss to explain the stand. After all, the city is only a calling-place for the farmer and time here cannot affect him greatly.

* * * * * * *

It seems to be all a matter of getting out of the way of saying "It's one o'clock by the clock, but it's really only noon." Why go to that bother? Time is an artificial thing, after all, and it's just as easy to believe the watch or clock at once as to figure out sun time.

* * * * * * *

I have lived on a farm long enough to know that work starts at daybreak and ends when it is too dark to see—so time doesn't matter very much.

* * * * * * *

As a matter of fact, I believe the antagonism to daylight saving has been greatly exaggerated. Not seeing the REASON for the objection, I can't see how many people would make it.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

To change the subject: what preparations are you making for Old Home Week? You will notice that the committee has at last taken up the idea proposed through our page months ago, of endeavouring to ascertain the available accommodation for visitors.

* * * * * * *

Personally, I think it is being placed upon a too-mercenary basis. This effort for Old Home Week calls for the help of everyone, and we women can best help, probably, by assisting in taking care of the hundreds of visitors. Naturally, we can't do it for nothing but most of us wouldn't do it for money ALONE.

* * * * * * *

Looking at the matter in this light, I hope you neighbors in the city and near it will fill out the coupon so that the committee may have an idea of where people are to stay.

* * * * * * *

There are other things to be done. A registration headquarters is yet to be chosen. It must be central, with parking space nearby, and it must (in my opinion) be rather attractive, with a rest parlor for women and an efficient staff to guide and help visitors.

* * * * * * *

There should be a fleet of cars arranged for, to take visitors anywhere in the city without charge, and on sightseeing trips at regular times.

* * * * * * *

These things will doubtless be worked out by-and-by, and when the committees get around to them it is up to all of us to help out as best we can.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

That The Examiner's pattern service is popular and worthwhile is evidenced by the fact that we sent out 318 patterns and 64 fashion books last month.

* * * * * * *

We don't make a cent of profit from these, but we are glad to provide the service for our readers. According to neighbors' advice, the patterns are really good, and the instructions easily followed.

* * * * * * *

This service should not be confused with the free helps offered weekly. I select the helps and have them printed at The Examiner office, and only a two-cent stamp is necessary to obtain one or all.

* * * * * * *

This week's help consists of a diagram pattern for a little girl's frock, suitable for any cotton material, crepe de chine, or wash silk. The circular gives the diagram for cutting, directions for making, and a sketch of the finished frock.

* * * * * * *

When sending for this, mark on the coupon any other helps you would like, and I will gladly send them.

THE GREATEST ADVANCE IN SURGERY

If you were asked what was the most important advance in medicine in the last few years, you would probably say that it was Banting's discovery of insulin, which not only cures diabetes in young folks, but preserves the lives of older folks and enables them to live a normal life.

However, if you were asked what was the most important advance in surgery you might be at a loss to give an opinion.

That our ancestors were observant is proven time after time if we care to investigate the matter.

One of the things they noted was that folks that ate plenty of fish appeared to be free from enlargement of the thyroid gland of the neck—goitre, as it is called.

They noted also that the use of medicines made with seaweed appeared to reduce the size of the goitre.

From that came iodine and we know now what an important factor it is in preventing goitre in communities that formerly had very many cases.

But perhaps one of the greatest blessings has been its effect an advanced cases of goitre where there is the extreme nervousness, tremor of the body, very rapid heart, and bulging eyes.

That an operation for removal of part of the thyroid gland would correct these symptoms to a large extent was proven years ago, but the operation was for many years quite dangerous.

However, Dr. Walter E. Sistrunk Rochester, Minn., tells us that the use of iodine in preparing patients to undergo the operation has decreased the death rate, lessened the symptoms, lessened also the expense to patients and made the operation easier to perform. It permits patients to resume their duties many months earlier than was possible before this method of preparation was used.

These pleasing results have taken away the dread of operations that formerly existed in the minds of certain patients, and have caused them to present themselves for operation much sooner.

Dr. Sistrunk says further, "I feel that the use of iodine for some time previous to operation may be looked on as being the most important advance in any branch of surgery since its introduction in 1922."

The lesson for us is clear.

While iodine may not be indicated in every case, nevertheless if your doctor wants you to use iodine as a preventive of goitre, or to lessen the symptoms before operation, you can now see his reason therefor. He will tell you that many severe cases have been so improved that an operation became unnecessary.

Maple Leafs Lose Opening Game of Toronto Season

CANADA'S NET STARS PREPARE FOR DAVIS CUP CLASSIC

On May 16, 17 and 18 the United States Davis Cup team plays Canada in the first round of the American zone in the 1929 international lawn tennis contest. Five of Canada's ranking players were seen in action at the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club, when Marcel Rainville of Montreal beat Willard Crocker in straight sets. Not since 1913 has Canadian hope run so high and such confidence placed in national tennis representatives. The layout here shows: (1) Marcel Rainville, Montreal; (2) Willard Crocker, who was conceded position No. 2 on the team, and (3) Dr. Jack Wright, who will be No. 1.

WRIGHT WINNER IN TEST MATCH

CONTINUES TO-DAY.

TORONTO, Ont., May 2.—(C.P.)—Montreal players dominated yesterday's singles play in the Canadian Davis Cup trials being played here. Dr. Jack Wright, Montreal, defeated Dr. Art Ham, Toronto, 3-6, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2, and Williard Crocker, Montreal, triumphed over Gilbert Nunns, Toronto, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 0-6, 9-7. Both matches went the limit of five sets. A doubles match was started late in the afternoon with Wright and Ham opposing Crocker and Nunns.

Wright and Ham took the court first with the score standing 3-all in the second set. The match was started Tuesday and Ham won the first set 6-3 before rain cause da cessation of the match. Ham ran off three games in short order to take the second set by a 6-3 score. Wright waltzed off with the next set 6-1 before the spectators even knew it had started. After the interval he kept up his brilliant playing and won the fourth set 6-2 to even the match at 2 sets each. Wright at this stage of the match was playing the best tennis of the trials to date. Ham, while playing a masterful game, could not stand up to the playing of Canada's number 1 player, however, and Wright walked away with the fifth set 6-2. Wright had his ground strokes working to perfection and he drew Ham out of position time after time to come to the net and kill the Toronto man's returns for sure points.

Brilliant Playing.

Willard Crocker won a strenuous five set match from Filbert Nunns in the other match played yesterday. The match was very even. Nunns won the first set 6-4, but Crocker turned the tables on the Torontonian in the second to win by the same score. Crocker took the third set at 6-3. After the ten minute rest Nunns made it "short and sweet" by trimming the Montrealer 6-0, to make it two sets each. The fifth and final set produced the fireworks. Both players were hitting all out and driving was terrific. Crocker's service was working in fine style and he aced Nunns repeatedly. Crocker started the final set with a rush and soon was leading at 5-2. Nunns refused to be beaten, however, and brought the score up to 5-all by some beautiful playing. From then until the score stood at 7 all both players won their service. In the fifteenth game Crocker broke through to lead 8-7. He then took his own service to win the set 9-7 and the match three sets to two. After a rest the players took the court for the doubles match.

A doubles match was played late in the afternoon between Wright and Ham against Nunns and Crocker. The former pair won in two stranght sets by scores of 6-2, 7-5. There were only occasional flashes of good tennis in the match. Both Nunns and Crocker showed the effects of their long drawn out five set match just previous.

Play will be continued to-day with Crocker opposing Ham and Wright meeting Nunns in the singles while Wright and Crocker will stack up against the Toronto pair in doubles.

Marcel Rainville, who on Monday and Tuesday defeated Crocker and Nunns in convincing style and who paired with Crocker defeated Nunns and Ham was not present at yesterday's play. He returned to Montreal upon hearing of the death of his father-in-law.

GUY CANTRELL IS UNABLE TO HOLD ORIOLES

Toronto Maple Leafs Lose 4-1 Decision to Baltimore Orioles.

BISONS WIN OUT 7-2.

TORONTO, Ont., May 2 (Canadian Press).—Baseball came back to Toronto yesterday after an absence of seven months, and 18,000 fans, fanettes and first-day goers wended their way to the Fleet Street Stadium to see the Leafs, with a new manager and new players, in action for the first time.

They had followed the activities of the teams on the southern training grounds on their trip north, and in the games played since the official opening of the League season on April 17.

But the time had arrived for them to see for themselves just what kind of a team Steve O'Neill, popular when here as a player in 1926, and certain to be even more so as a manager, had moulded together to carry their pennant hopes for 1929.

The 18,000 fans, fanettes and first-day goers, however, did not declare a holiday for themselves with the wish or expectation that they would see their Leafs take a 4 to 1 tumble before the hated Orioles from Baltimore, or that Guy Cantrell, winner of his three previous starts, and the highest-priced pitcher in the League, would be forced to accept his first defeat.

BISONS DOWN CATS.

BUFFALO, May 2 (Canadian Press) — The Buffalo Bisons opened their home season in impressive manner here yesterday afternoon by overpowering the Jersey City Black Cats by a score of 7 to 2. George Fisher's home run over the left field fence—his fifth of the present season—was the big batting feature. Faulkner and Underhill each allowed eight hits, but fast fielding by the Bisons, including four fine double plays, protected the home flinger.

CRICKET

LONDON, May 2 (Canadian Press Cable). — Cricket formally got under way in England yesterday, and scores in the opening matches at tea time were:

Nottinghamshire versus Sussex, at Nottingham—Notts, 238.

M.C.C. versus Surrey at Lords—M.C.C., 169 for seven wickets.

THAT is an old saying and a true one. But it's surprising how few people realize that it is true. How often have you yourself gone to your service man in a hurry and just had some grease added to what is already in your transmission and differential?

That's what you call greasing your car, but in reality, you might as well have saved your money, because the fresh grease is only wasted.

Added to impure grease, it immediately loses its value as a lubricant. What you should do is to have the old grease flushed out and a complete fresh supply put in.

Here's Why Firestone Tires Hold All Records

THE GREATEST enemy to tire life is internal heat and friction — generated within the tire by the cords chafing against each other. Firestone has solved this with the patented exclusive Gum-Dipping process.

In this extra process, every cord passes through liquid rubber which saturates every fibre in every strand and insulates every part of the cord with pure rubber. This is the only known method which carries the liquid rubber to the innermost parts of the cords and unifies the whole structure of the tire . . . the result—these tires hold all records for safety, mileage and endurance.

Your nearest Firestone Dealer has a complete stock of Firestone Gum-Dipped tires. He saves you money and serves you better. See him to-day.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" IS HERE—OPENS AT THE CAPITOL TODAY. STUPENDOUS $2,000,000 PRODUCTION IS IN ELEVEN REELS.

For seventy-five years "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has been played on the stage by innumerable companies of "troupers," their offerings ranging from what were scarcely more pretentious than "medicine shows" to large aggregations, carrying brass bands, two Topsys," "two Lawyer Marks," and other forms of ballyhoo that might attract crowds, but that had little to do with the story as written in her immortal book by Harriet Beecher Stowe, in 1850.

Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Pictures Corporation, makes no secret of the fact that the present production, which cost nearly $2,000,000 and was two years in the making, is the realization of a dream of many years. Great American classics, he says, have always held a fascination for him; and he is proud of the fact that in this, the first adequate filming of the Stowe story, Director Harry Pollard has avoided the queer traditions that have crept into the many stage versions, few of which have ever been written, and has spent a fortune in giving a true presentation of the original, that has entertained generation after generation for seventy-five years.

This is literally true with one incidental exception. While the book was written before the Civil War, in the Universal production the drama ends with the freeing of the slaves co-incident with the entry on the Southern scene of the victorious Northern troops. This dramatic license Director Pollard insists is justified, inasmuch as the conditions of slavery which create the real drama of the book, were ended by the war, the only fitting ending for theatrical presentation is to show that ending. Otherwise the whole story and purpose of the book becomes merely an incident or succession of incidents in American history.

There is no "war stuff" in the picture. The appearance of the troops on the march fit into the plot in the manner mentioned, and in no place do they show as combatants. I'd tell the truth Mrs. Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is a thrilling book, containing three distinct stories, melodramatic in their thrilling human intensity, and correlated through the inclusion of the same characters. As such it has stood the test of three-quarters of a century of popularity in the home, the public library and on the stage.

A large percentage of the huge expenditure, it is said, went to the filming of the many scenes in the locations depicted in the book. The story begins in Kentucky; carries Eliza north across the Ohio river by the "underground railway;" returns to Ohio, to the Mississippi, down the river to New Orleans; back up the river to Simon Legree's plantation—"an epic sweep," as Mr. Laemmle says, "too big for the stage." This route, a large company under Director Pollard followed during the filming, covering 26,000 miles of travel.

Soccer Notes

All players associated with the Canadian Packing Company soccer team are requested to turn out tonight for the practice game at King Edward Park. Everybody is expected to be on time and every member wearing their sweater. The C. P.C. travel to Deloro in a league game.

The Quaker Oats and the Canadian General boys had a good practice game last evening at King Edward Park, after theier usual kick around.

A very good pitch will be made out of the ground presented to the Brinton soccer team by their manager. They expect to have the ground levelled off and rolled this week. When they get it into shape the association will immediately order two games in the city. The new field is along the side of the factory.

According to information from the Canadian General quarters they are likely to lose the services of Bolton who has been ordered to quit the game by the doctor. Every fan hopes that his recovery will be quick because it will handicap the C.G.E. team for a while.

ATHLETES FROM TWENTY-SIX SCHOOLS WILL COMPETE IN PROVINCIAL CHAMPIONSHIPS

Winners of Meet Here Will Take Part in Finals at Kingston.

WILL HOLD PRELIMINARIES.

Competition Will Be Divided Into Four Divisions According to Age.

Peterborough will be the scene of a mammoth School Boy Athletic meet on Saturday, May 25.—The cream of the athletes of twenty-six High Schools, Public Schools and Separate Schools will come to this city to try for honors in the fifth annual Provincial School Boy Athletic Championships.

The province from east to west has been divided into ten districts, and each district a central meet will be held before June 23. Peterborough is the centre of District No. 10. The champions in the events of each respective district will meet in Kingston at Queen's Stadium on June 23 in the finals.

The schools listed in District No. 10, who will compete in this city are: Bancroft C.S., Beaverton C.S., Blackstock C.S., Bobcaygeon C. S., Brighton H. S., Campbellford H. S., Cannington H. S., Colborne H. S., Ennismore C. S., Fenelon Falls C. S., Frankford C. S., Haliburton C. S., Havelock C. S., Janetville C. S., Kinmount C. S., Lakefield H. S., Lindsay C. I., Little Britain C. S., Millbrook C. S., Minden C. S., Norwood H. S., Omemee H. S., Peterborough C. I., Warkworth C. S., Woodville C. S., and Wooler C. S. In each case the letters C. S. stands for consolidated schools. Included in the list will be the Peterborough Public and Separate Schools.

Preliminary Meets.

It is likely that each school will hold a preliminary meet to learn the material that is available in the school, and only those boys, who are thought to be of sufficiently high calibre as to stand an opportunity against the quality athletes that will be in the major meet here, will likely be sent.

There are four divisions in the meet, so that no boy will be meeting others out of his class according to age. There are: Public and Separate Schools, boys 15 and under; Collegiates and High Schools, junior boys 15 and under; intermediate, boys 17 and under; and senior, boys 20 years and under.

In the first division there are six events listed, namely: 100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards relay, running high jump, running broad jump, and the pole vault. In the junior division for the High Schools and Collegiates, in addition to those events listed above, there are two others events, the 120 low hurdles and the 8-pound shot put. This list again grows in the intermediate group, the 440 yards, 880 yards relay, shot put, 12 lbs., and the javelin throw being added. The senior list includes a few changes also, namely, 880 yards (not relay), mile, mile relay, and 120 high hurdles.

The meet will be well managed and the judges will be of long experience in timing and scoring athletic meets. Douglas A. Loomis, physical director at the local Y.M.C.A., is managing the pre-arranging of the meet and all entries and questions should be addressed to him.

Each boy must be a bona fide student at the school he represents and moderately high in studies, as the following rule indicates: "This is to certify that the age of each and every boy entered above entitles him to compete in the class in which he is so entered, and that he was in regular attendance at this school in May, 1929, and has made 50 per cent. in his examinations." This must be signed by a school representative and the principal.

All entries must be in the hands of Mr. Loomis on or before May 21. Each competitor must have in his possession at the meet his birth certificate, and this must be produced at the request of the authorized referee.

J. I. Murray is the organizing secretary of the province-wide championships, and this is following through the policy laid down over five years ago by the Ontario Department of Education to encourage school athletics.

CLEVELAND, May 2. (C.P.) — The St. Louis Browns bunched five hits off Wes Ferrell in the fifth inning and scored three runs, which gave them a four-to-three victory over Cleveland yesterday.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF PUBLICITY.

Three things stand out just now that might afford comparison. Peterborough is raising by public subscriptions $5,000 to send the local Male Voice Choir to Madison Square Gardens, New York, to compete with other choirs on the continent. Brantford is doing the same thing by public subscription, endeavoring to raise $3,000 to send their Schubert Choir to Scranton, Pennsylvania, to sing in competition. While Hamilton citizens are being implored to raise a fund for sending its relay team to Milwaukee. Thus are all three cities desirous of taking advantage of the publicity to be gained, and also to reward faithful persons who have given much time and practice to the two pursuits in which they have excelled. Peterborough has gained honors nearly every season in baseball and when the seniors won the hockey championship the advertising gained could not be figured in less than thousands.

The fact that three such subscriptions are being raised prove that citizens will respond to justifiable claims to recognition in any sphere of human endeavor. Peterborough athletes will find the same desire here to assist them in going over the top, when their attitude shows that they are worthy—which it always has been.

* * * * * *

GOOD FOUNDATION NECESSARY.

If you want to have your son a star ball player, lay the foundation at an early age—that is Babe Ruth's advice. "Start the kid young. That's the only way he can get up in the game," he says. "If a boy wants to be a good ball player, there's no use waiting until he is around 16 and 18. The grade school is the place to start. The neighborhood gang also offers fine training. I got my start as a kid. I liked baseball and I played it around home, in grade school, and on the neighborhood lots."

The Peterborough Public Schools are following the Babe's advice and they have been doing it for years. Although they have never turned out any players of near Ruth's calibre yet; they have succeeded in teaching the boys the game, along with a high regard for good sportsmanship. The minor teams in the City League are doing exactly the same thing, and they are developing the players that will later carry on the sport.

* * * * * *

WORKING WITH THE PUBLIC SCHOOL SCHEDULE.

Members of the City League Executive desire to have the fact impressed that the League will abide by the teachers' request in not detracting the players' time or attention away from the Public School league. The bantam league will not commence its activities until the schools have fully completed its schedule of games.

* * * * * *

COACH AND MANAGER NEEDED.

All Saints' A. A. is on the hunt for a manager and coach of their ball team. This club has a membership of live wires, who are keen about sports. They had a team that gave the Canucks a chase for the championship in the City Hockey League in the winter, and they have all lined up a strong ball team. The question is that of a coach. Anyone who knows the game and gets a kick out of managing a team that plays hard and clean should snatch at this opportunity.

* * * * * *

ROSENEATH TO HAVE BASEBALL TEAM.

The Roseneath Athelic Association is in step with the progress that is being made in sport at other centres. A large covered rink was built last fall and everyone enjoyed good skating and fast hockey during the winter. Now they are casting their eyes at baseball, and are going out more determined than ever after the silverware that just slipped past them last fall by the loss of one game. J. Hallett is the hard working president, and he and his equally active secretary, Howard Lapp, along with the rest of the busy executive, were unanimously re-elected to their posts at a meeting held recently. Roseneath will likely figure prominently on the sports pages this summer.

* * * * * *

INTEREST REVIVED IN LACROSSE.

Bouquets to Fred C. Waghorne, lacrosse emissary extraordinary! He has started them off down in Millbrook and Campbellford, both having organized lacrosse clubs amidst old-time enthusiasm. Mr. Waghorne was in the city yesterday for a few hours on his way to Hastings, where he plans to continue the great work of reviving Canada's National Game.

The old players here are behind him to a man. Their only sorrow is that something cannot be done here to bring the game back to something of its former status.

* * * * * *

SOUND BODY BEGETS SOUND MIND.

The Brantford Expositor is drawing the right conclusions when it says those who engage in athletics seldom are haled before the criminal courts—that is the conclusion drawn by Judge Ed. Hurley, prominent jurist of Cincinnati. "I've noticed this fact in the number of persons brought before me," he says, "and the answer seems to be that particularly in clean athletics it builds self reliance and character. A sound body, you know, usually begets a sound mind."

* * * * * *

ATHLETIC MEET TO BE HELD HERE.

The fact that the greatest schoolboy athletic meet ever held in the city is taking place here this month, should have the effect of making the boys strive harder in the field and track events. The P.C.I. boys have been running afternoons during the past month, but if they desire to excel in this meet they should get down to specific events immediately. Road work is all right for a conditioner or to practice for middle distance running, if special attention is given to form and time, but in this competition they start immediately in selecting the event or events they are going in for, and give all their attention to that. Careful coaching is needed, too.

Every school in the district, and the Public and Separate schools here, are being invited to compete. Here also the competitors should practise the high jump, the dash, or whatever of the six events they feel particularly gifted for. With the meet being held here it would only seem right that Peterborough should win a prominent place, but it will require a real effort, the competition promising to be most keen.

Lindsay will likely prove of real strength, since their Monarch A.C. have given an added boost to athletics there that was never present before.

GREATEST CATCH OF YOUNG BALL SEASON IS MADE BY HARRY RICE OF THE TIGERS

Spectacular Play Recalls the Great Days of Ty Cobb. .

A REAL THRILLER.

Jones One of Recruits Who Sets Fans Talking to Themselves.

NEW YORK, May 2.—In these days of slugging one hears only now and then of a marvelous catch, but there have been two outstanding fielding stunts pulled off in this young season that will be referred to when the fans are talking something besides home runs in the winter.

Real Thriller.

The thrilling catch made by Chuck Klein of the Phillies when he saved the ball game for Willoughby by a spectacular run and grab of a hard hit fly is quite familiar to the everyday local fan, but there was a play the other day at Detroit that is worth more than passing interest because it was made by a Tiger outfielder, Harry Rice. Years ago, when Cobb had the speed of a grayhound, it was not uncommon to hear about a thrilling nab that saved a ball game.

There had been a lot of doubt about Harry Rice being worth what former Manager Moriarty of the Tigers said he would be when he traded Manush and Blue for Rice. Van Gilder and McManus. Rice waited until the opening day this season to pull the play of his career. Moriarty was gone and it was fitting that he could reward the confidence of the man who touted him.

Supplying the Thrill.

As one of his former critics said of him, Rice supplied the one thrill to what otherwise would have been a dull, damp ball game.

The stage was set as if by a master director. It was the start of the ninth inning. The Tigers were two runs to the good. Averill, first up, drove the ball straight toward right field. The giant Alexander threw his six feet, 220 pounds, right at the ball and blocked its course, but Avehill beat the pitcher to the base to take the throw. Joe Sewell doubled. Porter lifted a high fly to McManus. Fonseca drove one toward short and Averill dashed across the plate as the hitter died at first. Jamieson walked and stole second Luke Sewell, next up, smashed the ball on a line toward centre. The runners tore for home. There did not seem to be a chance for Rice to get the ball as he rushed in for it.

To the stands it looked as if Rice might by luck get it on the hop Then unexpectedly he dove toward the rapidly falling ball. He hit the turf with hand outstretched to his limit. The ball was out of sight of the fans. Umpire Nallin ran right out to see the play, waved his hand in the air and Rice rolled over twice and came up with the ball. He picked himself up and ran to the clubhouse before the fans knew just what happened.

"It was just a flash of high drama," says a sideliner who viewed the play. "Something that occurs once a season or less."

Another Jones.

Jones is a conspicuous name these days. One was spotted in the box score of the Pittsburgh game the other day playing short for the Pirates. Fans wondered where this Jones had come to play such a brilliant game afield with 12 out of 13 chances accepted and to be able to deliver two hits against Cub pitching.

This Jones is Coburn Jones, who was farmed out to the Eastern League by Pittsburgh last season. He was in poor shape all spring, so that he did nothing to break into type during the practice battles. Jones' work at short pleased the fans. He is a chatty young player about 22 and full of life. He runs Dick Bartell a close race for emitting the most words during the game. Some say that he would look better at second base, because his arm is not quite so powerful as Bartell's. Adams, according to Bush, has a sore leg, but he has not been playing his game this spring.

SENATOR LOGAN COMING.

Will Address Kiwanians At Luncheon On Friday.

Senator Hance Logan will be the guest speaker at Kiwanis luncheon on Friday when he will give an address on "Roaming through the West Indies." Senator Logan was sent to the West Indies as commissioner from Canada to investigate trade conditions for this country and his address will be full of interest to every member.

Senator Logan was born at Amherst, Nova Scotia, in 1869, the son of James Archibald Logan. He was educated in the Model School Truro, Pictou Academy and Dalhousie University, afterwards reading law with Hon. William T. Pipes, K.C. He was elected as Liberal representative of Cumberland in 1896, 1900 and 1904, being re-elected in 1921 by 5355 majority, the largest ever taken in Nova Scotia.

As a member of Parliament he pressed the policy of confining British to Canadian ports and the principle of this policy was adopted in the 1923 budget. He has been a strong advocate of the rights of the Maritime Provinces.

Senator Logan's only son died from being gassed in the Great War.

Sent to the West Indies and South American Republics in 1924 as a commissioner to enquire into the possibilities of closer trade relations of these countries with Canada, Senator Logan was later one of the members of Parliament who negotiated the Canada-British West Indies agreement. He went last year as one of the official party on the initial voyage of the "Lady Nelson", the first of the ships provided under the terms of the agreement.

He was appointed director of the Canadian National Railways on April 16, 1928 and called to the Senate of Canada in January, 1929.

TORONTO CHOIR TO VISIT CITY

High Park United Church Musical Organization Will Be Here Monday.

OUTSTANDING EVENT.

On Monday evening next the Choir of High Park United Church, Toronto, will give a concert in St. Andrew's United Church of this city, which should be an event of unusual interest to all music-lovers and those interested in choir work.

The High Park Choir, which is regarded as one of the outstanding choirs of Toronto, is composed of 76 voices, and is under the capable direction of Mr. Chas. Leslie, a well-known baritone soloist, whose wide experience in choir work enables him to produce the highest results from his large choir.

Accompanying the choir will be the Elgar Male Quartette, which is a well-known professional concert quartette, also David Raithblatt, violinist, and Irene Colhoon, elocutionist.

The citizens of Peterborough have rarely had the opportunity of hearing a large Toronto choir in concert work, in fact only once before has a choir from Toronto been brought to Peterborough to give a concert, this being some twenty years ago, when Mr. John Crane was organist of St. Paul's Church, and at this time Jarvis Street Baptist Choir, under the direction of the late Dr. Vogt, gave a concert to a crowded audience in St. Paul's Church, and a feature of the coming visit of High Park Choir is that Mr. Leslie, the director, was a member of Jarvis Street Choir when it came here twenty years ago.

St. Andrew's Choir is to be congratulated upon the arrangements they have made to bring this choir, together with the assisting artists, to the city, and the citizens should appreciate the opportunity which is given them to hear this musical treat. Therefore, in view of the limited capacity of the church, citizens would be wise to secure their tickets without delay to avoid disappointment. These can be had from any member of St. Andrew's Choir, or at the Examiner Office.

Healthful Cleanliness in Every Particle

The extraordinary efficiency and superior quality of Old Dutch make its usefulness unequalled. For all uses listed on the label and many others—cutlery, refrigerators, mirrors, stoves, stone steps, etc., there is nothing else like Old Dutch.

Old Dutch keeps everything spick and span and assures that most important feature of good housekeeping, Healthful Cleanliness. Old Dutch does this by removing the unhealthful invisible impurities as well as all visible dirt.

Old Dutch is composed of a natural detergent of distinctive character, free from harsh, scratchy grit, acid and caustic. To the eye a fine powder—the microscope shows that its particles are flaky and flat shaped. Like thousands of tiny erasers they remove all uncleanliness without scratching. Scratches are catch-alls for dirt and impurities.

As Healthful Cleanliness is the safeguard to health, so Old Dutch is your safeguard to Healthful Cleanliness. There's nothing else like it.

History of Peterborough

Written by Thomas W. Poole, M.D., and Published in Peterborough 1867

CHAPTER III.

The Town of Peterborough.

A reserve was made in the survey of the township of North Monaghan in 1818, for the site of the future town of Peterborough; but it was not until 1825 that the town plot was laid out by actual survey, by Richard Birdsall, Esq., surveyor, under the direction of the Hon. Zaccheus Burnham, to whom this task, together with the survey of some of the neighboring townships had been assigned. At that time, the future importance of the place was no doubt dimly foreshadowed in the minds of a few far-seeing men; but the prospect of a town ever being built, or indeed anything more than a mill, and perhaps a store, in what seemed so remote a situation, was regarded as incredible, and was scarcely seriously entertained among the settlers in the adjoining wilderness.

In the spring of 1825, the site of the town was still in a state of nature. The ground west of the creek was densely wooded with a heavy growth of pine, interspersed with beech and maple; while between that stream and the Otonabee River, the character of the soil was that known as "plains," and the trees were of stunted oak and scrubby pine, interspersed with smaller brush-wood and occasional grassy spots, some of which bore traces of the Indian's camp or the hunter's solitary fire.

As seen now, the site of the town is generally level, with occasional undulations. Such could hardly be said of it at the time of which we write. There were then elevations and depressions more or less strongly marked, which the tastes or the necessities of an active and progressive settlement have filled up or laid low. The swampy margins of the creek before referred to, have been filled up, and that useful stream restrained in great part within its proper channel. The lot forming the southeast corner of George and Hunter streets were low and wet, and here, at certain seasons, water collected, forming a stagnant pool. Over most of the ground east of the creek huckleberries flourished, and grew with especial luxuriance amid the stunted trees and shrubbery which covered the beautiful hill now adorned by the county buildings. The wildflowers, peculiar to a plainy soil, were not wanting here, and lent their gorgeous hues to decorate the scene; but fruit and flower were speedily crushed out by the iron heel of civilization, which, while it marred the wild richness of nature, furnished a new mart for the products of industry and a new emporium for the wealth and enterprise of man.

During the four or five years preceding 1825, the little mill erected by Mr Adam Scott on the bank of the Otonabee (corner of King and Water streets) had been in operation. It was a frame structure of about 18 by 24 feet, and shook under the vibration of the machinery. Within this small space was fitted up a run of very common mill stones, and a single upright saw. Without wishing to disparage the enterprise which established this poor apology for a mill, in the heart of the wilderness, it must still be confessed that neither in gristing nor sawing was it adequate to supply even the limited requirements of the few early settlers of that period. In addition to this defective mill, an equally impotent distillery was carried on in a small house in the vicinity. In the absence of a metallic "worm," the vapor was passed through a long wooden tube, cooled by the application of water, and thus condensed, the aqueous spirit oozed from the further extremity. No means of rectification were available, and the whiskey thus produced contained the empyreumatic oil and other impurities which, as well as the disagreeable flavor these occasion, the whiskey drinker of that day had to endure as best he could. But though lacking in some of the higher qualities (?) which even the "tangle-leg" whiskey of the present-day possesses, it was quite adequate for the chief purpose intended, and would intoxicate as surely as the most elaborate product of improved machinery and modern skill.

The little mill continued to do such gristing and sawing as it could, up till the year 1834, when it was improved, and a brewery and distillery added and carried on by Messrs. Hamilton & Fortye, until the year 1835, when the whole was burnt down and the present structure erected. The distillery above referred to went out of existence in 1827, but Mr. Scott's dwelling house still remains—now the oldest building in Peterborough. It is a low, square, cottage-roofed, frame building, close to the edge of Water Street, on the western side, and about midway between the market square and "Parnell's mill." The right of way for the extension of the railway track, now in process of construction, impinges upon one corner of the old house, and it will doubtless soon be demolished to make way for this great agent of modern civilization.

Old Building Passing Away

The store of the Kingan Hardware Company, Ltd., at the southwest corner of George and Simcoe streets, as it appeared last week. The work of demolition has already progressed, and soon the building will have passed into memory, to be supplanted by the new building for the Kresge Company. It is thus the process of development goes on from year to year—what a change the old boys and girls will find when they return for Old Home Week!

Cultivate a Sense of Humor!

THROUGHOUT all the preparations for Old Home Week there are bound to occur moments of tension. Somebody is bound to have different ideas from someone else—thank heaven!

They are not occasions for excitement and resignation, however—they are really challenges to your sense of humor. The man who can hear another deride well-laid plans (however sincere the criticism may be) and can smile, is a real MAN. The situation recalls Kipling's "IF."

And when your "wool is rubbed the wrong way," recollect the sensation next time you are tempted to criticize another—and consider whether the end to be gained is worth the hurt. If it is, in the interests of the cause—GO TO IT. Your duty to the city demands it.

But if there is another way, by personal contact, or if the result isn't vital, let the thing slip.

Cultivate a sense of humor!

The special souvenir edition of The Examiner to be published on Wednesday of Old Home Week will contain many pictures of local interest. The photographs are now on hand in The Examiner office, and we will be very grateful for identifications of persons and buildings.

It is proposed that an exhibit be made of old photographs. These might be gathered in a vacant store, or distributed among the active stores.

Don't forget to look in the register for notices of meetings. The register should be consulted, too, before setting dates for meetings, in order to avoid counter attractions that will detract from the attendance.

B. S. ARMSTRONG HAS MADE GOOD

Evidence of what former Peterborough boys are achieving in the world outside is contained in the following news item from the Cincinnati Enquirer. Bolton S. Armstrong is an old Peterborough boy:

"In the re-organization of the Mabley & Carew Company, just effected, a plan has been perfected whereby the store is and will remain in the control and under the management of Cincinnatians. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by Bolton S. Armstrong, president of the company, in disclosing that the plan provides that all common stock is to be owned by employes.

"Under the conditions attached to the issuance of the common stock this situation will prevail indefinitely, thus assuring that the store will remain a Cincinnati institution in every sense.

"In making the announcement Mr. Armstrong revealed that a number of the more important and long-service employes have already acquired common stock in the company and that provision has been made whereby other employes from time to time may acquire an interest in the business as occasion arises.

"The plan is really an extension of an idea of the late Joseph T. Carew, who believed that only in an organization controlled from within could be realized a great business unit, which should be perpetuated by retaining its management among its loyal employes. It is in carrying out this ideal of Mr. Carew that the present plan has been extended to cover a wider number of employes and to retain among employes only, the common stock of the company.

"As a part of the re-organization, stockholders yesterday elected the following directors, all of whom are directly concerned in the management of the store: Bolton S. Armstrong, Robert G. Carew, Adolph C. Weiss, J. D. Mullally and A. J. Knapp. The board re-elected Mr. Armstrong, president; Mr. Carew, vice-president, and Mr. Weiss, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Mullally was named general merchandise manager. Mr. Knapp is head of one of the departments in the store.

"The store soon is to celebrate its fifty-second anniversary.

"The establishment was founded by C. R. Mabley, who later took into partnership Joseph T. Carew. It was his ideal to develop an outstanding business institution, based on principles of sound commercial practice, ethical conduct and enterprise.

"The store maintains as its first principle the good will of its customers and employes, and in furtherance of this ideal has established a pension plan for aged employes and an insurance plan whereby the estate of any employe with the store for more than a year receives a full year's salary in case of death.

"Mr. Armstrong, in discussing reports that have arisen from time to time that the store might be sold to other interests, declared that there was no foundation for any such gossip. 'The store is and will remain a Cincinnati store,' he said, 'and with the plan to have all the common stock owned by employes, this situation will continue.'

"Mr. Armstrong has been connected with the store for practically his entire business career, becoming president of the company about fifteen years ago."

AMATEUR RULINGS FULLY DISCUSSED

Officers Not in Favor of Simon Pures and Pros Mixing.

TORONTO, May 2. — The meeting convened last evening by President Charles E. Higginbottom of the Ontario Branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and to which were invited the Presidents, Secretaries, and Governors of the governing bodies of the various sports in the Province, settled for some time to come the attitude of the Ontario branch as to the allowing of amateurs and professionals to mix in amateur sports under the supervision of the A.A.U. of C.

While possibly not entirely unanimous, the consensus of opinion of those present was that such a move would be most dangerous and would be inimical to the best interests of amateur sport in this Province. The attitude, therefore, of the amateur moguls, remains unchanged on the question. At all previous discussions at the annual meetings of the A.A.U. of C., the representatives of the Ontario brance have always opposed the measure, which has been introduced mainly by the Western Provinces and which has heretofore received some support from the Maritime Provinces.

Ottawa Team Leads In Inter-City Competition

TORONTO, May 2. (C.P.)—Ottawa won the first night's honors in the inter-city competition for the Lieutenant-Governor's challenge trophy for which teams of three hunters will compete nightly throughout the show at the 29th annual horse show which opened here last night. Teams are entered from Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, St. Catharines and Oshawa, and scores are counted on the best two out of the three performances by each team.

With two clean performances over the difficult course, the Ottawa team was able to chalk up a faultless score; the Hamilton team came next with a half point against it, while Toronto and Oshawa were tied, each minus a point.

Three faults were marked up against the St. Catharines entries.

Belleville Nationals Preparing For Opener

BELLEVILLE, May 2.—Belleville National, amateur baseball champions of the province, are practicing faithfully in preparation of the opening game of the Central Ontario League here with Deloro on May 24. The locals will be at top strength and the one weakness lies in the pitching department. Manager Walter Gerow will use three hurlers, Alex Weir, Byron of Napanee and "Vinny" Utronki who played a relief role last year. These three should be the means of carrying the Nationals through to the C.O.B.L. honors again this year. With all of last year's players here, the other positions will be well taken care of. The veteran, Mills, will do the receiving while his brother Harry will hold down first base.

The other infield berths will be filled as follows: Second base, Vern Weir; short-stop, Harry Blakely; third base, Bob Scott. There is a wealth of material for the outfield with the following the pick of the let: Ross, an old veteran; Hagerman, Palmer, Green and Flagler. If the pitching is sufficiently strong, the local management is hoping to cop another Central League flag. They have been working out nightly at the collegiate grounds until the regular diamond is in shape.

HEAVY STORM HALTS TRAFFIC

Telephone Communications Disrupted in Portions of Missouri and Illinois.

TEMPERATURE DROPS.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 2 (C.P.).—A heavy snow storm of near blizzard proportions struck St. Louis and portions of Missouri and Illinois to-day, demoralizing traffic, disrupting telephone communications and sending the temperature tumbling below freezing. More than three inches of snow had fallen here before 8 o'clock this morning.

The unseasonable storm struck with sudden fury in the wake of a series of terrific wind, rain and hail storms yesterday and last night and brought mid-winter weather to a wide area, the bounds of which had not been determined by the Government weather bureau this morning.

Reports reached St. Louis that there had been a destructive tornado in southeast Missouri, but the storm had so paralyzed telephone service that it was impossible to establish communications with that region.

BIRTH.

Production of Canada's breweries in 1927 amounted to 15,231,340 gallons of beer, ale, etc., in barrels worth $10,899,630; and 38,744,841 gallons in bottles worth $38,764,966.

POWER SHUT OFF.

OSHAWA, May 3. (C.P.) — Industry in Oshawa was paralyzed for two hours yesterday by a break in the local hydro electric system. The break was caused by a piece of the roof of the Savoy building falling on the main 4400 volt supply wires. The wires snapped and the short circuit sent a ball of fire dancing along the wires for four blocks.

LONDON, May 3 (C. P. Cable).—Speaking at Isleworth, on the outskirts of London, to-day, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Home Secretary, referred to a Russian proclamation calling on Englishmen to vote against British Imperialism. CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 3.—(C.P.)—Buffeted by high waves and a 50 to 60 mile gale, the lake passenger steamer City of Buffalo was forced 80 miles off its course to-day and will be delayed more than six hours on its trip from Buffalo to Cleveland, according to a radio from the captain received by P. J. Schwartz, manager of the Cleveland-Buffalo Transity Company here.

No Evidence Given By Crown

Dilworth McClellan, Detroit Policeman, Is Freed in London Court.

REVOLVER CONFISCATED.

LONDON, Ont., May 3 (C.P.).—Dilworth McClellan, Detroit policeman who slew one bandit and wounded a second after an attempted holdup near Crumlin Wednesday morning, walked out of the city police court here to-day a free man and characterized as a man "who had done Canada a service."

Crown Attorney Judd offered no evidence on the charge that McClellan "being an alien did unlawfully carry a revolver," and no new charge was laid. McClellan was unrepresented by counsel, the Crown Attorney's remarks constituting his justification in the eyes of the court. Magistrate Scandrett complimented McClellan.

Chief Robert Birrel asked the court for an order for the confiscation of the revolver, "which had done Canada a service," and McClellan made no objection. The court will make an order.

No Right to Revolver

The Crown said that it was conceded that McClellan had no right to carry the revolver in this country but the fact that he was an alien could make little difference. He knew how to use the gun. It was very fortunate in one sense that he did have his gun. He might not be alive to-day if he had not had it. McClellan had a perfect right to defend himself.

Mr. Judd here referred to the agitation in Canada which would bar ordinary police officers from carrying guns.

"I do not purpose to offer any evidence and with the consent of Mr. Bayley, the Deputy Attorney General I do not propose to lay any further charge, a more serous one, that

Man Believes Rumor "They've All Been Changed" And Spends Afternoon Looking For Polling Place

You'd think it was a private election," remarked one ratepayer, after seeking for nearly an hour for his polling place.

Driven first to the store where he had voted last time, he saw no poster, and went on to the next store, where there was a poster displayed. That wasn't the right place, but the kindly clerk told the would-be voter that he should go to the Conservatory of Music. There was no poster there, but activity was heard in one room. With a recruit picked up outside, Mr. Ratepayer opened the door, and—crashed a bridge party.

Going home to make a fresh start, he was assured that the first placed visited was correct, and on returning there he was at last able to mark the three "X's" that may win any one or all of the three by-laws. The poster that should have marked the polling place was seen in a pool of water, having blown down.

CANADA'S TRADE RELATIONS IN WEST INDIES ARE OUTLINED

COMMISSIONER IN 1924.

Speaker is Introduced By Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.—Treaty is Explained.

Canada's trade relations with the West Indies were authoritatively discussed at to-day's meeting of the Peterborough Kiwanis club when Senator H. J. Logan, of Halifax brought to the club an outline of his investigations as a commissioner for Canada to the West Indies in 1924. Known as an outstanding authority on trade conditons, the Senator was heard with appreciative attention and at the conclusion, Kiwanian John A. Dewart expressed that appreciation to the distinguished visitor, and to Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, who had contributed a humorous skit previous to the address.

Introduced by the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who outlined his public life in a brief but comprehensive manner, Senator Logan said in part:

"In 1924 I was commissioned by the Government of Canada to proceed to the West Indies and other lands in and about the Caribbean Sea to inquire into the trade possi-

Government Wins Over United Opposition

WINNIPEG, Man., May 3 (Canadian Press).—Despite the combined opposition of Labor, Liberals and Conservatives, Premier John Bracken and his adherents won another victory during a hectic session of the Manitoba Legislature last night.

A motion to refer John Queen's Workmen's Compensation Bill to an enlarged committee for consideration during the coming recess was defeated by 27 votes to 19. The Labor leader's bill urges increased compensation for some workers, enlargement of the Workmen's Compensation Act to include some trades now not under its jurisdiction.

SMALL VOTE BEING POLLED

One Booth in Centre Ward Recorded 29 Votes Out of 400 at 12.30.

SMALLEST ON RECORD.

The raw wind, rain and sleet, were combining to keep many voters away from the polling booths, and it was only those who were vitally interested in the success or failure of one or more of the three bylaws who ventured forth to make use of their privileges as citizens.

"The smallest vote on record because of the dirty weather," was the prophecy of one man. All indications gathered by The Examiner at 1.30 p.m., went to substantiate the fact that the total vote would be a small percentage of those on the list.

At booth 15, in the City Buildings, at 12:30, 16 votes had been polled out of the 150 whose names were on the lists. At 29 and 13 in the same building, out of 400 voters, 29 had cast their ballots, and at booth 12 and 14 at the central office, 51 had voted out of 400 on the list.

The same condition held good in every district in the city. It was ported from Fred Bates' store on Stewart street, that 44 had voted out of 300, and in the same northern area Johnston's tire store, it was stated that 94 ballots were in the box out of nearly 400 that were on the list.

The East City voters were not getting out either; there were only 81 votes cast out of the 400 or more that were listed at sub-division 35 and 36, Choate's store, at 38 Hunter street east.

In the West Ward, at numbers 21 and 22, Nelson Routley's store, it was reported that in all 94 had voted out of a possible 400.

Many Voted at Noon.

In the South ward the voters were pouring into the booths during the noon hour and at H. Halpin's store on George street it was stated that at 12.45 they were standing three tiers deep in their anxiety to vote and get back to work before the whistle blew.

Discussing voting conditions with Felix Brownscombe, deputy returning officer, and John Craig, polling clerk, at booth 15 in the City Building, The Examiner learned that many persons were doubtful of the division where their names were listed. "The voters must entirely overlook the card that is sent out by the City Clerk directing them to their proper polling booth. We have twice as many people coming here as are listed, who thought that they should vote here. In fact at least fifty per cent. of the voters did not know where they were to vote," it was declared by these two clerks.

TEN KILLED IN SECOND DAY OF STREET FIGHTING IN BERLIN

Many Hundreds of Communists Are Placed Under Arrest in Germany's Capital.

BARRICADES BUILT.

BERLIN, May 3.— (C.P.) — Berlin emerged to-day from its second night of Communist rioting with ten persons dead, and at least 130 more or less seriously injured. Many hundreds were under arrest, while property damage considerable. Last night's total was three dead and 20 injured.

It was not until daybreak that police, armed with hand grenades, tear bombs, machine guns, and protected by armored cars, found that the communists had abandoned barricades they had built on Hermann Strasse, Neukolln, South-eastern Berlin.

After the first stages of fighting last night the constabulary had contented itself with throwing a heavy cordon around the area and awaiting daylight, realizing that to attack the barricades in the dark would involve heavy loss of life.

They found the street in ruins as they entered it this morning. Materials which were to have been used for a subway extension had been worked into the barricades. Paving blocks were torn up, trees uprooted, windows smashed and stores looted for more than a mile.

Suspended Sentence Given Lindsay Boys

TORONTO, Ont., May 3 (C.P.).—Harold Lee, aged 16, and his 14-year-old brother, who held up the Dominion Bank at New Toronto with a water pistol in an unsuccessful effort to obtain enough money for a meal and a railway ticket to their home in Lindsay, Ont., were placed on suspended sentence to-day. They appeared before Magstrate Keith in his private office.

Prominent citizens of Lindsay testified to the boys' previously good character and representatives of Lindsay service clubs promised to care for the boys until they are 21 years old.

FATHER WANTS BODY RETURNED

August Schacht Is Heartbroken At Death of Son Near London On Wednesday..

BORN IN GERMANY.

YORKTON, Sask., May 3.—(C.P.)—Heartbroken at the death of his son, August Schacht, father of the young man shot and killed on Wednesday near London, Ont., by a Detroit police officer, in an attempted hold-up, is anxious that the body be returned to Yorkton, for burial. It is thought this may be arranged.

Born in Germany, young Robert Schacht came at the age of one year to the Yorkton district with his parents. Three years ago he and his brother left here and started for the United States. Evidently they were held up at the border. Robert's letters home informed his sister that he had bought a car and had money in the bank. The family is highly regarded here.

The Weather

There was another unusually heavy rainfall last night. The total on this occasion was 1.04. This is the third rainfall this year that totalled over an inch. Frequently several years pass without such an event. The temperature last night was 39 degrees. Like most of our heavy rains this storm originated in the south-western states, and the water that came down last night probably was evaporated from the Gulf of Mexico.—W. P.

The layout shows: (1) Car used by bandits and which they deserted after the attempted robbery; (2) Glory, McClellan's dog, which put up a fight when the London policemen tried to take over McClellan's car; (3) Mrs. Daisy McClellan, who was with her husband, and (4) Patrolman McClellan.

LLOYD GEORGE EXPECTS TO HOLD BALANCE OF POWER IN NEW HOUSE

Liberals Are Waging a Merry Fight in British General Election.

REDUCE UNEMPLOYMENT.

Conservatives and Labor Are Attacking Liberal Leader's Employment Scheme.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, May 3. — Over the length and breadth of the country, Liberals are battling for a return to power. With Lloyd George at their head they are waging such a merry fight as has not been seen for many years. From Land's End to John O' Groats, Sir Herbert Samuel leads a motor parade. From constituency to constituency, Mr. Lloyd George dashes with the vigor of a Gladstone in Midothian. It is not that the Liberals expect to have the largest party in the next parliament. But Lloyd George has made it quite clear that he expects to hold the balance of power. And there are those who think that in the uncertainties which would follow a close run between Conservatives and Labor, Mr. Lloyd George might again be summoned to form a government.

Liberals urge their traditional doctrines of free trade; taxation of land values, state purchase of coal mining royalties, and so forth; but it is the Lloyd George unemployment pledge which holds the floor. Conservatives and Labor attack it and challenge it. Some of the old guard Liberals throw cold water over it. Mr. Lloyd George repeats it, and reaffirms it, with what ultimate result only the ballot will show.

Reduce Unemployment.

"The work put in hand," so pledges Mr. Lloyd George, "will reduce the terrible figures of the workless in the course of a single year to normal proportions, and will, when completed, enrich the nation and equip it for competing successfully with all its rivals in the business of the world. These plans will not add one penny to national or local taxation."

Under the Liberal plan work would begin at once on six main lines:

(1) Roads and bridges, i.e., national trunk roads; ring roads round towns, avenue roads to new suburbs, bypasses to relieve congested traffic;; improvements of rural roads; reconstruction of bridges.

(2) Rapid building of houses to rent at small rates.

(3) Extension of telephone service.

(4) Electrical development.

(5) Land drainage on a large scale.

(6) London passenger transport.

Find Employment for 600,000.

In the first six schemes, so the Lloyd George Liberals declare, they will find direct work for more than 600,000 of the unemployed in the first year.

Roads and bridges are the largest scheme in the proposals. For financing they propose to capitalize part of the road fund, which is now bringing in an annual income of $125,000,000.

W. B. PRESTON IS NEW PRESIDENT

General Meetings of Canadian Daily Newspapers Association Concluded.

NEWSPRINT INDUSTRY.

TORONTO, Ont., May 3 (C.P.).—The general meetings of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association were concluded yesterday afternoon by the election of W. B. Preston of The Brantford Expositor to the presidency, and N. T. Bowman of The Toronto Telegram to the treasurer-of the organization.

A great portion of the time of yesterday's general meeting was expended in the discussion of the present situation in the newsprint industry as it impinged upon the publication of daily newspapers. The new method of quotation of prices which were formerly based on an f.o.b. mill figure and long term contracts by the mill were freely discussed, the problem being referred back to the paper committee for further consideration.

Matters relating to labor were also under discussion for a large part of the morning session, among the speakers being Harvey J. Kelly, chairman of the standing committee on Labor of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, who was present by invitation of the Canadian Association.

For Old Home Week Citizens Must Give Faithful Support

John C. Miller, of Orillia, Outlines To Gathering of Citizens How Peterborough's Big Event Can Be Made a Success.

EVERY INDIVIDUAL WILL BE REQUIRED TO PUT HIS SHOULDER TO THE WHEEL

Peterborough Should Not Be Considered As Something Separate From Any Citizen As All Owe Service To Their Home Community.

With a sparkle of humor, that brightened but did not conceal his deep sincerity, John C. Miller of Orillia, emphasized the fact that the only thing that would ensure the success of Peterborough's Old Home Week was the whole-hearted support of every citizen, when he reviewed the salient features that put the celebration in Orillia over the top in a speech at an open meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute last evening.

Having delivered an inspirational address to the Kiwanis Club about a month ago in which he had brought out many ideas gained in the capacity of chairman of the Old Home Week committee in Orillia, Mr. Miller returned to the city last evening at the request of the Old Home Week committee to put before a representative meeting of the citizens those same ideas that Peterborough might profit by the failures and successes of Orillia.

James Dutton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was chairman of the meeting owing to the unavoidable absence from the city of Mayor Denne. In his opening remarks Mr. Dutton stated that over 8,000 invitations to Peterborough's Old Home Week had already been mailed. "We can look forward with a deal of confidence to the Old Boys and Girls coming home for that week," he said. "The news that the old Peterborough Boys were forming clubs in distant cities and planning to return in a body indicated that they were preparing for the big week and doing their part. "It is less than enough to ask every citizen to do his and her share. We vant every citizen to realize that success depends on him" declared Mr. Dutton.

Miss Geraldin Collins and Mrs. George A. Richmond accompanied by Miss Mary Reynolds favoured the audience with several vocal solos and an orchestra played popular selections previous to the opening of the meeting.

Rev. D. Paterson in introducing the speaker of the evening referred to his inspirational and entertaining address before the Kiwanis Club. "I introduce him with a certain confidence because I know that you will go away enthused and not sorry," he said. He referred to Mr. Miller's success in putting big things across and his activity as a public spirited citizen of Orillia. "He knows what the Old Boys and Girls want to do and see when they come back for Old Home Week" he concluded.

Must Maintain Reputation

Sounding a clarion call for Peterborough citizens to show their civic pride and maintain the city's reputation as a community of live wires by getting out and all behind the Old Home Week re-union Mr. Miller reiterated his statement that its success would rise or fall so much as each individual put his shoulder to the wheel. 'Get rid of the idea that Old Home Week is only for the native born and realize that it is for everybody now resident here or who ever has been a resident of the city," he warned.

"You should not consider Peterborough as something separate and apart from yourselves—all owe service to the community. Whoever is a member of a community owes their services to that community," he said. He stated that Robinson Crusoe on his lonely isle who had no call upon his services by a community.

Safeguarded by Community

"In Peterborough you enjoy services as members of this community that you could never have as individuals." Here the speaker named over some of the necessities of life that are supplied to individuals only through the services of the community—electric light, fuel and food, whose prices and distribution are controlled by the community; water and sewage disposal; methods of

TRAINS DELAYED BY HEAVY RAINS

Wash-outs Interrupt Service Between Uxbridge and Scarboro On Canadian National.

ENGINE DERAILED.

Consternation among railroad officials in this district as a result of the unusually heavy rains that fell last night, proved well grounded early this morning, though not to the same extent as on the occasion of the storms several weeks ago. Both the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Companies felt the effects of the storm in delayed train passages as a result of track trouble, and it was not until late this morning that all was again running smoothly.

Speaking to Alpine MacNab, Canadian National agent in Peterborough, The Examiner learned that wash-outs of more or less serious nature had interrupted the train service between Uxbridge and Scarboro Junction, but that the only wreck occurring, had taken place on the Lindsay-Whitby line near Port Perry. A mixed train, leaving Lindsay at 6.05 this morning, had run into difficulty near Port Perry, the engine leaving the track and turning over on its side. The only human injury was that of a broken rib, suffered by Conductor Stafford Gassien of Lindsay.

Mr. MacNab also understood that mud slides had delayed the main line trains running to Belleville.

C.P.R. Troubled.

"All our trains are running through on schedule this morning, though I believe that the Toronto to Montreal early morning train went down the Lakefront — at least it did not come through here," said James W. Anderson, local C.P.R. agent, in speaking of the storm. "The change was probably due to the desire of the company officials to have the regular line thoroughly inspected after the heavy rains," he continued by way of explanation.

Engine Derailed

OSHAWA, Ont., May 3 (C.P.).—The engine, tender and baggage car of the southbound passenger train on the Whitby to Lindsay branch of the Canadian National Railway were derailed by a serious washout on the line between Port Perry and Manchester at 7.15 this morning. The locomotive turned on its side and Engineer Gassien and Fireman Embury, both of Lindsay, narrowly escaped death. Embury leaped from the side of the cab, and was very little hurt, while the engineer was still at the throttle when his locomotive left the tracks and tore up the weakened roadbed and upset in the ditch.

The baggage car also jumped the tracks but did not turn over, while the passenger coach behind it remained on the rails. Although badly shaken and bruised, neither member of the engine crew was badly injured.

Harmony Bridge Closed

The heavy rainstorm of last night was responsible for the washout. It also tied up traffice on the provincial highway at Pickering and Harmony. At Pickering the creek overflowed its banks and covered the highway to a considerable depth. At Harmony the temporary bridge built to replace the one washed out a month ago, was threatened by the floods, the water being right up to bridge level. In view of this condition, all traffic over it was stopped until this morning, when the water had subsided sufficiently to make traffic safe.

The legal age at present is 14 years for boys and 12 for girls.

Judge Dismisses Maple Creek Jury

Rivinsky to Get New Trial

Forced Statement Had Been Submitted As Evidence in Murder Case.

THREATS OF VIOLENCE.

Counsel For Defendant Urges That All Statements Be Barred.

MAPLE CREEK, Sask., May 3. — (Canadian Press).—A new trial will will be accorded Herman Revinsky, charged with the murder of his fellow Hamiltonian, David Katz. When his trial was but three days old yesterday, the jury was dismissed and Revinsky was sent back to Regina to await his new hearing.

Adjournment of the trial followed submission of a signed statement by Revinsky, made three months ago in Vancouver. Police Sergeant A. Ellice of Vancouver admitted that during the confession he might have said something like: "You tell the truth, or we will put a rope around your neck and stretch you longer than you are."

The jury was discharged because the statement, admittedly received after threats of violence had been made, had already been read in court. A. H. Friedgut's counsel for Revinsky, urged that all statements made by Revinsky at any time following the threat be barred as evidence.

Decision to order a new trial came following a noon-day adjournment arising out of Mr. Friedgut's demand and the offer of W. M. Ross, K.C., Crown Counsel, to withdraw the signed statement.

CITIZEN MILITIA PROPER TYPE OF LAND DEFENCE

FREE OF SMALL WARS.

Non-Permanent, Active Militia Has Strength of 51,000, Says Major-General McNaughton.

TORONTO, Ont., May 3 (C.P.).—Citizen militia as the proper type of land defence force for Canada was advocated by Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, chief of the Canadian General Staff, in an address before the Empire Club here yesterday.

Although Canadian Militia has supported such agreements as the Kellogg Pact, the Major-General pointed out that in the last analysis the sanctions of the League of Nations were dependable on the force at the disposal of its members. There were questions touching the fundamentals of national life on which great nations would not accept the award of an outsider. He further declared there were important nations outside the league and powerful forces which were not susceptible to control by any organzation either national or international.

Consideration of the favorable geographical positon of Canada and her abundant natural resources, he said, combine to assure her citizens they shall be free of small wars and Canadians might expect a considerable period of notice of any major dangers that may loom up.

Non-permanent active militia at present organized in Canada, Major McNaughton stated, had a peace establishment of 136,000 and an actual strength of 51,000 of which about 34,000 were trained during the past year.

CANADIAN RAILROADS MAY MEET REDUCTION IN GRAIN RATE IN U. S.

American Railways Reduce Grain Rates Between Buffalo and Atlantic Ports.

CUT TWO CENTS BUSHEL.

President of C. P. R. Says His Road May Reduce Atlantic Rates Also.

TORONTO, Ont., May 3 (C.P.).—The Mail and Empire published the following to-day:

"Reduction of freight rates on grain shipped from Buffalo to American Atlantic ports may be met immediately and equally by Canadian railroads by the reduction of rates between Montreal and Canadian Atlantic ports, and possibly further by the reduction of rates on grain between Western producing points and the Maritimes.

Two Cents Bushel Reduction

Mr. Beatty explained the stretch between Buffalo and North Atlantic was equivalent from a transportation standpoint to the haul from Montreal to Halifax, N.S., Saint John, N.B., and other Canadian Maritime ports. Heretofore, the basic unit rates over the American and Canadian haul have been 'on a practical parity,' he said. Now the American roads have volunteered to cut the Buffalo-North Atlantic ports rate by two cents a bushel, representing it as a measure to relieve grain traffic congestion and to aid the American farmers in moving their grain out of producing areas.

The question of freight rates has been attracting considerable attention at Washington, where advocates of a high tariff for American farmers have asserted many times that the farmers needed greater protection because the Canadian farmer enjoyed more advantageous freight rates for the shipment of his grain eastward to the seaboard.

No Previous Difference

Mr. Beatty's remarks gave the impressions that there was no essential difference heretofore in American and Canadian rates, but that whatever the case the basic relation between the two scales probably would be maintained the same by meeting the present reduction in American rates.

He said: "This reduction announced from Washington charges the relations which had established a practical parity between the rate out of Buffalo to American seaboard ports and the rate from Montreal to Canadian Maritime ports. It destroys that parity. I cannot, of course, say anything definite as to what will be done, but undoubtedly the move by the American roads will be taken up at an early date by the Canadian Freight Association, and I think an equivalent reduction by Canadian railways will be considered.

"The two-cent reduction also will be a factor, I imagine, in the case now before the Dominion Railway Board, in which application is being made by Halifax for the reduction of the long haul rate from the West to the Nova Scotia port. It is again problematical, of course, whether it will influence the Railway Board towards granting the application.

"While Mr. Beatty did not exactly express surprise at the bulletin, he intimated a desire to acquire full information about the change, remarking that he did not know why the reduction should be made at this time by the American roads."

RYE COVE, Va., May 3 (C.P.).—Sweeping into Nolichuckey Valley, a tornado yesterday levelled the Rye Cove consolidated school, killed 19 children, injured seven so critically that physicians did not expect them to recover, and left approximately one hundred others less serously hurt.

APPEAL MADE TO HON. HEENAN

Toronto Society Wants Its Position Defined in Regards to Present Strike.

PREPARED TO PAY INCREASE

TORONTO, Ont., May 3.—(By The Canadian Press).—A distinctly French-Canadian atmosphere was imparted on the annual dinner of the Canadian Daily Newspapers' Association here last night, as a compliment to Chevalier Henri Gagne, Managing Director of Quebec Le Soleil, who is the retiring president of the association, and is the first French-Canadian upon which that honor has been conferred.

M. Gagnon presided at the banquet and Edouard Montpetit, secretary of the University of Montreal, an outstanding litterateur and a former lecturer at the Sorbonne, Paris, delivered the address on "What the province of Quebec stands for." He concluded with an appeal to English-Canadians and French-Canadians to "have the courage to be ourselves."

Wants Nothing Selfish

"Not in any narrow sense do I advocate that" he said. "We all know the useful fable of the 'dog in the manger.' I mean just the opposite of anything selfish, narrow, prejudiced, critical or antagonistic to others. But I do insist upon the necessity of our first being strongly ourselves and then setting out on the delightful adventure of 'understanding others.' And what is really the most important thing, because it concerns the children of our race, those who come after us; let us see to it that none of the really Canadian elements, whether French or English in type, which are ours by inheritance, are lost to the heritage of those who, entering into our labors and reaping the rich harvest of our dreams, may need these precious things more urgently— nay, perhaps at times more desperately than we shall ever know."

M. Montpettit said the Press of Canada had a duty towards Canada of ever placing before the people the idea and the ideal of Canada as a whole. He thought the press the most important power in forming a sound public opinion, independent to some extent of narrow party feelings. He did not expect the Press to be unanimous on every question, and on the contrary believed free discussion was a source of progress. But he insisted upon the necessity of sound discussion—free from any racial, religious or political bitterness—enlarged to the extent of the large dominion, truly and sincerely national.

ELEVATORS FULL AT PORT ARTHUR

Companies Are Laying Off Their Men As No Grain is Moving.

HARBOR IS IDLE.

PORT ARTHUR, May 3.—(C.P.)—With only four vessels loading grain at the Canadian head of the lakes yesterday, Port Arthur and Fort William. 32 elevator plants are practically idle and very little grain is being taken into bins because most elevators are crammed. The last report from the Board of Grain Commissioners showed elevators in the two cities with more than 72,000,000 bushels of grain on hand. The total capacity of all elevators is estimated at around 82,000,000 bushels.

It is understood that two of the elevator companies have laid off their monthly men and have gone back to winter operating. A third house is preparing to lay off men Saturday unless conditions improve. If the blockade in the lower lakes continues for another week, every bit of available space in elevators will have been taken up.

The harbors of Port Arthur and Fort William, usually busy at this season of the year, present a very idle appearance. Not a grain vessel moved out of either harbor yesterday morning.

APPEAL IS MADE TO CANADIANS TO CLAIM HERITAGE FOR CANADA

Edouard Montpetit Addresses Annual Banquet of Canadian Daily Newspaper Association.

"Courage To Be Ourselves."

TORONTO, May 3. (C.P.) — The Dominion Minister of Labor and the Secretary of State have been asked by the Toronto Society of Domestic Sanitary and Heating Engineers to define the unusual position of its members, against whom a strike has been declared by the United Brotherhood of Plumbers and Steamfitters, although the Society is prepared to give wages and conditions contained in an agreement signed by union officer, with the Amalgamated Builders' Council.

The strike has brought work in shops of members of the society to a standstill, and, as a consequence, has seriously affected building operations in the city.

The appeal asks the Minister of Labor and the Secretary of State, if federal incorporation of a group of employers, under the Trade Union Act, might be used for the purpose of bringing about a strike against other employers. Another phase of the situation is that the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the society, are agreed in their opposition to the Builders' Council. The Congress is the mouthpiece of the International Trade Union movement.

WELLAND, Ont., May 3.—(C.P.)—Electing sumamry trial and entering a plea of guilty at Welland police court yesterday, Percy Raymond Chandler, 23, colored, of Fort Erie, was remanded until next Wednesday for sentence on a charge of robbery while armed. Charles Read, local taxi-driver, who was arraigned on a similar charge, was committed for trial by jury. The charges arose out of an armed hold-up on the night of April 15, when 14 Chinese in a boarding house on Fourth street were held up by two armed men, one white and the other colored, and relieved of $770. Chandler was arrested in Buffalo, but his partner has not been located, although his name is known to the authorities.

U. S. REDUCES GRAIN RATES

Heavy Carry-over of Wheat Makes Reduction Necessay in States.

BUMPER CROP EXPECTED.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 3. (C.P.—While Congress marked time on farm relief Eastern rail executives met here yesterday and took a practical step to cut grain export rates as an aid in the "emergency of national proportions," resulting from the heavy carry-over of wheat and the world prospect of bumper crops soon to be on the market.

Although President Hoover's initiative was disclaimed, it is known that the White House approves, and that the administration has been considering the possibilities of large shipments to China as one avenue of outlet from the wheat deluge.

The reduction of the rail rates will take effect about May 10, if the plan goes through on time. Rates of grain "at the east of lower Lake Erie ports to the North Atlantic seabord, will be cut two cents a bushel—from approximately 15 cents a hundred pounds, as at present, to 12.66.

All rail reshipping rates from Chicago to New York for export are to be reduced from 22 1-2 cents a hundred pounds to 17 cents. The all rail rate from St. Louis to New York is to come down from 26 1-2 cents per hundred pounds to 20 cents.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, May 3.—There were just a few cattle off the road and 22 head in by train in the offering at the stock yards yesterday. These were taken up early at prices steady with the week's advance of 25 to 35 cents a hundredweight on the bulk of killers and 50 cents higher in spots.

Nothing real choice was offered yesterday, but practically the high point of the market for the week was shown in the sale of a straight load of choice steers at 11¾ cents a pound.

Baby beef closed this week at 10½ to 13½ cents a pound. The calf supply yesterday amounted to less than a score. Calf prices this week are down a dollar a hundredweight. Choice veal sold at 14½ to 15 cents a pound and common calves downward to 7 cents. The supply of sheep and lambs yesterday was not sufficient to make a market.

Yearlings and spring lambs have been selling at 50 cents to a dollar a hundredweight lower this week than last.

Wednesday's supply of hogs sold late at steady prices on a basis of 13¾ cents a pound for select W.O.C. and there was no change in price on yesterday's light offering. Road hogs being marketed at 13½ cents a pound for select.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, May 3.—Approximately 12,000 cases of butter from New Zealand were reported on track outside Toronto yesterday. This information, indicating increasing supplies, gave the butter market an easier tendency, and prices for No. 1 finest creamery were reduced to 38c per pound, a decline of ½c per pound since Wednesday. This shipment represents the last arrival of large New Zealand consignments, although smaller quantities may make their appearance before the import season closes.

Large dealers reported that domestic supplies are sufficient to take care of consumptive demand, and there was little hope of an immediate price recovery in the market.

Eggs Barely Steady

Increased storage holdings in Toronto and Montreal warehouses imparted a distinctly easier undertone to wholesale egg trading yesterday, although prices were maintained at unchanged levels during the dull trading session. Large dealers were of the opinion that egg prices will have to be reduced before storage is continued at the present rate of activity. They are continuing to store eggs under previous commitments, but state that they are not at current price levels. Quotations to country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, were as follows Fresh extras, 27c to 28c a dozen; firsts 25c to 26c and seconds, 22c to 23c. Quotations to the retail trade were unchanged.

The cheese market was quiet, and prices held steady at from 20c to 20½c a pound for finest No. 1 Government graded, waxed, new cheese, delivered in Toronto.

FIERCE GALE SWEEPS LAKES

All Shipping is Rushing to the Shelter of the Nearest Harbors.

STORM SIGNALS UP.

TORONTO, May 3 (Canadian Press).—In the face of a rising northwesterly gale, the Great Lakes are threatened to-day with the fury of a spring storm which is sending shipping scurrying to the shelter of the nearest harbors, while on shore wind and high water have renewed the flood menace on the low shoreline of Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie.

Late last night Lake Erie and Lake Huron were being whipped into whitening fury by the rising winds, while Lake Ontario was disturbed by the forerunner of the gale, which has been promised for to-day. Over the two lakes storm signals have been hoisted, and vessels were warned not to clear until the intensity of the gale could be determined.

OLD TIME DANCE IS SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

Many Enjoy Jolly Social Event Held at Lakefield.

LAKEFIELD, May 3.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The old time dance, which was put on by the Lakefield Agricultural Society on Friday evening last, set a new high record for attendance at dances in the village with three hundred and the affair did not altogether measure up as the old crowd was either not present or had forgotten the two-step, the stately Schottische and picturesque barn dance as the announcement brought out no entries so the program was altered at the last moment and brought up to date with jazz music and fox trots. The old fashioned square dance is enjoying a revival of popularity and two out of every four or five dances were quadrilles, which were enjoyed by old and young. During the interlude following supper Messrs. Sullivan and McManus gave an exhibition of step dancing which was particularly fine. The lucky number dance was won by Mrs. W. J. Millage and Ralph Payne.

The rye waltz was the only one of the old time round dances to enjoy a revival and it was very popular and one hopes that it will become a permanent features of the program. A unique contest was that for the couple giving the best exhibition of the old fashioned waltz. The prize was awarded by the judges to Mrs. Alex Graham and Allan Crowe. The committee in charge spared no effort to make the affair successful and succeeded far beyond their expectations. To the convenor of the committee, Howard Beavis, belongs a great measure of the credit of the success as he worked indefatigably, sparing neither time nor effort. The committee consisted of H. Beavis, convenor, Miss B. Graham, A. Graham and J. W. Ridpath.

The bride is a newcomer and was warmly welcomed to the village as a resident. Mr. Wannamaker has lived in the village all his life and has a wide circle of friends who delighted to honor him and his bride.

The party was held in the house on Regent street recently occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Carbelli and the spacious rooms were ideal for dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker received a number of useful gifts for which they returned thanks very gracefully. They were the recipients of many good wishes for their life's happiness. The basket of gifts was carried in by Misses Kathleen Wannamaker and Colleen Junkin.

A.Y.P.A. Meets.

It was decided to hold a progressive euchre party on Thursday night. The annual banquet will be held on May 13 and will be under the direction of the committee consisting of all the unmarried members.

ILLEGAL FISHING.

Reports of illegal methods used in the catching of pickerel should be investigated without delay.

The individuals who have been using gaffs or spears to take pickerel here in the last day or two are enemies of sport who should be severely dealt with.

Instead of being grateful for the fact that the pickerel season has not been made the same as that for bass and maskinonge, as was originally planned, these short-sighted people are not playing the game, and they will have no one to blame but themselves if more rigid regulations are passed to deal with the situation.

The decent fisherman who is satisfied to try his luck with the legal method of catching pickerel should have no hesitation in reporting poachers to the proper authorities.

By their conduct they forfeit all right to consideration, and no one should have any scruples about taking steps to prevent a continuance of this illegal fishing, which is bound to have serious results if it is allowed to go on.

Pickerel fishing must be protected from the short sports if the supply of this fish is not to be depleted.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

It is announced by Premier Ferguson that progress is being made in the organization of old age pensions in Ontario, and that the county councils will deal with the question when they meet in June.

Similarly, city councils will shortly have to make arrangements for putting the scheme into operation and for constituting the local machinery necessary to do the work.

Accurate figures as to how many Peterborough people are eligible for this relief are not available, but the number is roughly estimated as around 300.

The Examiner has not infrequent inquiries from people who believe that they are entitled to old age pensions, and who are seeking information as to what they should do to apply for the grant.

Just at present there is nothing that can be done, for no organization yet exists to receive applications.

As proof of age will doubtless be insisted upon, and as the securing of such proof is often a matter that takes some time, citizens who will be entitled to pensions might do well while they are waiting for the scheme to start to secure the necessary proof that they come within the pensionable age limit.

THE SPEEDER IS AT IT AGAIN.

A few months ago the local police department held a check-up of fast drivers with gratifying results.

The appearance of a number of offenders in police court had beneficial effects upon driving conditions generally.

Another campaign along this line would seem to be necessary.

On many of the city's paved streets there is too much fast driving—and by fast driving we don't mean merely exceeding the legal speed limit by a mile or two, but driving at a reckless rate that is inviting disaster.

There is no possible excuse for cars being shot along city streets at 40 or 50 miles an hour—a speed that does not allow the driver a chance to avert an accident if a child suddenly runs out on the road or another car looms up from a cross street.

Yet such speeding is a common thing on a number of streets where traffic conditions make high speed the acme of wrecklessness.

People on Water street the other evening watched a car race up street at 50 miles an hour, drop a passenger at Dublin street, and they come back at the same reckless speed.

What chance had that motorist to prevent an accident if one of the many children playing on the sidewalks at that time had darted out into the road.

Drivers of that type need police attention.

CANADA AND CONSCRIPTION.

A few days ago Dr. W. A. Riddell stated at Geneva that Canadians, in the main, were opposed to the idea of conscription. Public opinion in this country will be generally behind Dr. Riddell in this contention with the qualification that in times of national emergency, when our country is threatened in such a way as to need all available man power, conscription might become necessary.

In the late war there was a very sharp divergence of opinion on the question of conscription. Hundreds, one might almost say thousands, of gallant Canadians of both races did their duty in the firing line, but remained honest opponents of conscription. Thousands of others, unable to go to the trenches, opposed the plan in the Dominion, and yet their loyalty to the Allied cause was never questioned. Altogether it is most doubtful if in any other war of the world's history such a measure could have been adopted in this country. That it was a vital necessity for ultimate victory, however, was the opinion of the majority.

Coercion in any shape or form is anathema to the average Canadian. Moreover another strong characteristic of our people is their independence. Intensely loyal to the British connection, they are at the same time acutely sensitive to any suggestion of interference or patronage from the Motherland. There is not a doubt that if the Old Country was again threatened by a great European combination, Canadians in large numbers would come to their aid, but they would come entirely on their own initiative.

If the League of Nations can make some real headway in limiting the principle of conscription both in peace and war they will be going a long way towards their ultimate objective of international disarmament.

THE VANCOUVER CONFERENCE.

The executive of the local committee of the National Education Council had the advantage yesterday afternoon of hearing from the hon. secretary, Miss C. Hendry, a most interesting report of the Vancouver conference, which she attended as the committee's representative. Two matters were especially stressed at the conference, for action by local organizations. One had to do with the question of imported literature, and the other with moving pictures. It was decided at yesterday's meeting to request the co-operation of the other Hamilton associations interested in educational and social work in the effort to discover and apply suitable remedies. It is, of course, against the objectionable type of American publication—the obscene trash that finds so great a sale in this Dominion, and which is undoubtedly doing our young people an immense amount of moral harm—that the campaign is waged. There is also an objection, however, against even the higher type of imported magazine, which may be quite unexceptionable from the literary point of view, but which nevertheless is not entirely welcome by reason of the "Americanization" of its readers and the loss of business to Canadian manufacturers and merchants because of the advertising of American products. The graver menace—the flooding of this Dominion with demoralizing American magazines, which appeal only to sex instincts, is undoubtedly one which demands prompt action of an effective kind. It is an old question, which has been debated for years. Numerous resolutions have been passed expressive of the indignation of Canadian public opinion and condemning, in unequivocal language, the trash which is dumped in such large quantities over the border. It may seem futile to add another set of resolutions to the list, but when it is remembered that the present effort is to be nation-wide in its scope, the hope for a successful result becomes stronger. As showing the need for action, it may be mentioned that no less a sum than $15,000,000 was spent by Canadians in the past five years on United States' publications, as against only $50,000 for British publications.

As for the other matter, the type of moving pictures presented to Canadian audiences, an interesting and valuable suggestion is made—namely, that the excellent films in possession of the Governments—Dominion and provincial—which are at present available for exhibition in the schools should be shown also to the general public. Whenever there is a suggestion of "educational" films, the answer is always made that the producers and theatre managers are catering to popular taste—that it is a case of supply and demand. But there is little doubt that the appetite for low-grade pictures grows by what it feeds on. The sentimental, nauseating rubbish which is served up to patrons has a vitiating effect, especially on immature minds. The suggestion made by Col. C. R. McCullough that one of the local school auditoriums might be engaged for a weekly showing of these interesting Government films has much merit; it should, at any rate, be possible to make suitable arrangements.—Hamilton Spectator.

ACCIDENTS AT LEVEL CROSSINGS.

An accident that occurred near Chatham, Ontario, and in which two persons were killed and two others injured again reminds the public of the seriousness of the problem of protecting human lives at level crossings of highways over railways. That problem was lately discussed in a report submitted by the committee on prevention of grade crossing accidents of the safety section of the American Railway Association at a meeting in Indianapolis. "Eternal railroad and motorist vigilance, supplemented by the safety precautions which either have been or will be placed in effect by the railroad companies," said the report, "is a substantial answer to the query 'how to prevent crossing accidents.'"

The report showed that in the United States in 1928 there occurred 160 more level crossing accidents than in 1927. In that country 197 more people were killed and 54 more were injured in such accidents last year than in the preceding one. The number of fatalities resulting from highway grade crossing accidents in the Republic in 1928 was the largest in eight years. In the United States 11,485 persons were killed and 32,998 were injured in such accidents in the five years from 1923 to 1927. Last year, in 5,800 accidents of the kind, 2,568 persons were killed and 6,667 were injured. In other words, in six years, 14,053 persons have been killed at level crossings of highways and railways in the United States and 39,665 have sustained more or less serious injuries. In Canada, where neither the population nor the number of motor vehicles in operation is as great as in the adjoining country, the loss of life at grade crossings were much less, but it was large enough to indicate the danger that lurks at such places. In the United States the Interstate Commerce Commission last year decided not to require railroads for the present to extend their installations of automatic train-stop or train-control devices. The commission made this decision in order to leave the railroads in a better position to spend money on the elimination of grade crossings. In Canada Parliament amended the law relating to the administration of the railway grade crossing fund and empowered the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners to contribute more generously than it could in the past toward the cost of eliminating grade crossings or of installing at such crossings devices for the protection of persons travelling on the highways. The Railway Board also secured the appointment of Hon. Frank Oliver, one of its former members, to act as an advisory officer and to assist in the effort to solve the level crossing problem.

These steps that have been taken in the United lead to greater activity inStates and Canada may dealing with the problem. While that is so, they cannot solve it in an instant. That being the case, those who travel in motor vehicles on the highways must remember that, as the committee of the American Railway Association asserted in Indianapolis, there is still need for vigilance on their part when they approach a railway crossing.—Mail and Empire.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"They shall not pass" seems to be the attitude of the official Opposition toward the postoffice estimates.

All the bad weather is not confined to Ontario. St. Louis is recovering from a May snowstorm.

The National Committee of the Diamond Jubilee celebration had a balance of $12,000 left, which is a belated but nevertheless a spectacular feature of the demonstration.

Toronto Communists were howled down by university students when they tried to sing "The Internationale." The Varsity boys are more effective than the police force in a case of that kind.

Not one hotel proprietor has made application to the Liquor Control Board to have his premises declared "dry territory." The driest thing about this amendment, we think, is the Prime Minister's humor.—Hamilton Spectator.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Saturday, May 4, 1929

Astrologers read this as an uncertain day, because while benefic aspects dominate there are sinister signs that are strong.

Under this sway women probably will be exceedingly energetic and yet variable in their mental attitude.

It is supposed to be even easier than usual for the feminine mind to change under this direction of the stars.

While romance many seem to flower at this time and engagements may be numerous among the young, jiltings may be frequent.

This is not an altogether lucky wedding day since divorce may be easily sought, unless stability of affections is sedulously cultivated.

The seers foretell the discovery of a really great play some time before the autumn and they prophesy a return to classical and serious drama.

The evening of this day should be a most auspicious time for entertaining, especially if celebrites are to be feted.

Contacts with prosperous persons should be sought to-day which seems to presage success through influential friends.

International problems of serious import may arise under this direction of the stars which indicates new responsibilities for our American diplomats.

The summer is to bring many varieties of weather and many days of extraordinary heat, if the stars are rightly interpreted.

Resorts of every sort will profit, it is foretold, and owners of hotels will be exceedingly fortunate.

Under this planetary government the speed mania will be even more prevalent than it has been. Many accidents are prognosticated, but general advancement in transportation facilities may be expected.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of journeys more or less imperative. Friends will make demands for help in all probability.

Children born on this date should succeed in science and public affairs. Both boys and girls may have in them the elements of leadership.

Sir Thomas Lawrence, celebrated portrait painter, was born on this date, 1769. Others who claimed this as a birthday were John James Audubon, 1789, naturalist; William H. Prescott, 1786, noted historian; and Amasa Walker, 1799, eminent economist.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE HAVE WAR

(By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D., Author of The Springs of Human Action)

"War is hell," is a saying credited to Sherman of Civil War fame. Although none of the inhabitants of hell have ever returned to tell us about it, we recognize the aptness of Sherman's simile. Whatever the place of torment may be, it is the most undesirable state conceived by the imagination of man. Hence everything that reminds us of it or is associated with horrible experiences is likened to hell.

Whether Sherman was right or not the vast majority of people the world over are convinced that war is not desirable and would avoid it if possible. Why, then, do we continue to have wars?

Until recently the economic side has been unduly stressed. It was said that war is the result of desire for world markets, the desire for possession of natural resources, the need for expansion, etc. We have come to see that the true reason is psychological.

Fear and distrust of others is at the bottom of all preparations for war. The fear and distrust of one nation reacts upon another and both begin to prepare. Envy and jealousy increase the fear and distrust, and at the slightest provocation the two nations fly at each other's throat.

Profiteers and ambitious leaders who would enhance their power and prestige capitalize the human elements involved. . . . the fighting impulse, the emotional thrill of preparation for war and the intoxication of war itself.

A nation at war is more self conscious than at any other time. Many so-called statesmen have brought on wars with outside nations in order to unite their own country, maintain their own power, and increase their personal prestige.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXX.

She raised her face, all flushed and wet and defiant.

"But I didn't stay at home. I couldn't have stayed there alone whatever happened. I went out to dinner with a woman I know—and I had too much to drink."

"Oh, my dear, don't talk like that."

"I did." She drew herself restlessly away from him, and knelt down by the fire. Her face burned, but yet she was shivering.

"I don't remember much about it," she said unsteadily. "But it was a horrible evening—horrible—I don't want to think of it."

"And now—what will you do now, Ana?"

She looked up at him with tragic eyes.

"With the rest of my life, do you mean? That is what Jessica asked me. Jessica was kind, I think she understood. You see some man turned her down once."

"Ana!"

She tried to laugh.

"Well, that's what's happened to me, isn't it? You've turned me down, haven't you? It's quite right, of course, but all the same—" The fierce defiance of her voice broke, and she gripped her hands together to keep back a fresh fit of sobbing that threatened to overwhelm her.

"I've not turned you down. It's cruel of you to say I have. I'd give my life if you and I could belong to each other."

Ana closed her eyes.

"Well, we could," she whispered, with white lips. "A week ago the thought of—of Mollie and the General didn't seem to matter to you, but now—" Hambledon caught her hands, roughly dragging her to her feet.

"I love you as much as I did then; more! And I want you so terribly that I can't tell you how much—can't think of anything else. But it's the boy—"

"And Mollie," Ana said defiantly.

She felt that she hated Mollie; she felt as if she was being forced to look on in silence while Mollie cheated at a game they were both playing, cheated and won.

"Mollie is nothing to me," Hambledon said desperately. "I would not say it to another living soul, but it's God's truth. If I go back to her—"

"If you go back to her!" Ana interrupted passionately. "You've never left her yet! Not that I want you to—I suppose I ought to be very much obliged to you or to Fate, or whatever it was that kept you away from me that night. As a matter of fact, I am! I don't care—not really—"

"You don't care! Look at me and say that again."

She raised her eyes to his; she tried hard to say again, "I don't care," but her lips were shaking so that she had no control over them, and when with a little triumphant laugh Hambledon released her, she slipped down to the floor at his feet, hiding her face, and rocking to and fro in an agony of grief.

"I do care—I do!" she whispered desolately. "I care so much that I want to beg you not to leave me I want to tell you that I can never be happy again without you. I want to tell you that I don't care any more if it's right or wrong—I don't care if I'm punished all my life, and through all eternity, if I can just belong to you, just be loved by you—"

But when he would have lifted her to his heart she would not let him touch her.

"Don't listen to me—don't believe what I'm saying. I think I'm a little mad. I shall be all right presently, when you've gone away. I'm not really a coward. It's only that I'm tired—so tired—"

She dragged herself closer to the fire, holding her trembling hands to its warmth.

"There! now I'm better. Do I look an awful sight? I'm sure I do. I hate crying. I don't often cry, but once I start I never seem to be able to stop." She went on talking, hardly knowing what she was saying, fiercely conscious that if Anthony took her in his arms again she would never be able to part from him, and they had got to part! Life had decreed it—Life had stepped in with a drawn sword and said, "You shall not."

Ridiculous that people could not fight with Life and conquer it, ridiculous that it should be a giant which no David had been able to slay.

She looked up into Hambledon's white face.

"Does Mollie know that you were coming to see me?"

"No."

"I'm glad. She need never know anything about us now, need she?"

"What do you mean?"

"That we were silly and thought we loved each other."

"We never 'thought' it, we knew! We know it now. You know, as well as I do, that if we never meet again we shall love one another to the end of time and eternity."

Never meet again! Ana winced as if he had struck her.

All right to parley words now he was here, now that she only had to put out a hand to touch him, only to raise her eyes to see his beloved face, but what about the months and the years lying ahead of her, when there would be an emptiness in life that nothing could ever fill?

"I can quite understand what Jessica meant about the gas oven," Ana said hysterically. "That's how I feel at the moment, only there isn't a gas oven in the house. Aunt Hilda is afraid of them—she would never have one."

"Ana, what are you talking about?"

Ana laughed shrilly.

"Only what Jessica said. Some man threw her over, and she went home and looked at the gas oven, Anthony!"

He had caught her wrist in a grip that hurt, and his eyes blazed as he looked down into her white face.

"My God, if you say things like that I'll never leave you. Do you think I should ever know one moment's peace or happiness again if I thought, if I dreamed—. Say that you didn't mean it, Ana, that you were just trying to frighten me."

"I wasn't talking about myself. I wasn't trying to frighten you. I was just telling you what Jessica said. Anthony, you hurt me—let me go."

"I will never let you go." She was held fast against his breast. "What does anything matter if only I can have you. I love you; there's nothing in life for me if I'm not with you. We'll go away, Ana—just you and I. We'll be so happy. I can't let you go, after all. You are more to me than anything in the world. Come away with me."

"And—the General?" Ana said in a still little voice.

Hambledon's arms still held her, but they relaxed their hold, and for a moment they looked into each other's eyes without speaking, then Ana raised herself, and kissed him once, very tenderly, on the lips.

"It's beautiful to think of, dear," she said in a whisper. "But—we can't, you know we can't."

She laid her hands on his, gently unclasping them.

"Please go now."

"Ana—"

"Anthony, if you love me—"

"If I love you!"

She closed her eyes before the passion in his.

"Because you love me, then."

"But this is not good-bye."

She could not answer, and he urged again.

"This is not good-bye. You will let me see you again."

"Very well."

She stood rigidly while he kissed her, she dared not even open her eyes, and he kissed her many times, on the lips, and throat, and hair and eyes.

"Good-bye—all my beautiful happiness," he said hoarsely. "Good-bye, my sweetest—dearest—"

As in a dream she felt his arms about her; such strong arms that for a moment seemed to hold her safe against the world.

But for such a small moment, and then the heavy shutting of the front door told her she was alone.

He had come up to town full of great ideas of self-sacrifice and strong determination, and they had all scattered to the four winds as soon as he saw Ana.

What was the use of saying they must part? What were noble sentiments and honorable resolution compared with the ruin and desolation in Ana's eyes? Real love does not come to many people in the world, happily no doubt for the world, but it had come to Hambledon. It was part of him! a thing of which he would never be able to say: "It's all over and done with. It was sweet while it lasted, but time cures everything and I am cured."

One might as well take a man's heart from his breast and expect him to go on living and breathing, as to take Ana out of his life and tell him to be happy and forget. And yet it was he who told her they must part; he who had trotted out platitudes about honor and duty—empty platitudes about as dependable as the straw to which a drowning man will cling.

Down at Lyme Regis with the General's pain-drawn face before him, and Mollie's tears, it had seemed comparatively easy to tell Ana that they could never be anything to one another. Only a few hours ago, only that very morning, he had felt strong and resolute at the thought of saying good-bye to her, but now as he walked away through the sunshine he felt like a man going to eternal exile.

He would never see Ana again, or if he did they would have to meet as the merest acquaintances. Impossible! What was the use of trying to cheat himself with such childishness?

At the end of the road he turned and went back, but a yard from the gate he stopped once more. He had given his word to Mollie that they would begin all over again—that they would never refer to the past, that it was finished and done with. How could he go back on that promise? It tied him with ropes of steel against which he struggled in vain.

Back again—up to London this time, where he found himself in a restaurant staring with unseeing eyes at a menu card which an attentive waiter thrust before him.

"A nice chop, sir—or a fillet steak."

"Yes, no—anything. Bring me what you like. I don't care."

What was Ana doing now? Anthony leaned back and closed his eyes, visualizing the room in which he had left her, with its old-fashioned useless knick-knacks and the bowl of soapy water on the table. Perhaps she was braver than he! Perhaps she was going on washing that awful china—going on with the monotony that was her life. Or perhaps, like him, she was realizing the impossibility of going on at all.

"Some man once threw her over"—and his own reply, "I have not thrown you over."

But he had! He had thrown over the woman he loved for the woman for whom he cared nothing, but who was his wife and the mother of his son. Which was the right thing to do? To whom did he owe first duty? To Mollie, of course, and the General. The pendulum swung back and remorse touched him again. He had been ready to believe the worst of Mollie—perhaps because subconsciously he wanted to believe it, and she had sworn to him that Mahon was nothing to her—that she had just been flattered by his admiration—been vain and greedy for the things he could give her. Flattered by such a man! The only way was to horsewhip him; but Anthony did not want to horsewhip him—he did not care sufficiently for Mollie to wish to do that.

It would take him years to repay the hound his money—he wondered if she had obeyed him and returned the swine's presents. Poor Mollie! how she had cried; not her usual petulant tears, but bitter tears.

Anthony moved restlessly as he remembered the scene between them. She had been genuinely remorseful he was sure, and she loved the General; there was no doubt that she loved the General devotedly.

"A nice grilled steak, sir," said the waiter.

"Oh, all right, thanks."

What did he want with food? It would choke him. He thought of that night he and Ana had supper together; it was afterward that she had said she would come away with him — It hurt like a physical pain to realize all she must have endured when she waited all those hours for him the day of the General's accident. He had suffered, too, but his anxiety for the boy had taken away half the pain. It was only Ana who had drunk her cup down to the dregs.

"And I would give my life to save you a tear." The words spoke in his heart, as if she were there listening. Yes, he would gladly give his life for her, and he could do nothing.

"Steak not nice, sir?"

God! if only the fellow would leave him alone!

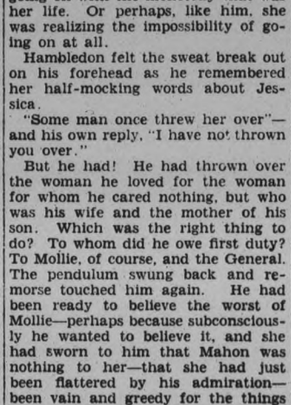
Scout News and Notices



DELORO SCOUT TROOP

MARMORA, May 2.—(Examiner Correspondence).—As the month draws to a close eager interest is being shown in the selection of a Scout to apply for inclusion in the contingent of Boy Scouts going to England for the jamboree this summer. There is very little to choose between the Deloro Scouts eligible and it is quite possible that the Troop Committee or the Troop at a meeting will have to draw the name from a hat to decide.

Troop Leader Manley Emmorey and Patrol Leaders Will Simmons and Eugene Paquet are looking forward to their being present at the Junior Leaders' convention to be held at Peterborough on Saturday, May 4. A general business meeting will be held in the afternoon when Scouting from a Troop and Patrol Leader's viewpoint will be discussed. In the evening a banquet will give a chance to the "cheer" leaders and those with troop calls to show what they can do.

The troop sympathizes with Patrol Leader Maurice Barlow on his inability to take the trip on account of being quarantined for measles. However, now is the time when the troop telegraph circuit should come in handy and provide a little relief to the monotony of staying indoors.

The Laundryman badge is going to receive a concerted attack during May and easily half a dozen Scouts hope to wear it by the end of the month. The ambulance class of seven is also nearly ready for examination and it will soon be possible to figure on who will be the first King's Scout.

The Scout headquarters repairs are coming along in fine shape the Otter Patrol room being nearly ready for the whitewash brush. As soon as it is ready a special meeting will be held when the parents and those interested in Scouting will be invited to see what the headquarters is like and what it is used for.

A hike is being arranged for May 11 or May 18 when the tenderfoot scouts will have a chance to work on some of their second class outdoor tests.

Uncle Wiggily

UNCLE WIGGILY'S STRANGE ADVENTURE

(Copyright, 1929, McClure Syndicate.)

One day Uncle Wiggily started out from his hollow stump bungalow to go look for adventures. He took with him his puddle jumper.

Those of you who read the story last night know what a puddle jumper is. Those of you who did not read the story last night missed something. But I will be fair. I will tell you what a puddle jumper is.

It is something made from the curled wire springs of an old couch tied together with strips. And when a rabbit bobs up and down, teeter tauter like, on a puddle jumper, he shoots up in the air and he can very easily jump over an April rain shower puddle.

Baby Bunty had told Uncle Wiggily how to make a puddle jumper and now the old rabbit gentleman was starting out to try it.

"I shall have a jolly good time!" said Mr. Longears to himself as he tucked the springy puddle jumper under his paw and hopped across the fields and through the woods. "Up to now I have had a great deal of trouble jumping across puddles. But no more, thanks to Baby Bunty!"

The rabbit gentleman was anxious to get to a puddle so he could try his spring jumper and it wasn't long before he reached a place where the April rain had filled a hole in the ground with water. For that's what a puddle is, you know, a hole filled with water.

"Now to jump across my first puddle in a new way!" gaily cried the rabbit uncle. He put the tied springs down on one side of the puddle, went back a little distance to get a run and a head start and then he hopped as fast as he could.

On the springs he jumped, just as Baby Bunty had told him how to jump on the springy old couch and bounce up in the air. And from the puddle jumper Uncle Wiggily bounded high into the air.

Then, just as Bully or Bawly No Tail, one of the frog boys, might have done, Uncle Wiggily sailed across that puddle as nicely as a fly skating on a lump of sugar and presto! He was on the other side of the puddle and without straining himself as he had used to do when he jumped puddles in the old way.

"Why, this is fine!" cried the rabbit gentleman. "Just fine! I'm so glad I have a puddle jumper. I'll hop along now until I get to another puddle and then I'll sail across that."

Then, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily twiddled his left ear. For as he looked back across the puddle he saw his jumper just where he had left it. Of course the springs had stayed there. They hadn't jumped with the rabbit.

"Ha! Ha! This is funny!" laughed the bunny. "I'm as badly off as I was before. Here I am on one side of the puddle and my jumper is on the other side. I shall either have to jump back in the old way and get it, or I shall have to hop all the way around the puddle and pick up my jumper. I guess I'll do that last way. For if I jump without my jumper springs I may fall into the puddle. But I'll think of a way to take my jigger with me next time I jump."

So Mr. Longears walked around the puddle and picked up his jumper and then he hopped along with it under his paw until he came to the next puddle, which was a very large one.

"Ha! I have it!" suddenly exclaimed the rabbit. "I'll tie a long piece of a wild grape vine to my puddle jumper. Then when I sail across the water I'll take the end of my grapevine string with me. And when I land on the other side I'll pull my puddle jumper to me."

Uncle Wiggily tried that way and it worked to a charm. He took a little run, landed on his jumper on one side of the puddle, sailed across the water like a frog, taking the end of the grapevine with him. Then, on the other side he pulled his jumper to him and hopped along.

"Now everything is all right!" chuckled Mr. Longears. And so it would have been if he had not tried to jump too hard to get across a very large puddle. He took a big run, jumped with all his might but, instead of sailing across the puddle, like a frog, he bounced up into the air, very high and was caught in a tree.

"Dear me!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Now I am in a pickle!" He often called a tree a pickle. He dared not jump down for fear of spraining his leg, and he might have had to stay up in the tree, like a pussy cat, all night, except that Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy happened to pass that way coming from the store.

"Wait there, Uncle Wiggily!" she called. "I'll run home and get a mattress for you to jump down on. Then you won't get hurt."

With the mattress under the tree, it was easy for Uncle Wiggily to jump down very softly, and that's what he did.

Around the City

An echo of the plumbers' and steam fitters' strike in Toronto on May 1, and which is still in force, was felt in Peterborough in slight degree when on Wednesday, nearly a dozen union plumbers and steam fitters employed on the new building operations at the C.G.E. acted on instructions from their union in Toronto, and left their work.

The local strikers, it is understood, are all Toronto men, employed by the contracting firms in charge of the new building activities.

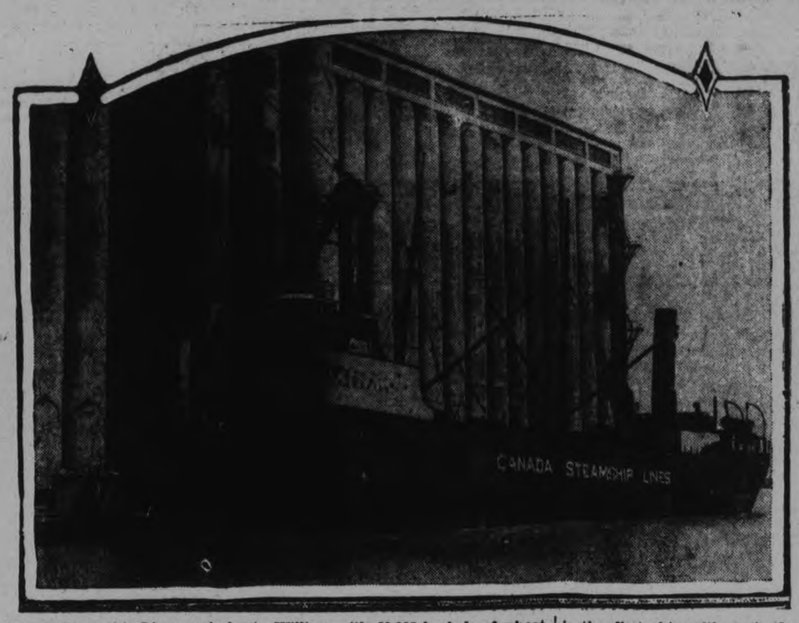
COMPLETES 900-MILE NON-STOP TRIP



Canada Steamship Lines grain boat, the Canadian, is seen here being unloaded at the 2,000,000-bushel grain elevator on Toronto's waetfront, after a 900-mile non-stop trip from Fort William with 60,000 bushels of wheat. The grain elevator has more than 1,000,000 bushels of grain in it, after having shipped 1,000,000 bushels during the winter by rail. The Canadian is the first ship with grain for the elevator this spring. Three ships with cargoes of corn direct from Chicago are expected at the elevator within the next week.

ISSUES SET HIGH RECORDS

Bullish Enthusiasm At High Pitch During Morning Session.

ON NEW YORK CURB.

By Stanley W. Prenosil (Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 3.—(A.P.)—Bullish enthusiasm was at a high pitch in to-days stock market, which witnessed the establishment of more than a score of new high records on gains ranging from 1 to nearly 15 points. Trading started off at a terrific pace, with blocks of 5,000 to 35,000 shares changing hands at the opening, but it slowed up later when weakness cropped out in a few of the volatile specialties.

The unexpectedly small increase of $40,000,000 in Federal Reserve brokers' loans, and the optimistic comments on business by Secretary of Commerce Lamont, provided the background for the "bull' movement. Pools, several of which have been organized in the last few days, provided a good part of the day's activity, whirling their stocks up to attract a public following which reached fairly large proportions in some of the industrials and specialties.

Call money renewed unchanged at 10 per cent. and appeared to be firm at that figure, although if new money comes into the market as usual on Friday for week-end investment, the rate probably will work lower.

I.O.D.E. CHAPTERS WILL CO-OPERATE

At the May meeting of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., held on Thursday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. and presided over by the Regent, Mrs. F. R. Robinson, the Chapter decided to co-operate with the 57th Regimental Chapter in planning a float for the Old Home Week parade.

Four new members were added to the roll of the Chapter and the draw for several articles, on view in the window of V. J. Tully's store, was discussed.

Mrs. J. A. Robinson gave an interesting report of the proceedings of the recent Provincial I.O.D.E. convention in Hamilton.

Believes Preparedness Is Best Preventative

The constant downpour of rain during the past few days has not been without the fear of floods, and deep water on the part of some persons. This morning a lady appeared in the police court, not as a witness or an accused, but merely as a spectator, wearing a high pair of men's rubber boots, not the samples mi-ladies wear, but a pair of honest-to-goodness boots. OIL GOSSIP

Through Solloway, Mills and Company.

Raven Oils, Limited, has completed all preliminary steps towards starting ts No. 1 well in the heart of the Turner Valley. On this well there will be used one of the heavest rotary rigs ever brought into Canada. The company is under the management of E. W. Watson, and a strong board of directors is being formed, the members of which will be announced later. The first Raven well will be on acreage which was formerly held by C. C. Snowdon, W. Livingstone and A. McNabb, being L.S.D. 5, 24-20-3, and negotiations are underway for the acquisition of other acreage on proven structures, the intention being to secure extensive holdings.

The company was financed largely in Vancouver and Manitoba. The capital is set at 1,000,000 shares of no par value and the company will operate under a Dominion charter. Just what arrangements have been made regarding the drilling of the first well have not been definitely decided, but Mr. Watson has ordered the big rotary, which is of the same type as those used in drilling the deep wells in the Santa Fe Springs and Ventura fields in Californa. It will be the latest and heaviest in drilling machinery and will be equipped with Haliburton control.

Drilling will soon be underway again at what is described by westerners as one of the most important tests in Alberta, when work will resume next week at the Wabash well, which is now at a depth of 2,071 feet. The Wabash entered the lime at the phenomenally shallow depth of 1,483 feet and considerable gas was encountered at various horizons. As arrangements have been made for several wells to be put down on the reserve this summer, developments at the Wabash, it will be seen, are of paramount importance.

The Ranchmen's well is now drilling below 3,220 feet and conditions are described as promising with showings of oil and gas continuing. This well is also said to be one of the province's more important test wells, as it will, if successful, prove up a large area. Its operators are look for production at points on the Prairies and results here will throw considerable light on conditions east of the Foothills. Gordon Campbell, noted Montana geologist, who examined the company's leases and selected the drilling site, is very well pleased with conditions. His estimate is that the lime should be reached between 3,500 and 3,600 feet.

Director Oils Limited, recently formed with a captalization of 1,000,000 shares of no par value, proposes to drill on 40 acres adjoining the Sterling Pacfic property, in the southern position of the Turner Valley. The company holds approximately 1,000 acres in Alberta and is headed by N. J. Kerr.

Foothills No. 2 is the latest well to reach the limestone, having struck the top of that formation at a depth of 4,357 feet. A string of 6½-inch casing is being run and as soon as this is cemented and time has been allowed for the cenent to harden, drilling will be resumed.

Diamond drilling which will carry Home 2 to the production horizon in the limestone is expected to start today.

GOODYEAR TIRE LEADS SESSION

INDUSTRIALS STEADY.

TORONTO, Ont., May 3 (Canadian Press).—Goodyear Tire and International Nickel were the redeeming features of a rather listless market on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day when prices were inclined to move in an irregular fashion. Losses and gains were about equally balanced at the noon-hour. Trading was far from heavy, though International Nickel enjoyed active trading and a few stocks such as Ford Motor and Brazilian were somewhat active. A spectacular run in Goodyear sent the price soaring to a high of 375, the noon quotation of 370 showing a net advance of 30.00. International Nickel held close to the morning's high, indicating an appreciation of 15-8 points to 54¼.

Brazilian tumbled down to 54½, a loss of 1¾ points, while Canadian Oil at 57, Walkers at 76½, and Service Stations at 74 were all off a point.

The proper industrial stocks failed to indicate any definite trend, with Cockshutt Plow gaining 1¾ points to 43¾, while Massey-Harris was unchanged at 74. Pressed Metals was two points higher at 31.

TRADING LAX MINE MARKET

NORANDA ADVANCES.

TORONTO, May 3. (C.P.) — With the main interest centred on the more prominent stocks the general list on the Standard Mining Exchange today suffered from lack of attention. There was both a decrease in the volume of trading and the width of the list. Noranda was a bright spot and in the face of a slightly weaker movement climbed up 95c to 54.70. The rest of the price changes were only minor. Sudbury Basin strengthened 15 cents to 8.75, while Teck-Hughes improved 10 to 9.40, Hollinger 10 to 7.60 and Ventures 40 to 9.75. Ajax Oil and Wainwell were both again prominent in trading and were subjected to profit taking, Ajax losing 4 points to 1.23 and Wainwell 5 to 53. Alberta Pacific dipped 20 to 4.70. Abana, Amulet and Big Missouri were all from 3 to 5 points lower.

WELCOME NEW MEMBERS.

The choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church met last night and held the usual preparation session of the music for Sunday. Following the rehearsal, the choristers betook themselves to the Sunday School Hall, and on the call of Chef George East, were seated at the table prepared by "tasty" hands. A pleasant surprise was in store, and behold! out trooped a trio of helpers with platters, laden with fish and chips, pleasing to all palates, judging by the manner of disposal of the golden-colored products of sea and earth. Coffee was supplied to "wash 'em down," as the chef announced.

When Choirmaster M. B. Chenhall called for games and singing, a period of "youthful" merriment was enjoyed by all.

This surprise was the outcome of "man's ingenuity," being provided by the male sections of the choir, whereby several new member were formally introduced and made to feel "at home" with the choristers. Votes of thanks to the "organizers," and "Auld Lang Syne" sent the members away happy.

PRINCE HONORS JAPAN'S RULER

Emperor Hirohito Is Decorated With England's Highest Order of Knighthood.

SECOND CEREMONY.

TOKIO, May 3 (Canadian Press).—Prince Henry, third son of King George, knelt at the feet of Emperor Hirohito of Japan to-day and clasped to his left leg a Royal purple garter, insignia of England highest order of Knighthood.

The moving ceremony completed, Emperor Hirohito journeyed across the city to Kasumigaseki Palace, the Prince's temporary home, to bestow personally upon him the Grand Order of the Crysanthemum, Japan's highest decoration.

The two ceremonies were the climax of a trip half-way around the world for the young Prince, or, as he is more widely known, Duke of Gloucester.

The gorgeous ceremonial of the garter bestowal took place in the throne room of the Imperial Palace. Prince Henry left Kasumigaseki Palace in a downpour of rain, accompanied by Crown Prince Chichibu, brother of the Emperor. A state coach, drawn by six horses, carried them to the famous Nijubashi Bridge, over which, followed by a long retinue, they made their way to the palace hall of waiting.

Meanwhile there had assembled in the throne room the Imperial Princes, courtiers, the British Ambassador and his staff, marshals, admirals, Premier Tanaka, the Government's Ministers, who were drawn up in two lines to the right and left of the Throne.

Wheat Recieves Setback After Early Advances

CHICAGO, Ills., May 3. (C.P.) — Wheat prices scored early upturns today, but afterward underwent a setback. Initial strength was ascribed to announcement that the eastern railroads would reduce export rates on grain, but in some quarters the announcement was construed as bearish. Opening unchanged to 1-4c higher, wheat later showed a general sag. Corn also tended downward, starting at 1-4c off to 1-8c up, and subsequently receding all around. Oats were firm. Provisions likewise tended to advance.

SALE WAS WELL ANNOUNCED

Botnick's Use Two Pages To Tell About the Big Event Now On At Their Store.

Wednesday's Examiner with what is called a double truck or two full page advertisement, gave the public full notice that there are big doings on at Botnicks. Also the well made signs on the windows tell a strong selling out story. It is worth while investigating this event, the prices quoted in the sale announcement are certainly most attractive and Botnicks have the name of living up to all promises.

NO EVIDENCE IS GIVEN BY CROWN of shoc[illegible]3 with ntent. I cannot myself come to the conclusion that any further charge should be preferred," said Mr. Judd.

Evidence is Read

A feature of this morning's hearing was the reading by Mr. Judd, of the part of the evidence of Leo Desroche, the wounded bandit, which was taken at Victoria Hospital last night and read to the coroner's jury after it had retired. Desroche admitted that the three bandits had followed McClellan's car for six miles with intent to hold up its occupants believing that it would be an easy job as it was an American car.

Mr. and Mrs. McClellan and officials of the Detroit police who were here for the hearing, were the guests of the Mayor and Aldermen at a complimentary luncheon at noon before the McClellans resumed their interrupted motor trip to New York.

LIBERALS EXPECTING BALANCE OF POWER

They will raise a road fund loan of probably $500,000,000. Sinking fund and interest charges are to be met from the road fund income which is increasing at the rate of $10,000,000 a year. Interest and sinking fund charges of the proposed loan, so the Liberals contend, will absorb only a small part of the road fund income, and the remainder will be left for use on current road work.

Liberals estimate that of their six main lines of employment, only one, that of drainage, will require contributions from the National exchequer. And against this expenditure they set these "items of financial gain."

(1) Repayment to the treasury in two years of $155,000,000 owing by the unemployment insurance fund.

(2) Restoration to work and wages involved in the scheme would increase the national revenue, on the existing basis of taxation, by $50,000,000 a year.

(3) Economy of unproductive expenditure particularly on unnecessary armaments.

(4) Swollen land values due to the public construction of new roads and town planning would be automatically appropriated by the state and municipalities and would thus provide a substantial margin for the relief of rates and taxes.

"In view of these facts," comments an official outline of the scheme, "we are entitled to say, and do say with complete confidence, that the Liberal plan for conquering unemployment will not add one penny to the national or local taxation."

OLD HOME WEEK NEEDS SUPPORT

conveyance, motor laws made by the community to safeguard and control traffic; education of children. From the day of birth to the grave the speaker proved that an individual is safeguarded, pampered and ruled by the community. "There are people in this audience and people in Peterborough who are not paying enough municipal taxes to pay for the education of their children without considering the other great benefits they derive from the community" he stated.

"Ask yourselves the question 'What kind of place would Peterborough be, if every citizen was just like me'?" he continued. "There is not a man in Peterborough who gets as good a returns for the money spends as he does from his municipal taxes."

Mr Miller then began to tell of some of the prime needs if the big community event, the Old Home Week, was to go over the top. A lazy chairman was one who would make it necessary that every person work on the committee should do his share if the work was to be done. "One man town is one horse community" he said. "If the men who are appointed chairmen or members of committees do not do their work, they should be immediately replaced."

He went on to draw from a wealth experience gained from the Orillia Old Home Week, to advise his hearers of the necessity for featuring entertainment that would be most attractive to the Old Time residents, such as the holding of school for the boys and girls of fifty years ago; concerts and athletic events which would bring in the older people rather than the usual run of present day entertainment, and concluded by urging Peterborough to stress the opportunity for re-union of old friends, which its Old Home Week would afford.

I. P. McNabb expressed the appreciation felt by the whole audience to Mr. Miller, Miss Collins and Mrs. Richmond. He said that Mr. Miller's advice would be of the utmost benefit in instructing the local committee in the wisest course to pursue for the entertainment during Old Home Week.

Indian Generals Are Reported To Have Defeated Loyal Force in Sonora.

ESCOBAR DISAPPEARS.

AGUA PRIETA, Sonora, Mexico, May 3 (C.P.).—While all the border towns were in Federal hands to-day, reports persisted here that rebel forces under the Indian Generals Marcelo Caraveo and Ramon Yucupicio had defeated Federal General Juan Andreu Almazan in north-eastern Sonora.

The whereabouts of General Jose Gonzalo Ecobar, Commander-in-chief of the revolutionary forces was a mystery. Escobar left Nogales last night. Turned up here Tuesday night but vanished a few hours later when several of his generals crossed the border and plans were made for surrendering the town to Federals.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD SOCIAL

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE.

DUNSFORD, May 3.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The young people of the community held a very successful social and entertainment in the United church hall on Monday evening. Elwood Beavis presided and announced the different items on the program. The major part of the entertainment was given by Rev. W. A. E. Doe, B.A., pastor of Woodville United Church, who gave a lantern slide lecture on "Beautiful Bermuda." Rev. Mr. Doe was born in the Bermuda Islands which are situated about six hundred and fifty miles south-east of New York city in the Atlantic ocean. The pictures shown were of the governor's home, who until recently, was a brother of the late Lord Kitchener, the splendid roads mostly cuts through the hills, scenes in the capital city of Hamilton, commodious hotels erected mainly to accommodate the tourists, many of whom come from New York, fish and fishing docks, beautiful flowers, palm trees, red cedars and bamboo. A water shed was shown to illustrate the artificial way in which drinking water is obtained. There are no rivers or springs and very few wells. Rev. Mr. Doe stated that it was possible to grow three crops of potatoes in one year, the climate being such that one crop would be planted just as soon as the former one had been harvested. There are up to the present no railroads and no automobiles, the legislative authorities having each year for a quarter of a century refused the right of having motor vehicles brought into the country. Fish are very plentiful and of many varieties. The buildings are built of white stone, the roof being of the same material. They have to be securely made as in the month of September violent storms are frequent. The streets are quite narrow and the country very hilly. The population is made up of half black and half white people; there are no mixed marriages and although the black people are cultured and educated a clear line of separation is drawn between the two races, the one having very little intercourse with the other. The water around the islands is so clear that when a small five cent piece is dropped over a boat it can be plainly seen at the bottom in forty feet of water. There are about 365 islands in the group and Rev. Mr. Doe suggested that anyone going on a vacation might spend a year by passing one day upon each of the islands.

Other items on the program were a short paper on "Conversation" by Rev. Mr. Everson; a duet, "Carolina Moon", by Misses Idena James and Myrtle Kennedy; dramatic freak, "Stop, Look, Listen", by Orville Burgess, Lloyd Lyle and Idena James; solo, "The End of a Perfect Day," by Delmer Thurston and two solos, "Anchored" and "For You Alone" by Rev. Mr. Doe. Lunch was served at the close and a social hour enjoyed.

"I have to work in the store and do my own housework, too, and I got nervous and run-down and was in bed nearly all summer. The least noise would make me nervous. I was told to take Lydia E. I am looking after my store and housework and my four children and I am getting along nicely now." —Mrs. J. Malin, R. R. No. 5, Barton St. East, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada.

I.O.O.F. ATTENDS DIVINE SERVICE

Members of Pontypool Order Take Part in Church Service.

PONTYPOOL, May 3.—(Examiner Correspondence).—I.O.O.F. No. 296 attended divine worship in the United Church here on Sunday evening. The choir gave several extra numbers which were much enjoyed. The pastor, Rev. H. Boomhour, preached a splendid sermon which received many favourable comments. After the church service the parade, marshalled by E. Youngman, returned to the lodge room, after which short speeches were given and a vote of thanks extended to the pastor and to the church board.

Purchases Business.

William Rennie, his wife and family, who have been living at Port Credit, have returned to this village. Mr. Rennie has been a very thrifty citizen of this village for some years. He started here in the shoe repairing business and afterwards built the Latonia Hotel which he sold last fall to Fred Graham. Owing to ill health in the family he was obliged to move from Port Credit, where he was conducting a barber business. It is understood that Mr. Rennie has purchased the hardware business from Richard Staples, of this village.

Seed Potatoes Unloaded.

A car load of about four hundred and fifty bags of No. 1 Seed, Certified Dooley potatoes, was unloaded here recently. These were purchased by the farmers in this locality. The potatoes came from Alliston, Ontario, and were handled through the secretary of the Pontypool Potato Growers' Association. Some real good work was done in securing orders for this seed and this ought to be the origin of a real live club and should interest the farmer in growing better seed and thereby be able to command a better price for a product for which this locality has already attained a good name. A meeting has been arranged for to be held in Chosen Friends Hall on Wednesday, May 8, when J. A. Carroll, of the Crops, Co-operation and Markets Branch, will speak to the potato growers.

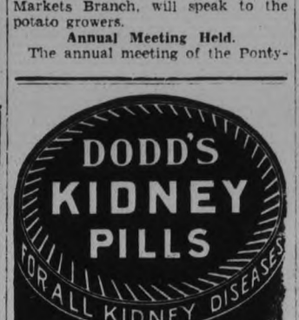
Annual Meeting Held.

The annual meeting of the Pontypool baseball team was held in the office of A. Stewart on Thursday evening. Considerable discussion took place and it was decided that the team would carry on as usual.

The line up is weakened by the loss of the services of Murray Clarke, star pitcher who is now working in Toronto in the Confederation Life office. L. Lowery, second baseman for some years, is also away but the management hopes to strengthen the team by the use of some younger boys this season. The officers of the team are:

Manager, John Payne; captain, Will Chapman; secretary, A. Stewart.

The initial workout was held Saturday evening.



W.M.S. ATTEND CHURCH SERVICE

Mrs. Barnet, of Toronto, Addresses Members of Fenella Society.

FENELLA, May 3.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. Barnet, of Toronto, delivered a most interesting address in Fenella United Church on Sunday morning, when the local W.M.S. were responsible for this service. Mrs. M. R. Brown, president of the circuit Auxiliary, had charge of the service. Mrs. W. J. Jibb, president of the local branch, read the Scriptural lesson found in James 2:14-26.

Mrs. Barnet, in her address, emphasized the fact, that small gifts, when shared, become very valuable. She urged all W.M.S. members to make use of all talents at their disposal to further God's work in the world, reminding them, that no matter how small or mean the gift may seem in our sight, yet when shared with God, He can make it become most valuable. The choir, composed of W.M.S. members, sang special music as follows: A chorus, "I Want Everybody to Know"; duet, "I Belong to the King", Mrs. Howard Macklin and Miss Florence Macklin; solo, "He Wipes the Tear From Every Eye", Mrs. A. Nill.

Mrs. Frank George and Mrs. Hugh Sherwin passed the collection plates, the offering being a special donation to W.M.S. funds.

Tender Accepted.

At the Cemetery Board meeting, held in Bethany Church, Macklin settlement, on Tuesday evening, the McNaught tender for caretaker of the cemetery for the coming year was accepted by the Board. Arrangements for decoration day service were left over to be arranged for at the Board meeting to be held in June.

OBITUARY

HUGH HARPER

TORONTO, May 3.—There passed away on Friday at his home, 26 Classic avenue, Hugh Harper, beloved husband of Jennie Allen and father of Mrs. Edgar Worth, Pasadena, California; William Zetta and Allen Harper of Toronto.

The funeral was held on Saturday at his home, Toronto.

MRS. ROY MATTHEWS.

COLBORNE, May 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death occurred on Friday morning, April 26, in Cobourg Hospital, of Mrs. Roy Matthews, of Victoria Street, Colborne, following a serious operation.

Mrs. Matthews is a sister of Mrs. Thomas, 243 Princess Street, Peterborough. She will be missed by many as a kind and beloved friend and neighbor.

ROYDEN CHARLES GRAY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, May 3. — The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon of Royden Charles Gray, who met his death by accident on Monday. The attendance was exceptionally large, the especially sad circumstances drawing people from long distances to pay a tribute of respect to a plucky boy and to extend sympathy to the bereaved parents. The funeral service was in charge of Rev. S. A. Kemp, Rev. H. B. Herrington and Rev. T. M. Wesley, and was impressive, and by its very simplicity brought home to the large crowd the uncertainty of life, and the certainty of death. We mourn not as those without hope but in the sure and certain hope of a life in the world to come where sin and death are unknown and where "they who gain that shore have won their immortality and they can die no more."

Two favorite hymns were sung: "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

The pall bearers were Hector Gray, Kenneth Payne, Clayton Dunford, Chester McCracken, Tom Russell, Ivan Butler.

Interment was made in the Lakefield cemetery.

Royden Gray was a popular young fellow, who in his brief life had made many warm friends, not only among the young people, but among older people who appreciate such courteous regard for them and his cheery greetings. Although terribly injured, he showed his plucky spirit by his tremendous effort to reach help. The entire community like one big family, joins in deepest sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Gray in the loss of their son, who was on the verge of manhood, and who met his death while doing his duty, and met it bravely as a soldier of Christ.

MRS. SAMUEL TRUDE

LAKEFIELD, May 3.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock of Violet Pearson, wife of Samuel Trude from the family residence, Water street, Lakefield. There was a very large attendance, which included many relatives and old family friends, who gathered to pay a tribute to a dearly loved woman, who possessed the virtues commended by St. Paul, of finding her pleasure in her home and its manifold duties. She was a dutiful and affectionate mother. The funeral was in charge of Rev. T. M. Wesley, assisted by Rev. S. A. Kemp and Rev. W. J. Creighton. Several favorite hymns were sung and Mr. Wesley's address was filled with words of comfort to the stricken family.

He spoke of the hope we have given us in the words of our blessed Lord, Himself, that life in its fullness came to us when we were gathered in the place of many mansions, prepared by the loving Father of mankinnd.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Wellie, Reg. and Stanley Pearson and Frank, William and Walter Trude, brothers and brothers-in-law of the deceased. The interment was made in Lakefield cemetery.

Mrs. Trude, who prior to her marriage, was Violet Pearson, a daughter of Mr. Harry Pearson of Smith; she had lived all her life in Lakefield and Smith township where she was born thirty eight years ago. She possessed a sweet disposition which won many friends to whom she was loyally attached. She loved her home and family and found her greatest pleasure in service to her loved ones.

She was a member of Knox United Church and, until ill health prevented, she took an active part in the work of the organizations.

She is survived by her husband and one son, Harold, her father, and three brothers, Wellie, Reg. and Stanley Pearson, all of Smith, and two sisters, Mrs. Galvin Dunford and Mrs. Wilbert Northey also of Smith.

WEDDING BELLS

CROSBY—COLEMAN.

WARSAW, May 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — A wedding of interest to some Examiner readers took place at Tampa Shores, Florida, recently, when Joan Isobel Coleman, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Coleman, who went to Florida from Toronto about eight years ago, was joined in the holy bonds of matrimony to Gilman G. Crosby, of Vera Beach, in the Community Methodist Church, Tampa Shores, with Rev. R. E. Hillier officiating.

The church chancel was banked with ferns and decorated with roses in several shades of pink. Preceding the ceremony Gordon Witham, of New York, soloist, and Mrs. Witham, as pianist, gave a program of nuptial music.

The bride entered the church with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. Her wedding gown of white moire taffeta was simply fashioned, and her tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. Her flowers were bride's roses, showered with lily of the valley. Miss Beatrice Coleman, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid, and Harvey Mook acted as the groomsman. Donald Coleman and R. Bristow were ushers.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Crosby will make their home at Vera Beach.

SERIOUSLY INJURED.

HAMILTON, Ont., May 3.—(Canadian Press).—Alfonso Nabucco, a fruit dealer who resides at 118½ Market street, Brantford, was critically injured yesterday when his truck was demolished by C.P.R. flyer number 712 at the Freeman crossing on the Plains Road near Burlington. Ultra-Violet Rays Give Health Vitamin of Sunshine to this Cereal. Try it!

SUNSHINE is Nature's greatest tonic! And now a great scientist adds the health vitamin of sunshine to Muffets, the whole-wheat biscuit, by irradiation with Ultra-Violet Rays.

We want you to become acquainted with irradiated Muffets. So, today, we're mailing to every family in the city a coupon good for one full-size package absolutely free!

Watch for your coupon from the postman! Take it to your grocer. He will hand you a package of irradiated Muffets without your paying a single cent. Do not delay, for the coupons are good only till Saturday May 11, inclusive.

"Ribbon" of whole wheat

Muffets . . . a different idea in cereals. A "ribbon" of cooked whole wheat wound 'round and 'round and baked to the crispness of toast. Eaten with cream and sugar, with added berries or fruit . . . Um-m-mm! What a meal! And Muffets are healthful in a way no other whole-wheat cereal in the world can claim to be. By irradiation with Ultra-Violet Rays . . . the discovery of Professor Steenbock of the University of Wisconsin . . . this new cereal now contains and passes on to you the healthful Vitamin "D" of sunshine.

Vitamin "D" the "sunshine vitamin", enables the body to make full use of the lime in foods. Teeth and bones are built of lime. Physicians say that everyone must have ample Vitamin "D" if teeth are to be sound and hard—bones straight and strong.

All need "sun" vitamin

Everybody, young or old, benefits greatly from an ample supply of the "sun vitamin". The lowered vitality which you feel, particularly at the end of the dark winter months, is in part due to "sunshine starvation," say health authorities. So here's your chance to get a "dash of sunlight" at every meal.

Watch for your Free-Package Coupon in the mail. Take it to your grocer. Then . . . tomorrow . . . breakfast for health and enjoyment on irradiated Muffets!

All Muffets are Irradiated

All Muffets on your grocer's shelves have been irradiated, whether so stated on the package or not. There are two Muffets packages, but only one kind of Muffets—in every package the same irradiation, the same quality, the same wholesomeness of the whole wheat.

CANADA RICH IN LITERARY MATERIALS

English Author Surprised Larger Number of Epics Not Created.

VAST STORE OF RESOURCES.

Country Has Not the Great Leisure Population Required to Take Adavance of Literature.

TORONTO, May 3. (C.P.) — Surprise that Canada has not produced a greater number of epics considering the highly colorful beginning the dominion had together with the romantically historic background of the land itself, the tales of the Jesuits, and the Indian legends, was expressed by E. T. Raymond, English author, playwright and essayist, who is visiting Hart House, University of Toronto, for a few days. He is carrying on research work in the University library on the French regime in Canada for a play that he will produce soon in London.

"Of course," declared Mr. Raymond, "Canada has not a great leisure population. To do full literary justice to the Dominion might take another generation." Ernest Raymond is not the man to visit a place for a few days, and then write a book about it. His visit to Canada will result in only one historical sketch which he had already conceived. The play will deal with one of the incidents of early 17th century history which have left Mr. Raymond why no Canadian has dramatized such material before him.

The heroine of the play was the daughter of a barber of Mans and was shipped out to de la Tour in Acadia by that nobleman's agent who had been ordered to send a wife along with the rest of the supplies. De la Tour was at war with another adventurous nobleman, D'Aunay, as to who represented the King of France in Acadia, and whatever her beginnings Madame la Tour proved a valuable ally espousing her husband's quarrel, like the intrepid Amazon she was.

After a long conflict de la Tour and his wife were blockaded in their fort by their rival. De al Tour escaped to Boston to seek the aid of the British. In his absence D'Aunay attacked the fort but was repulsed by the gallant defense conducted by Madame La Tour who taunted her enemies from the walls to encourage her little force. D'Aunay succeeded in the end only by resorting to treachery and the gallant defendress was subjected to the indignity of being stood with a halter about her neck to witness the wholesale hanging of her men. Put into confinement "she fell ill with spite and rage," says an old chronicler, "and died within three weeks."

Some years later, after the death of D'Aunay, La Tour brought this curious drama to a conclusion by marrying the widow of his rival and obtaining restitution from the king, who made him governor of Acadia.

And when he meets the members of the Group of Seven Mr. Raymond intends to ask them why they have not painted more pictures of his prairies. He came expecting to be bored by the prairies' monotony, he said, and instead finds them the one feature staying in his mind. He enjoyed their "extraordinary panorama of color of distance and the exquisite rhythm of curves and folds," he said, pointing out that the Canadian Rockies can be paralleled in Switzerland, and the rugged north has its counterpart in Norway, but the prairies are unique.

TEXTS OF VOTE MADE PUBLIC

Chinese Nationalist Government Sends Note To Six Countries.

REMOVE RESTRICTIONS.

SHANGHAI, May 3.—(Canadian Press).—The texts of note sent to Great Britain, United States, Holland, France, Norway and Brazil by the Nationalist Chinese Government seeking abolition of extra territorial privileges in China were made public.

The six notes were virtually identical.

The note states that nationals of those countries which have already given up extra territoriality privileges were experiencing no difficulties under the Chinese laws. It concluded, saying : "It is the Nationalist Government's desire to remove at the earliest possible date the restrictions on China jurisdictional sovereignty. Therefore the Nationalist Government hopes the (named government will take this desire into immediate consideration.'

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Special Services Conducted in Owenbrook Church For Late Frederick Wheeler.

APSLEY, May 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—A memorial service for the late Frederick Wheeler was held in St. Andrew's Church, Owenbrook, on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Wheeler assisted materially in the building of the church over thirty years ago, and held the office of church warden continuously, until he left four years ago to live with relatives near Campbellford, where he died on April 2, and was buried in St. Andrew's Churchyard. In his will he left a bequest of $50 to the church and a similar amount to the Rev. C. A. G. Spence, who conducted the memorial service, assisted by Rev. E. W. Gardner. Both clergymen gave addresses in which they feelingly referred to the deceased's estimable qualities, both as churchman and neighbor.

Attend Conference.

Rev. C. A. G. Spence attended the Archdeaconry Conference in Cobourg last Wednesday and Thursday, and Philip Tanner, Frank Tanner, Harry Tanner and Hubert James attended the laymen's supper on Wednesday evening in connection with the conference.

CLOUDBURST HITS ST. CATHARINES

Main Street of City is Said to Have Been Foot Deep With Water.

HEAVY DAMAGE.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., May 3.—(C.P.)— A cloudburst which struck St. Catharines last night placed the city and the surrounding district under a heavy blanket of water.

St. Paul street here was a foot deep in water and it is reported there was a heavy damage toll among merchants who had goods stored in the cellar. The blowing out of a power transformer during the storm left half the city in darkness.

At Thorold the front street was reported to be like a river. Grimsby escaped the worst part of the downpour and no damage was reported.

Two scows being towed from Trenton, Ont., to Port Dalhousie, broke loose and drifted westward to run aground about a mile west of Port Dalhousie. No estimate of the damage done by the storm could be made last night.

TAG DAY FOR CHOIR TO BE ON SATURDAY

To Enable Peterborough's Leading Male Vocal Organization to Go to New York.

To-morrow you will be asked by ladies in charge to contribute to a tag day fund to supplement a sum being raised by the members of the Male Voice Choir, and citizens generally, so that the Male Voice Choir can take part in contest in which only three other Canadian choirs will participate and seventy-six from the other side.

Peterborough does support its worth while institutions and this organization is one that has done a great deal for music in the city.

The committee hope your contribution will be as generous as possibe to-morrow.

That Body of Yours

(By Jas. W. Barton, M.D.)

YOUR BODY AND YOUR MOTOR CAR.

Some six years ago I compared that body of yours to a motor car: The stomach is the gas tank. The small intestine is the carbureter, because the small intestine is where the important "mixture" of the foods and digestive juices take place before being absorbed into the blood. our steering gear is your brain. Your springs are the arches of your feet. Your oiling system is the oil in the joints which allows the bones to come in contact with one another without friction. Then there is the oil in the skin which prevents it becoming dry and harsh, and is a protection against water and other liquids. The lining surfaces of the body, like the nose, throat, intestine, and covering of the lungs, all manufacture a fluid to keep everything smooth and moist. Your tires are the connective tissue "cushions" that are found between all the bones of your spinal column. These cushions fit in between the bones which are sustaining your weight and take away the jar from that precious bundle of nerve tissue—the spinal cord—and thus from the brain itself. Your clutch is your power to put that body of yours into its right gear: low, second, high, or reverse. Your brain of course tells you which gear to run in, according to what you are doing. Sleeping is low gear; second gear for a hard job, just as the car uses second for a hard hill; and high gear for the usual tasks of life—your natural rate of speed. In reverse gear you are backing away or trying to undo some mistake you have made with that body of yours. And your cooling system is your skin. Just as your car stalls or gets "seized" if it gets overheated, so would that body of yours if it were not for the skin's ability to lose heat. Your compression is your desire to work. In a car a little carbon interferes with compression and causes a leak. Similarly a little poison from the teeth, tonsils, intestine or elsewhere can lower your compression. Your brakes in the car enable you to take care of emergencies. What about the ability of that body of yours to take care of emergencies? My space is limited, but the above is enough to show that your body has many points in common with a motor car. You can't replace worn parts, but your body is more wonderful than a motor car in that it has the power of healing or correcting its defects if you give it a chance.

SALE WITHDRAWS.

LONDON, May 3.— (Canadian Press).—The famous Portland Vase, offered at Christie's Auction Rooms yesterday was withdrawn after 29,000 guineas (about $145,000) had been bid ,the reserve price not having been reached.

Tight hats, worn by women of today, are likely to result in baldness becoming as common among them as it is among men.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

To Neutralize Acidity and Fermentation. Prevents Indigestion, Sour Gassy Stomach.

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and got little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate of milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

THE SEASON for weddings is approaching, and with it come inquiries about forms and customs. The letter before me brings to one of the questions that often proves puzzling, until it is understood.

* * * * * * *

The letter reads as follows:

"My Dear Marion—Can you advise me if it is generally customary or entirely optional for bridesmaids to wear hats at an afternoon wedding; also the immediate family?"

* * * * * * *

The answers begin with, "it all depends," for there are two kinds of weddings—church weddings and home weddings. If the wedding is in the church, hats or some head covering should be worn. If the wedding is at home, the preference of the bride is followed.

* * * * * * *

Back of the church rule there is a definite reason, which should be understood. The custom of women wearing hats, veils, or something on the head in church dates back at least to the time of St. Paul, and probably ante-dates even that. It indicates a certain respect and reverence.

* * * * * * *

You know that women who are presented at court wear veils. It would be just as disrespectful for them to go bareheaded to the presentation as for men to wear their hats at the same occasion. They are formally coming into the presence of royalty.

* * * * * * *

And so women show their respect to the King of Kings when they have the heads covered in church, and the men invariably uncover their heads for the precise reason.

* * * * * * *

Can you imagine an usher walking up the aisle with his hat on! It strikes us immediately as absurd. But it is more than that—it is disrespectful. The reverse is true of women.

* * * * * * *

There is a fundamental principle involved in the custom, which is not optional, but essential. It is no mere whim of fashion.

* * * * * * *

However, it must be understood that there is no intentional lack of reverence in women who go "uncovered" (as it is termed) to a wedding, but merely a lack of knowledge. Immediately a woman knows the facts she respects the custom. In some churches no woman is permitted at any time to enter uncovered and no man with his hat on.

* * * * * * *

It is well to understand, however, that hats are not specified as the covering. Short veils are frequently worn instead of hats by bridesmaids. Garlands of flowers also serve as a "covering," or feathers; it matters not what the covering is so long as something is worn on the head.

* * * * * * *

This rule includes all women at a church wedding and not the bridal party alone. And so in advising in the matter there is no choice left but to tell you the ruling and impress the fact that church form and social etiquette both distate that some head-dress shall be worn by women at church weddings.

* * * * * * *

In one's own home, however, this ruling about having the head covered does not apply to the bride, bridesmaids, family or women guests. At afternoon weddings, the guests customarily wear hats, just as at any formal reception.

* * * * * * *

I may add that in the evening hats are not generally worn at a home wedding. Even when they have been worn at the solemnizing of the marriage at church, hats are discarded at the home receptions of evening weddings.

* * * * * * *

Speaking of customs, there is one that appeals to the ushers and bridesmaids especially, and that is the presenting of souvenirs to them by the bridal couple.

* * * * * * *

Not only does the bride give boutonnieres to the best man and the ushers, but she is apt to give the bridesmaids some trinkets, usually jewelry, as keepsakes.

* * * * * * *

The groom gives the bride, the maid of honor, and all the bridesmaids their bouquets, and the best man and ushers mementoes. These need not be expensive, but they certainly are appreciated. Bracelets, rings, fans, etc., make good bridesmaids' presents, while cuff links, match boxes, cigarette cases, etc., are sure to please the men.

* * * * * * *

Whatever is chosen, all the gifts should be identical, that is, all bracelets or all fans for the bridesmaids and al cuff links or all match boxes for the ushers, though the souvenirs for the maid of honor and the best man may be a little nicer, and it is even permissible to have them different in kind from the others.

* * * * * * *

Sometimes the most effective frocks for children are those that are most easily made. This week's diagram pattern shows how to make a charming sleeveless frock from cotton or thin silk. If you will send me the coupon I will gladly send it to you with directions for making and sketch of the finished frock.

* * * * * * *

When a home-maker goes away for a few days' vacation, such as a week-end trip, it means that the home should be left in good condition to enter when returning without any immediate sensation of work pressing on the mind

* * * * * * *

If tasks confront one as soon as the threshold is crossed, the benefits of the little vacation slip away before they should. All this means that careful work and planning should be done before going away, but it amply repays.

* * * * * * *

Where plants are in flower pots, they can be kept in fair condition by fixing in the following way: Place the pots in the bathtub or in the washtubs, draw enough water to fill the tub for the depth of about one inch. See that the stopper fits so that the water will not leak out. Water the earth in the top of the pots. The soil will keep wet and the plants will flourish.

* * * * * * *

Be careful not to have too much water in the tub, for it should all be absorbed in about 24 hours. More water will be apt to rot the roots of the plants, and they will die of too much water instead of too little.

* * * * * * *

As it is, it will take some time for the soil to get "bone dry," probably not before your return home.

* * * * * * *

Pets are not so easily fixed. They must be arranged for. Perhaps a neighbor will feed them, or some friend will take them for the few days that you will be absent. If not, there are places in the city where animals can be boarded for a long or short time and where they will have fine care.

* * * * * * *

Put a notice in the milk bottle asking that no milk or cream be left until the day specified or until further notice, and your bill will not grow during your absence.

* * * * * * *

Empty the refrigerator of food that will spoil and see that ice goes into the chest the day you leave if there is food remaining that should keep several days. The ice will last better while you are away than when home, for the refrigerator door will not be opened and the warm air let in.

* * * * * * *

Be sure that the lights are turned off everywhere. Don't forget to take a last look in any closet where there is an electric light that might be forgotten. Close all windows, and lock them. Draw down the shades of sunny windows and the rooms will be cooler than if the rooms were flooded with sunshine. Don't forget the closet windows, for the rain may come in even though the windows are small.

* * * * * * *

See that no clothes are left dampened down or they may mildew. Towels should be spread out on racks so they will dry soon. Indeed, there are many details to be seen to, but many of them take but little longer to attend to than it takes to name them over.

* * * * * * *

Just keep this handy and refer to it when you are leaving on a trip.

The skin of a sound piece of fruit acts as a perfect protection against the intrusion of bacteria and dirt. The fruit within a sound orange skin is every bit as securely protected as the milk within a sealed bottle of certified milk. But if we want to take advantage of nature's perfect sealing we should wash fruits carefully before cutting into it. Grapefruit, oranges and lemons should all be washed most thoroughly before they are cut.

Apples, plums, peaches and such fruit may be eaten with comparative impunity with the skins on, if gathered directly from the tree, but if they have been bought in market then it is best to remove the skin—or at least to wash it very thoroughly. Fruit picked fresh from trees is harmless enough providing the trees are not exposed to the dust of the road. Also make sure that trees have not been sprayed for pests or disease after the fruit has formed. The substances used for such spraying have been known to cause real harm.

Berries should be bought as fresh and free from dust as possible, because if they are really contaminated the sort of washing that is possible would not make them perfectly fit for food. Therefore select berries that have not been exposed to the dust and get them as soon after the crate has been opened as possible.

Berries should be washed thoroughly to rid them of sand if not actual dirt. This should be done before they are hulled, and may be well done by putting them in a large colander and then letting cold water run through them. It should run through for some time in order to make them really clean.

A quick dipping into very hot water removes dirt more quickly than cold water and peaches, plums and many other fruits may be dipped in this way without impairing flavor or appearance. They should be drained and cooled at once.

KNOX WOMEN HOLD MONTHLY MEETING

Mrs. C. Morton and Mrs. John Pollock Were in Charge of W.M.S. Program.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Knox Church was held on Thursday afternoon. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. C. Morton and Mrs. John Pollock. The president, Mrs. William Watt, was in the chair.

Mrs. J. McCurdy had charge of the 'Watch Tower' and Mrs. J. Ego gave an account of the work done at the Assiniboine Mission School of Western Canada, of which Miss Marion Coon of Peterborough, is in charge.

Miss H. Morton spoke on the work among the Indians of Western Canada.

Mrs. J. Pollock read the devotional leaflet dealing with the subject of the stewardship of money, which was followed by prayer offered by Mrs. F. Morrison.

Mrs. F. Morrison gave a synopsis of chapter seven of the study book, 'Drums in Darkness' which contrasted the domestic life of the African woman in her heathen condition with that of her sister who has come under the influence of the gospel through the missionary.

The meeting closed with the singing of a hymn and prayer offered by Mrs. Watt.

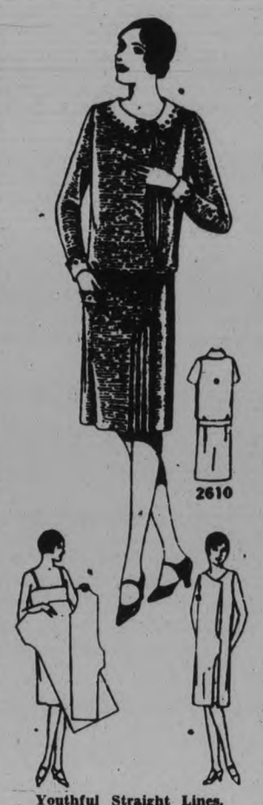
Fashion's Forecast



Youthful Straight Lines.

The Style presented in clever straight lines has a plaited inset at side front which softens and lengthens the silhouette. This inset offers excellent opportunity for contrast in color and fabric. The collar gives the effect of irregular neckline, fastened at side with novelty buttons which appear again in overlap of skirt which secures flat hipline. Design No. 2610 adapts itself to sheer woollens, silk crepe, crepe Elizabeth, crepe marocain, jersey or crepe satin, and later can be made of sports weight linen, printed pique or cotton printed foulard. Just a few seams to join!

The Pattern is offered at cost 15 cents as a service to readers who sew, and can be had in sizes 16, 18 years 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust. It includes a Picture Chart which shows each step in the making from cutting it out to finished garment. Experience isn't at all necessary. Choose now!

New Fashion Book containing all the spring styles is 15 cents., and may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern

OLD SONGS

THE DYING COWBOY.

(Contributed by "Marion's Mother")

As I roved o'er the prairie one evening at sunset,
The nightingales singing and all things so gay,
It chanced that I spied there a handsome young cowboy
All dressed in white linen, and this he did say:

Chorus:
Oh, beat the drums slowly and play the fifes lowly,
And play the Dead March as you carry me on;
Take me to the prairie and throw the sod o'er me,
For I'm a wild cowboy, I know I did wrong.

Oh, once in my saddle I used to go dashing,
Oh, once in my saddle I used to go gay;
I first took to drinking, and then to card playing,
Got shot through the breast and am dying to-day.

Go gather together my friends 'mong the cowboys,
And bid them lament their companion's sad fate;
And go tell all the others this warning I give them,
To quit their wild roving, before 'tis too late.

Will someone write to my poor aged mother,
And send the sad news to my sister so dear?
But still there's another more dear than the others,
Who would bitterly weep if she knew I were here.

Get six gay young cowboys to carry my coffin,
And six fair maids to go singing along,
Let each of them carry a bunch of red roses
To strew o'er a cowboy who knew he did wrong.

MISSION WORK IS DESCRIBED

Miss A. M. Warne Gives Address On Labors of Grenfell Medical Mission.

INSTRUCTIVE TALK.

The work of the Grenfell Labrador Medical Mission was described in detail and with interesting, eloquent words, by Miss A. M. Warne, in her illustrated lecture in All Saints' parish hall last evening. Miss A. M. Warne has for many years been corresponding secretary at the headquarters of the Mission in Ottawa, and is well qualified to speak on the work which is carried on among the natives and fishermen of that bleak coast. A graphic idea of the privations and sufferings, from the elements and from lack of means, in many instances, was given by the many slides shown and the descriptive eloquence of the speaker.

There was a large attendance for the lecture, each denomination in the city being represented. The Rev. William Allan of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, was in the chair. The devotional exercises were in the hands of the Rev. W. S. Ligar of Gilmour Memorial Church and the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray street Baptist church, gave the Bible reading. The Rev. Mr. Paterson operated the slide machine. A program of music was given by G. F. Liddle, and the unique solo of the evening was an arrangement of sacred words to the tune of "Danny Boy." These words comprised an Easter message sent to 'shut ins' of the parish by the rector, the Rev Mr. Paterson, and the solo was beautifully rendered by Miss Irene Howarth.

OH, SO DUMB!

"Anna, why did you tell the madam I came home so late after last night's banquet?"

"I didnt tell her when you came in, sir. I merely said that I was so busy getting the breakfast that I did not notice what time it was. —Passing Show.

The Mirror of the Mode

By Mary Marshall

This red bangkok hat has a white band and facing.

So long as the silhouette remained definitely straight and narrow the wide-brimmed hat seemed like an exageration. Extremely short skirts did not favor wide brims either. Now, however, that skirts have taken on an inch or so for all occasions and now that the flare below the hips has become a definite part of the afternoon silhouette, wider brims will undoubtedly come back into fashion.

Fashion follows no definite rules of proportion, and designers, it would seem, frequently ignore the principles of design that have weight with other artists. Still if your turn back the pages of costume history you will see that the width of hat brims has a direct bearing on the length and width of skirts.

An English correspondent after a visit ot the milliners in Paris recently wrote of the summer collection she had seen, "One model is a variation of the American sailor's cap, which looks like being in vast favor this season in Paris." So the fashion for the gob's hat that was sponsored at Palm Beach last winter goes on its successful way.

Often it is quite possible to go through the summer wearing the hats we have worn in the spring, but this season most women, I think, will find it necessary to restock their hat boxes with hats specially bought for summer. Even the lightest of the close little ear-covering hats that most women chose for early spring are burdensome on a really warm spring day. And though they cover our ears and neck they give absolutely no shade for the eyes. Recently there has been a demand in almost every millinery store for hats that are not so closely fitted over the ears and that shade the eyes a little.

GOOD IN EVERY WAY.

Baby's Own Tablets Banish Babyhood and Childhood Ailments.

A medicine that all mothers praise—one good in every way—one that will quickly banish the minor ills of babyhood and childhood is the medicine to keep in the medicine chest; to always have on hand in case of emergency. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets—they are helpful at all times. They are a mild but thorough laxative which by regulating the bowels and stomach banish colds and simple fevers; correct constipation and indigestion; relieve colic and diarrhoea and make the cutting of teeth easy.

Thousands of mothers use no other medicine for their little ones. Among them is Mrs. J. H. Bromley, Westmeath, Ont., who writes:—"I have four children and whenever any of them are ill I always use Baby's Own Tablets and have found them good in every way. I would not be without the Tablets and would also like your little booklet 'Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness.'"

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams'

PLEASING CONCERT.

Good Program Provided Under Auspices of L.O.B.A. No. 244.

The concert put on under the auspices of L.O.B.A. 244, in the Orange Lodge Rooms recently, was thoroughly enjoyed by the large number who attended. It was a sparkling program interspersed with musical and vocal numbers. D. Manley was chairman.

The Harmonical Music Makers, with Miss May Pollock at the piano and under the direction of Fred Ball, played many popular and rollicking selections. Miss Harrapon gave a reading and Bandsman V. Lang played a cornet solo, accompanied by S. Routley. The program was further added to by Max Peters, a piano solo by Miss Prout, and a harmonical treat by Rose Heasman and Crowter.

Mr. Cunningham gave an address. Miss Boorman a reading, and Mr. Woodgate gave an accordion solo, accampanied by J. Wison. Messrs. Neck and Wilson sang a duet, and a violin solo was played by W. Reid, accompanied by A. Reid. Mr. Thompson delighted the audience with a step dance, and Messrs. Luffman and Rumery as Sambo and Rastus kept the whole house in an uproar all the evening with many comical jokes.

Mr. Porter moved a hearty vote of thanks to all those who took part in the program, and Fred Sanderson seconded it. The committee in charge of the program consisted of Mred Ball, W. Wilson, and S. Sanderson. A dainty lunch was served by the ladies of the lodge at the close of a delightful program.

bilities of all these countries, and at the same time to extend an invitation to the Governments of the British West Indies to send delegates to a proposed Conference to be held in Ottawa.

"I sail from Halifax on the 14th of December, 1924. During the time I was away I travelled by land and sea over 10,000 miles, visited 17 countries under 8 different flags; met with the governing bodies; addressed Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, Planters' and Agricultural Societies; and had an opportunity of discussing trade possibilities in private and in public with legislators and other leading men in all walks of life in all these different countries."

Enthusiasm Everywhere.

"I was met with enthusiasm everywhere, and found a keen desire for greater trade between our country and theirs. I found, not only in the foreign Republics, but throughout the British West Indies, that the American nation, especially since the Great War, has been putting forth a most determined campaign to capture trade with these tropical countries. Everywhere I found American Consuls, Vice-Consuls, and other representatives of the United States, provided with splendid offices and secretarial staffs. These gentlemen, under whatever name they appear, are really American Trade Agents. I also found in all places where I visited, American travelelrs for American Manufacturers and other exporters, hustling for trade. But in this vast domain, where the total population amounts to about 14,000,000 of people; and where the trade with the United States in exports and imports, amounts to over one billion dollars per year; and the trade with Canada amounted in 1924 to $66,744,019. I found only two Canadian Trade Commissioners, each with a staff of one person. I met only two Canadian commercial travellers.

"We often hear it stated that the reason of the great trade with the United States is the fact that there is a preferential reciprocal tariff of 20 p.c. between the United States and Cuba; but, if we eliminate the whole trade of the United States with Porto Rico and Cuba, we still find there was a trade running in 1924 amounting to $3,864,264."

U. S. Trade Flourishes.

"It might reasonably be expected that as Canada and the British West Indies are under the same flag, with a preferential tariff existing between them, that we would have a great proportion of the trade of these British Possessions, but when we look at the trade statistics, we find that the sales from the United States to these British Possessions, amounted in 1924 to $24,758,347, whereas the sales from Canada during that year amounted to $15,354,739."

Canada—West Indies Conference

"The two most important matters considered at the Canada-West Indies Conference in June, 1925, were a revision of the Trade Agreement of 1920 and transportation facilities.

"There was a complaint throughout the British West Indies that we had not taken advantage of the preference in the way of buying from them. This complaint particularly applied to Jamaica, where per year they took from Canada 202,000 barrels, out of a total importation of 376,000 barrels of flour. While we imported nearly three million stems of bananas, we purchased less than 2,000 stems from Jamaica direct; and we purchased 18,000,000 pounds of grapefruit, of which we received less than one half million pounds direct from the British West Indies.

"But the greatest of all problems was transportation. It was admitted by everybody that it was unsatisfactory; especially in the combined passenger and freight service to Jamaica. The routes were established and the ships made over to suit the old agreement. They were neither proper freight boats nor proper passenger boats.

Paying $1,000 Per Day

"We were paying the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company nearly $1,000 a day of good Canadian money, to operate four old and out-of-date ships between St. John and Halifax, and British Guiana and Demerara, calling at the intermediate ports. At the same time we were operating Canadian Government Merchant Marine boats on the same route, competing with the subsidized line, and then paid another company a sufficient amount to make up for what we were taking away from that company by our own boats. I submit that it was neither good business nor common sense.

"In addition to duplication, there was an inferiority of service. Although we agreed in the agreement of 1920 to provide a passenger as well as freigh service, there was no passenger service on one of the four boats of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, and on the other three the accommodation was inferior in a northern climate, and most unsuitable in a tropical atmosphere.

"The Royal Mail Steam Packet Company tendered to fit out four new motor ships on between Halifax and St. John to the Eastern Group for ten years at a subsidy which amounted to about $534,000 per year. It may be presumed, if they were to tender for the Western service, they would require an additon $300,0010 annually. In other words, we would have been called upon to pay subsidies amounting to $834,000 per year or 5 per cent on $17,000,000 to a private company."

Cost $8,000,000

The new ships have cost us about $8,000,000. I think we can reasonably expect that they will earn the interest upon this amount of money. In the meantime, the government of the different colonies, under the terms of the agreement of 1925, will contribute $230,000, so that at the end of ten years we shall have invested in these ships $8,000,000, less $2,300,000, or $5,700,000, but we will own the ships. Had we continued under the subsidies we would have been out of pocket during the ten years 8,340,000 less $2,300,000 from the Colonies, which would amount to $6,040,000, and all we would have to show would be the receipts for the subsidies and own no ships.

"I believe that with the improved trade that is bound to come between Canada and these southern lands, thereby creating new shipping business, we soon will have large profits in operation. Speaking in Hamilton just before the Conference of 1925 I said:

"Personally, I am of the opinion, if the Canadan Government Merchant Marine abandoned every other route, on every other sea, the business with the West Indies should be carried on by it, in co-operation with the Canadian National Railways. Incidentally, I would recommend that the name Canadian Government Merchant Marine be changed to the Canadian National Steamship Company."

"I am very glad indeed that the Government has adopted both of these suggestions.

Come Into Effect in 1927.

"The new Canada-British West Indies Trade Agreement came into effect in 1927, bringing into force (with the exception of bananas) the tariff preference to be exchanged between Canada and the British West Indies, Bermuda, British Guiana and British Honduras under the 1925 Trade Agreement The preference which Canada is to grant on bananas was deferred pending the establishment of certain steamship service as provided for in Article XIII of the agreement.

"The Leeward and Windward Islands, which were bound only to endeavour to grant some larger preferences, have done so to an appreciable degree. The Windward Islands formally proclaimed the agreement in effect as from April 30, 1927, the aforementioned common date. No advice of an actual proclamation in the Leewards has been received, but official notice has been received that ordiarces effective from July 1, 1927, would implement the agreement in Antigua, Dominica, St. Kitts, Nevis and Montserrat. Before the making of the agreement it was stated by certain people who were presumed to know something about West Indian trade, that we had then all the trade which could be procured. Suffice it to say that the imports into Canada during the first year, without proper ships and without the assistance of the Royal Mail Line, which withdrew from the service, and without the part being put into force, amounted to of the treaty referring to bananas $22,165,689 as compared with $17,825,086 for the year ending March 31, 1927; and the exports of Canadian produce from Canada to the amounted to $20,068,153 as compared British West Indies for last year with $17,702,013 for the year ending March 31, 1927.

"The provision of the agreement relating to bananas which will be brought into force on the 2nd instant. They have been launched and will be soon in service. Canada consumes about four millions of bunches of bananas per year. This banana trade has been almost entirely from the United States, although many of the bananas imported were undoubtedly grown in the British West Indies. They were conveyed to United States ports in United States vessels, paying port and brokerage charges, and were then shipped on American railways to the point nearest consumption. For instance, bananas going to Winnipeg would be shipped over the American roads to Emerson, which is only sixty or seventy miles south of Winnipeg. Under the terms of the agreement, bananas thus shipped in future will pay fifty cents a bunch, while those coming in through Canadian ports will be free of duty. This will mean a diversion of this trade. Owing to the season in which bananas mature, a very large percentage of these bananas, I think about eighty per cent., will come up the St. Lawrence, during open navigation, to Montreal, and will then be nearer to the great consuming public of Canada than if they came in through the port of New York or Boston. They will be transported on our own ships from Jamaica, and will be shipped over our own railways to consuming points throughout Canada. To give some idea of the increase in railway tonnage which will result from the banana trade, it has been estimated that to transport bananas consumed in Canada in one year, we shall require not less than six hundred thousand ordinary freight cars."

Thirty Cents a Bunch.

I cannot see why there should be an increase of the price in Canada. When I was in Jamaica last the price of a bunch or stem or bananas was 1s. 3d., or about thirty cents in our money. Upon the stems there would be about 120 well matured bananas. This would make the price paid to the producer in Jamaica one cent for four bananas. When you consider the price that is being paid in Canada to-day of five, six or seven cents for one banana, you can readily see that there is a great spread between the price paid to the producer and the price paid by the consumer. This difference has helped to build up one of the most gigantic fruit companies in the world. I can only hope that in the future consumers in Canada will benefit by the banana provision of the agreement.

"The terms of the agreement provide that Canada gives a tariff preference of 50% on all goods brought from the British West Indies to Canada, and on the other hand it is provided that the different colonies give certain tariff preferences, which range all the way from 25% to 66 2-3% on goods brought from Canada into the respective colonies."

Only Allowed on Importations

"Formally the preference granted by Canada was allowed on importations of all products of the West Indies brought into Canada whether by Canadian ports or by United States ports. Under the terms of the new agreement preference will only be allowed upon products coming into Canadian ports direct from British West Indian ports.

"We have provided five new ships; three of them, namely, the Lady Nelson, Lady Hawkins and Lady Drake, are on the service to the Eastern Islands. They operate between Montreal and Georgetown, British Guiana, in summer, and between St. John and Halifax to Georgetown in the winter. The other two, Lady Rodney and Lady Sommer, which are banana boats, are on between Halifax and Kingston, Jamaica. These ships are not only palatial, but fitted for this tropical trade. They are a credit to Canada.

"I had the honor and pleasure of going from Halifax to British Guiana on the Lady Nelson when she was making her initial trip. We called at Bermuda, St. Kitts, Nevis, Antigua, Montserrat, Dominica, St. Lucia, Barbadoes, St. Vincent, Grenada, Trinidad and British Guiana. In all those countries the new ship was hailed with delight, and it was realized that a new era had dawned in the history of these islands of everlasting fertility and eternal sunshine.

"We have the agreement and the ships, but there is much yet to be done. In all the inlands there must be better facilities for handling the goods between the ship and shore. The present system is much as it was a hundred years ago. In only three of the colonies visited does the ship lie at the wharf; in other places she is sometimes anchored out two or three miles from the shore, and goods are very often transported to and from the ship in open boats propelled by oars. There is great lack of cold storage facilities and of co-operation among the producers. I would urge upon the Government that without delay they have a survey made at each of the ports of call, so that in conjunction with the different Colonies facilities may be provided for the better, safer and quicker handling of the products, and for the more convenient placing of ships.

"From my experience and knowledge gained by repeated visits to the British West Indies I am firmly convinced that Trade Commissioners are absolutely essential in the building up of the trade to be carried on by these ships. We should have in these different Colonies Trade agents who will spend not a day in a fortnight, but every day in working up and developing trade for Canada. In all the twelve Colonies which I visited there is only one lone Trade Commissioner. It is about two thousand miles from Bermuda to British Guiana. This Commissioner lives in Trinidad where he is amply employed. I sumbit there should be Trade Commissioners in the Leeward and Windward Islands, in Barbadoes and one in the British Guiana to be continually on the job and hustling for Canadian trade. We have now too much at stake to take any chances. In my humble opinion there is no part of the world where Trade Commissioners are needed more. The people in these different Colonies are desirous of trading with Canada. They are intensely British and friendly toward all British countries, especially Canada. One will also find that while the manufacturers of the United States have paid particular attention to securing their trade, the manufacturers of Canada have in many cases failed to recognize the importance of getting in close touch with them."

"In conclusion let me urge upon you the importance of this Treaty and to impress upon you the necessity of trading between Canada and the British West Indies. They produce fruits and other tropical products for which we are paying today to a foreign country probably about $100,000,000. We owe that foreign country nothing. They have formed their tariff so as to paralyze many of our best industries such as fishing, and they are now preparing a new tariff which will, I fear, prevent us from selling to them our agricultural products, which will place a serious impediment upon our export trade to them. The British West Indies are inhabited by brother Britishers. They are loyal to the last extremity and pay the strictest allegiance to His Majesty King George V. They have withstood many temptations. They see every day an example of what is being done by another country for one of the Islands in the Caribean, namely Porto Rico, where since its acquisition by the United States absolute free trade with that country has been enjoyed, with the result that the trade of that country has increased over 1,000 per cent.

There are in the West Indies 20,000,000 acres of cultivated land of the greatest fertility. Only 2,000,000 acres are being cultivated at the present time. In Jamaica at one time they produced over 100,000,000 bunches of bananas annually. They now produce less than 30,000,000. The soil is there, the climate is there, but the market has dwindled away. We purchased in one year about 4,000,000 bushels of bananas of which only about 3,000 came direct to Canada from Jamaica.

"In spite of the fact that we have almost forgotten them as producers of tropical products they have remained firmly loyal to the Empire, and to-day have the warmest feeling for Canada, especially since we have put on the palatial "Lady" ships.

"I therefore, submit that we should assume the position of the Big Brother and hold out to those loyal British subjects the glad hand of friendship.

NEW INVENTIONS

LONDON, May 3.—Scientists are turning domestic. The newest works of their minds are the invention of a non-asphyxiating gas to replace that now used for cooking and heating and a refrigerator-stove, which heats a house in the winter and cools it in the summer.

Welcome: Rev. W. E. Honey, B.D.; Dawson Bebee.

Wooler: Rev. H. B. Neal, F. A. Dorland.

On motion the agenda was adopted, with such changes as were found necessary. On motion, visiting brethren, including Rev J. S. Griffith, chairman of the Oshawa Presbytery, Rev. G. A. Williams, returned missionary from Korea, and Rev. I. W. Pearce, of the Social Service Department, Toronto, were made corresponding members of the Court. The secretary read a letter from Rev. S. C. Moore regretting his inability to be present.

On motion the following ministers were received into the ministry of the United Church of Canada: Rev. W. P. Fletcher, D.D., for thirty-four years a minister of the Christian Church, and now pastor of Centre street United church, Oshawa; Rev. Lewis Ambrose Czcho, Ph.D., of the Hungarian pastorate, and now working in the Church of All Nations, Toronto; and Rev. H. Peppo, formerly of the Baptist Church, and now serving in Alberta.

Summer School.

The correspondence as read by the secretary included an announcement of the Summer School, under the Board of Religious Education, to be held at Oak Lake July 22-29; an invitation from the Hilton circuit asking the Presbytery to convene there either in August or September. Evidently the sponsors of this request were unaware of the fact that the Presbytery Court convenes in June and November; a communication referring to the Ryerson essay, "Church Union After Three Years," now available and useful for busy ministers as a work of reference; and one from Dr. Solandt, referring to suggestions as to ministerial reading; a letter from Rev. James Batstone asking permanent superannuation; Rev. Dr. Marvin, Rev. W. S. Boyles, and Rev. S. C. Moore, were names also mentioned in this connection.

There was considerable discussion regarding the proper terms to be used when a change is desired in pastoral relationship following the reading of a letter from Rev. R. Barbour, of Gore's Landing, who wishes such a change at the close of the present conference year. A committee to deal with such cases and pass them on to the Settlement Committee was appointed including: Rev. W. R. Tanton; Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, with the chairman and the secretary.

The election of representatives to the Conference Settlement Committee resulted as follows: Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, of Cobourg; F. W. Galbraith, of Port Hope, with Rev. D. R. Clare, of Norham, and Rev. G. A. Sisco, of Port Hope, as alternatives.

The Rev. G. A. Williams was given a few moments to speak on the Missions and Maintenance Fund of the church, and gave some reasons for the deficit explaining that since Union "we are facing an epidemic of church buildings involving an expenditure of millions of dollars. In one Presbytery practically every charge is erecting new church buildings." The furnishing of manses and the necessary increase in ministers' salaries since the war, were also listed as cutting down the giving power for the M. and M. fund, together with injury to crops from frost in the West, and the program of new college buildings in the Maritimes.

"The average last year, however, was higher than at any time in the church' history, and in the three and three-quarter years since Union more than twelve millions of dollars have been given to missionary and benevolent purposes, so we know the heart of the church is sound, and we are facing a wonderful future."

Rev. Mr. Williams gave data to show that an effort to underwrite the deficit by enlisting the munificence of wealthy men over the whole Dominion is being successfully carried on, E. H. Gundy, of Toronto, having opened the subscription with $30,000 in addition to the $25,000 which is his regular contribution to the M. and M. fund. "Cables have come from China asking the return of all missionaries to their fields, and new men are being asked for in various places; yet our policy is not to spend more in 1929 than the church gave in 1928. We are urging that pastors place before all their people the full situation, believing that a complete understanding will be the best means of increasing receipts."

Sunday, May 19, was suggested as a Field Day for the M. and M. fund, when six or seven missionaries will be available for the Presbytery, and an exchange of pulpits was also advocated, a canvass to immediately follow, the plan of leaving this appeal until almost the end of the church year being strongly commended. "A fall canvass for subscriptions to be paid the following year is commendable, but December is not a month when you might expect your congregations to respond generously to such an appeal considering the many other claims at that season."

After adjournment to the basement at the noon hour, where a hot dinner was served by the Ladies' Aid Society, the Court was again called in session at 2 p.m., Rev. Mr. Barbour conducting the worship period, with Rev. Mr. Tanton and Rev. Dr. Daley leading in prayer.

After Session.

The afternoon session was largely given up to reports from committees, the first to be called being Missions and Maintenance, with Rev. W. W. Jones as convenor. This report had been presented at the morning gathering but the time limit prevented full discussion. It recommended: 'That in spite of the suggestion from the Dominion Executive stating that the lowering of allocations had not increased receipts, we have decided to lower the allocations for the year, and hope to find fresh encouragement as the churches reach their full amount.'; 'That May 19 be Field Day for presenting this matter strongly to our people'; 'That we aim to remit fifty per cent of the money by the last of June, and that we remit monthly, with an every-member canvass after June 30'; 'That we recommend to our Presbyterial Young People's Societies and Sunday schools the use of the monthly missionary envelopes where such are not in use weekly'; 'That we make such pulpit exchanges, and distribution of educational literature as may be available.' The report was adopted, following some discussion.

Rev. Mr. Leigh moved the adoption of the report on the examination of students, the committee recommending in the highest terms J. F. Bannster, who was in attendance at Jarvis, Alberta; the case of R. will be reported on as soon as word is received from Victoria College, as he is now doing home mission work at aJrvis, Alberta; the case of R. V. Pomeroy will also be reported later. The roll-call of ministers, active and superannuated, followed without a challenge as to character religious doctrine, or belief.

The Pension Fund committee, with Rev. W. E. Honey as treasurer, recomennded that Rev. James Batstone, after a long and faithful ministry, be a permanent claimant on the fund; that Rev. W. S. Boyce be continued on the former superannuation fund for one year; that the case of Rev. S. C. Moore be deferred until a later meeting. Rev. Mr. Leigh stated that the relationship of all ministers to the Pension Fund will be taken up in detail with the head office, and report made at the next meeting.

Rev. J. S. Griffith presented the matter of the new Emmanual College for theological students strongly to the Presbytery, the amount required, $1,200,000, covering the college, a residence for theological, and for women students, and to complete the quadrangle a chapel. The program has been authorized by the General Council, the need acutely exists, and Rev. R. T. Richards, of Port Perry, has been appointed as organizer for the entire conference. The Field Day when this matter will be presented to the whole church was settled upon as Sunday, May 26. The committee appointed is: Rev. Andrew McLaughlin, Rev. J. E. Glover, Rev. J. G. McKee, Colonel E. E. Snyder, and George Kingston, of Campbellford.

Rev. Mr. McLaughlin reported on the transfer of church property at Mt. Carmel, formerly belonging to the Christian Church, to the United Church, stating that a fuller clearing of the title is being sought. A deputation from Coldsprings, asking that the church at Coldsprings North be reopened for service, was met by a committee, Rev. Dr. Daley, Rev. G. A. Siscoe, and Rev. D. R. Clare, and progress reported, the committee being continued in office until further results are obtained. The case of the Bethany Church on the Macklem appointment will be cleared up before Conference.

The report of the Nominating Committee was presented by Rev. F. H. Howard, and included the following: (1) Maintenance and Missions Fund: Convenor, Rev. W. W. Jones; Group 1: Rev. W. W. Jones and F. The report was adopted.

An invitation was received from the Ministerial Associations of Cobourg, and South-East Northumberland, asking attendance at an open meeting in the Parish Hall, Cobourg, on May 14th, at 10.30 a.m., when Professor Lang will speak on "Present Tendencies in Science and Philosophy Regarding the Concept of God." As many as possible will accept.

Evening Session.

The evening session was at 7.30, Rev. W. W. Jones leading the opening song service, and Rev. D. R. Clare leading in prayer. The speaker of the evening was Rev. I. W. Pierce, who with choice language and dramatic power, related personal experiences of the awful Turkish atrocities during the four years he was in Armenia at the time of the world war.

Rev. Mr. Pierce went out as teacher of theological students in the Euphrates College, and saw his fellow-professor, native Armenians, graduates of Princeton, Columbia, Edinburgh, and other universities, all murdered by the Turks, as well as every member of his class of fourteen students. With his wife and two children, he was held prisoner in Beyrout, Syria, for two and one-half long years. "We drove in a horse and waggon for fifteen days on our way to Beyrout, and for twelve of those days went through a laneway of dead bodies, on which the village dogs were gorging themselves, with a background of vultures waiting their chance at the feast."

The speaker declared that when word of General Allenby's victory came through 'I saw the Turkish military machine smashed, and the Turk as he really is — a coward. The Christian world must always hang its head in shame because God gave us our chance and we passed it by; we took the Turk, who had done these terrible things, and we set him again on the throne, and rehabilitated the Ottoman Empire." The indifference of the rest of the world to the plight of the 87,000 Armenian refugees in Syria was strongly commended, but a brighter tone was given the picture in conclusion as Rev. Mr. Pierce told of the fine work being done in Canada for the Amerian orphaned boys at the Georgetown Home, under United Church auspices.

Twenty Armenian girls are now in Toronto, though our Immigration Department allows them to come out as domestic servants only; but they are clever and very happy, making good Canadians in a short time. When they are here two weeks they have their hair bobbed, short skirts and silk stockings." They, like the boys, develop a splendid Christian character, learn English quickly, establish a fine school record, and are a very fine type of citizens.

A personal incident of a young Armenian lad giving the whole of his savings to bring his sister to Canada, and their happiness in being together, made a fitting close to an address that held the listeners spellbound during its entire course.

PAPER INDUSTRY IS ILLUSTRATED

Millbrook Continuation School Literary Society Views Fine Set of Slides.

MILLBROOK, May 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Millbrook Continuation School Literary society held a meeting on Tuesday in the assembly hall, the pupils of the public school being also in attendance.

The main feature of the program was the showing of a fine set of lantern slides on "The Canadian Pulp and Paper Industry," the principal of the continuation school, Miss Muir, presenting the explanatory lecture material.

The lantern used has recently been purchased jointly by the continuation and public schools, the necessary funds having been raised by concerts given during the past two years. It will undoubtedly prove a valuable and enjoyable addition to the schools' equipment.

Other items on the program were readings by George Gray and Mary Vance, a selection by the Glee Club, with Miss Hamilton at the piano, and the reading of the school paper.

Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, Mrs. J. H. Georoge, and Mrs. (Rev.) Barbour of Gore's Landing, are in Kingston this week attending the branch meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the United Church.

Miss Blanche Clarry, R. N., of New York, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Clarry.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Burnham, and daughter, Dorothy, were visitors in town on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Albert Brown are shortly closing their home on Tupper street and going to the farm for the summer months.

APPROVES OF NOTE.

LONDON, May 3.— (Canadian Press3.—The House of Lords, after brief discussion, yesterday approved a motion introduced by Lord Birkenhead approving the principle of the famous Balfour note on Britain's war debts.

A recent overcrowding census taken in Hackney, London, disclosed one case of nine persons living in one room; while 25,850 lived more than two in a room.

SCHOOLS FAVOR LACROSSE CLUB

Staff and Students Taking Up Selling of Shares.

PROSPECTS GOOD.

MILLBROOK, May 3.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The matter of forming a lacrosse club for the community is now being pushed by the staff and students of the Continuation and Public Schools, a committee of the boys having the sale of shares well under way, so that necessary funds may be supplied. There is a general expectation that this, Canada's National Game, will be added to the community athletic program during the current season.

NO TROUBLE ON LAKES.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 3 (Canadian Press).—Although there were high winds and considerable snow fell during the night, there are no reports here of any trouble on the likes. The storm signals are still up, however.

CHAMPION MARATHONER

Johnny Miles, formerly of Nova Scotia, and now of the Hamilton O.C., has the distinction of being twice winner of the Boston Marathon.

The first time Johnny won this event he was a real dark horse and his victory made the sporting world, particularly in the United States, sit up and take notice. In his second effort the heat proved too much for him, and he lost out. Conditions for his recent and successful third attempt were ideal, and his clever head-work aided by stout leg-work had a chance to prove his rare abilities as a marathoner.

On Good Friday, before his race at Boston, he showed his heels to a large field in the 15-mile Toronto Marathon. In winning the Boston Marathon, Miles defeated such well-known runners as Whitey Michaelson and Clarence De Mar of the Milrose A. C., New York.

Incidentally, Johnny has a fiancee, who, he says, provided the necessary inspiration for his Boston achievement.

Woollens Vs. Quakers Here; C. P. C. Vs. Deloro Away

Local Game at King Edward Park—Kick-off at Three—C.P.R. Travel to Deloro.

Saturday's soccer bill is a league game between the Dominion Woollens and the Quaker Oats, at King Edward Park. Kick off at three o'clock. Referee, Jack Clark.

These two teams will meet for the first time and the fans are anxious to look over the calibre of the players on view. It is many years ago since the Woollens fielded an eleven, but their are many new faces on their line-up and some are recent arrivals from the Old Country. The Quakers have been in the game every season since the 1919 opening; in fact, they won the Midland League in the early years of local soccer; also carred off the Gordon Cup from their opponents of to-morrow when the game was played at Riverside Park.

C.P.C. at Deloro

Another local team goes to Deloro on Saturday afternoon to meet the boys of the smelter district in a league game. The Canadian Packing are confident of victory and have lined up the following players: Griffine, goal; Downer and Westwood, full backs; Carmichael, Buchan and Bromley, halves; Wilson, Beggs, O'Halloran, Laider and Foster, forwards. Reserves: N. Downer and Dorris.

All the forenamed men are requested to be at the factory no later than one o'clock because the arrangement are on a schedule. Referee Alex. McKinley will travel with the city team.

Unknown Is Winner Of Newmarket Stakes

NEWMARKET, England, May 3.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Lady Ludlow's colt Peppermints won the Newmarket two-year-old stakes yesterday afternoon by a length and a half from the Aga Khan's Hakem. Lord Woolavington's Mr. Jaggers was third three lengths further back.

Peppermints, a bay colt by Grand Parade out of All Spice, stated at 100 to seven against. Hakem being favorite at seven to four and Mr. Jaggers starting at 10 to one.

Eleven juveniles raced over the house course of five furlongs in this event, the first feature of the season for the two-year-olds who next year will be contesting the derby and other classics.

JULY DATE HELD OPEN FOR SINGER

McArdle Denies Garden Has Matched Loughran and Braddock For Title Bout.

TROUBLE OVER TERMS.

Wants Singer To Battle Kid Chocolate On That Date.

NEW YORK, May 3. — Ordinarily a match maker is only too glad to admit having made a championship match, but Tom McArdle actually called up the newspapers last night to deny such a report.

The Garden boxing director was credited with having finally completed the Tommy Loughran-James J. Braddock bout for the light heavy-weight title. It was even said that the date had been set for July 25 at the Polo grounds.

Tom might have been willing to take a bow on the match but the detail about when it was to take place made him furious. He said it was nothing less than a plot on the part of persons who are attempting to shoo Al Singer into the arms of Humbert Fugazy.

Indignant Denial.

"The story is designed to make me look bad with Hymie Caplan, manager of Singer," he said indignantly. "I promised to use Singer at the Polo Grounds on that date, and I am trying to get Kid Chocolate as his opponent.

"I would like to match Loughran and Braddock, but not on July 25. That date will be held for Singer. If I don't get Chocolate I will get someone else."

McArdle said that he had talked to Joe Smith, manager of Loughran. He said Smith promised to visit him to-day and discuss terms. McArdle wants the match for a ball park but will not pay more than 50 per cent. of the net proceeds for the two fighters.

A hitch may arise when McArdle comes to sign Braddock. Jersey Jimmy feels that he will be the real drawing card, and he wants at least 17 1-2 per cent. for his end. The State law for challengers calls for 12 1-2 per cent.

LEAFS AND ORIOLES STOPPED BY RAIN

Double-header To Be Played Saturday—Play One Game To-day.

TORONTO, May 3.—Except for the pattering raindrops, Maple Leaf Stadium was silent and deserted yesterday. The second game of the Leafs' opening home series with Baltimore was washed out completely. The Toronto players were due to report at 10.30 for morning practice, but one look outside at the weather and they went back to bed and got some more sleep. It was a dismal day indeed for baseball, but Manager Steve O'Neil and his players were not extremely sorry. The Leafs have faced some bad weather since the opening games at Baltimore two weeks ago, and a day or two of idleness at this time will not do them any particular harm. That hurried trip home from Newark to open the season, left the players tired, and a brief rest will make them all the more eager to even up on the Birds for what happened when the lid was pried off here.

Port Hope Supports New Lacrosse Plan

PORT HOPE, May 3.—Efforts of F. C. Waghorne, emissary of the O.A.L.A. to interest local supporters in the proposition to organize a juvenile lacrosse league are meeting with much success. It has been decided to form a league of four teams and a meeting will be held shortly to arrange the details and complete the organization. Four dozen lacrosse sticks have been ordered through the O.A.L.A., and already the youngsters of the town are showing much enthusiasm over the project. W. Rankin, J. Henderson, M. Hewson and Ike Morrison are behind the movement, and the success of the lacrosse revival here is practically assured.

A GREAT TOWN

CHICAGO, May 3.—The city's health department has doped it out just how people die in this town. The homicide rate, it is found, outranks even influenza. The killing rate is 16.1 per 100,000 population, meaning that one out of every 79 persons dying last year met his death by violence.

CANADA'S NATIONAL GAME IS ENJOYING NATION-WIDE BOOM

Favorable Reports On Progress Heard From Coast To Coast.

IN MINOR SECTIONS.

O.A.L.A. Plans To Hold Meeting For Discussion of Grouping and Schedule.

TORONTO, May 3.—While there is not a great deal doing in the major ranks of lacrosse outside of the silent scurrying of senior managers for the signatures of various stars, there is plenty of activity in the minor sections, where the national sport is enjoying a dominion-wide boom. Favorable reports are heard not only from isolated sections of the province, the cities and towns where Fred Waghorne, Sr., is running his missionary campaigns, but also from Western Canada as far as the Pacific coast.

Everywhere the game seems to have taken on a new lease of life and the vacant lots, recently occupied by boys with bats and balls are now the scenes of lacrosse games and practices. Gene Dopp, secretary of the O.A.L.A., reports that the entry in the various sections is larger now than last year with many more places to be heard from. Georgetown, Oakville, Camp Borden and Guelph are among the newcomers to the game and most of them will be running teams in the intermediate ranks as well as several teams in minor leagues of their own.

Last year at this time interest in minor lacrosse had only started in Ontario but this year, 30 dozen sticks have already been distributed with many more on order. In eastern and central Ontario, where the game has been dead for many years, gutted sticks again appear in school yards and playgrounds and there is no doubt that lacrosse will soon regain all its former popularity if the interest continues.

Reports from Western Canada and the Pacific coast are even more encouraging to lacrosse lovers than the glowing accounts of the game in Ontario. Vancouver, New Westminster, Richmond and other coast cities are all active at the game now, while Seattle is also running several teams. Calgary, Winnipeg, Edmonton, in fact every important western metropolis has its own league, with entries from surrounding centres.

The senior lacrosse situation in Ontario is still unsettled, although a meeting will likely be held next week when plans for a grouping and schedule will be considered. Nothing definite has been done regarding the application of Hamilton for a berth in the major ranks. To get in the Hilltown must have the sanction of at least two-thirds of the senior clubs and the O.A.L.A. executive. Three clubs have already voted on the Hamilton request, one favoring the return of the Tigers and two opposing it. Hamilton claims to have the makings of a good team, with last season's intermediate team strengthened and their chances of promotion are favorable. An extra team is needed to round out a complete draw and replace the defunct Weston club.

CRICKET

The Peterborough Cricket Club will hold a practice to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 in the Oval. All members of the team are requested to be on hand.

No fewer than one million street accidents, 40,000 of them being fatal, occurred in England in the ten years from 1918 to 1928.

MARATHON IS AWARDED TO QUEEN CITY

Fourth Wrigley Swim To Be Held at Canadian National Exhibition.

CHANGE IN TERMS.

Water Temperature Must Be 58 Degrees Or Higher On Race Day.

TORONTO, Ont., May 3 (Canadian Press).—The fourth Wrigley Marathon has been awarded to the Canadian National Exhibition, the board was informed to-day in a letter from Allan Ross, President of the Canadian Wrigley Company.

Ethel Hertle of New York won the women's ten mile swim last year, but the 15-mile race for men was not completed owing to the frigidity of the water, Georges Michel of France being the last competitor to leave the water after swimming about 12 miles.

CHANGE IN TERMS

This year a water temperature of 58 degrees or higher must be had on race day; otherwise a one day or longer postponement will be made, the letter states.

The letter said William Wrigley, father of the race, inaugurated in 1926 when George Young won the Catalina Channel Marathon, had been anxious to have the event held in other cities to furthed develop the original idea of an auual international contest, and consideration had been given to a number of other cities.

"It is our belief that the event as conducted at the Canadian National Exhibition provides the greatest spectacle for the greatest number of people," the letter said. "Better water temperature conditions might be obtained in several other places, but Lake Ontario is ideal on certain days during Exhibition weeks."

The Wrigley Marathons have been regarded as representing the professional long distance swimming championship of the world, and stars from all parts of the world have competed for the annual prize money of $50,000.

Ernst Vierkoetter, of Germany, who won the 1927 swim, Olive Gatterdam and Ruth Tower of the United States, who were placed in last year's women's race, Millie Hudson, of England, and others who came to Toronto to compete in former races, have established their homes here since.

WILL NOT AWARD CANADIAN TITLE

Meralomas Play Exhibition Game With Grads Despite Warning.

LAKESIDES GIVEN TITLE.

WINNIPEG, May 3.—Canada will probably be without a championship team in ladies' basketball for 1929, according to a statement made by W. A. Alldritt, President of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, to-day.

Because Vancouver Meralomas, Western titleholders, played an exhibition game against Edmonton Grads and were defeated last Monday, 58 to 30, the Eastern champs cannot be expected to bring the finaliss East, Mr. Alldritt declared.

On the authority of the entire executive, Mr. Alldritt informed the Meralomas that they could not expect to be brought East if they engaged in a contest with the Grads, but his admonition was ignored.

The Edmonton Grads, former Canadian champions, dropped out of the Dominion competition when they refused to accept dates named for their scheduled play-off series against the Vancouver girls.

East and West will probably name separate champions, believes Mr. Alldritt, but he expects that no Canadian titleholder will be decided. Under this plan, Vancouver Meralomas would wear Western laurels and Toronto Lakesides would be Eastern champions.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The rain yesterday made it necessary for the Leafs and Birds to take a forced rest, and the weather man promised cold weather to-day.

Jack Miller, who will be remembered by old lacrosse players, in giving some pointers to a gathering of citizens in the Collegiate Auditorium last night, threw out something that should be accepted as a challenge by those same old lacrosse players. He said, "One of the features of our great Old Home Week celebration in Orillia was the lacrosse game between the teams of 1884 and 1904. That spectacle crowded the stands and brought the old boy fans to their feet as nothing else has ever done."

Now Peterborough lacrosse teams, as any old player will tell you, used to be able to trim Orillia teams to a frazzle in those days of glory. But those same Orillia players, that crossed sticks with the Petes many a time and oft to their own discomfort back 30 years ago, will be putting one over on Peterborough if the local old timers do not stage a lacrosse game here during Old Home Week that will put the one at Orillia to shame.

* * * * * *

The same Mr. Miller had something to say about the time Orillia came down and played the old Peterboroughs on the East City field. He said that Orillia did not wait on their going that day, in fact they made positive sure that they did not miss the train by starting out for Orillia on foot and were somewhere near Omemee, when the train finally caught them and took them aboard.

We've heard something too, of the last time the Peterboroughs played in Orillia, but that's another story.

It all goes to show though, that those were the days of real sport and the present day athletes don't know what real competition in sports is. Its up to the old timers to show them during Old Home Week.

Percy Harrison is all prepared for the softball season. He has rounded out a team that on paper looks to have all the ear marks of strength. Here's his lineup and he has them all signed too:—Pitcher, Ira Dundas; catcher, Mel .Dobson; first base, Arnold Smith; second, Bob. Ross; third, Charlie Dorrington; short stop, Reg. Green; right field, Shiner Clarke; centre, Tom Montgomery; left, Ed. Vinnette; utilities, Pat. Calladine and Johnny Ward. Several of these players are versatile performers and can play at many corners.

The north end crew are planning to enter the Ontario Basketball Association and play for the provincial championship. They also intend to play in the local league.

Success has crowned the sports activities of the Harrison club since they entered the field last year The championship of the softball league fell to their bats; the senior championship of the City Hockey League was won by them and also the bunting in the City Basketball League was gathered in. Their hustling manager is wondering where he can find room in his grocery emporium for all the silverware that symbolizes these many hard won victories. Now the boys are all set for softball with hopes of another cup, a provincial one this time.

The P. C. I. track and field athletes have been busy during the past two weeks practising for the big school boy athletic meet that is scheduled for here this month. Every afternoon when weather permits a squad goes down to Exhibition Park and steps off the dashes and leaps over the jumping standards. Some of the runners have been clocked in fairly fast time, too. One stepped off the 220 yards dash the other day in one-fifth of a second above the standard set for the right to compete in the final meet at Kingston. R. C. Cummings is the coach for the track team.

Clifford Bricker, reputed as one of Canada's best long-distance runners, is going to retire permanently from the running game. Bricker has only made the decision that soon or late presents itself before any athlete is participating in competitive sport, either individual or team games. There comes a time when each has to decide whether he is going to give his time to the job with his eyes on future advancement or stick to the game and let the future look after itself.

There are a number of athletes in this city who have been called to make the same decision during the last year. In each case, with responsibilities crowding in and having given years to sports, they have taken the wise course of dropping out, but still maintain an active interest.

Rumors are still afloat concerning the situation in the East Peterborough League. It is an established opinion that two of the teams, Crescents and Bethany, require more players, and the signing of many star players by any one team in the league will reflect to the general lowering of the keen competition that has been existent. Under present conditions some are beginning to figure that there may not be four teams in this season, if so, much of the interest will be lost.

The desire for a championship should not blind any team to the necessity of protecting the interests and future of the league. And this can only be done by distributing the players fairly even among all four clubs.

The meeting for the election of officers and general business preparatory to the season's start is scheduled for this Saturday and it is likely that this matter will again be dragged out of the cupboard.

Brooklyn may tail the other teams in the National League, but Arthur Sam (Dazzy) Vance can still stand the best team of hitters on their heads. Recently 20,000 Brooklyn fans were attracted into Ebbets Field, because Dazzy was doing mound duty. That day, last Tuesday he set John McGraw's aspiring Giants down gently with three very scratchy hits.

Lionel Connacher announces that he will become a heavyweight figher. Connie was at one time considered something of an amateur boxer and would have won the Canadian title had he not broken a finger. He was only 19 years old at the time and was forced out of the first round of the finals.

Dempsey once had an exhibition setto with him and the Mauler complimented him on his style and prophesied success if he ever went into the game seriously. Connie announces that he will commence at the bottom against the pork and beaners and work up. Connie has a great build and is promising material for the ring.

FAVOR FORWARD PASS.

It was suggested by a prominent O.R.F.U. official a few days ago that the proposed forward pass be given a trial in the championship series this year, but the majority of the teams in the loop are against it, which means that it will not be introduced into the Ontario code, at least not by the senior teams.

Tigers are against its adoption, and so are Kitchener, Sarnia, Balmy Beach and Varsity, but it is claimed that a majority of the clubs in the Interprovincial favor it. Frank Shaughnessy, who has always been a strong advocate of the pass, has convinced the Argos that it is a good play, and Ottawa and Montreal are also said to favor it.

Advocates of the pass claim it will help break up the strong defensive style of play, which the present rules make possible, and result in more scoring. But the Balmy Beach team tried the play out in an exhibition game with McGill, and is against it, which shows that the Beachers know whereof they speak. Prospects of it being adopted this year are far from bright, despite the hard fight McGill is putting up to have the C.R.U. code amended to permit of its being used.—Hamilton Spectator.

Elliott Of Kingston To Play With Deloro

KINGSTON, May 3.—Bob Elliott, second baseman of the Kingston Central Ontario Baseball league team last year, who was counted upon by the Victorias in the softball league, as well as by the 21st Battalion team, will likely be seen on the line-up of the Deloro team. Elliott left to-day for Deloro, and will probably accept a position there. Deloro will be greatly strengthened if Elliott decides to stay there this summer, for he proved last year that he is one of the best fielding second basemen in the business. At the bat Elliott hits the ball hard and batted well over the .300 mark during last season's schedule. With Harold Buck also on the team, the Smelters will have in Buck and Elliott two local players who will prove of much value to the team in their quest for the C.O.B.L. honors. Elliott is a son of the late "Chaucer" Elliott, who played with St. Thomas in the old Canadian league and the champion Ponies of Kingston.

AT THE CAPITOL

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

Sixty years ago, readers wept over the sufferings of the slaves in Harriet Beecher Stowe's immortal novel. Through the half century which has passed since the Civil War, audiences all over the world have shivered and thrilled to the voices of old Uncle Tom and Simon Legree, in the stage plays dramatized from the same source. But it remains for the silent drama to give one of the most poignant and unforgettable illustrations of the story. Yesterday, at the Capitol Theatre, there were many wet eyes for the picturization of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which is one of the most powerful and moving picture productions which have ever been seen here.

The screen brings its individual touches, which the stage could not produce. The wraith of Uncle Tom, after he had been flogged to death, haunts Legree, and takes him to his destruction. The stage could not produce a ghost of this type, nor could it represent the death of Eva in just the same way, or even attempt to picture the approach of madness to Legree, as the screen does. While the miserable wretch sits cowering in his chair after Tom's death at his hands, striving to bolster up his courage by the whiskey bottle, madness descends upon him. Electric fingers press upon his brain and the ghastly mask of insanity appears above his head, to enter and take possession of the tortured brain.

Music plays a large part in this production. The stirring tunes of Civil War days echo through the tramp of feet, after Lincoln has made his heroic decision: "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I do not believe that this great Republic can permanently endure, half slave and half free." The strains of the "Battle Cry of Freedom," ("And although they may be poor, not a man shall be a slave,") of "John Brown's Body," that martial music that immortalized forever the memory of a man who gave his life that slaves might be free; of "Dixie," and "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," and above all, that inspired poem of Julia Ward Howe, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Mine eyes have seen the coming of the glory of the Lord, He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored," these and others of their ilk resound through the house as the picture progresses. They play the "Massa Dear," and "Goin' Home" bits of sweet music from Dvorak's "New World Symphony," and that old negro spiritual that has such an effect in the place where it is used: "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen. The haunting strains of Tschaikowsky's "Andante Cantabile," weave their way through much of the story.

One remembers with extraordinary thankfulness that Canada offered a refuge to the slaves in the days when they ran away from their bondage and made their way to the Dominion by the underground route.

The picture revolves around the love story of Eliza and George Harris. It opens with their wedding at the home of the Shelbys, who are examples of the kindly Southern planters, and closes with their reunion, after many harrowing episodes have transpired. Eliza is pictured as a beautiful octoroon, almost white, and George, her husband, is a good looking "yellow boy." Her escape over the ice, with the bloodhounds in pursuit, is memorable in its thrills.

In its details, the picture is superb. The manners and customs, the dress and speech, the homes and environment, of the South and North, in the days preceding and during the early part of the Civil War, are reproduced with fidelity and precision. Here are the black people on the plantation, the pickaninnies running about in their abbreviated cotton shifts, the jazz musicians playing their shaky melodies for the wedding ceremony. Here is Legree with his whip, terrorizing his people and buying Tom and Eliza from the auction block. And here is Uncle Tom, not nearly as old as in the story, but rather more effective in the role of a younger and stronger man. There is probably nothing more poignant in the picture than the little scene where Eva, golden-haired, consumptive, warm-hearted, comes to the hold of the slave ship with fruit for the black people, meets Uncle Tom, bereft of his home and wife and children in "Ole Kaintucky," and whittling with one hand, the other shackled to an iron bar, at a little toy for the amusement of the children.

The picturization of Legree is another triumph. He is a brutal, strong creature, thick lipped, with little eyes, unwinking and snake-like, and a heavy face. Eliza catches his fancy with her beauty, and he buys her from the block, after her babe has been stolen from her by the wretched Marks and his companions. He takes her to his plantation, and there Cassy, the half-white, half-black woman, who has been his wretched paramour for twenty years, discovers from Uncle Tom that Eliza is her own daughter. The manner in which the tigress mother love awakens in Cassy and the way in which she protects Eliza from Legree, make some extraordinary and dramatic episodes.

Topsy, the little mischievous creature who "was never borned, but just growed," and who longs so much for a white skin that she covers herself with heavy powder in an effort to be like "Miss Eva," provides the comedy touch, and she does it in a manner all her own. Her round, marble-like eyes, her pert words, and her habit of transporting herself by means of double somersaults, are vivid touches. She is only one of a cast that is magnificently chosen. —Jeanette.

Taj Mah Is Winner Of Guineas Classic

NEWMARKET, Eng., May 3.—(A.P.)—Taj Mah, by Lemburf, out of Taj Mahal, owned by Simon Outhmann, won the 1,000 guineas classic for fillies run over the mile course at Newmarket to-day.

Colonel Giles Loder's Sister Anne was second and Sir George Gullough's Ellanvale was third. Nineteen ran.

Taj Mah won by three-quarters of a length while there was a short head between second and third. The betting on the winner was 33 to 1, on Sister Ann 5 to 2 and on Ellanval 20 to 1.

The stakes were 1,000 guineas with extras.

NOISE KILLER

LONDON, May 3.—The sea-grass, zostera marina, when dried, has the quality of deadening noises. For this reason it is used extensively as an insulator in houses. It also is a poor conductor of heat and cold.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

LOCAL HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY FOUNDED BY ACT OF PARIAMENT

Well Defined Regulations Set Out in Law of Incorporation.

INTERESTING MEETINGS.

Junior Membership Composed of More Than 650 Boys and Girls.

The Peterborough Horticultural Society, which is coming into well-deserved favor in the community, is founded upon very well defined regulations set forth by an Act of the Provincial Government.

It is founded with the following objectives:

(a) By holding meetings for discussion and for hearing lectures on subjects connected with the theory and practice of improved horticulture.

b) By holding exhibitions and awarding premiums for the production of vegetables, plants, flowers, fruits ,trees and shrubs.

() By the distribution of seeds, plants, bulbs, flowers, shrubs, and trees in ways calculated to create an interest in horticulture.

(d) By promoting the circulation of horticultural periodicals.

(e) By encouraging the improvement of home and public grounds, by the planting of trees, shrubs and flowers, and by otherwise promoting outdoor art and public beauty.

f() By offering prizes for essays on questions relating to horticulture.

(g) By importing and otherwise procuring and distributing seeds, plants, shrubs, and trees of new and valuable kinds.

Interesting Meetings.

So far this year the Peterborough Horticulture Society has held three meetings at which interesting speakers were present, talking on horticulture subjects. Two of the lectures were illustrated.

An exhibit of cut bloom is planned for each month as the flowers become available, starting with tulips this month and following with Iris, peony, roses, sweet peas, and so on. The first displays will be held in some store window followed by a large display in August in some suitable location to be decided later.

For several years it has been the practice of the Horticultural Society to give a large option list from which members could choose plants and seeds. This, however, led to such confusion in selection and distribution, that the plan has been abandoned this year in favor of giving each member two bulbs of Lilium Auratum. These bulbs are in the best condition and have the advantage of being new to most people in Peterborough.

In connection with this premium prizes will be offered for flowers grown from the bulbs, supplied both in cut bloom and grown in pots. The Peterborough Industrial Board has also put in two classes for lillies, open to any variety.

The Society has arranged for a special club rate for the Canadian Horticulturist of 40 cents to members, the regular rate being 20 cents higher.

Junior Members.

There is a junior membership this year of more than six hundred and fifty boys and girls and to these have been distributed more than eleven hundred packages of seeds. Buttons are on hand and are being distributed to these junior members.

Great interest is being taken in the Society by these junior members who are asked to keep from picking flowers in parks, public grounds and on other people's property; to keep from destroying shrubs, trees and flower-beds; to use the sidewalks and keep off people's lawns; to keep from cutting across the corner when this way leads over somebody's lawn and to set an example to other boys and girls and try to persuade them also to have some respect for other people's property. One of the features of the junior membership is that the boys and girls are not asked to sign any promises but are put on their honor to observe these simple rules.

Assisting Old Home Week

The Horticultural Society is enthusiastically behind the Old Home Week movement and is assisting in the beautification of the City. It is recommended by the Society that citizens plant window boxes, paint houses and fences and make a special effort to have the lawns in perfect condition.

Membership in the Peterborough Horticultural Society costs only $1 and this is used by the Society for the purchase of premiums for adult members and seeds for the junior members, as well as for the work which the Horticultural Society plans to do on vacant lots in the way of beautification.

The officers of the Society this year are: President, W. H. Young; first vice president, A. E. Peart; second vice president, J. O Seymour; secretary, S. T. Harris; directors, Miss M. Eason, Mrs. S. T. Harris, H. L. Beal, H. Carter, G. Clarke, F. Hall, F. Holmes, J. S. McGiffen, A. J. Madill and A. Spenceley.

Application for membership should be sent to the Secretary or to The Examinr, using the coupon which appears below:

Join the Horticultural Society. Membership brings you association in the city-wide beautification movement; participation in the good work that the Society is doing in improving vacant lots; the right to enter special lawn, garden and flower contests and the Society's premium of two large bulbs—Lilium Auratum. The fee is $1.

SOCIETY HOLDS FINAL MEETING

Young People of Warkworth Church Gathering For Last Time Until Autumn.

GOOD PROGRAM.

WARKWORTH, May 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Young People's Society of St. Paul's Church held its closing meeting on Monday evening, when the following program was given. O. E. Kelly, president, was in charge. The president gave a few remarks on Psalm 27, the subject taken being "Christ the solid frame."

A piano duet by Frances and Jean Bowen was much enjoyed, after which Rev. Mr. Gardner, of Castleton, gave an excellent address, which was both interesting and instructive, the subject being "The Third Lap of Life." In this the speaker clearly pointed out that between the ages of fourteen and twenty-one was the changing age of youth, and that more people join the church in this age than at any other time, and also more people who have gone down the wayward road start in this age. "What are you as young people going to do with your life? The Saviour Whom we are here to worship had to make His choice. Let us then make the choice of right."

Other numbers on the program included: Vocal duet by Lila and Edgar Allen, with guitar accompaniment by Alice Allen; piano solo, Clara Helson; reading, Jimmie Smooker; vocal duet, Eva McMahon and Margaret Howard; recitation, Jean Gordon; vocal duet, Alice Allen and Elizabeth Duncan.

The entire program was thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated.

A social time was spent in which a singing contest was conducted by Margaret Howard and a contest, forming a telegram from the word calendar, was conducted by Eva McMahon.

At the close a dainty lunch was served.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Losie, of Toronto, are guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. C. Pollock.

Mr. P. S. Ewing has returned after spending a couple of days in Toronto.

Mrs. J. E. Thompson has returned after visiting relatives at Rossmore.

Mr. Wilfred Sykes has returned after spending the winter with relatives in Cincinnati.

Half-holidays have started, Warkworth observing Wednesday afternoon.

TOMATOES SET OUT.

Bulbs Are Rotting in Ground Due to Wet Weather in Colborne District.

COLBORNE, May 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—The season is very cold and backward, and very little gardening has been done so far, although tomato growers are busy transplanting those grown indoors. Some bulbs are rotting in the ground, due to too much moisture and very little sunshine.

Personals.

Mrs. A. Weeks is spending a few days at Codrington with her mother, Mrs. Fred Simmonds, who has been very ill, but is recovering very slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. Rosebush spent Saturday in Oshawa.

Mrs. Alyea has rented her house on Church Street and intends to remain in Belleville for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Turner and daughter and Mr. A. Turner of Peterborough spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. Turner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Brooks.

BANDITS SLUG TAXI DRIVER

CAR IS STOLEN.

OWEN SOUND, May 3 (Canadian Press).—Police are searching for four Owen Sound people, three of them colored, in connection with the assault and robbery of Clifford Potter, taxi driver for Charles McCallum, of this city, late Wednesday night in Holland Township. The party, consisting of two negro men, A. Morton and Edward Earls, a mulatto girl, Isabelle McCarter, and a white girl, Elizabeth Wakeford, have not been seen since Potter, whom they had hired for a drive, was slugged on the head with the butt of a revolver, bound and gagged, robbed and left unconscious in an abandoned log house near the village of Masyie. Potter's money, some $20, his chauffeur's license and the car, a new Plymouth, were taken. News of the hold-up did not reach his employer and the police until Potter managed to get free from his bonds some time on Thursday and make his way to a nearby farmhouse. Morton has a police record, having been convicted of robbing a drug store in Windsor some time ago.

URGE INCREASE MINIMUM WAGE

Opposition Asks Salary Increase For Postal Employees.

DISCUSS APPOINTMENTS.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 3 (C.P.).—An increase in the minimum wage to postal employes was urged by opposition speakers in the House of Commons last night. This turn in the debate on post office affairs enlivened the discussion, which had more or less dragged throughout the afternoon an earlier act and is now seeking to over-ride both the act and the commission.

Hon. Peter Veniot favored an increase to the letter-carriers, but he thought it should be done in the regular way through the Civil Service Commission. Conservative speakers retorted there was a vast difference between a minister overriding the Civil Service Commission in respect to appointments and parliament disregarding the advice of the commission in regard to salaries.

Another day of parliament was taken up with the post office estimates, and still none have been passed. The House went into supply on these estimates without a formal motion yesterday and at once an attack was launched on the Postmaster General arising out of appointments of postmasters. Hon. G. B. Jones (Conservative, Royal), led off with the discussion of a case of the postmastership of Norton, N.B., and before the day was over a number of other post office appointments in various parts of the country had been under review.

It is expected the discussion on the post office estimates will be continued to-day. The Postmaster-General has been under fire in the House more or less continuously since April 16.

AUSTRALIANS VISIT CHICAGO

Mayor Thompson Welcomes Boys at a Meeting of "Windy City" Council.

PLATFORM IS DRAPED.

CHICAGO, Ills., May 3.—(By the C. P.)—Mayor William Hale Thompson welcomed a hundred and sixty young Australians who have been touring Canada and the United States, to Chicago yesterday

The Mayor whose campaign for his job was full of references to the city's peril from the British, invited the Australians to a council meeting and made a speech from a platform draped with Union Jacks

"This is indeed a rare opportunity to welcome these splendid young men to Chicago," said His Honor. "I am glad that you have come to Chicago and that Chicago has impressed you with its greatness."

Major Simons, in command of the Australians, said his countrymen felt close to Mayor Thompson because of his British name. "We thought he was Scotch," said the Major, explaining that new negotiations for the Chicago visit were being made. The Mayor had sent them a long cablegram describing the wonders of the city—collect. "When we got the bill for $25 we were sure he was Scotch," the Major said. The Australian band played "God Save the King."

Afterwards Major Simons said the Australians had paid the cable bill, but it was all right.

WEDDING BELLS

STEVENSON—McWILLIAMS.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon in St. Paul's Manse, when Hazel McWilliams, only daughter of Mrs. R. H. Howden and the late James McWilliams, was united in marriage to John Stevenson, youngest son of Mrs. Elizabeth Stevenson and the late Joseph Stevenson, of Belfast, Ireland.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Wm. Allan, in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends.

The bride looked charming in a gown of powder blue georgette, finished with a deep frill of cream lace. She wore a gray hat, with shoes and hose to match, and carried a sheaf of butterfly roses and maidenhair fern.

The bridesmaid, Miss Olive Jackson, was attired in a gown of yellow flat crepe and hat to match. Black satin shoes and yellow hose completed the costume.

Mr. James Dutton, Junior, acted as best man.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson left later to spend a short honeymoon in Toronto, and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts, showing the esteem in which she was held by her large circle of friends.

IN MEMORIAM.

MAKER.—Norman, for all the world
to my fond heart means you,
And there is nothing left when you are gone.
—Sadly Missed By Wife and Babies.
Greater love hath no man than this,
That he lay down his life for his friend.
—Missed By His Brothers.

IN MEMORIAM.

PEARSON.—In every loving memory of mother, who passed away May 3, 1927:
What would I give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see;
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more
In Heaven that happy life.
—Dedicated To Her Mother by the Late Mrs. Samuel Trude, Lakefield.

IN MEMORIAM.

PEARSON.—In every loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Druscilla Pendergrass, beloved wife of Harry Pearson, who passed away May 3, 1927:
Time speeds on, two years have passed
Since death, its gloom, its shadows, cast
Within our home, all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will,
Her vacant place there is none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.
—Sadly Missed By Husband and Family.

Harmony Creek Yields Up the Body of Helen Wright Late This Morning.

FOUND ON FLATS.

Remains Discovered By Searcher Five Feet Above Present Level.

OSHAWA, May 4. —(Canadian Press). —A mile and a quarter from the sopt where the car in which she was riding plunged headlong into a washout on the Kingston Highway the body of Miss Helen Wright, of Peterborough, was found this morning at 11.30 o'clock on the bank of Harmony Creek. It was not in the least decomposed from its lengthy immerson in the freezing water and was accidently come upon by Wesley McKnight, 390 Ritson Road, South, who has been employed on the farm of the Gifford Brothers, Lymand and Lloyd.

McKnight who had finished his chores at the farm for the morning wandered down to the creek and sighted the body laying a foot above the level of the water on the south bank. The body was fully clothed with the exception of the cloak and hat which had been found previously by searchers.

Find Unlooked For.

The find which brings a startling climax to a long and tedious search by firemen, police and citizens of the district was entirely unlooked for since it was thought every inch of the creek had been scoured andd ragged in the effort to clear up the mystery of the disappearance of Miss Wright. Although considerably handicapped by the flooded condition of the fields and flats and the depth of the water where the deeper holes were known to exist. The searching parties have maintained their constant vigil along the banks of the creek and only a few days ago it was believed the body had been entrapped at the Harmony Bridge, underneath the mass of debris, was the search along the creek let up.

The parents of Miss Wright have been constantly in touch with local authorities who have assured them that every possible effort would be made to find the body.

his find to the police in Oshawa and Detective Sergeant Herbert Flintoff with P. C. Joseph Wright and George McCammond, immediately went to the Gifford farm where they summoned the Luke ambulance. The body was taken to the Luke burial parlours.

Coroner Dr. F. J. Rundle, who decided on the morning of the fatal accident when Walter Norhrop, of Peterborough, another occupant of

Six Year Old Youth Loses Both His Legs

TORONTO, May 4. (C.P.) — Billy Makrae, 6, Toronto, suffered the loss of both legs here last night, when he was jolted from the pilot under the wheels of a shunting engine in the local railway yards.

The lad was rushed at once to the hospital, where his condition is said to be very serious.

It is believed by the police that the lad crawled under the gates protecting the tracks, and climbed on the pilot or the engine. Just how he came to be jolted off the police have been unable to ascertain.

Fourth Member of Party Returning From Kempville Dance Seriously Injured.

DRIVER KILLED INSTANTLY.

Two Automobiles Met in C. P. R. Subway Near Wexford Early This Morning.

BROCKVILLE, May 4. (C.P.) — Endeavoring to pass another car at the Canadian Pacific Railway overhead bridge crossing, Provincial highway No. 2, at the entrance to Wexford, one mile east of Prescott, about 2.30 o'clock this morning, a party of four Prescott young men collided with the abutment of the bridge, three of its members receiving injuries which brought about their death, and the fourth being seriously hurt.

The dead are: Joseph O'Reilly, aged 24, of Prescott, driver of the car, instantly killed.

Francis Black, aged 19, Prescott, died shortly after the accident.

John Easter, aged 17, Prescott, died in St. Vincent de Paul, Hospital, Brockville, at 7.30 o'clock.

The fourth member of the party is John Kelly, aged 21, of Domville, a patient in St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, suffering from several fractures, and other injuries, but expected to recover.

Returning from Dance.

The party were returning from a dance held in Kemptville last night, and were making use of the Prince of Wales Highway to Johnstown, and thence to Prescott, by Provincial Highway No. 2.

As they approached the Canadian Pacific Railway overhead bridge, approximately one mile east of Prescott, they overtook a car owned and driven by S. Brint, of Toronto, and endeavored to pass it after having entered the subway, where there is just room for two cars to pass. In the narrow roadway they were unable to accomplish this feat and crashed into the north abutment, the car owned and driven by O'Reilly being demolished, while Brint's car was forced into the south abutment. Brint, however was not injured.

Dr. R. A. Patterson, and Dr. C. F. McPherson, Prescott, were summoned and found upon their arrival that both O'Reilly and Black were dead. Easter was rushed to St. Vincent de Paul hospital here, suffering from severe injuries about the chest and head. John Kelly, also in this hospital is expected to recover.

Dr. McPherson, as coroner, opened a preliminary investigation in Prescott this morning, and will open the inquest proper in the town hall at Prescott, at 4.30 o'clock this afternoon.

NEWSPAPERMAN KILLED IN RIOT

British Representative in Berlin Shot When He Fails To Obey Police Orders.

SPOKE ONLY ENGLISH.

BERLIN, May 4.—(C.P.)—A British newspaper man has been identified among those killed in the rioting on Hermann Strasse. He is Charles Erau Mackay, 46, from Helson, New Zealand, representative of the Waitara Daily News.

Mackay was shot early this morning when he attempted to cross Hermannstrasse in defiance of police orders to stay indoor. He fel in front of a house on Hermanstrasse until picked up by a passerby later and identified.

Proceeded Carelessly.

Police pointed out that the siege orders expressly forbade newspapermen entering witnin the police cordons after 9 p.m. They added that he "despite repeated police warnings' to be careful he had proceeded too carelessly through the Meukoellin streets."

Charles Erau Mackay came to Berlin about nine months ago in the course of a European journey, intending to remain only six months, but finding it so interesting he decided to stay longer.

He joined the Foreign Press Association and participated in its social activities. He was quiet and unassuming and though not widely known was well liked. His hobby seemed to be art.

He spoke only English and the theory was advanced that his lack of knowledge of German was responsible for his not heeding orders of the police.

Majority against Inverlea Park By-law 715

Money By-Laws Were Defeated By Ratepayers

Nicholls Hospital Vote Has Majority of 255 Piled Up Against It, While With the Inverlea Park Vote the Majority Against It Increased To 715.

TWO POLLING SUB-DIVISIONS VOTE FOR HOSPITAL BY-LAW WHILE ONLY ONE WAS IN FAVOR OF BATHING BEACH

Daylight Saving, As Result of Yesterday's Vote, Will Come Into Effect in City on June 15 and Will Remain Law Until Labor Day.

(By W. J. E.)

Once again the ratepayers of the city have made manifest the antipathy they harbor against all money by-laws. By their vote of 1,019 to 764 they expressed disapproval on Friday, of that by-law which would have provided a grant of $300,000 to the extension fund of the Nicholls Hospital and by an even more convincing margin, 1,377 to 662, they vetoed any possibility of a $10,000 grant toward the improvements at Inverlea Park. However, the voters saw fit to reverse their decision of previous years when they cast 1,838 ballots to 1,524, a majority of 314, in favor of the extra hour of sunshine which the third by-law before them would mean, and accordingly, on June 15, time pieces in the city will be moved on, not to return to Standard Time until Labor Day. The majorities against the Hospital and Park by-laws were 255, and 715 respectively. It was perhaps noteworthy that only one ward, Centre, declared in favor of either money measures and that was for the Hospital grant while only one sub-division voted in favor of the Inverlea Park expenditure. Four out of five wards declared majorities for Daylight saving, East City being the exception, the north end of that ward showing a majority of 55 against the extra hour regulation. In comparison, sub-divisions 23 and 24 in the west ward gave the largest majority in favor of it, 104.

A Light Vote

It may have been due to the extremely inclement weather, to indifference, or to both—at any rate, the vote on Friday was not considered heavy though it was difficult to arrive at authoritative estimates from the total vote polled in view of the fact that only property owners who were supporters of public schools were eligible to vote on the Hospital by-law and only property owners generally, on the Inverlea Park measure. The Daylight Saving regulation was subject to the ballot of all persons whose names appeared on the last Municipal Voters' list. In the city hall where, on such occasions in the past, the more enthusiastic were wont to congregate, only a few citizens gathered while the returns were coming in after five o'clock last night and the acting city clerk, Charles Curtis, along with John Crane and The Examiner representatives worked almost free from interruption. However, later in the evening, telephone wires to the Editorial offices were 'kept hot" by an interested citizenry whose comments on learning the results were so varied and often humorous, as to afford the reporter on that assignment many quiet smiles.

Public Opinion Reversed

While there was no vote in previous years on which to base comparisons regarding the Inverlea Park proposition, there was encouragement, and food for thought in the fact that this year, the minority vote of 764 for the Hospital by-law was larger than the total vote on the same measure in 1928 when it was defeated 364-352, while the total vote for and against that money by-law was more than a thousand in excess of the 1928 ballot.

Indicating that Peterborough folk during the last three years, have been "hankering" to give daylight saving another try, are the totals which show that in 1926, 2,257 voted in favor and 2,900 against, while in the 1928 vote, 2,614 expressed approval, (a gain of 357) while only

LABOR PARTY FAILS TO ACCEPT "SOCIALISM WITH SPEED" POLICY

Of the 160 Labor Members in House of Commons, 117 Belong to I.L.P.

NOT ALL EXTREMISTS.

Policy Laid Down By Carlisle Conference Playing Important Part in Election.

LONDON, May 4 (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent). — The Independent Labor Party (or the I.L.P., as it is more popularly known) represents Socialism in a hurry. Of the 160 Labor members in the House of Commons, 117 are members of the I.L.P. Of those 117, 24 had their election expenses partly paid for from I.L.P. funds. But the Labor party as a whole does not accept the "Socialism with speed" doctrine of the I.L.P. "We are not fools," bluntly returned Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas when a heckler queried if Mr. Thomas accepted an I.L.P. resolution adopted at its Carlisle conference, and calling on I.L.P. members in Parliament to vote against all war credits. The implication of the resolution was that there would be no army and no navy estimates.

All Are Not Extremists.

Nor do all the I.L.P. members of the Labor party in the House of Commons accept the extreme views which have carried the day at I.L.P. conferences and are expressed in literature issued from I.L.P. headquarters. There have, indeed, been rumors from time to time of impending wholesale resignations of I.L.P. membership because of the advanced views of James Maxton, M.P., chairman of the I.L.P., and those who support him. On the day following adoption of the war credits resolution the Socialist Daily Herald reminded those who supported it that the I.L.P. was an organization affiliated with the Labor party, that so long as it retained that affiliation it accepted the decisions of the Labor Party. "We would remind them," the Daily Herald added, "that the Labor Party has rejected the policy of voting against war credits. It has taken its stand on the policy of securing progressive disarmament by co-ordinated and international action. And, in seeking to instruct members of Parliament who are members of the I.L.P. to take action on the lines suggested, those who voted for the resolution appear to us to have forgotten their obligations to the Labor party."

Nevertheless, the Carlisle Conference elected Maxton for the fourth year chairman of the I.L.P. It passed a resolution that in the event of a Labor government, the Cabinet with the exception of the Prime Minister should be selected by the Parliamentary Labor Party. It re-affirmed the doctrine of "Socialism in our time."

Bald-Headed Eagle Caught In Muskrat Trap

Muskrat trapping and customary incidents of that practice, are not new to 17 year old Eric Whitmore, who resides six miles East of Apsley. But when he encountered a bald-headed eagle caught firmly in one of his traps one day last week, he faced a situation entirely new to him. Approaching the still very much alive bird. Whitmore struck it a telling blow with his paddle, and a day or so later brought the big fellow to D. Milton Goheen, taxidermist, of 156 London street, Peterborough.

The specimen, while apparently not an old bird, had a wing spread of 84 inches—or does it sound more impressive to say seven feet—and will be on exhibition in Selkirk and Elliott's garage, Hunter street.

EXPERTS FORM REVISED PLAN

Germany and United States Have Already Reached Full Agreement.

TWO NATIONS DISSENT.

PARIS, May 4 (C.P.).—The German and American reparations delegations have reached a full agreement on a complete settlement of the reparations problem, it is reported here to-day. It remains, however, for the Americans to win the French and Belgian delegations to their plan.

Owen B. Young, chief of the American delegation, to-day was conferring with the delegations of the other creditor nations to this end.

The British and the Japanese delegations were stated authoritatively tentatively to have approved the settlement, leaving France and Belgium particularly and possibly Italy dissenting.

Inaugurate Bank

The settlement agreed upon by the United States delegates and the Germans provides for annuities to run only 37 years. The payments of 1,750,000,000 marks needed for the succeeding 21 years to meet the debts of the Allied countries to America would be met by the International Bank from its profits.

These probably would not run that high annually, but it is argued that the bank, by accumulating the profits and making them work at a higher rate of interest than would apply to the debts could handle them eventually, so that they would take care of this part of the war debts account.

VESSEL'S CREW REPORTED SAFE

Mystery Ship in Lake Huron Is Identified as the O. E. Parks.

FOUNDERED FRIDAY.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 4 (C.P.).—The vessel wrecked off Thunder Bay in Lake Huron has been identfied as the O. E. Parks, owned by Shields and Watson of Soo, Mich., according to word received at the ship canal here.

The Parks is a 140-foot vessel and after winterng in the American Soo left a few days ago to pick up a load of pulpwood at ports east of here for Port Huron. The vessel was recently equipped with Diesel engines.

According to a message received in Saulte Ste. Marie, Michigan, from Captain Sam Shields, owner, the entire crew, composed of the captain and eight men of the steamer O. E. Parks, which foundered in Thunder Bay, Lake Huron, were saved.

The Parks, which left the Sault last Sunday, took on a cargo of pulpwood at St. Joe Island ports for Alpena, Michigan.

"Parks foundered. All saved" said the message to Mrs. Shields.

Foundered Friday

The Parks left Richards Landing, Ont., Thursday, wth a load of pulpwood. During the night it ran into a heavy blow that sent most vessels into shelter. The Parks, originally a barge, had been converted to operate under its own power with the installation of Diesel engines.

Thunder Bay Island is in Lake Huron, about 25 miles off the mainland and in the path of a downbound vessel circling North Point for Alpena. There is a lighthouse on the island, but little other facilities for the comfort of the crew of the wrecked vessel. A later report said the men had been taken to Alpena. All wires to Alpena were down and the repo: could not be verified.

First word of a mishap came when the steamer Renvoyle of the Canada Steamship Lines sighted a wreckage off Thunder Bay yesterday noon. The Renvoyle reported sighting a number of doors, hatches and pulpwood strewn about the lake for miles.

The bow of the boat had been smashed, obliterating the name.

TUGBOAT IS RAMMED.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 4. — The municpal ferryboat Joseph Guider rammed and sank the tugboat Margaret Olsen off the foot of Hamilton Avenue, Brooklyn, to-day. The tugboat's crew was rescued and taken aboard the ferryboat.

The Weather

Snow flurries yesterday and to-day, with a light covering of snow on the ground this morning, made the average citizen take a second look at his calendar this morning, to see if it really were the 4th day of May. He also scratched his head to see if he could recall a similar occurrence—and when?. To satisfy his natural curiosity, I have made a little search for similar events, and have found snow in May on a number of occasions, but THE May snowstorm was on May 4, 1907—22 years ago to-day. On that day we had a real snowstorm. Six inches (good measure) of snow covered the ground and many of the trees. The foliage of the trees was much further advanced than it is to-day, and the snow lodged on the branches until they decidedly drooped. The men with the corporation snowploughs made their belated rounds. The snow naturally did not remain long, and by night was almost gone.—W. P.

BERLIN PAPER BLAMES SOVIET FOR INSTIGATING RECENT REVOLT

Borough Newspaper Charges Russian Communists With Leading Uprising.

OFFICERS INVESTIGATING.

Of 1,200 Arrested Since May Day, 200 Are Being Held By Police.

BERLIN, May 4. (C.P.)—Berlin police were investigating to-day's charges of a borough newspaper that a Russian Communist leader aided by there members of the Soviet Army general staff had led the German Communists in rioting of the past three days.

The police were in complete charge of Neukoelin and Wedding districts where 21 persons have been killed and more than 150 injured in fighting since May Day. A state of siege probably will be maintained in the affected districts until Monday, although disturbances to-day seemed on the wane.

200 Being Held.

Of 1200 arrested since May day about 200 have been held for infraction of the community's peace and probably will be committed for trial.

Another 1450 workers joined the ranks of the strikers, who yesterday walked out in sympathy with the Communists in their battle with the police. Of these 800 were laborers on the Neukoelin subway construction gangs, 250 were employees of a street car rails plant, and 400 shoe factory workers. The police estimated the total number of strikers yesterday at 6,000.

Police Investigating Big Diamond Robbery

LONDON, May 4. — (C.P.) — Continental police have begun an investigation of a mysterious diamond robbery involving stones valued at £25,000 (about $125,000.)

The diamonds were posted in registered mail from Lorezo Marquez, Portuguese East Africa, to an Antwerp firm. When the parcels reached Antwerp they were found to contain only worthless pebbles. The original seals had been removed and others substituted.

FIRE BOX USED TO POST LETTER

Department Receives False Alarm From Corner of George and Charlotte.

MAN DISAPPEARED.

"Dang these new fangled boxes anyway! How do they expect a man to get a letter in 'em when they put a cover over the slot?" Those thoughts must have been chasing themselves through the farmer's head at noon to-day when he rang in a fire alarm in attempting to post a letter in an alarm box.

It was 12.25 noon, when Box 39 at the corner of Charlotte and George streets "hit" at the Fire Hall. Immediately all was action; pumper, ladder truck and chief's car speeded to the corner looking vainly for smoke and sign of fire at Peterborough's busiest corner. The men off duty, who had just sat down to dinner, hastened to the Fire Hall, too, because this was a general alarm.

Naturally the farmer was not in sight because quickly he realized what he had done. Detective Meagher is on the look-out for him, being furnished with a description by clerks in the Customs House who saw the man drive up in an aged Ford and begin tinkering with the alarm box.

The box in front of the Customs House is one of six such boxes in the city, distributed at strategic points where the fire hazard is considered great. It is a "quick action' box and has been there two years. A metal piece covers the lever, which, when lifted and the lever pulled down, the alarm sounds at the station.

Fire Chief Gimblett stated that the most gentle pull of the lever would set the alarm going.

Perhaps when the farmer is found these things will be explained to him.

1,000 Persons Perish in Three Persian Towns As Result of Earthquakes Of Past Few Days

ASHHABAD, Russian Turkestan, May 4.—(Canadian Press)—Earthquakes which yesterday shook the vast stretches west of Samarakand, once the capital of Tamberlane's oriental empire, were believed to-day to have taken a heavy toll of life and property.

Unconfirmed reports said 1,000 persons perished in three Persian towns alone, while 11 were killed and 40 injured here as four successive tremors brought down houses and buildings in many villages. One person was killed in this city and 26 injured. Ninety houses were demolished.

The Russian Turkestan government, on request of Persian officials rushed aid across the border into Persia where the damage and loss of life was believed greatest. Isolation of many of the affected areas accentuated the relief problem.

Minister Of Justice Opposes Bill In House To Establish Separate Domiciles For Women

OTTAWA, Ont., May 4 (Canadian Press). — A strong protest was registered in the House of Commons last night by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, to the Bill to enable married women to establish separate domiciles in proceedings for divorce. Discussion took place on a motion by W. J. Ward (Liberal-Progressive, Dauphin), to commit the Bill to committee of the whole.

This Bill, Mr Lapointe said, would introduce a principle entirely contrary to British law and would create difficulties which perhaps had not been foreseen. In an Alberta case, judges of the Privy Council had stressed the rule that the domicile of a married person was the only place where there was jurisdiction in divorce, and as a consequence of the marriage tie, there could be only one domicile for husband and wife.

CANADA SHOULD LEAD WORLD IN DISARMAMENT SAYS MEMBER

Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., Claims Dominion Is In Logical Position To Do So.

DIVORCE COURTS.

"Personally," Lady Member Says, "I Cannot Get Enthusiastic Over Rum-Running Ships.

TORONTO, May 4. — (Canadian Press).—Canada should lead the world in disarmament is the opinion of Miss Agnes MacPhail, only woman member of the House of Commons, expressed in an interview with a local paper here yesterday.

"Canada is in the logical position to do so" she said. "Canada is the mediator between Great Britain and the United States, and talk as one may the feeling between the two countries is not the best. Such an action on the part of Canada would be a magnificent gesture towards world peace," she said .

"Divorce courts are inevitable in Ontario and should be obtained before sheer force brings them. It is not a case of increasing or decreasing divorce, but one of safeguarding the interests of the children" Miss MacPhail continued.

The speech of Mr. Cahan's in Washington was in bad taste in Miss MacPhail's opinion, as in the clearance of vessels carrying liquor

After rifling his pickets, the thugs tied Allan to the wheel of his car and left him there. He was discovered two hours later by a chance motorist.

POST OFFICE ESTIMATES ARE PASSED

After Another Day of Debate Postmaster General Finally Gets His Note Endorsed.

COURSE HAS GEEN STORMY.

Three Amendments Have Been Dealt With in Course of Debate.

OTTAWA, May 4. (C.P.)—After another day of debate ,estimates of the Post Office Department finally passed the committee of supply shortly before adjournment of the House of Commons last night. Except for an hour in the evening which was devoted to consideration of private members' legislation, almost the whole day was occupied with the post office appropriations. Finally the committee passed the first item of $17,295,464 for salaries and allowances. Further discussion followed and then the vote of 16,305,000 for the mail service, including the air service, was approved.

The next item ,one of $1,176,175 for miscellaneous requirements, was also disposed of after the minister had made a statement to the House with respect to the Pacific Cable. The final appropriation was one of 150,000 for the Yukon territory. The total amount of the vote for the post office outside service was $34,926,639. The House also approved the civil government vote for the post office department amounting to $1,375,039, for salaries, and $215,000 for contingencies.

Course has been Stormy.

The course of the post office estimates during the present session has been a particularly stormy one. The efforts of Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, to obtain his supply, have been met with amendment after amendment dealing with different features of postal administration.

Hon. James A. Robb,Minister of Finance, first moved to go into supply for consideration of post office estimates on April 16. To this motion, Hon. Hugh Guthrie (Conservative, Wellington South) proposed an amendment in opposition to the present system of rural mail contracts. The amendment failed to pass.

When the post office estimates came up for consideration on the following day, another amendment by H. A. Stewart (Conservative, Leeds), censuring the Minister in connection with the appointment of a postmaster at Simcoe, Ont., was precipitated into the discussion. Again the House defeated the amendment.

Several days of discussion followed. The third and final amendment came yesterday when Mr. Stewart moved in condemnation of the general administration of the Post Office Department by Mr. Veniot. On the third and last time the House defeated the amendment. The bombardment of the Minister has come chiefly from the ranks of the opposition, although those of the U.F.A. and Labor groups have also participated in the debate.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO IS SWEPT BY WIND, RAIN AND SNOW STORMS

Thousands of Dollars of Damage On Land Caused By Yesterday's Storm.

SHIPPING TIED UP.

Lake Ontario is Reported To Be at the Highest Stage For a Decade.

TORONTO, Ont., May 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Wind, rain, snow and generally unseasonable weather prevailed over the greater part of Ontario yesterday causing thousands of dollars damage on land and interfering with shipping on the Great Lakes. Rivers were over their banks at a number of places and further damage is feared from rising water.

Property on the shores of Lake Erie, Lake Ontario and Lake St. Clair has been damaged, many summer resorts reporting cottages ruined. The lake at Oakville is reported at the highest stage for a decade. The Motor park at Port Credit is under water. St. Catharines experienced a miniature cloudburst that flooded cellars.

Reaches New Peak.

The Humber river has spread over i banks and flooded flats, while the Don river is at a new peak and with continued rain may overflow. A number of bridges have been closed to traffic. Railway traffic has been disrupted by washouts. The engine and tender of a Canadian National train left the track between Port Perry and Manchester. The engineer and firemen were slightly injured.

Storm conditions prevailed at Kingston. The signal box from which storm signals are flown was washed from its foundation last night and nearly all docks along the water front were submerged. The water was more than 19 feet above the sill of the drydock.

Reaches New Level.

Fishermen at Trafalgar and Bronte on Lake Ontario reported to-day that the water had reached a new level. The water was muddy and fishing almost impossible

A fifty mile gale with snow and rain held up shipping at Sault Ste. Marie yesterday. Some vessels were reported to have taken shelter along the north shore of Lake Superior and were awaiting for the storm to abate before proceeding.

At Prescott and other points along the St. Lawrence river wharves were swept away and cottages undermined when a gale sent the river on a rampage.

DREAD DISEASE CLAIMS YOUTH

Death of Bracebridge Boy Was Due to Cerebro Spinal Meningitis.

FAMILY ISOLATED.

TORONTO, May 4. (C.P.) — The death on Thursday of Fred McKee, a three year old Bracebridge boy, is attributed by the Provincial Department of Health, to cerebro spinal meningitis, caused by streptococcus infection of the same type that invaded Ekrid Township and caused four deaths.

The child first complained of being tired, and then became ill. Eighteen hours after he was dead, Dr. R. Huggard, Bracebridge, took a swab from the lad's throat, and also a specimen of the spinal fluid. Tests by Dr. A. L. McNabb, Director of Laboratories here, revealed in both the evidence of hemolytic streptococcus.

Immediately the cause of the boy's death was determined, Hon. Dr.Forbes Godfrey, Provincial Minister of Health, instructed the medical officer of health, of the Bracebridge district, to place the McKee family under complete isolation and quarantine. Instructions were also issued to watch the district milk supply and to take any steps tending to eliminate the chances of an epidemic.

"This is a very dangerous disease," Dr. Godfrey stated last night, "and we are leaving no stone unturned to safeguard the public."

LAKE STEAMER IS DISABLED

Tugs Are Towing City of Buffalo With 135 On Board to Erie Harbor.

BOAT BEEN DRIFTING.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Battling huge waves and a strong gale, with 135 souls aboard, the passenger steamer City of Buffalo, 18 hours overdue in Cleveland, was being towed last night by two tugs to Erie, Penn.

Tugs towed the steamer into the harbor at Ashthabula, but were unable to dock the boat. They then started for Conneaut, but as the port at that city is no larger than the one at Ashtabula, it is believed that the steamer will be docked at Erie.

If the two lines hold, the steamer, badly battered by heavy seas, will reach Erie some time this morning.

Due Yesterday Morning.

Fifty passengers and a crew of 85 are aboard the City of Buffalo, which was due at this port early yesterday morning.

Four coastguard craft, equipped with rescue equipment, are standing at the side of the passenger boat, as they did throughout yesterday.

The freighter Calcite and two tugs of the Great Lakes Towing Company are also standing by, ready to give aid.

The vessel was within 16 miles of Cleveland when something went wrong with her engine. Last evening she had drifted eastward 50 miles or more until at one time she was within two miles of shore off Sturgeon Point, Geneva-on-the-Lake, and Commander Martin W. Rasmussen, of the coast guard was predicting that she would be aground within half an hour.

With the storm still sweeping the lakes, the Renvoyle was unable to stop and investigate the wreck. Last night the tug Favorite came upon the wreck, and, although little could be seen of the submerged craft, its officers decided to stand by and await daylight.

It is possible the crew of the unknown ship were able to reach one of the islands in the vicinity, but this is considered unlikely. It is thought the ship, crippled in the blast, suddenly keeled over and in that case the crew would have little chance of escape.

History of Peterborough

Written by Thomas W. Poole M.D., and Published in Peterborough 1867

CHAPTER III—(Continued)
The Town of Peterborough

Scott's Mill was for many years a land-mark to the immigrant and the visitor to the new settlements; and until 1827, Peterborough had no other name than "Scott's Plains." Its present designation was then chosen, as a merited compliment to the Hon. Peter Robinson, to whose successful labors in promoting immigration the country felt itself so much indebted.

The first houses, next to those of Mr. Scott, were erected at the time of the immigration of 1825, and a cursory reference to these, we trust, will not prove uninteresting. We will commence with those erected by Mr. Robinson for the purpose of the immigration, as being among the first in point of time as well as of importance.

These were all built of logs, with square gables and shingled roofs. Four of them stood in a row on the south eastern portion of the market square, fronting upon Water street. The largest of the four, which was also the most northern, occupied very nearly the site of the front portion of the present market house. Its size was about 18 by 20 feet, while the others were somewhat smaller. This one was used as a residence for Dr. Reade, surgeon to the immigrants, and as a temporary church, in which Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Mr. Crowley. The two central were used as storehouses for the provisions for the immigrants, and probably for other purposes. The one nearest the south was Mr. Robinson's general office, where accounts were kept and business transacted by himself and his chief clerk, Mr. Richard Thornhill. The fifth and largest of these buildings was long known as the "government house," and as being the residence of Mr. Robinson, Col. McDonell, and Mr. John Smith, surveyor, who assisted in locating the immigrants, and for a brief time the resting-place of Vice-Royalty itself; and is worthy of a fuller description. Like the others, it was built of logs was forty feet long by about twenty feet wide. It stood on the eastern side of the lot now occupied by the Bank of Montreal (southeast corner of Simcoe and Water streets), about thirty feet from the former and forty from the latter, very near the southern end of the brick stable now belonging to those premises. It fronted towards the south, with a door near the centre of the building, partly concealed by a wooden porch in front. There were two windows in the front and three in the rear. The interior was divided into three rooms, or nearly equal size, by two partitions of logs, erected with the walls. Into the middle of these the front door opened into the other apartments on either hand. The western room was devoted to the purposes of the kitchen, while Mr. Robinson slept in the eastern apartment, which also contined sundry books, paper and maps. The logs both of walls and partitions, were hewed to a level surface in the interior, and the interstices, both within and without, carefully secured with "chinks" and mortar. A considerable portion of ground, extending across and north of Simcoe street, was fenced in as a garden, while some small out-houses occupied a position near the bank of the river. Such were the modest structures erected by Mr. Robinson; which were very well adapted to the purposes intended. Should any of our fastidious readers profess to sneer at their homeliness, as presented in the picture we have drawn, we can assure them that at the time of their erection, and for at least several years later, they were regarded as first-class houses, and models of taste and perfection in the youthful town.

OLD BANDS TO PERFORM

It has been proposed to get together as many as possible of the very oldest of our citizens who had been members of the old time brass bands during the years that have passed No doubt a number could be gathered in and it would be interesting to have them associated.

But the practical results, if any, so gained would amount to very little as all would be entirely out of practice and a few would have no instruments. But a more practical suggestion may bring fruit.

Mr. Geo. Chambers, of 271 Simcoe street, has made a list of about thirty men, and says that all have kept to some extent in practice, being associated with local musical groups in one shape or another. Mr. Rupert Gliddon has consented, if the men will come together, to form a band for the old home week purposes, enter on practice and be able to discourse selections from the programs of the years of long ago.

A few days will show if the matter can be handled. Following is a list of the bandsmen as given by Mr. Chambers:

Joseph Minnicio, 537 Elm street.
Chas. Davidson, Lindsay.
Chas. Westbrooke, Lockworks.
R. Heideman, Water street north.

When you realize that Dack's have for over 100 years been measuring and fitting men's feet both in their shops and by mail and that men from Halifax to Vancouver, year after year order their shoes from Dack's by mail; the above claim does not seem so far from the truth.

I AM always glad when I find John Plane in a reminiscent mood. Interesting at all times, he is doubly so when in such moods. Calling upon him at the close of a busy day, I found him in such a frame of mind. He gave me an interesting story of an experience which he had in New York at the close of the war. Passing up Broadway he saw a sign on the Metropolitan Tabernacle announcing special services by Major John Robertson, chaplain with the British forces in France and Flanders. On entering the building he found a large congregation singing with almost perfect precision and a passion that made him think it was an old-time Methodist camp meeting he had got into instead of a fashionable New York church.

The Old Guard.

The minister of the congregation, also a Scotsman, as a student in Glasgow, had frequently heard this British preacher when he was popularly known as "Robertson of the City Temple,' and attracting greater crowds than that immense building could accommodate. Robertson's name at that time was a name to conjure with in Scotland.

In introducing Major Robertson, the minister of the Metropolitan Tabernacle described him as the last of the old guard. He was one of that noble company of preachers among whom was Spurgeon and Moody and Varley. There were giants in those days. John Plane says that if their equals are alive they manage to conceal themselves very successfully.

A Night Experience.

At the close of the service and after listening to a great sermon preached with Pentecostal power, my carpenter friend went to his hotel, but not to sleep, as he afterwards discovered. He had an experience which he will never forget as long as he lives. He says that he believes he understands now how Jacob must have felt at Peniel when made suddenly aware of another Presence.

A voice was speaking! Whether it was his own or some other, he is unable to say. That voice seemed to say: "Soul, you are now alone in the presence of the great God, your creator. Before Him angels veil their faces and cry, 'Holy! Holy! Holy! Lord God Almighty!' and from this face of His the heavens and the earth will yet flee away. Soul, you are alone with the Holy God.

"Soul, you are a sinner against God. You were born a sinner. When Adam sinned and fell, you, a child of Adam, sinned and fell in him. You have a sinful nature, and are under the curse of God. You have proved your sinful nature by actual and multiplied sin. Born away from God, your depraved will has kept you away from Him. Your conscience accuses you, and the great God is greater than your conscience and knoweth all things. All things are naked and open to the eyes of Him with whom you have to do. You have soon to meet the God you have sinned against, and you cannot say nay to His call. What can a sinner do in the presence of a Holy God? What can a law-breaker do in the presence of the Infinite Law-Maker? The natural mind is enmity against God. And your unregenerate heart, however repressed and disguised, is only the natural mind, and therefore you are an enemy against God. The divine law stops every mouth and brings in the whole world guilty before God, and you are guilty, condemned, without life, without God and without hope. Lost! Soul, you are a sinner against God.

What Awaits Us.

"Sinner, God will bring you into judgment. God cannot look upon sin. His holiness burns like fire and will consume the sinner in eternal wrath. He hat said, 'The soul that sinneth shall die, and God will bring you into judgment.' Soul, what will you do in the hands of an angry God? Though hand join in hand, the wicked shall not be unpunished. By your sins you have treasured up wrath against the day of wrath, and that day of wrath is at hand. You may die to-night, and go to hell. Your natural and certain place as a sinner is in that hell of woe, and God is not obligated in the least to keep you from that natural place of yours, one moment. He is giving you now that very breath you are breathing, and yet you spend and have spent every breath He thus gives in sinning against Him. Why should He keep you a single moment longer from your natural place in the burning lake of His wrath? Sinner, God will bring you to judgment.

A Wonderful Offer.

"Sinner, an Almighty Saviour is offered to you. Do you cry, 'What must I do to be saved?' Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved. Very God of very God, He became very man of very man. 'When the fullness of time had come God sent forth His Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law.' He took unto Himself a true body and reasonable soul that He might in reality be the mediator between the Holy God and fallen man—the mediator between God and you, sinner. He said, 'No man cometh unto the Father but by Me.' He lived and died a cruel death on the Cross, and He rose again because it was not possible that He should be holden by death, nor that the Holy One should see corruption. The Father raised His Son from the dead, seeing He delighted in Him, and, behold He is alive for evermore. He is in this room ready to receive you. He took His limited bodily presence away from earth that He might take His unlimited omnipresence on earth in His Holy Spirit; so this glorious Almighty Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ, is now beside you in this silent room you are sitting in, His arms outstretched to take you in. You are in His very presence now. He offers Himself to you as your Saviour. 'Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.' You are a sinner. He therefore came to save you. Will you let Him? He will receive you; He bids you come.

"Soul, before you go any further, here in the presence of the glorious Son of God, in His Holy Spirit, the Lord Jesus Christ, the one and only Saviour; here in His presence now kneel by your chair, and commit your never-dying sinful soul to Him, unreservedly and really, now!

Robertson Again.

"I seemed to hear the voice of Major Robertson again as if he had entered the room, although I could not really see him with my physical eyes, and he was saying: At this solemn let a fellow sinner that has has found his Saviour direct you by solemn time let a fellow sinner that of his bodily presence, to voice the cry of your soul. Take with you words, and now say with your heart and in low, hushed tones with your lips:

"'O Holy and Almighty God, I am a sinner against Thee; God be merciful to me, a sinner. In Thine adorable love, O God, Thou hast given Thy Well-Beloved and Only-Begotten Son that I might believe on and receive Him, and, in Thy grace, not perish, but have everlasting life. O God, I do believe on Him now. O Son of God given to me as Saviour by the Father, I flee to Thee to hide me. Thou hast invited me, a poor hell-deserving sinner, to come to Thee. I do come now. I do come now. Thou didst promise not to cast me out, O Lord, and Thou dost not cast me out. O Lord, Thou dost receive me. O Lord Jesus Christ, Thou didst come to save sinners—see, I, a sinner, have come to Thee. Just as I am I surrender myself to Thee now, body, soul and spirit—I do, I do! Thy loving arms have taken me in. O Lord Jesus Christ, I am not mine own now. O my Saviour, I am thine! Praise to Thy name, I am Thine forever!'

What God Says Now.

"What does God say about you now? 'There is, therefore, now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus.' You are in Christ Jesus, therefore there is no condemnation to you. 'He that hath the Son, hath life.' You have the Son of God, therefore you have life. 'Whosoever believeth in Him shall not perish, but have everlasting life.' You believe in Him, therefore you shall not perish, but you have everlasting life, and 'shall not come into condemnation,' but 'have passed from death to life.'"

John Plane came to see that the work that Jesus did on the Cross makes us safe, and the Word that is written in the Scriptures makes us sure that we are safe. By His death and resurrection, Jesus Christ opened up a wonderful, life-giving way into the presence of the Father. That way is needed by the best, for NO MAN cometh unto the Father but by Him; and thank God it is available for the worst, for whosoever will may come.

Reader, if you have never come by this way yet, remember that there is danger in delay. Moreover, you will never know how much you have missed in life that is worth while until you surrender your will to the claims of Christ.

"Nothing in my hand I bring, Simply to Thy Cross I cling."

—Allan Fairbairn.

The Minister Remarks—

—Some church members, like wheelbarrows, will only go as far as they are pushed—and even then they are difficult to move.

—It is true that beauty is only skin deep, but that ought to be deep enough to suit any ordinary mortal.

—Some folks are like kettles—they will sing though they are in hot water up to their neck.

—Haven't you noticed that those who are always giving themselves away are not worth having?

—I have met folks who didn't need to turn out the light to be in the dark. —A. F.

SPECIAL ADDRESS BY REV. R. KEITH MILLS

Life Is As You Make It

WHAT would you think of some poor sufferer who, after having been confined to her room and bed for fifty years, felt disposed to celebrate that event Would you be inclined to think she must be crazy? Would it be something you could really understand?

Some years ago, New York, accustomed as it is to the unusual, was startled to hear that a woman was celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of a shut-in existence. It was remarked at the time that most people imagined there could by no possibility be any subject for rejoicing that a half century of life had been spent in that way. Such courage seemed to be beyond the comprehension of the average individual. Doctors, however, know that chronic invalids, even when confined to their rooms, provided they do not have to suffer a great deal of pain, are often not only content but quite happy in their enclosure.

Probably you have heard it said that life is what people make it. Be that as it may, it is certainly true that the attitude of mind toward life goes far to the making of happiness despite what would seem to be disturbing circumstances. It is believed by some that there are two classic ways of seeking happiness. One is by endeavoring to get everything in sight for one's self. Let those who follow this way tell the truth and they will be compelled to confess that this way is notoriously a failure. The other is by limiting one's wants to what is possible to secure and thus attaining, so far as is possible in an imperfect world, at least contentment.

Those who move in the homes of the people, such as doctors and ministers and nurses, know that there is a great company of shut-ins who have learned the secret of happiness in life better than millions of others whose health and strength would seem to assure them much greater possibilities of satisfaction in life. It will always be true that "Godliness with contentment is great gain." —A. F.

Felt Rather Than Seen

SHOULD it not be our aim to have our influence felt rather than seen and heard. Should we not desire to scatter blessings so silently and so secretly, that no one shall now what hand dropped them? The whole spirit of our Lord's teaching confirms this.

—John Plain.

I Belong But I Do Not Go

WAS it a confession of wrong or a statement of fact one man was making to another about his church? They met casually and were discussing neighborhood matters. When the church was mentioned, one said, "I belong there but never go." On being questioned as to why, no good reason was given, himself being the judge. Minor things assumed major proportions from the personal point of view or through obliquity of vision. I do not know in his case what excuses were given, but I think I could supply them. It may have been because the minister did or did not wear a gown, because the sermons were too long or dealt too much or too little with current affairs. It may have been the music, too operatic or too common; too much of it or not enough. Sometimes members do not attend because of the presence of other people who are objectionable or because of objectionable men in the Session. The list is interminable if one sets out to construct it. I am not speaking of ill-health or age.

Every congregation suffers from this sort of thing. At times it assumes the proportion of a spiritual epidemic. Members who do not attend services do more harm than they think. It is not an idle saying in scripture, "Neglect not the assembling of yourselves together." If we neglect the ordinances of the church we thereby help to destroy them.

A Complimentary Vote.

Membership in the church gives God a complimentary vote, but by non-attendance our influence and exampe are against the church. We are not helping forward the work which Christ and His disciples initiated, but we are counted against Him by the world. Non-attendance is the back door of the church and means after a time non-membership, if not for ourselves certainly for our children. No excuse can justify absence from the worship of God's house. It erects itself into an argument against Christ and His church. —Dr. William Melville Curry, pastor, Ninth Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia.

Thou Hast Nothing To Draw With

AY, there is the rub! The world, like a bountiful well, is full of good things, but the problem is how to get them. The well is deep, and so many people do not have the rope of money or brains or purpose with which to draw. I am not much of a political economist. The whole present system may be wrong, and need righting—I don't know. But there is one very simple way of getting things into better shape than they are now. Those of us who have ropes can lend them to those who have not. A helping hand is the longest rope in the world, and will reach the bottom of wells so deep that nothing else can touch them.

Children's Corner — TELL US A STORY

I WAS once walking behind a very handsomely dressed young girl, and thought, "I wonder if she takes half as much pains with her heart as she does with her person!" A poor old man was coming up the walk with a loaded wheelbarrow; and, just before he reached us, he made two attempts to go into the yard of a small house; but the gate was heavy, and would swing back before he could get through. "Wait," said the young girl, springing lightly forward; "I'll hold the gate open." She did, and received his thanks with a pleasant smile. "She deserves to have beautiful clothes," I thought, "for a beautiful spirit dwells in her breast." —Little Corporal.

1. We have the Lord's own warrant for using tragic events in spiritual counsel to our fellows. Jesus Himself used the falling Tower of Siloam, and the catastrophe which overtook Lot's wife, and Jonah to illustrate spiritual truths.—Luke 13:4, 17:28-32; Matt. 12:39-41.

Beside Still Waters

THE soul of man, in one respect at least, shares the twofold necessity of water—agitation and repose. There are times when we need to be shaken up by the fury of the rapids, and others when we need to be spread out in the calm stillness of the lake. To the young, all repose is stagnation. They love to launch their barks on stormy seas. But there comes a time when the soul longs for still waters—"waters of rest." The final measurement of life values discloses the ineffable worth of stillness and quiet. There is no power like that of silence and repose. The heart that is to be filled to the brim with holy joy must be still. Energy resides in tranquility. The stars and the sun rise in silence, and so do great events. Bees work in silence, and so do thoughts. Trees grow in aphony and muteness, so also do characters. But rest and peace are not products of external conditions. The soul may be tempest-tossed on the most stagnant sea, and yet as calm as heaven even amidst the breakers. "Diogenes found more rest in his tub than Alexander on his throne." "Weariness can snore upon the flint when rusty sloth finds the down pillow hard." All true peace and rest and quietness are the gifts of God through the consciousness of His presence. —C. F. G.

Some Stray Lines

THERE are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
There are souls that are pure and true;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come to you.
Give love, and love to your heart will flow,
A strength in your utmost need;
Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
Their faith in your word and deed.

Don't take too much interest in other people's affairs, six per cent is enough.

Civility is to a man what beauty is to a woman. It creates an impression in his behalf.

Remember that other people have hearts and that there is a day of judgment.

A GREAT UTTERANCE.

HAD Jesus Christ delivered no other declaration than the following, "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation," He had pronounced a message of inestimable importance and well worthy of that splendid apparatus of prophecy and miracle with which His mission was introduced and attested—a message in which the wisest of mankind would rejoice to find an answer to their doubts and rest to their inquiries." —S. T. Coleridge.

DAYLIGHT SAVING CARRIES.

Peterborough will operate according to daylight saving time this summer.

The electors yesterday endorsed the proposal to advance the clocks an hour between June 15 and Labor Day.

The shorter period of daylight saving asked for by exponents of the scheme and the fact that advocates of summer time had a measure of organization yesterday and saw to it that the favorable votes were polled, are given the credit for the reverse in the trend of public opinion.

Daylight saving had twice before been rejected by the electors, who turned the proposal down in 1926 by a vote of 2,900 against 2,257, and again in 1928, although by a reduced majority, the figures on that occasion being 2,957 against and 2,614 in favor of the measure.

The adoption of summer time will bring Peterborough in line with Toronto and thus prove of advantage to several local industries, while it is hoped that the people generally will benefit by the extra hour of daylight that will be made possible through the operation of the plan during the summer months.

A DECISIVE ANSWER.

For the second time within a year the Protestant ratepayers of Peterborough have turned down a by-law to authorize the issuing of debentures to provide $300,000 for enlarging and modernizing Nicholls Hospital.

The verdict yesterday was much more emphatic than that registered last September when the by-law came within 12 votes of being carried.

The centre and west wards on that occasion showed majorities in favor of the proposal, but yesterday only the centre ward ratepayers endorsed the hospital program, and the total majority piled up against it was 253.

The answer is decisive and will force the Nicholls Hospital Board to endeavor to find some other solution for the problem of how to provide adequate hospital services for a community that has shown itself indifferent to the need of such services.

Objection to increasing debenture debt was perhaps the biggest factor in yesterday's vote on the hospital by-law.

It completely overshadowed in the minds of many ratepayers any other consideration, and the merits of the case were lost sight of in the fact that the passing of the by-law meant higher taxes all round.

The question of what is to be done to meet the situation is one likely to give the Hospital Board considerable worry.

THE PARK BY-LAW.

The crushing defeat of the by-law to improve Inverlea Park bathing beach is to be regretted, inasmuch as the program proposed was needed and would have proved of benefit to many citizens of Peterborough, whose only summer playground is Inverlea.

The verdict yesterday was not so much proof that the ratepayers do not want to see Inverlea Park improved as it was a demonstration of protest against rising tax rates and climbing assessment.

Coupled with the fate of the hospital measure, the vote indicates that the majority of property-owners are opposed to undertaking any capital expenditures that can possibly be avoided.

Any other measure seeking authorization for the spending of any considerable sum of money would undoubtedly have met the same fate as the park and hospital by-laws had they been submitted to the ratepayers yesterday.

Money by-laws are difficult to carry under normal conditions, which explains why the Legislature has seen fit to allow money for school buildings to be voted without an appeal to the people.

It is to be imagined that were property-owners given an opportunity to express their views on such questions the school plants of the average Ontario community would fall far short of their present excellence.

THE LANDS DEPARTMENT.

The banquet at which the centenary of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests was celebrated the other night was an unique affair, by reason of the fact that it brought together all but one of the seven living Canadians who have occupied the position of Commissioner or Minister of Crown Lands since the office was established.

Of 31 such Ministers, 24 have passed on, the only survivors being Sir John Gibson, Hon. E. J. Davis, Sir William Hearst, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Hon. Jas. Lyons, Hon. Beniah Bowman and the present incumbent, Hon. Wm. Finlayson.

It is of particular interest to citizens of Peterborough that the first man to preside over the Department of Crown Lands was the founder of this city and the man from whom its name was gained, Hon. Peter Robinson, whose interest in immigration resulted in several thousand settlers coming into this district.

Many famous Canadians have since occupied the position, and four former Commissioners became Lieutenant-Governors of Provinces, two others Prime Minister of the Dominion, and three have risen to the head of the Ontario Government.

Thursday's banquet, which brought together, regardless of their political affiliations, all the surviving ex-Ministers, save Sir John Gibson, who was absent because of illness, was a splendid tribute to the services of the men of the department, who throughout the last one hundred years contributed faithful public service.

A BRITISH COLUMBIA VIEW.

Among other increases the farmers ask for a 100 per cent. increase in the duty on imported cattle—a boost from a cent and a half a pound to three cents a pound.

If Congress grants these increases it will not only estrange Canada with a consequent loss of Canadian trade, but it will also reduce the purchasing power of this country, which is United States' best customer.

The plain fact is that 9,000,000 people of Canada cannot afford to keep on buying $900,000,000 worth of highly manufactured goods from United States each year while the 120,000,000 people of United States buy from Canada only $475,000,000 worth of mostly raw materials.

With her high tariffs, United States has reduced this Dominion to a state of industrial peonage. She is growing rich and richer on the manufacture of Canadian raw materials, while she bars out with prohibitive tariffs the manufactured articles and the basic products which would make Canada prosperous.

And now she proposes to further increase these tariffs which slow up progress in Canada.

Does United States expect that Canada will forever swallow these economic affronts and continue to allow American manufactured goods to flow in here and Canadian raw products to flow out?

Does United States expect that Canada can continue to buy $900,000,000 worth of goods from American sources each year when her earning power is decreased by the American tariffs which cripple Canadian industry?

Canada has come to the point where she must have reciprocity of trade with United States or reciprocity of tariff. She must have full economic peace or frank economic war.

The Canadian Government should make it very plain that this Congress will decide which it will be.—Vancouver Sun.

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS.

By far the most important contribution the Labor party has made so far to the present political debate upon international policy is to be found in the manifesto issued yesterday, with an endorsing foreword by Ramsay MacDonald, the Labor leader. This document, in essence, renounces the right of private warfare and private blockade, and declares that the high seas should only be closed by international agreement for the enforcement of international covenants.

So far as the renunciation of private warfare is concerned, the Kellogg pact virtually achieves this, with the exception, of course, of the numerous reservations made by certain signatories, notably Great Britain and the United States. But abandonment of the right to private blockade is quite another matter. The term "freedom of the seas," which the Labor party professes now means little or nothing, is in fact the very charter of national existence for the British Isles, the very lifeblood of the British Empire. "Freedom of the seas' involves the right to keep the sea lanes open for the peaceful transportation of food and supplies. If that be renounced, what guarantee is there left to Britain?

The Labor party may argue that the very fact that it places its reliance upon international guarantees should serve to relieve all apprehension upon that score. But such reliance would, by its very nature, place Great Britain in a position of dependence. The old sense of security would be gone forever. And with it would also go much of the fabric that serves to bind together the association of free nations which composes the British Empire.

The pamphlet issued by the Labor party says that its stand is based largely upon the second of the late President Wilson's "fourteen points." That particular point reads as follows:

> "Absolute freedom of navigation upon the seas outside territorial waters alike in peace and in war, except as the seas may be closed in whole or in part by international action for the enforcement of international covenants."

It should be remembered, however, that when President Wilson wrote his fourteen points he was writing a document intended to deal with a specific situation, and that it was written purely from the viewpoint of one nation. He had no mandate, nor did he claim any mandate, to speak for the world. The Labor party has chosen to take this item out of his manifesto and would fain manufacture out of it a policy of renunciation that would hit Great Britain infinitely harder than any other country and would affect least those who are most enthusiastic over its adoption outside the British Isles.

The United States has never abandoned the right to private blockade, it should be borne in mind. President Wilson's fourteen points were not accepted by any of the Powers concerned. Nor would they be accepted now. Designed to form the basis of a post-war agreement, they held so many elements of future controversy as would have effectually defeated the very end they were designed to serve. The time is not yet ripe to talk of renunciation of rights that are the very foundation of a nation's existence, when such a renunciation would be at best merely a magnificent theoretical gesture.

So long as British foreign policy remains what it is, and so long as Great Britain is resolved to adhere to her undertakings in the Covenant of the League of Nations and the Treaty of Locarno, so long must she reserve to herself the right of protection against attack on the British Empire, which right she specifically reserved when she signed the Kellogg pact. That reservation was accepted by the American Government, just as the latter's reservation of her rights under the Monroe doctrine is accepted by Great Britain.

Suppose that at some future date war should be declared upon Great Britain by some European Power or Powers. We wonder what would become of the Labor policy of no blockade then? It is all very well to talk about reliance upon international action, but even if such action could be taken—and that is a point about which the most eminent statesmen are hopelessly at variance—it would in all probability be too late to save Britain. Things being as they are, geographically, economically and otherwise, for Britain to renounce her right to private blockade in case of necessity would be tantamount to the expression of a desire to commit international suicide.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There wasn't much sunshine to be saved yesterday at any rate.

Know your own city. Yesterday disclosed a surprising number of citizens who had no idea of the number of the polling subdivision in which they live.

Probably daylight saving carried yesterday because it is not going to cost anything.

Only the people living in the Inverlea Park district voted for the bathing beach by-law. They, more than anybody else, know how much the park is used and how badly improvements are needed.

In view of the fate of the by-laws yesterday, it is probable that a by-law proposing salaries for the aldermen would have had trouble getting by.

A Thought

A SUMMER MORNING.

Give me the gospel of the fields and woods—
The sermons written in the book of books;
The sweet communion of the things of earth
Fresh from the warm baptism of the sun
Give me the offertory of bud and bloom,
The perfect carolling of happy birds,
Give me the creed of one of God's fair days,
Wrought in the beauty of its loveliness;
And then, the benediction of the stars,
His eloquent ministers of the night.

—James Ravenscroft.

TO-MORROW.

To-day's trial is annoying; but we can endure this, if this be all there is of it. To-morrow's trial, however, may be heavier and worse, and from that we naturally shrink. Yet to-morrow's trial is not yet ours, and it may not ever be.

The trouble we cannot bear is only the trouble we borrow.
And the trials that never come are the ones that fret us so.

Then why should we shrink from the weight of burdens we may never have to bear? "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." If, indeed, we bear up bravely and in faith under the burden and trial of to-day, we thereby gain added strength for the burden of tomorrow, if that ever comes.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXXI.

With a mighty effort Hambledon dragged himself from his reverie to answer, "Yes, it's all right—quite all right, but I'm not hungry."

He struggled with a mouthful or two, then gave it up, paid his bill, and went out into the street again.

Sun still shining, and the flower woman in Trafalgar Square had baskets full of shaggy bronze chrysanthemums. Somehow their color reminded him of Ana's hair—her one beauty as she had told him that day down by the sea.

What did he care if she was beautiful or not? What did he care for anything but that she was his woman, made for him?

He had told Mollie he would be back at the cottage that night, but presently he found himself in a telegraph office writing a wire to her.

"Detained. Coming to-morrow."

When he sent it off he realized its futility. If he meant to go back to-morrow he might as well go to-day. It was only putting off the inevitable. Either go to-day or never go at all—the temptation followed him through the sunshine maddeningly.

"Never go at all."

Those were the words he wanted to listen to and obey. Never to go at all, to start a fresh life with the woman he loved. He would be condemned for it, of course, but what did that matter?

"And—the General?"

It was as if Ana was beside him whispering those words as she had whispered them a moment before he left her. The General—yes—the brave little General who even when he was suffering most had held his father's hand hard and whispered that Lord Byron wouldn't have cried.

Was ever a man so torn and tortured?

Hambledon tramped the streets for hours, and late in the afternoon when it was getting dusk he found himself back at Wimbledon again, at Ana's gate.

The house was in darkness. He stood looking up at it with tormented eyes.

Where was she? What was she doing behind those darkened windows that looked as if they had a secret to hide?

He went up the garden path, his heart thumping with dread, and knocked and rang, and rang and knocked but there was no reply.

He walked round the house — no sign of life, but outside the back door on the window sill was a pair of Ana's shoes which had evidently got wet at some time and had been put out in the sun to dry. She had forgotten to take them in, no doubt.

Anthony stood looking at them, his face twitching as if with pain. He remembered those shoes well—Mollie had laughted at them for their low, square heels and workmanlike shape.

"How can you walk in them?" she had said disgustedly.

"How can you walk in those?" Ana had retorted, making a little grimace at Mollie's extravagant high-heeled shoes.

Dear shoes—worn by the woman he loved. It is always the little things which one loves about people, little familiar things—pair of gloves, a battered cigarette case—an old pipe!

Hambledon felt that he wanted to kiss those shoes standing there in such solitude, shut outside that house with the darkened windows, even as he was shut outside.

Someone hammered on the garden fence dividing Miss Sawyer's house from the one next door, and a maid poked her head over the top.

"There ain't nobody in, sir," she said interestedly.

"Thank you. Oh, thanks."

Anthony turned away. So she had gone out. Where and with whom? What a fool he had been to leave her! One only had such a short life to live, and every day threw away with profligate hands golden moments, golden opportunities for happiness.

Somewhere he had once heard it said that none of us has a happy life but that we all have happy days. Well, he might have had one to-day! He might have spent all the hours of sunshine with Ana, and instead he had turned his back on them.

How did one know that honor and duty were not just empty words? What a colossal joke it would be if on the other side of things—if there was any other side—one was laughed at for passing over happiness for the chimera of man-made laws? Life was such a contradiction, made up of hopes never fulfilled, of opportunities lost.

If Ana had been here now, Anthony knew he would never have left her. If she had come to answer his knock at the door, Mollie and the General would have gone into the ragbag of forgotten things without a regret.

Was he glad or sorry that the decision had been taken from his hands? He hardly knew as he went slowly down the little garden path with its trim edges and narrow border of lobelia and out into the road.

Was this a God stepping in to save him and Ana from disaster with an action that seemed cruel, or was it just life playing another bitter joke on a man and woman who could never be happy apart? Hambledon walked away down the road with a heavy step, never dreaming for a moment that in the dark narrow hall of Miss Sawyer's house Ana stood crouched against the wall, her hands clenched against her lips to keep herself from crying out, "I'm here, Anthony, I'm here!" She had seen him coming to the door, and had stood there afraid to move, hardly breathing. If she let him come in—oh, how she longed to let him come in; it was like standing there watching herself die to deny him.

Then he was gone—

She listened apathetically to his heavy step dragging away down the road like the step of a very tired man, then suddenly she seemed to come to life. She rushed to the door and tore it open.

"Anthony—Anthony—"

Down the road without a hat, almost stumbling in her eagerness, her hands outstretched, her breath coming in little sobbing gasps.

"Anthony—Anthony—"

It seemed to her that she must be screaming his name aloud, and yet no sound passed her lips.

He had gone—she went to the end of the road and stood there wringing her hands and sobbing, regardless of what the Misses Soames, two of her aunt's cronies, who lived at the corner, would say or think if they saw her. He had gone—gone out of her life for ever, so Ana told herself in frantic grief and pain.

She wished she could die.

"I hate him, I hate him!" she moaned to herself, but she knew that she loved him terribly.

The figure of a man passed under a street lamp on the other side of the road. He was not in the least like Anthony Hambledon, but in her extremity Ana clutched at every shadow. She darted wildly across the road and was almost knocked down by a motor car that swung round the corner. The driver pulled up with a grind of brakes and shouted curses at her.

"Why the devil don't you look where—Ana!"

It was Tom Drake.

Ana laughed hysterically.

"I wish you had killed me. I wish you had," she said wildly.

"Good God, Ana." He leaned over the low door of the car and clutched her arm. "Here—I can't get out easily—my cursed stiffness. No, I won't let go. Come in. No, I won't let you go—Ana—"

With difficulty he dragged her in beside him, still holding her in a grip that left bruises on her arm for days, and for a few moments she sat there sobbing helplessly, all her self-control gone.

He asked no questions, but he shifted his arm and put it round her as a brother might have done.

Presently, when she was quieter, he said:

"Are you alone at home?"

"Y-yes."

"We'll fetch a coat and I'll take you for a run round. No, we won't bother about a coat. I've got a fur rug here."

"I've left the front door open," Ana sobbed.

"All right. We'll go and shut it."

He drove slowly up the road to the house.

"Get your coat and hat and shut the door," he said gently, "and if you're more than three minutes I shall come in after you."

"All right."

She obeyed without question. She was pathetically grateful for his kindness.

"Saved me from making a perfect lunatic of myself," she thought sobbingly, as she struggled into her coat and came out slamming the door behind her.

"What a merciful thing it was almost dark!" she said brokenly, as she climbed into the car. "Did you think I was a raving lunatic?"

He shook his head.

"Did anyone frighten you?" he asked.

Ana did not answer for a moment, then she said in a harsh voice:

"It's Life. Life frightens me—terrifies me. It's so lonely, so cruel."

"Poor kid."

She dragged her hand away from him when he would have held it.

"Don't. I shall only break down and howl again. Talk about something else. The weather—anything!"

"Shall I talk about what I came to talg about?"

"If you like, and if it's interesting," Ana said recklessly.

"Very well, then."

Drake stared straight ahead of him as he spoke. "It's just this—will you marry me?"

"Marry you?" Ana echoed his words chokingly. "Is it a joke?" she asked with a little hysterical laugh.

"No, it's quite serious. Ever since you went away from Lyme I've been thinking about it and wondering if there was any chance for me. I'm not well-off as you know, but it wouldn't be so bad. Anyway—you wouldn't be alone," he added bluntly.

"Oh! oh!" said Ana, and suddenly the tears were raining down her cheeks again.

Alone! that was what she dreaded; to be alone for the rest of her life with this dreadful hungering for a man she could not have hanging over her life, living in her heart, a thing she could neither kill nor discard.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Sunday, May 5, 1929

Sinister stars have a certain power today, according to astrology. Late in the evening malefic aspects are less potent.

Under this planetary government there may be an uncovering of hypocrisy and bigotry in various places.

While the stars indicate that there will be a stronger interest in religious matters than at any time since the World War, there may be many new cults started in which material gains are paramount.

This should be a favorable rule for women who desire to push charitable or philanthropic projects.

It is rather a lucky sway for lovers who may find much encouragement where previous suits had been frowned on.

While this rule prevails youthful wooers should benefit, but it is not promising for those who are middle-aged.

All the influences of the stars inspire sentiment and seem to discourage mercenary motives.

This should be an auspicious day for planning constructive work, but wise men will keep their best ideas secret since they may be stolen or adopted under this direction of the stars.

Aviators should be cautious today lest accidents befall. Machinery may be untrustworthy at this time when those in charge of it incline to carelessness.

Students and educators continue subject to the most stimulating and favorable influences. Classes of '29 will gain fame because of the potential greatness of many members.

Now comes the beginning of recognition for new national heroes and the emblazoning of names hitherto unknown.

Women may rejoice because according to ancient lore this is read as a fortunate rule under which to wear new clothing.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year that brings many surprises. Financial matters should be most satisfactory.

Children born on this day may be individual and decidedly self-sufficient. The subjects of this sign will make progress slowly but they reach success in the end. Girls may not marry.

F. A. P. Barnard educator, was born on this date, 1808. John William Draper, 1811, noted scientist, and James Harvey Linsley, 1787, early naturalist, also claimed this as a birthday.

Monday, May 6, 1929

Astrologers read this as an uncertain day in which there may be disappointments and sudden reverses.

The early morning is an auspicious time for attending to business with bankers and creditors.

Under this planetary government it should be lucky to start minor projects, provided the utmost caution is used.

The trend will continue to be strong in American cities for speculative enterprises and for stock dabbling, the seers foretell, even though many suffer heavy losses.

This is not a day in which to trust one's judgement or to rely on the advice of friends.

There is a sign indicating a tendency toward deceit and certain sorts of treachery, astrologers declare.

Gossip and false reports may be disseminated at this time, astrologers forecast, and for this season it is wise to be exceedingly free from even the appearance of evil.

The tide of general sentiment is to return to old standards of thinking, it is prophesied, and laxity of speech as well as action will be taboced.

This should be a fortunate sway for all who are pursuing artistic callings, for there will be a wider perception of beauty in all its forms.

Music and musicians now come under a direction of the stars that should be most profitable.

Again the seers foretell military movements that cause more or less concern in this country.

Mexico which will continue under a sinister planetary rule is to suffer from earthquakes as well as internal warfare, it is predicted.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of many changes and unusual experiences in the coming year.

Children born on this day probably will be extraordinarily gifted. Many scientists are born under this sign which also encourages writers on serious subjects.

Admiral R. E. Peary was born on this date, 1856.

The sale of tickets is going over well, and with this assured, sure success for the show will follow.

* * *

* * *

Among the ladies, Mrs. Sergeant of Campbellford holds the palm — she has taken four additional books of tickets for the draw—making five.

* * *

That's the spirit that will make the event successful—and with success this time comes immunity from similar drives for the rest of the year.

* * *

If every member will sell his allotted number of tickets, he will not only help the Legion to a place where it can carry on its work efficiently, but he will give the persons to whom he sells the tickets a great deal of pleasure.

* * *

Tickets like these have never been sold in Peterborough before. They are good not only for admission to the carnival, but they CAN BE USED AS TEN CENTS VALUE at the booth inside.

* * *

That's DIFFERENT! You buy a ticket at ten cents, it takes you into the hall, and then you use the same ticket the same as a dime.

* * *

The Legion is receiving a lot of support in this drive from outside its ranks. The Auxiliary is, of course, solidly behind the Legion, and the ladies are out to do all they can to help. At the meeting on Monday evening the Legion President will be present to explain the particular need for raising this money, in a way that cannot be put in writing.

* * *

Several members of other organizations have asked for the privilege of selling tickets; the stores are cooperating wonderfully; merchants have donated prizes for the draws.

* * *

Now it only remains for the members to sell the tickets and do the part allotted to them for the carnival.

* * *

Any member who has not yet been assigned a committee duty is requested to notify the president or the vice-president. Everyone is invited to have a hand in the planning of the Carnival.

* * *

Harris and Boddy have contributed splendidly through the sign donated for the Legion Hall.

Ticket money may be turned in at the Legion Hall on Saturday from 6 to 10, on Monday from 7 to 8; or on Tuesday from 7 to 10. Other dates will be announced in this column from day to day. Please make returns early, and take out more tickets.

DAYLIGHT SAVING CARRIES.

Peterborough will operate according to daylight saving time this summer.

The electors yesterday endorsed the proposal to advance the clocks an hour between June 15 and Labor Day.

The shorter period of daylight saving asked for by exponents of the scheme and the fact that advocates of summer time had a measure of organization yesterday and saw to it that the favorable votes were polled, are given the credit for the reverse in the trend of public opinion.

Daylight saving had twice before been rejected by the electors, who turned the proposal down in 1926 by a vote of 2,900 against 2,257, and again in 1928, although by a reduced majority, the figures on that occasion being 2,957 against and 2,614 in favor of the measure.

The adoption of summer time will bring Peterborough in line with Toronto and thus prove of advantage to several local industries, while it is hoped that the people generally will benefit by the extra hour of daylight that will be made possible through the operation of the plan during the summer months.

A DECISIVE ANSWER.

For the second time within a year the Protestant ratepayers of Peterborough have turned down a by-law to authorize the issuing of debentures to provide $300,000 for enlarging and modernizing Nicholls Hospital.

The verdict yesterday was much more emphatic than that registered last September when the by-law came within 12 votes of being carried.

The centre and west wards on that occasion showed majorities in favor of the proposal, but yesterday only the centre ward ratepayers endorsed the hospital program, and the total majority piled up against it was 253.

The answer is decisive and will force the Nicholls Hospital Board to endeavor to find some other solution for the problem of how to provide adequate hospital services for a community that has shown itself indifferent to the need of such services.

Objection to increasing debenture debt was perhaps the biggest factor in yesterday's vote on the hospital by-law.

It completely overshadowed in the minds of many ratepayers any other consideration, and the merits of the case were lost sight of in the fact that the passing of the by-law meant higher taxes all round.

The question of what is to be done to meet the situation is one likely to give the Hospital Board considerable worry.

THE PARK BY-LAW.

The crushing defeat of the by-law to improve Inverlea Park bathing beach is to be regretted, inasmuch as the program proposed was needed and would have proved of benefit to many citizens of Peterborough, whose only summer playground is Inverlea.

The verdict yesterday was not so much proof that the ratepayers do not want to see Inverlea Park improved as it was a demonstration of protest against rising tax rates and climbing assessment.

Coupled with the fate of the hospital measure, the vote indicates that the majority of property-owners are opposed to undertaking any capital expenditures that can possibly be avoided.

Any other measure seeking authorization for the spending of any considerable sum of money would undoubtedly have met the same fate as the park and hospital by-laws had they been submitted to the ratepayers yesterday.

Money by-laws are difficult to carry under normal conditions, which explains why the Legislature has seen fit to allow money for school buildings to be voted without an appeal to the people.

It is to be imagined that were property-owners given an opportunity to express their views on such questions the school plants of the average Ontario community would fall far short of their present excellence.

THE LANDS DEPARTMENT.

The banquet at which the centenary of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests was celebrated the other night was an unique affair, by reason of the fact that it brought together all but one of the seven living Canadians who have occupied the position of Commissioner or Minister of Crown Lands since the office was established.

Of 31 such Ministers, 24 have passed on, the only survivors being Sir John Gibson, Hon. E. J. Davis, Sir William Hearst, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Hon. Jas. Lyons, Hon. Beniah Bowman and the present incumbent, Hon. Wm. Finlayson.

It is of particular interest to citizens of Peterborough that the first man to preside over the Department of Crown Lands was the founder of this city and the man from whom its name was gained, Hon. Peter Robinson, whose interest in immigration resulted in several thousand settlers coming into this district.

Many famous Canadians have since occupied the position, and four former Commissioners became Lieutenant-Governors of Provinces, two others Prime Minister of the Dominion, and three have risen to the head of the Ontario Government.

Thursday's banquet, which brought together, regardless of their political affiliations, all the surviving ex-Ministers, save Sir John Gibson, who was absent because of illness, was a splendid tribute to the services of the men of the department, who throughout the last one hundred years contributed faithful public service.

A BRITISH COLUMBIA VIEW.

Among other increases the farmers ask for a 100 per cent. increase in the duty on imported cattle—a boost from a cent and a half a pound to three cents a pound.

If Congress grants these increases it will not only estrange Canada with a consequent loss of Canadian trade, but it will also reduce the purchasing power of this country, which is United States' best customer.

The plain fact is that 9,000,000 people of Canada cannot afford to keep on buying $900,000,000 worth of highly manufactured goods from United States each year while the 120,000,000 people of United States buy from Canada only $475,000,000 worth of mostly raw materials.

With her high tariffs, United States has reduced this Dominion to a state of industrial peonage. She is growing rich and richer on the manufacture of Canadian raw materials, while she bars out with prohibitive tariffs the manufactured articles and the basic products which would make Canada prosperous.

And now she proposes to further increase these tariffs which slow up progress in Canada.

Does United States expect that Canada will forever swallow these economic affronts and continue to allow American manufactured goods to flow in here and Canadian raw products to flow out?

Does United States expect that Canada can continue to buy $900,000,000 worth of goods from American sources each year when her earning power is decreased by the American tariffs which cripple Canadian industry?

Canada has come to the point where she must have reciprocity of trade with United States or reciprocity of tariff. She must have full economic peace or frank economic war.

The Canadian Government should make it very plain that this Congress will decide which it will be.—Vancouver Sun.

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS.

By far the most important contribution the Labor party has made so far to the present political debate upon international policy is to be found in the manifesto issued yesterday, with an endorsing foreword by Ramsay MacDonald, the Labor leader. This document, in essence, renounces the right of private warfare and private blockade, and declares that the high seas should only be closed by international agreement for the enforcement of international covenants.

So far as the renunciation of private warfare is concerned, the Kellogg pact virtually achieves this, with the exception, of course, of the numerous reservations made by certain signatories, notably Great Britain and the United States. But abandonment of the right to private blockade is quite another matter. The term "freedom of the seas," which the Labor party professes now means little or nothing, is in fact the very charter of national existence for the British Isles, the very lifeblood of the British Empire. "Freedom of the seas' involves the right to keep the sea lanes open for the peaceful transportation of food and supplies. If that be renounced, what guarantee is there left to Britain?

The Labor party may argue that the very fact that it places its reliance upon international guarantees should serve to relieve all apprehension upon that score. But such reliance would, by its very nature, place Great Britain in a position of dependence. The old sense of security would be gone forever. And with it would also go much of the fabric that serves to bind together the association of free nations which composes the British Empire.

The pamphlet issued by the Labor party says that its stand is based largely upon the second of the late President Wilson's "fourteen points." That particular point reads as follows:

> "Absolute freedom of navigation upon the seas outside territorial waters alike in peace and in war, except as the seas may be closed in whole or in part by international action for the enforcement of international covenants."

It should be remembered, however, that when President Wilson wrote his fourteen points he was writing a document intended to deal with a specific situation, and that it was written purely from the viewpoint of one nation. He had no mandate, nor did he claim any mandate, to speak for the world. The Labor party has chosen to take this item out of his manifesto and would fain manufacture out of it a policy of renunciation that would hit Great Britain infinitely harder than any other country and would affect least those who are most enthusiastic over its adoption outside the British Isles.

The United States has never abandoned the right to private blockade, it should be borne in mind. President Wilson's fourteen points were not accepted by any of the Powers concerned. Nor would they be accepted now. Designed to form the basis of a post-war agreement, they held so many elements of future controversy as would have effectually defeated the very end they were designed to serve. The time is not yet ripe to talk of renunciation of rights that are the very foundation of a nation's existence, when such a renunciation would be at best merely a magnificent theoretical gesture.

So long as British foreign policy remains what it is, and so long as Great Britain is resolved to adhere to her undertakings in the Covenant of the League of Nations and the Treaty of Locarno, so long must she reserve to herself the right of protection against attack on the British Empire, which right she specifically reserved when she signed the Kellogg pact. That reservation was accepted by the American Government, just as the latter's reservation of her rights under the Monroe doctrine is accepted by Great Britain.

Suppose that at some future date war should be declared upon Great Britain by some European Power or Powers. We wonder what would become of the Labor policy of no blockade then? It is all very well to talk about reliance upon international action, but even if such action could be taken—and that is a point about which the most eminent statesmen are hopelessly at variance—it would in all probability be too late to save Britain. Things being as they are, geographically, economically and otherwise, for Britain to renounce her right to private blockade in case of necessity would be tantamount to the expression of a desire to commit international suicide.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There wasn't much sunshine to be saved yesterday at any rate.

Know your own city. Yesterday disclosed a surprising number of citizens who had no idea of the number of the polling subdivision in which they live.

Probably daylight saving carried yesterday because it is not going to cost anything.

Only the people living in the Inverlea Park district voted for the bathing beach by-law. They, more than anybody else, know how much the park is used and how badly improvements are needed.

In view of the fate of the by-laws yesterday, it is probable that a by-law proposing salaries for the aldermen would have had trouble getting by.

A Thought

A SUMMER MORNING.

Give me the gospel of the fields and woods—
The sermons written in the book of books;
The sweet communion of the things of earth
Fresh from the warm baptism of the sun
Give me the offertory of bud and bloom.
The perfect carolling of happy birds.
Give me the creed of one of God's fair days.
Wrought in the beauty of its loveliness;
And then, the benediction of the stars,
His eloquent ministers of the night.

—James Ravenscroft.

TO-MORROW.

To-day's trial is annoying; but we can endure this, if this be all there is of it. To-morrow's trial, however, may be heavier and worse, and from that we naturally shrink. Yet to-morrow's trial is not yet ours, and it may not ever be.

The trouble we cannot bear is only the trouble we borrow,
And the trials that never come are the ones that fret us so.

Then why should we shrink from the weight of burdens we may never have to bear? "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." If, indeed, we bear up bravely and in faith under the burden and trial of to-day, we thereby gain added strength for the burden of tomorrow, if that ever comes.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXXI.

With a mighty effort Hambledon dragged himself from his reverie to answer, "Yes, it's all right—quite all right, but I'm not hungry."

He struggled with a mouthful or two, then gave it up, paid his bill, and went out into the street again.

Sun still shining, and the flower woman in Trafalgar Square had baskets full of shaggy bronze chrysanthemums. Somehow their color reminded him of Ana's hanr—her one beauty as she had told him that day down by the sea.

What did he care if she was beautiful or not? What did he care for anything but that she was his woman, made for him?

He had told Mollie he would be back at the cottage that night, but presently he found himself in a telegraph office writing a wire to her.

"Detained. Coming to-morrow."

When he sent it off he realized its futility. If he meant to go back tomorrow he might as well go to-day. It was only putting off the inevitable. Either go to-day or never go at all—the temptation followed him through the sunshine maddeningly.

"Never go at all."

Those were the words he wanted to listen to and obey. Never to go at all, to start a fresh life with the woman he loved. He would be condemned for it, of course, but what did that matter?

"And—the General?"

It was as if Ana was beside him whispering those words as she had whispered them a moment before he left her. The General—yes—the brave little General who even when he was suffering most had held his father's hand hard and whispered that Lord Byron wouldn't have cried.

Was ever a man so torn and tortured?

Hambledon tramped the streets for hours, and late in the afternoon when it was getting dusk he found himself back at Wimbledon again, at Ana's gate.

The house was in darkness. He stood looking up at it with tormented eyes.

Where was she? What was she doing behind those darkened windows that looked as if they had a secret to hide?

He went up the garden path, his heart thumping with dread, and knocked and rang, and rang and knocked ,but there was no reply.

He walked round the house — no sign of life, but outside the back door on the window sill was a pair of Ana's shoes which had evidently got wet at some time and had been put out in the sun to dry. She had forgotten to take them in, no doubt.

Anthony stood looking at them, his face twitching as if with pain. He remembered those shoes well—Mollie had laughted at them for their low, square heels and workmanlike shape.

"How can you walk in them?" she had said disgustedly.

"How can you walk in those?" Ana had retorted, making a little grimace at Mollie's extravagant high-heeled shoes.

Dear shoes—worn by the woman he loved. It is always the little things which one loves about people, little familiar things—pair of gloves, a battered cigarette case—an old pipe!

Hambledon felt that he wanted to kiss those shoes standing there in such solitude, shut outside that house with the darkened windows, even as he was shut outside.

Someone hammered on the garden fence dividing Miss Sawyer's house from the one next door, and a maid poked her head over the top.

"There ain't nobody in, sir," she said interestedly.

"Thank you. Oh, thanks."

Anthony turned away. So she had gone out. Where and with whom? What a fool he had been to leave her! One only had such a short life to live, and every day threw away with profligate hands golden moments, golden opportunities for happiness.

Somewhere he had once heard it said that none of us has a happy life but that we all have happy days. Well, he might have had one to-day! He might have spent all the hours of sunshine with Ana, and instead he had turned his back on them.

How did one know that honor and duty were not just empty words? What a colossal joke it would be if on the other side of things—if there was any other side—one was laughed at for passing over happiness for the chimera of man-made laws? Life was such a contradiction, made up of hopes never fulfilled, of opportunities lost.

If Ana had been here now, Anthony knew he would never have left her. If she had come to answer his knock at the door, Mollie and the General would have gone into the ragbag of forgotten things without a regret.

Was he glad or sorry that the decision had been taken from his hands? He hardly knew as he went slowly down the little garden path with its trim edges and narrow border of lobelia and out into the road.

Was this a God stepping in to save him and Ana from disaster with an action that seemed cruel, or was it just life playing another bitter joke on a man and woman who could never be happy apart? Hambledon walked away down the road with a heavy step, never dreaming for a moment that in the dark narrow hall of Miss Sawyer's house Ana stood crouched against the wall, her hands clenched against her lips to keep herself from crying out, "I'm here, Anthony, I'm here!" She had seen him coming to the door, and had stood there afraid to move, hardly breathing. If she let him come in—oh, how she longed to let him come in; it was like standing there watching herself die to deny him.

Then he was gone—

She listened apathetically to his heavy step dragging away down the road like the step of a very tired man, then suddenly she seemed to come to life. She rushed to the door and tore it open.

"Anthony—Anthony—"

Down the road without a hat, almost stumbling in her eagerness, her hands outstretched, her breath coming in little sobbing gasps.

"Anthony—Anthony—"

It seemed to her that she must be screaming his name aloud, and yet no sound passed her lips.

He had gone—she went to the end of the road and stood there wringing her hands and sobbing, regardless of what the Misses Soames, two of her aunt's cronies, who lived at the corner, would say or think if they saw her. He had gone—gone out of her life for ever, so Ana told herself in frantic grief and pain.

She wished she could die.

"I hate him, I hate him!" she moaned to herself, but she knew that she loved him terribly.

The figure of a man passed under a street lamp on the other side of the road. He was not in the least like Anthony Hambledon, but in her extremity Ana clutched at every shadow. She darted wildly across the road and was almost knocked down by a motor car that swung round the corner. The driver pulled up with a grind of brakes and shouted curses at her.

"Why the devil don't you look where—Ana!"

It was Tom Drake.

Ana laughed hysterically.

"I wish you had killed me. I wish you had," she said wildly.

"Good God, Ana." He leaned over the low door of the car and clutched her arm. "Here—I can't get out easily—my cursed stiffness. No, I won't let go. Come in. No, I won't let you go—Ana—"

With difficulty he dragged her in beside him, still holding her in a grip that left bruises on her arm for days, and for a few moments she sat there sobbing helplessly, all her self-control gone.

He asked no questions, but he shifted his arm and put it round her as a brother might have done.

Presently, when she was quieter, he said:

"Are you alone at home?"

"Y-yes."

"We'll fetch a coat and I'll take you for a run round. No, we won't bother about a coat. I've got a fur rug here."

"I've left the front door open," Ana sobbed.

"All right. We'll go and shut it."

He drove slowly up the road to the house.

"Get your coat and hat and shut the door," he said gently, "and if you're more than three minutes I shall come in after you."

"All right."

She obeyed without question. She was pathetically grateful for his kindness.

"Saved me from making a perfect lunatic of myself," she thought sobbingly, as she struggled into her coat and came out slamming the door behind her.

"What a merciful thing it was almost dark!" she said brokenly, as she climbed into the car. "Did you think I was a raving lunatic?"

He shook his head.

"Did anyone frighten you?" he asked.

Ana did not answer for a moment, then she said in a harsh voice:

"It's Life. Life frightens me—terrifies me. It's so lonely, so cruel."

"Poor kid."

She dragged her hand away from him when he would have held it.

"Don't. I shall only break down and howl again. Talk about something else. The weather—anything!"

"Shall I talk about what I came to talg about?"

"If you like, and if it's interesting," Ana said recklessly.

"Very well, then."

Drake stared straight ahead of him as he spoke. "It's just this—will you marry me?"

"Marry you?" Ana echoed his words chokingly. "Is it a joke?" she asked with a little hysterical laugh.

"No, it's quite serious. Ever since you went away from Lyme I've been thinking about it and wondering if there was any chance for me. I'm not well-off as you know, but it wouldn't be so bad. Anyway—you wouldn't be alone," he added bluntly.

"Oh! oh!" said Ana, and suddenly the tears were raining down her cheeks again.

Alone! that was what she dreaded; to be alone for the rest of her life with this dreadful hungering for a man she could not have hanging over her life, living in her heart, a thing she could neither kill nor discard.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Sunday, May 5, 1929

Sinister stars have a certain power today, according to astrology. Late in the evening malefic aspects are less potent.

Under this planetary government there may be an uncovering of hypocrisy and bigotry in various places.

While the stars indicate that there will be a stronger interest in religious matters than at any time since the World War, there may be many new cults started in which material gains are paramount.

This should be a favorable rule for women who desire to push charitable or philanthropic projects.

It is rather a lucky sway for lovers who may find much encouragement where previous suits had been frowned on.

While this rule prevails youthful wooers should benefit, but it is not promising for those who are middle-aged.

All the influences of the stars inspire sentiment and seem to discourage mercenary motives.

This should be an auspicious day for planning constructive work, but wise men will keep their best ideas secret since they may be stolen or adopted under this direction of the stars.

Aviators should be cautious today lest accidents befall. Machinery may be untrustworthy at this time when those in charge of it incline to carelessness.

Students and educators continue subject to the most stimulating and favorable influences. Classes of '29 will gain fame because of the potential greatness of many members.

Now comes the beginning of recognition for new national heroes and the emblazoning of names hitherto unknown.

Women may rejoice because according to ancient lore this is read as a fortunate rule under which to wear new clothing.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year that brings many surprises. Financial matters should be most satisfactory.

Children born on this day may be individual and decidedly self-sufficient. The subjects of this sign will make progress slowly but they reach success in the end. Girls may not marry.

F. A. P. Barnard educator, was born on this date, 1808. John William Draper, 1811, noted scientist, and James Harvey Linsley, 1787, early naturalist, also claimed this as a birthday.

Monday, May 6, 1929

Astrologers read this as an uncertain day in which there may be disappointments and sudden reverses.

The early morning is an auspicious time for attending to business with bankers and creditors.

Under this planetary government it should be lucky to start minor projects, provided the utmost caution is used.

The trend will continue to be strong in American cities for speculative enterprises and for stock dabbling, the seers foretell, even though many suffer heavy losses.

This is not a day in which to trust one's judgement or to rely on the advice of friends.

There is a sign indicating a tendency toward deceit and certain sorts of treachery, astrologers declare.

Gossip and false reports may be disseminated at this time, astrologers forecast, and for this season it is wise to be exceedingly free from even the appearance of evil.

The tide of general sentiment is to return to old standards of thinking, it is prophesied, and laxity of speech as well as action will be tabooed.

This should be a fortunate sway for all who are pursuing artistic callings, for there will be a wider perception of beauty in all its forms.

Music and musicians now come under a direction of the stars that should be most profitable.

Again the seers foretell military movements that cause more or less concern in this country.

Mexico which will continue under a sinister planetary rule is to suffer from earthquakes as well as internal warfare, it is predicted.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of many changes and unusual experiences in the coming year.

Children born on this day probably will be extraordinarily gifted. Many scientists are born under this sign which also encourages writers on serious subjects.

Admiral R. E. Peary was born on this date, 1856.

The sale of tickets is going over well, and with this assured, sure success for the show will follow.

* * *

* * *

Among the ladies, Mrs. Sergeant of Campbellford holds the palm — she has taken four additional books of tickets for the draw—making five.

* * *

That's the spirit that will make the event successful—and with success this time comes immunity from similar drives for the rest of the year.

* * *

If every member will sell his allotted number of tickets, he will not only help the Legion to a place where it can carry on its work efficiently, but he will give the persons to whom he sells the tickets a great deal of pleasure.

* * *

Tickets like these have never been sold in Peterborough before. They are good not only for admission to the carnival, but they CAN BE USED AS TEN CENTS VALUE at the booth inside.

* * *

That's DIFFERENT! You buy a ticket at ten cents, it takes you into the hall, and then you use the same ticket the same as a dime.

* * *

The Legion is receiving a lot of support in this drive from outside its ranks. The Auxiliary is, of course, solidly behind the Legion, and the ladies are out to do all they can to help. At the meeting on Monday evening the Legion President will be present to explain the particular need for raising this money, in a way that cannot be put in writing.

* * *

Several members of other organizations have asked for the privilege of selling tickets; the stores are cooperating wonderfully; merchants have donated prizes for the draws.

* * *

Now it only remains for the members to sell the tickets and do the part allotted to them for the carnival.

* * *

Any member who has not yet been assigned a committee duty is requested to notify the president or the vice-president. Everyone is invited to have a hand in the planning of the Carnival.

* * *

Harris and Boddy have contributed splendidly through the sign donated for the Legion Hall.

Ticket money may be turned in at the Legion Hall on Saturday from 6 to 10, on Monday from 7 to 8; or on Tuesday from 7 to 10. Other dates will be announced in this column from day to day. Please make returns early, and take out more tickets.

GENERAL LIST REMAINS DULL

Prominent Stocks Only Issues To Enjoy Activity On Toronto Exchange.

OIL SECTION QUIET.

TORONTO, May 4. (C.P.)—Selective buying was evidenced on the Toronto stock exchange to-day when only the most prominent stocks enjoyed any activity. The general list was very quiet especially in the curb section where even the leading oil stocks were paid little attention. International Nickel accounted for a fairly good portion of the total sales, holding firmly with a fractional increase at 55 3-4; Brazilian and Ford Motor were steady at 55 and 64 respectively, while Hiram Walker's suffered a loss of 2 1-4 points to 24 3-4.

The Canadian Canning stocks were moderately active, with the common firming 1-4 to 25, while the second preferred improved a point to 26 1-2. Cockshutt Plow at 44 1-4 and Pressed Metals at 35 1-2 gained 1 1-2 and 1 1-4 respectively, while C. P. R. advanced 2 to 237 and Moore 1 to 31. McColl-Frontenac was an exception in its group, forging ahead 1 3-4 points to 37 1-2.

RUMLEY BREAK UPSETS LIST

Cables Indicate Prospects of Settlement of German Reparations Tangle.

REVIEWS OPTIMISTIC.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 4 (Canadian Press). — A disastrous break in the advance Rumely issues temporarily unsettled to-day's stock market although strenuous efforts were made to rally the general list by bringing forward new leaders in the aviation, oil, motor and accessory shares.

The day's news was largely favorable in character. Paris cables indicated the prospect of a settlement of the German reparations tangle over the week-end and formal announcement was made of the Marland-Continental oil merger. Most of the weekly trade reviews were optimistic in character and banking quarters held out hopes of easier money rates next week.

Advance Rumely Common broke 22½ points to 60, rebounded to above 72, and then fell back again while the Preferred dropped 11 points to 78 and snapped back to 82¾. On Wednesday, the Common established a new high record at 104¾ and the Preferred at 119. The decline in these issues was attributed to the collapse of a pool operation as a result of the insistent hammering of "bear" traders.

TRADING LAX ON STANDARD

Cheaper Priced Stocks Hold Interest of Speculators in Dull Session.

AJAX OIL ADVANCES.

TORONTO, Ont., May 4 (C.P.).—With the bulk of interest confined to the cheaper-priced stocks, interest in the general list appeared to wane on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Ajax Oil provided more than one-third of the total sales, holding at the morning's high of 1.50, a net advance of 15 cents. Changes in other oil issues were only minor.

Noranda was again steady, closing with an appreciation of 40 cents at 3.25. McIntyre, Dome, Lake Shore and Teck-Hughes all showed a slight improvement, while Falconbridge, in easy trading, shot up 65 cents to 11.90.

Ventures broke to 9.25, off 50 cents, while Hollinger lost 30 to 7.30, Sudbury Basin 20 to 8.55, and Pend Oreille 15 to 6.10.

FULL EXTENT OF ALBERTA OIL CANNOT YET BE DETERMINED OWING TO FREQUENT DISCOVERIES

Many New Wells Have Come in This Year With Quality Product—Field Has Now Been Extended Over Vast Area.

HOME NO. 1 IS REPORTED TO HAVE INITIAL PRODUCTION OF 600 BARRELS

Progress in the oil and gas fields of Western Canada is very satisfactory, but all the oil and most of the gas production, according to a recent statement made by Dr. G. S. Hume, of the Geological Survey branch of the Department of Mines at Ottawa, is still confined to Alberta.

Production of oil in Alberta in 1928 amounted to 410,623 barrels of crude naphtha, 70,734 barrels of light crude, and 8,174 barrels of heavy crude; 489,531 barrels in all, an increase of 47 percent. over the total output for 1927. Over 14,000,000M cubic feet of natural gas was consumed in Alberta in 1928.

Within the last few months Okalta No. 1, Home No. 1, Royalite No. 14 to the naphtha producing wells in Highwood River, Bow No. 2 in Turner Valley. Okalta No. 1 had an initial flow of more than 30 million cubic feet of gas per day, but "froze up" shortly after coming into production. This well has been brought into production again but the amount of naphtha it will produce has not yet been determined.

600 Barrels a Day.

Home No. 1 is reported to have an initial production of approximately 600 barrels of naphtha and Royalite No. 18 about 250 barrels. McLeod No. 4 has been brought back into production. Owing to possible structural complications the stratigraphical position of the lower productive horizon reached by this well is not definitely known but if, as is said to be the case, the gas is coming from a new deep productive horizon, the discovery ranks in importance with the original gas discovery in Royalite No. 4 well. Royalite No. 4 well continues to produce steadily, with an average daily production for January, 1929, of 550 barrels of naphtha.

Crude oil has been encountered in a number of wells from horizons above the naphtha producing zone, the largest recent crude producer being Royalite No. 15 from a depth of 3,035 feet with an initial flow of 250 to 300 barrels per day. The average daily production of crude oil and naphtha exclusive of Okalta No. 1 and Royalite No. 14 wells, is now in excess of 1,400 barrels.

Other Good Wells.

Several interesting tests are under way in other parts of the Foothills. Among these are Highwood No. 1 close to Highwood Rive, Bow No. 2 in the Jumping Pound area south of the Bow River and Frontier No. 1 on the Wilcat Hill structure north of Bow River. All of these wells are on favorable locations.

In the Plains area three gas wells have been brought in within the last few months. These are Eagle Butte No. 1 in Cypress Hills with a gas flow measured at 20,000 M. cubic feet after the well had flowed for a considerable time; Meridian No. 1 well in the Ribstone area with an initial flow measured at 10,000 M. cubic feet per day and Wainwell No. 2A at Wainwright with an initial flow of 33,000 M. cubic feet.

New Producing Areas.

The Cypress Hills and Ribstone are new producing areas, the merits of which will depend on the results of further drilling. The well at Wainwright is in the vicinity of two oil wells also owned by the Wainwell Company and is in a structure that is believed to extend from Fabyan eight miles southeast of Wainwright.

In the vicinity of Fabyan there are two productive wells, Imperial Fabyan No. 1 well drilled several years ago which gave a show of heavy crude oil and about 10,000 M. cubic feet of as and Maple Leaf No. 1 well which is supplying gas to Wainwright. The structure intermediate between these wells and the three Wainwell Company's wells at Wainwright has not been tested.

In Southern Alberta near Skiff, the Imperial Oil Company is reported to have another productive oil well in Devenish No. 1, the discovery well. It seems probable that further drilling will open up a crude oil field, the extent of which cannot as yet be determined Soviet Russia and China voted against the resolution for publicity and Germany abstained from voting.

Royal Minstrel started at three to one against, second at 110 to fifteen, and third at 100 to eight. The winner carried top weight of 120 pounds.

Sixteen good handicap horses travelled the seven furlongs of the race, worth approximately $10,000 in addition to the cup.

LAKE STEAMERS ARE DISABLED

Three Vessels Send Calls For Help in Lake Erie Storms.

TWO AGROUND.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 4.—(Canadian Press . — Three Lake Erie steamers were disabled off the Eastern Ohio shore to-day, the passenger City of Buffalo crippled in the engine room near Ashtabula with 50 passengers and a crew of 85 aboard, and the ore carries D. N. Philbin and S. S. Upson aground at Conneaut Harbor.

The passenger boat anchored ten miles northeast of the Ashtabula harbor early to-day after drifting steadily from the Cleveland shore for 16 hours. Two tugs, the Gilmore and the Virginia, faced the task of towing the croppled steamer, unable to make headway under her own power into the Cleveland harbor to-day.

The Coast Guard Cutters 219 and 229 were assigned to stand by while the boat was hauled into port, than a full day overdue.

The D. N. Philbin resting on a mudbank since Wednesday, was scuttled after high seas swung the boat parallel to the shore and combers breaking against the side of the ship endangered the crew of 33. The Upson struck a sand bar last night after passing the breakwater of Conneaut Harbor. Unable to dock, the vessel was forced too near the breakwater and ran aground. It was expected that the boat would be floated without damage. Both the Philbin and the Upson carried cargoes of iron ore from Duluth to Conneaut.

The City of Buffalo is owned by the Cleveland and Buffalo Transit Company and is of 2940 gross tonnage. The Philbin is operated by the Tomlinson Line and carried 11,000 tons of ore. The cargo and the number of the crew aboard the Upson could not be learned until she made port.

The building, which is occupied by the Traymore Savarin restaurant, The Oshawa Chamber of Commerce, and offices of several doctors, and barristers were badly damaged, but the greater part of the loss was done to the contents of the offices of Doctors Davies and Langmaid, where the fire originated under the floor on the third storey, and to the offices of Parkhill and Field, barristers, and Dr. Arnott on the fourth floor. Much damage was done, however, by water throughout the whole block.

COMPANY RESUME OPERATIONS AT KAMISCOTIA PROPERTIES IF BRANCH LINE CONSTRUCTED

N. A. Timmins Tells Shareholders Government Has Matter Under Consideration.

BUILD CONCENTRATOR.

Railway Extension Would Prove of Value as a Colonization Road.

MONTREAL, Que., May 4 (Canadian Press).—The directors of Hollinger Gold Mines, Ltd., are prepared to build a concentrator and resume active operations at the Kamiscotia properties of the company, provided a favorable decision is reached by the Ontario Government in regard to the extension of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway through that district, the president, N. A. Timmins, stated in his remarks to the shareholders, issued to-day with the annual report of the company.

Mr. Timmins said that the matter of the extension had been taken up with the Ontario Government, and the matter was under consideration. He believed that the building of the railway extension would not only serve a promising new mining area, but should prove of value as a colonization road. "Your directors look for a favorable decision," Mr. Timmins stated.

NEGOTIATIONS IN PROGRESS.

TORONTO, Ont., May 4.—(C.P.)—Negotiations involving extension of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway and the Kamiscotia district are in progress between the Ontario government and Hollinger Mines, Limited. Premier Howard Ferguson confirmed upon learning of an announcement by N. A. Timmins, president of Hollinger, in Montreal.

Mr. Timmins stated the company was prepared to build a concentrator and resume operations at Kamiscotia if the extension were built.

"It is a matter of terms," Premier Ferguson said, when asked if a decision was near. "It is a matter of what terms the railway may be built upon in order that the government and the people may be assured an adequate return on their investment."

Wheat Prices Tumble To New Low Record

CHICAGO, Ills., May 4 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices tumbled down to-day to below any level which May and July deliveries here have heretofore reached this season; the upset resulted largely from a break in Liverpool quotations that in turn was associated with reductions in United States railroad export grain rates. Opening ½ to 17-8c lower, Chicago wheat afterward showed but little power to rally. Corn oats and provisions were also weak, with corn starting at ¾c decline to ¼c advance, and subsequently holding near to the initial range.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, May 4. — Further weakness developed in the wholesale butter market this week and the price of No. 1 finest creamery was reduced 1½ cents per pound to the range of from 37½ to 38 cents; No. 2 grade was quoted at from 36½ to 37 cents a pound.

Heavy Supplies

The last of the large shipments of imported New Zealand butter arrived on track in Toronto on Thursday and was unloaded yesterday. The fact that supplies are in excess of the demand and the daily increase in domestic production imparted the easier feeling to the market. The retail trade was only in the market for supplies when their stocks were completely depleted.

Quotations to the retail trade were made at the following range: Fresh extras, in cartons, 35 cents per dozen; loose, 33 cents; firsts, 31 cents per dozen and seconds, 27 cents.

Fresh supplies of new cheese were on the market and the price of No. 1 large colored, waxed and Government graded supplies was 20 to 20½ cents per pound.

Easier Undertone on Egg Market

The report of eggs in storage in Montreal and Toronto had an unsettling affect in wholesale trading circles this week. Most dealers were surprised to learn that storage holdings are higher than they were one year ago at this time, after the unsatisfactory experience with storage eggs during last winter when eggs were sold at prices below the level at which they were purchased for storage.

Although quotations to country shippers held steady during the week, an easier undertone was in evidence on Thursday and Friday. Dealers stated that they were only accepting eggs that they had been previously committed to and they expect prices to be reduced before additional supplies are bought for storage purposes. There has been keen competition at country points among small dealers and in some cases eggs have been bought for storage at higher prices than those prevailing in the Toronto market. It was reported that losses are being taken by some purchasers of these supplies who are endeavoring to stimulate distributive demand in the face of current storage figures.

Dominion Egg Review

An interesting sidelight on the quality and condition of eggs is given by the Dominion Department of Agriculture in its current issue of the 'Egg and Poultry Market Review." The department says in part

"The general quality of eggs now coming forward was never better, according to those of long experience in the egg trade. Generally speaking, very few complaints of quality are heard of outside of dirty eggs. The heavy rains in many parts of the country are largely responsible for the large numbers of soiled eggs being found in receipts.

"The question of dirty eggs continues to be one of paramount importance. It is a matter in which those coming into direct contact with country shippers and producers can do a tremendous amount of good by consistently pointing out the bad effects of dirty eggs and their lower market value. The paramount importance of keeping nests clean and not allowing hens out when conditions are muddy cannot be stressed too much. Neither can the importance of not washing eggs for shipment be over-stressed. Washed eggs will not keep and if it is necessary to clean then this should be done preferably with steel wool. In any event washed eggs should never be shipped."

Quotations for ungraded eggs on a delivered basis, cases returned, to country shippers, closed yesterday at 27 to 23 cents a dozen for fresh and seconds 22 to 23 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 4.—Transient upturns in wheat developed pronounced weakness yesterday, especially after news came that Canadian railroads would equal or outdo United States cuts in export rates. Another bearish influence was the fact that export demand yesterday for North American wheat was scant.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, ⅞c to 1⅛c net lower. Corn finished ⅜c to ⅝c, oats ⅛c to ⅝c and ⅞c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 12c.

Wheat prices closed at virtually the day's bottom level. At the outset, however, the market trend was upward, and there was considerable buying based on announcement that Eastern rail rates on wheat for export from the United States would be substantially reduced. This announcement nevertheless, was construed in some quarters as bearish, and the market soon gave way under active selling from influential sources.

Canadian Rail Competition

It was not, however, until near the end of the day that wheat values turned downgrade in earnest. This happened when word was received that the president of one Canadian road had intimated Canadian roads would promptly meet any cut in rates by United States lines, and would possibly go further in reducing rates to Canadian Atlantic ports. Little support for wheat prices was in evidence thereafter, notwithstanding talk which had been current that dry seeding conditions prevailed in the Southern Hemisphere, with below normal crop prospects in Europe, that dry subsoil was reported in sections of the Canadian and American Northwest and that the most uncertain period for domestic winter wheat was yet to come, namely May to July.

Corn and other grain followed wheat values downward. Furthermore, deliveries on Chicago May corn contracts yesterday were liberal, 790,000 bushels. Cash demand here, though, for corn was good and weather conditions for corn planting were mostly unfavorable.

Demand for provisions was slow, despite an upturn in hog values.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 4.—Butter receipts yesterday totalled 8,076 boxes, the largest since January 14.—Of this total, 7,272 boxes were from New Zealand, off the S.S. Tairca. The wholesale trade announced a reduction to the retail trade of 1 cent in prices. This brought the quotations to the retail trade down to 38 cents for solids and 39 cents for prints. In the wholesale trade prices were unchanged, with trading reported as quiet.

The cheese market maintained its quiet tone, with trading still inactive.

The egg trading was steady, with prices unchanged. Trade was reported as good.

Potatoes ruled steady at the prices which showed an increase of 30 cents to $1 at the shipping points during the past ten days. It was pointed out yesterday that while prices are still comparatively low, the advance has been unusually sharp, and might have a tendency toward loosening up the surplus of potatoes, which is reported as being heavy.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, May 4.—Opening firm, but fractionally under the previous close, the wheat market yesterday closed after a dull session at a net decline of 3-8c to 1 1-8c for the day. Export business was limited, and spreaders accounted for the bulk of the morning's transactions.

Cash wheat trade was slow, with shippers and millers passing up Northern and lower grades at spreads unchanged to ¼c better. A little barley business marked the coarse grain market, but interest in oats and rye was negligible and flax trade was light, with an upward tendency.

On Monday, Arbor Day, Winnipeg grain market will be closed.

16 SPEAKERS ENTER CONTEST

Brian Mulhearn Wins Senior Competition of Campbellford Separate School.

MANY PRESENT.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Oratory was the chief attraction at the meeting of the Catholic Women's League held in their club rooms in the Herald Block last night. Mrs. George O'Sullivan, the president of the league, occupied the chair, and addressed the assembly briefly, welcoming the large number who were present, and thanking the teachers who had spent so much time and effort in preparing the young orators for the contest. She also expressed appreciation to those who otherwise assisted on the program. Rev. Father Phelan also welcomed those present in a brief address.

There were sixteen orators on the list, and their subjects were of a wide variety. The contest was divided into two classes, junior and senior. Mrs. T. J. Horkins, Miss Marguerite Anderson, and Miss Rosena Clarke were the official judges. In the senior class competition, Brian Mulhearn won the highest honors. His subject was D'Arcy McGee. Owen Hoey came in second place, speaking on Laura Secord. Arthur Black was awarded third position when he spoke on Andrew Carnegie, the Philanthropist. In the junior series, Ruth Farrel won the first honors. Her subject was Mary, Queen of Scots. Dorothy Calahan, who came second, spoke on Ste. Jean D'Arc. Mary Forestell won third place speaking on Sir Thomas Moore. The other speakers were Gerard Black Paul O'Sullivan, Anthony Beaukrovitz, Barbara Kerr, Thomas Hoey, Willie Hoey, Mary Hoey, Frank O'Rourke, Bernard Hoey, Frances Bibby, Layola McGrath, and Helen Keating.

As well as the excellent speeches, there were other numbers on the program. "Dearest Lord, We Thank Thee," was the opening chorus by the Junior Class. It was followed by a recitation, "My Mother's Face," by Harry Black. Then the first speaker, Mary Forrestell, was announced. There were also recitations by Evelyn Baker, Brian Mulhearn, Jimmy Robertson, Francis Lee, J. M. Kelly, Marie Dunlay, Joseph O'Sullivan, Grace Morrison, and Angus Robertson. During the evening Miss Mary Kerr played two violin solos. "Playin' School" was a short comedy by the junior boys, and "Famous Fairy People" was a similar number by the junior girls. "Poor Old Maids" was a song by six girls. The junior boys sang the Bang Song. The last number was a chorus, "Dominion of Canada." There was also a dialogue by Ruthe Farrell and Dorothy Callahan.

CANADA SHOULD LEAD THE WORLD

to the United States. "The I'm Alone question should be settled," she said, "but personally I cannot get enthusiastic over a rum-running ship. Why should our government be put to such expense over the case of an individual engaged in illicit business" she continued.

Turning to the forth coming election in England, Miss MacPhail hoped that the Labor Government would be returned to power. "One of the causes of war" she said, "is the private control of armaments. The world is a community, and the laws which govern a community must govern the world" she concluded.

MONEY BY-LAWS ARE DEFATED BY RATEPAYERS

2,907 were determined to retain standard time. Recruits to the daylight saving forces have increased, some of them being converts from the opposition, for this year, though it was a much smaller total vote. 1,838 cast their ballots in favor of the measure while only 1,524 of the "old timers" put in an appearance at the polls.

Receiving Returns

In the Board room of the city hall, where the returns were officially received, there was early indication that both money by-laws would be defeated, and with slightly more than half the poll's heard from, the ultimate result—defeat, was being predicted and admitted by supporters of both money measures. Felix Brownscombe, deputy of Centre Ward Number 15, sub-division located in the city hall, was the first official to report, at 5.01 p.m. and it proved later than his 15.10 report regarding the Hospital by-law was one of only two sub divisions favoring that regulation. The other sub-division similarly minded was North Ward No. 25 which voted 42.15 in favor of the grant to the hospital. That majority however, was not sufficient to balance the other polls in that ward.

Sub-divisions 12 and 14, also located in the city buildings, were second to give their returns, which put the hospital by-law three votes down. Poll 33, at J. M. Fanning's grocery store, 377 Water street was the first to declare against the daylight saving regulation. With eleven polls heard from, the hospital project was in disfavor by a majority of 83; with 14 polls heard from it was down 144; with 17 reported, the handicap had mounted to 196 and with 13 of the 22 polls having declared their totals, the same by-law was in disfavor 813 to 569.

Fate Seldom in Doubt

In comparison, the fate of the daylight saving by-law was seldom in doubt the total vote standing 708.574 in its favor with ten polls accounted for. This majority of 134 was decreased by one when a subdivision, No. 30 in the North ward disapproved by 48.47, but the decline was only temporary, and with the next poll reporting, the majority in favor went up to 164. When 15 of the 22 polls had sent in their totals the by-law was safe with a 205 balance, which continued on a steady increase.

Park Proposition Punctured

The thin edge of the lever that ultimately toppled the Inverlea Park by-law took hold with the first totals received; with half of them in, the proposed new bathing facilities were teetering, supported only by 300 over-worked ballots against the 531 and when unlucky 13 came in, all that the $10,000 would have meant to Inverlea, convulsively "flopped," the opposition having gained a majority of more than 360. The wash-out reached its peak of 715 with report Number 22 arriving.

And so, Peterborough folk will heed the whistle an hour earlier, bath again in Inverlea the Unchanged, and when they fall ill will crowd into John Crane's pet institution where they dare not complain of the service and accommodation that might have been so greatly improved had they seen fit.

ANIMATION
THE RESULT OF VIVID COLOUR COMBINATIONS

WITH castanets clacking and a vivid shawl about her shoulders, the Spanish dancer is the epitome of joy and life — of allure and sparkle.

What is the secret of such animation? Decorators say it is the result of vibrant colour combinations. And it can be achieved in building a home as successfully as in spot-lighting a stage celebrity or painting a picture.

For a roof of rich, harmonious colours lends charm and sparkle to a home just as the rich-tinted shawl and costume give charm and sparkle to the dancer. Such a home — a home roofed with Brantford Multi-Coloured Asphalt Slates — has a personality all its own. It is distinguished and picturesque. It radiates colour and animation.

If you would endow your home with unique and colourful charm demand these rich-tinted slates. The variety of shades provides an almost unlimited selection of smart designs. And you get Brantford qualities of fire-safety, permanence, and weather security.

CHEESE FACTORIES START OPERATIONS

Milk Producers' Association Is To Be Organized in Campbellford and District.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Last year the district cheesemakers established a general high standard. Now they are out after the same again and better, if possible. The weather seriously interfered with the meeting scheduled to be held in the St. Lawrence Hotel last night at eight o'clock, and at eight-thirty, there seemed little hope of having a quorum. Some interesting facts were learned in discussion with some of the members as they sat smoking and waiting for more of their number to arrive.

This year there is a likelihood of Campbellford and vicinity having a Milk Producers' Association. S. G. Chant, of Oshawa, a director of the Ontario Milk Producers' Association, was in town recently, and it is expected that a definite move towards organization will be made when a meeting is held here early next month. June 6th is the date in mind but not yet definitely fixed. Warkworth is also to be included in the organization.

In this district there are twenty-six cheese factories. Of these, eleven are already started for the season and more are opening up each day. Seven of the twenty-six factories are electrically operated. This represents twenty-seven per cent. One of the well-known makers of the district spoke very highly of the electric system. He claimed that it cut the fuel bills in half and that the manual labor saved was astonishing. The Hastings factory, known as the Ormond, is new this season. It will operate by electric power when it opens on Monday. It is said to be one of the best equipped factories of the time. R. W. Montgomery, who established a high record last year, will be in charge of the operations there.

The first cheese factory in this district to be operated by electricity is the one on Mill Street, Campbellford, known as the Trent Valley Factory. It was erected when the Trent Canal was put through here and the power installed then. The Prince of Wales Factory at Burnbrae and the factory at Hoard's were electrically equipped in 1919. Until the beginning of 1928, these three factories were the only ones using electricity. Then Seymour West was added to the list. This year, Kimberley and Empire Factories, both on the English Line, and the Hastings Factory, have been added to the list, making seven in all out of twenty-six. It is believed by the members of the trade that other factories will follow the example and install electrical equipment in the near future.

Divorces in England and Wales work out roughly at one in every 100 marriages. In the United States one marriage in every ten ends in the divorce court.

FICKLE FORTUNE.

ROSLIN, May 4.—(Examiner Correspondence). — A play entitled "Fickle Fortune" was presented by young people of Foxboro in the Presbyterian church here on Tuesday evening. The comedy was in three acts and was given good attention throughout.

This play was followed with interest. Mrs. Eliza Warren whose fortune was ten million dollars was supposed to be burned in a hotel fire. Two of her nieces took possession of her home and about a year after Mrs. Warren, who had lost her memory in the fire visited her old home and recovered her memory The climax was surprising to all when the aunt found the turn of events in her home.

Principal Tayor of Queen's University Will Be Special Preacher for the Day.

St. Andrew's Church will celebrate next week the 96th anniversary of its founding. The occasion will be marked by an entertainment on Monday evening, May 6, given by the choir of High Park United Church, Toronto. This splendid group of 76 voices, accompanied by the Elgar Quartette, Miss Irene Calhoun, elocutionist, Mr. David Raithblatt, violinist, and Mr. Roy Grass, organist, are coming in cars from Toronto on Monday evening, and are expected to provide a treat for our city. On Sunday, May 12, Principal R. Bruce Taylor, LL.D., of Queen's University, is to be the preacher, and it is anticipated the services will be worshipful and edifying in the hands of a scholar and preacher in high esteem in Scotland as also in Canada.

It is a far cry from this 96th anniversary, observed in a city prosperous and populous, to the occasion when a few settlers, homesick for the Old Land and yet hopeful for the future, met for worship when the forest primeval echoed their Psalms of praise. In the spring of 1833, the Church of Scotland appointed Rev. J. W. Roger of the University of Aberdeen, and who had also studied medicine in London, England, to go as missionary to Canada, and in due time he began to organize a congregation among the settlers of the townships adjacent to the present city of Peterborough . In 1835 this congregation was assigned a grant of land which comprised lot F, fronting on Brock Street and lots 12 and 13 north of Brock Street. On the first of these a church was erected in 1836. This structure was of stone, quarried from the neighboring hillside. Mr. Roger was continued in his pastorate until 1857, when, disagreeing with the opinion of the majority of the members of St. Andrew's concerning the crisis of 1844 in the Church of Scotland, he withdrew, leading his sympathizers with him to found a new congregation, which became St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Douglas Minister.

The new minister to St. Andrew's was Rev. James S. Douglas, whose tenure of office extended from 1857 to 1864. Succeeding him after a vacancy of two years, Rev. D. J. MacDonnell was inducted as pastor in 1866, which office he held until 1870, when, having been called to New St. Andrew's, Toronto, where he became so famous as preacher and pastor, he was succeeded by Rev. Kenneth MacLennan, whose incumbency covered the years 1871 to 1877. In the latter year Rev. Alexander Bell became pastor and continued as such until 1890. Many still recall the pastorate of Mr. Bell, and one of the flourishing missionary societies of the church is named the "Elizabeth Bell," in honor of Mr. Bell's daughter, who is now a missionary of the United Church, serving in the West. The visible evidence of Mr. Bell's efforts is the present church structure of brick, Gothic design, which replaced its predecessor, the original stone church in 1885.

Succeeding Mr. Bell came Rev. Alexander MacWilliams, who ministered from 1891 to 1896, and who now resides in Calgary, Alberta. In 1896, Rev. James G. Potter was inducted and continued his pastorate until 1910, when, having received a call to Montreal, he was succeeded by Rev. James Rollins, who continued as pastor until 1923. During this period came the Great War, and Mr. Rollins was absent in the service of His Majesty for several years. During that time the work was ably carried on by Rev. W. L. H. Rowand and Rev. Thomas H. Mitchell. Despite the war, an important advance was made under the leadership of Mr. Rollins. The beautiful and convenient Sunday School building was added to the church in 1923.

In 1924, Mr. Rollins having accepted a call to Renfrew, Rev. James W. Gordon was called to succeed. Under the leadership of Mr. Gordon, the congregation assumed the position of one of the charter members of the United Church of Canada. In 1928 Mr. Gordon was called to St. Catharines, and was succeeded on July 1 of that year by Rev. Charles V. McLean, who, with a faithful Session, seeks to hold high the torch of duty and to maintain those traditions which has given St. Andrew's Church a place of honor in Peterborough and its vicinity. The members of the Session are: John I. Allen, M. Breckenridge, F. H. Dearborn, D. Drummond, G. Evans (clerk), J. W. Fraser, G. Gilman, J. John, F. E. Kerr, H. R. H. Kenner, B. Lockington, A. MacNabb, J. A. McKone, Dr. A. Moir, James McDonald, Thomas Petrie, J. C. Read, G. H. Roper, E. R. Shirley, W. L. White.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD MEETING

Mrs. David Cairns Hostess To Members of Bethany Society.

GOOD PROGRAM.

BETHANY, May 4 (Examiner Correspondence).— Mrs. David Cairns was hostess on Tuesday night to the Anglican Young People's Association. The program was devotional in character, Miss Laura Morton presiding. After the opening period, Rev. Mr. Fierheller took charge of the ceremony of the installation of officers, as follows:

President, Miss Laura Morton; vice-president, Miss Vera Fierheller; secretary, Frank Hamilton; treasurer, Carl Smith.

The program then continued, when Miss Lizzie Mines told about the author of "Lead, Kindly Light," and of the inspiration which caused the composing of this well-known hymn. Mrs. A. H. Monk then gave a paper on "Paul as a Missionary," and Miss Laura Morton gave a vocal solo and Miss Vera Fierheller a piano solo.

The gathering formed into two groups to make scriptural texts from pictures, with Mrs. David Cairns and Mrs. Sidney Armstrong as captains. The sides came out a tie, as both made 15 texts. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. A. H. Monk's home.

Hold Monthly Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. R. W. Price. After the devotional and business part of the meeting, which was led by Mrs. W. WET WEATHER DELAYS WORK

Farmers in Warsaw District Unable to Continue Plowing.

ROADS MUCH IMPROVED.

WARSAW, May 4 (Examiner Correspondent). — The continued wet weather has delayed spring work and very little seeding is done. Cattle are going back to the ranches. Usually nearly all the farmers take their cattle away about the same time. This year it is over two weeks since the trek started and there are still many to go.

Opening Date Uncertain.

The date for Warsaw cheese factory starting work for the season is uncertain. So far there is not enough milk promised to warrant starting to make cheese.

Lakefield Creamery has started this week to collect twice a week.

Roads Much Improved.

The new grader, bought by Dummer Township, seems to be doing excellent work. It is run by Melville Crowe, and has already been over half of Dummer. The boundary and side line from Anderson's corner to the English Line are quite good since they were graded on Tuesday.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Thurston motored to Warsaw to visit Mrs. Thurston's mother, Mrs. Robert Payne, on Monday afternoon and returned on Tuesday forenoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Matthews have returned to their home after spending the winter with their daughter in Windsor and later in Detroit, to which city their daughter moved.

Mrs. Herrington left on Tuesday to attend the United Church W.M.S. conference being held in Kingston this week.

Miss Helen Bowen accompanied her cousin, Miss Evelyn Gray, who was called home on account of the tragic death of her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Choate arrived home on Thursday morning.

Hev. H. B. Herrington assisted with the funeral service of the late Royden Gray, who was killed this week. The funeral was very largely attended by friends in Warsaw and district.

It Challenges Your Interest in These Important Ways

EASY TO BUY

FOR INSTANCE, in this city your first payment, with your present car included, may be as low as $000, and your monthly payments $000.

Your present car will probably cover the entire first payment. The H. M. C. Purchase Plan offers the lowest terms available on the balance.

EASY TO OWN

On our own streets Essex the Challenger, under competent observation, averaged 00 miles per gallon. The average owner in this city can expect 18 to 20 miles and upward. Hundreds of records all over the country during "Challenger Week" prove Essex economy. Commercial users operating large fleets of Essex cars say that service and maintenance costs covering millions of miles of operation, are lowest of any car ever tested.

The buying public has picked Essex the Challenger as the greatest value of 1929. They are giving it the biggest business even Essex has ever known. By thousands they are trading in other makes for the great Essex value. Never before has public approval been so near universal.

A Wide Choice of Colors at No Extra Cost

The variety is so great you have almost individual distinction

Here is a BIG adult-size "6ix"—fine to look at—roomy and comfortable—built as strongly as any car at any price. Upholstery and appointments are rich and handsome. There is such a wide variety of colors, that no matter what your choice you have almost individual distinction.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind

WARSAW.

Summing up the work done by Warsaw Institute during the past year it does not make a big showing, but it really has helped. Cash was given for extra prizes at the school fair. Meals were given and a certain amount of rest space provided for women and little children. Several families in need were helped; also some supplies were sent to the Apsley hospital. Flowers were sent. Christmas cheer boxes were sent to the shut-ins in the neighborhood. A coaching class was held in the summer; a nursing class under Miss Alexander was held in the winter. Dr. Munro kindly gave an interesting talk at an open meeting on communicable diseases. Mrs. Elizabeth Cameron gave a talk on "When Miss Canada goes Shopping," and Mrs. J. A. Sexsmith gave one on "What may be had from Books." Mr. Nelson, agricultural representative, gave a talk on the general way the Institute may help the school fairs.

Local ladies took up historical research work. Mrs. George Weller gave a talk on floriculture, and Mrs. J. A. Crowe one on poultry raising.

To help out the finances as well as help the organizations meals were served on July 12, and on the day of the ploughmen's match. Signs which are different, are being placed at the three main entrances to the village.

A banquet was held to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Institute in Warsaw. The aim to own a regular place for all meetings has definitely shaped.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhoea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

The Whatnot

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

Conducted by Marion (Copyright)

MANY WOMEN who entrust many fine articles of clothing to a laundress or steam laundry prefer to care for the laundering of their laces and fine lace-trimmed garments themselves.

* * * * * *

In fact, they take pride and pleasure in this most precarious of all laundering tasks.

* * * * * *

When the lace chou, at first so dainty and delicate with its many circlets of lace, droops unbecomingly on the side of the afternoon frock, giving the whole dress an air of being neglected, she who is acquainted with the art of lace laundering knows well the remedy.

* * * * * *

Also, she knows how to restore the look of newness to her lace neckwear accessories and the baby's best bonnet.

* * * * * *

Of these, the most difficult of laundering is the lace chou, and whatever applies to that will be applicable to other pieces, also frilled or plain.

* * * * * *

Perhaps the lace is of an ecru shade, instead of being pure white. After immersing it in pure lukewarm suds, it should be squeezed and rinsed until clean.

* * * * * *

It is well to remember that laces should never be rubbed, as they are likely to tear by this by this process much more quickly than by squeezing.

* * * * * *

When the lace chou is free from dirt and the rinsing water removed from it as much as possible, it should be dipped in a solution of coffee or tea, which has been strained through a cloth to remove all trace of the grounds or the leaves Into this water may be put whatever cold starch is required to give the lace a desired amount of crispness. Or better yet, gum arabic can be used.

* * * * * *

Gum arabic has several advantages over cold starch in the laundering of laces, although the two may be used interchangeably. Gum arabic which comes in powdered form for starching, has a smoother texture than starch when ironed. It lends increasing vitality to the garment thus ironed, inasmuch as it does not muss quite so easily as starch.

* * * * * *

Gum arabic can be bought for a trifling sum at any drug store. The gum arabic solution should be made somewhat heavier than the cold starch solution. Great care should be exercised to see that the gum arabic is given time to dissolve before using. It dissolves rather slowly.

* * * * * *

The article thus starched should be squeezed gently, but firmly, in a Turkish towel, and not allowed to become thoroughly dried before ironing.

* * * * * *

Each section of lace in the frill or chou should be laid separately against the surface of the ironing board when ironed.

* * * * * *

Some would regard this as the final process in the laundering of the lace, but there is another one equally important, if the real professional touch is desired.

* * * * * *

The frill does not yet look just as it did when it came from the store or was first made on its foundation of tarletan. To give it this look, take the edge of the lace between the thumb and forefinger and press it into pleats at intervals of about one-quarter of an inch The best results are obtained when several of these pleats are done at the same time. To do this for the entire length of the lace takes but a surprisingly short time.

* * * * * *

If the lace to be laundered is on a dark dress and cannot be easily removed, it can be laundered on the garment by wrapping the part nearest the lace in a towel and employing gum arabic.

* * * * * *

This is better than cold starch on dark garments, as it does not leave a white mark as starch does when it splashes on to the dark garment material. In case of emergency, when no starch is at hand, sugar can be successfully substituted in the laundering of laces.

* * * * * *

If you have a daughter or a niece or a little granddaughter—then I am sure you will want a copy of this week's Home Dressmaker's Help giving diagram pattern for an easily made sleeveless frock, with directions for making and a sketch of the original. I will be very glad to send it to you on receipt of the coupon.

* * * * * *

Gateways are regaining their old prestige. The time was when houses stood far back on lawns with trees so surrounding them that they were merely glimpsed through the shifting screens of foliage.

* * * * * *

Then the gateways gave the first impression of the beauty of an estate. No pains were spared to give the passer-by a good impression of what lay beyond, though out of sight, or to make the guests pleased with first impressions.

* * * * * *

If places were not on the correct scale to come under the class of "estates," this same idea was carried out unobtrusively. Grounds were enclosed with walls or fences, and apertures were given grace and charm by the fine, if simple, gateways. These entrances might be for driveways or for footpaths, but the gateways were appropriate and interesting.

* * * * * *

To-day the return of gateways affords an equal opportunity to give artistic introduction to lawns and the dwellings just beyond or situated farther back and somewhat shadowed by tall shrubbery and ornamental trees.

* * * * * *

It is of vast importance to have these gateways consistent with the surroundings They should be attractive, rather than imposing, unless the entire place is on a corresponding scale of magnificence.

* * * * * *

That is to say, an elaborate gat eway that leads to a house that is not stately, but merely cosy and comfortable, is a great mistake. Fortunately, it is one seldom made, but I know of striking instances of the sort. The passer-by is amused, not impressed.

* * * * * *

On the other hand a gateway to a fine estate should be substantial, possibly even massive where there are high stone walls overgrown with ivy or vines, or substantial brick walls, colorful and decorative. As you see, the style of the premises should always be the keystone for the gateway.

OLD SONGS

THE SHIP THAT NEVER RETURNED.

(Contributed by "Aurelie")

On a summer day when the waves were rippling,
By the soft and gentle breeze,
Did a ship set sail with her cargo laden
For a port beyond the seas;
There were sweet farewells, there were loving signals,
While a form was yet discerned.
Though they knew it not, 'twas a solemn party
On the ship that never returned.

Chorus—
Did she ever return? She never returned,
And her fate is yet unlearned.
Tho' for years and years there were fond hearts watching
For the ship that never returned.

Said a feeble lad to his anxious mother,
"I must cross the wide, wide sea,
For they say perchance in a foreign climate
There is health and strength for me."
'Twas a gleam of hope in a maze of danger
And her heart for her youngest yearned,
Though she sent him forth with a smile and blessing
On the ship that never returned.

"Only one more trip," said a gallant seaman,
As he kissed his weeping wife,
"Only one more bag of golden treasure,
And 'twill last us all through life;
Then we'll spend our days in our cozy cottage,
And enjoy the sweet rest we earned."
But alas! poor man! for he sailed commander
On the ship that never returned.

PREVENTING COLDS

Why is it that five children can play about together, one of whom develops chickenpox, diphetheria, scarlet fever or some other acute infectious ailment and a little later two of the other children will develop the same trouble, and the other two do not.

Similarly a number of individuals may be in a hot, close crowded room and some will develop an acute "cold" in the nose, throat, and bronchial tubes, and others will remain free.

Now we know that attacks of certain acute ailments such as smallpox, diphtheria, mumps, and so forth, will render an individual free from those particular ailments for many years, often for a lifetime.

It would seem that the resistive forces of the blood do so much work of a particular kind at the time of the attack that they build a resistance that cannot be broken down by that particular ailment.

But what about the common cold?

Instead of an attack keeping you free it actually renders you more liable to further attacks.

Why?

Because there is something about your particular blood that renders it unable to fight off the organizisms of the common cold.

Now Dr. V. S. Cheney, of Chicago, who has done a great deal of work in preventive medicine, tells us that he has been able to bring on all the symptoms of a cold, from a slight head cold to a profound attack of 'flu, by producing an artificial acidosis of the blood. And the severity of the symptoms was in direct proportion to the amount of acidosis induced.

The symptoms rapidly subsided by giving baking soda in large doses. If when the "cold" first appears, a teaspoonful of baking soda is given every two hours until three doses are taken, the cold may be prevented from getting any worse. The usual meal should not be taken, and an enema or "injection" of soap suds should be used to move the intestine, as constipation is usually present.

After the soda is taken it should be followed by a large glass of hot water.

The nose and throat can be sprayed with baking soda mixture, a teaspoonful to a pint of water.

Your family physician can give you an alkaline mixture that may suit your blood better than does the baking soda.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

By BETSY CALLISTER

If you have an upright piano the chances are that you have it placed right up against a wall—and yet this is about the worst way that this sort of piano can be placed. No harm comes to the piano from such a position but the tone of the instrument cannot be dispersed as it should be and that ought to be an important consideration for any lover of music. It is sometimes possible to place the piano with its back to the room, far enough from the wall to permit plenty of space for the bench or stool. A curtain of thin silk may be arranged on a long rod on the back of the piano without detracting appreciably from the tone, and if the case of the piano is not especially attractive this arrangement has an artistic as well as a musical advantage. The curtain should be of plain-toned silk to blend with the decorations. If you do not want to do this then place the upright piano across a corner of the room so that at least there is some space for the dispersal of tone.

No piano should be placed on a rug or carpet. Compare the tone of your piano on a rug and on a bare floor and if your ear is keen you can see how much clearer the tone is when the rug is removed.

A piano should never be placed directly against an outside wall, nor near a radiator nor where the direct rays of the sun will shine upon it. Actual injury to the instrument results if these rules are not followed.

The piano should always be closed when dusting and cleaning are in process and, if you have a vacuum cleaner with suitable appliances, the inside of the piano should be dusted at least once a month. Don't forget that a good piano deserves regular tuning, and if possible arrange to have the work done always by the same tuner so that he can keep it tuned always to precisely the same pitch.

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion: Here I am, back again, in spite of the fact that it was just a short time ago I wrote. The reason is I can hardly keep from writing you, you certainly keep our interest. Your Whatnots are extremely interesting.

"I certainly agree with Canadian Mary when she says that Northern Ontario is a bleak country. Of course as she says, some people would live nowhere else. I do not think I emphasized the fact in my last letter that the winters are very severe. They are so much so in fact that I have known that the schools are closed throughout January and February and even into March. This may be practiced now. Of course the long holiday pleases the children, but on the other hand it is a drawback to them, and they will regret it in later life. Of course it might prove to be just the life for you and your husband. I say this because I do not wish to discourage utterly. As I said before the cities and towns are excellent for employment.

"Now Leatherhead, I think I have given you enough, or a good bit of information about Northern Ontario, so had better stop or I shall have to make up information for my knowledge of information about geography is limited.

"How I wish Marion you would put in daily instalments of your trips. I have travelled a great deal, having been in every continent, and I like to air my knowledge. I do not know how to keep quiet. I think it would be nice, too, if you would put in instalments of famous books. I do not care for those like "Life Steps In," and "Broken," or in pictures like Oliver's Adventures or Tillie the Toiler. A few suggestions are The Old Curiosity Shop, David Copperfield, Ivanhoe, Twelfth Night or Oliver Twist.

"Now I must close this disgracefully long letter. Sincerely, ROWINA."

Thank you for your additional note to "Leatherhead," and for the rest of your nice letter, "Rowina." Why not write occasionally and tell us about YOUR trips? I'm sure the neighbors would be interested.

"Dear Marion: I have been a silent reader for some time and am about to break the spell. Your corner certainly is interesting, especially the "Old Songs" column. I am enclosing an old song I am sure some one would like to have and would some one please supply the words "The Pardon Came too Late," and another song containing the words "Lonely and Sad, Sad all Alone. Thinking of the days that gone by me, And thinking of the times I done wrong"?

"SUNNY."

Thank you for the old song, "Sunny." I hope some neighbor meets your wishes.

"Dear Marion: Many thanks to 'Peggy,' and one other; I think it was 'Lonely Lady,' for the answer to my request for Dutch cheese. They were just what I wanted. I hope to return their kind help some time.

"Will you please send the helps I have checked? The ones I received before have come in real handy.

"If Sally wishes to write to me I will answer all her letters. I see she is still in her 'teens by her letter. I'm in my middle twenties, and married, with one boy. I do hope that don't discourage you though Sally. I'll tell you how I came to be Sally II. When I first wrote I signed myself 'Sally,' but could not have been registered, for I soon saw a letter from another Sally, and so I just added the II. That is not my name, but what my Hubby calls me. So you see I wasn't going to be beat out.

"The outdoors is begging me to come out and it really is so nice out I can hardly stay in. The frogs are yelling their 'knee deep' to beat the bird in their songs.

"Where is 'Twin Sis'? I'm sure I have recognized her. Haven't you a married sister, your twin, living at Malone, and has two children, a girl and a boy? I am sure that is you. If so you don't live far from me. Can you guess who I am?

"Well I had nearly forgot, I started this as I had to take Sonnie and a little neighbor's girl out a cookie and one for myself, and eat it in the sun, sitting on the doorstep. It certainly is nice out, especially for eating cookies on the doorstep.

"I must close and collect my wandering thoughts, and do some work. Bye-bye. SALLY II."

I enjoyed your letter, "Sally II." It is nice to be able to get outdoors again, but this week hasn't been so good. As I write this, it is snowing.

"Dear Marion,—This is my first letter to your page, which my friends and I certainly appreciate. I attend High School and have many studies. If you or any kind neighbor has a recipe for taffy I would appreciate receiving one.

You will find accompanying my letter a song which I would like, if possible, to be printed. Floetta is a favorite song of mine. I love reading the Old Songs in your page. I cut them out and have a special box in which to keep them. Wishing you the height of success, I remain,

"Teddy."

Thank you for your contribution, "Teddy." I hope some neighbor has that taffy recipe.

• • •

"Dear Marion,—I received the patterns O.K. and want to thank you very much for them. Would also like the checked-up helps on the enclosed coupon, for which I enclose a stamp. It is needless to say the pleasure I get from your wonderful page. You have surely made it a very different paper since you started. Only wish we could meet you personally, but expect that is out of the question. I am enclosing a recipe for mayonaise dressing which I use all the time and find excellent, but expect it is rather too expensive for city people who have to buy their cream.

Must close as I have a couple of other overdue letters to write and the clock says bedtime now.

Thanking you again and wishing you and the page every success, I remain.

"Betty II."

I'm very glad to know you like the page, "Betty II." Thank you for the recipe.

"Dear Marion:—I felt it my duty to write again and say how much I appreciated your Whatnot of Tuesday on 'Gossip.' Our minister, speaking on that very subject one Sunday, gave us a very good rule to follow. He advised us before spreading any news about the other fellow to ask ourselves three questions: (1) Is it true? (2) Is it kind? (3) Is it necessary? If you cannot answer 'Yes' to all of these, be silent. A little verse which also expresses my opinion follows:

'There's so much bad in the best of us
And so much good in the worst of us,
That it ill becomes any of us
To talk about the rest of us.'

However, I trust none of our neighbors are gossipers.

Wishing your page all success, may change my pen name to

"Dee Dee."

Right, "Dee Dee!" I agree with your sentiments. Thank you for your nice letter.

"Dear Marion,—I want to thank you for pattern and book. I think it will look quite nice when I get it made up. I also want to thank 'Peg' and 'Sally' for helps in regard to my kitchen furniture. I shall certainly use their helps.

Now for the soda farls I promised. I take 4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, mix together, then add enough buttermilk to make a stiff dough. I take it out in spoonfuls and drop on bake-board, about enough for a scone at a time. I don't work much, just pat it out with my hand (don't roll), and put it on griddle or frying pan, and when baked on one side turn over. I am told that I teaspoon of baking powder in place of cream of tartar makes it quite nice. I hope you have luck, as I have 4 nice farls just baked now. Well, thanks again for all your trouble.

"Pat."

P.S.—I wonder if "Erins Youth" has the song, "My Irish Jaunting Car." I would like to get it if any one has it."

I certainly appreciate your recipe, "Pat," and I can assure neighbors they will like the soda farls.

Does "Danny Boy," the song that has enslaved the affection of many thousands with its poignant beauty, commemorate the call of a woman to a dead lover, or the cry of a mother for a dead soldier son? There have been controversies along this line. Either way, it is a beautiful and heart-moving piece of composition. Perhaps the idea of the waiting mother is the most poetical and touching.

But that as it may, the song has made a place for itself in the realm of those musical selections that will never die and its rendition on any program is a matter of lovely music.

The tune of "Danny Boy" is one that is lost in antiquity. The writer, as well as many others, has heard the instrumental music to which the words are set, called by the name of the "Londonderry Air" and also has heard it titled "The Farewell to Cucullain." Again, to the same music, was sung an old composition which commenced with the words, "Would God I were the tender apple blossom," and this setting is regarded as one of the oldest of the ancient songs set to this tune.

It remained for a Peterborough clergyman to take the tune of "Danny Boy" and give it words of a hymn-like meaning, which are said by those who have heard them to be beautiful in the extreme. The Rev. J. D. Paterson, sending out his Easter message to "shut ins" of his parish of All Saints', chose for a text some very inspiring sentences in poetry. Then he set them to the tune of "Danny Boy," and the resulting beautiful song was sung for the first time in the city, or elsewhere, for that matter, at All Saints' Church on Tuesday evening, when Miss Irene Howarth was asked to give a vocal solo during the progress of the lecture by Miss A. M. Warne of Ottawa, on the Grenfell Medical Missions in the Labrador.

As a coincidence, readers of The Toronto Globe asked for hymn words set to the tune of "Danny Boy," and the Rev. Mr. Paterson was enabled to let them have the following beautiful lines for this purpose:

"Wait, and be strong.
And let thine heart take courage.
Fear not the shadows lying on the way.
The light of God
Illumines every shadow,
The path is upward
To the perfect day.
Wait, and in waiting,
Listen for His leading.
Be strong, thy strength for every day is stored.
Go forth in faith.
And let thine heart take courage.
There is no disappointment with the Lord."

He was a very little boy, about four years old, but he had been taught that he was already a man, so he couldn't show much regret over the painful loss of a tooth. A couple of briny tears made their way down his countenance, and a small tongue explored the cavity where the tooth had formerly rested and where it had just been unceremoniously ejected from its warm resting-place.

He stood gravely submitting to the ministration of a very sympathetic mother, as she wound a muffler tightly about his swollen little visage. His disease had at first been diagnosed as mumps until interior investigation revealed the tooth as the cause of the swelling and he had suffered somewhat from a lengthy toothache before the painful operation had taken place.

To interrogations as to his state of health, he only vouchsafed a grave nod or a still graver head-shake. He was resolved to suffer in silence. But his immobility and poise was not equal to the occasion when the dentist who had supervised the extraction offered to shake hands, in farewell, after money had been handed over in the transaction and a departure was about to be made. With a glance of haughty dislike, he made his way firmly out of the door and down the hall.

"Darn it; that's the worst of taking out kids' teeth," said the dentist. "They always remember it when they look at you, ever after."

THE PAS, Man., May 4.—(By the Canadian Press.)— With a craving for adventure, two young ladies are prospecting in northern Manitoba this spring in search of minerals.

The prospectors. Miss Agnes Powers and Miss S. Graham, are fresh from the University of Montana, and they have been planning their invasion of northern Manitoba for five years. Miss Powers spent one summer prospecting at Oxford Lake and teaching school at Mile 214. At one time she was a newspaper reporter.

MANY women feel exactly like this, without realizing that probably the reason for their condition is anaemia, or lack of blood. Weakness, pallor, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, are all characteristic symptoms.

To have suffered from anaemia for seven years and to be relieved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills after everything else had failed is the experience of Mrs. John Bain, 423 Avenue Road, Toronto.

"I was in the hospital for five months and had two blood transfusions," she wrote. "I came home from the hospital discouraged. I had absolutely no color; I was so weak I could hardly stand, and almost continually I was seized with dizzy spells. I am certainly glad I found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for they worked wonders. I can now do all my own work, and am gaining in weight steadily."

BENEFIT TEA.

Entertaining Program Provided By Artists at Campbellford Tea.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Several of Campbellford's most talented artists were entertainers yesterday afternoon at an afternoon tea, given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. John's United Church at the home of Mrs. G. A. Ironside, Booth Street. There were more than fifty ladies present, and the proceeds were well in excess of forty dollars. This will be used as a local benefit. For the occasion there were attractive table decorations of daffodils and pussy willows. The entertainers were Miss Irene Stephens, Miss Margery Ackerman, Miss Enid Richardson, Mrs. Fred Free, Mrs. Stanley Windrim, Miss Emma Meiklejohn, Miss Roxie Wilson, and Albert Hazel.

Mrs. Free sang "Psalm of Love" (Forster), and for an encore "A Bow of Roses" (Clarke), Mrs. Windrim sang "To-morrow Comes the Song" (Ambrose), and for an encore "Ships That Pass in the Night" (Stephenson), Miss Meiklejohn's number was "Sylvia" (Oley Speaks), and her encore, "Roses of Forgiveness" (Guy D'Hardlot). Miss Ackerman and Miss Richardson were the elocutionists. Miss Ackerman gave "To a Modern Girl," with a short encore. Miss Richardson's number was a parody on "The Charge of the Light Brigade,' 'and was entitled "The Charge of the Mad Brigade.' ' Her encore was "The Silver Lining," a cheerful number which viewed life from the happier side.

The instrumental part of the program was in the form of a duet by Miss Irene Stephens and Albert Hazel, Mendelssohn's Wedding March from "A Midsummer Night's Dream"; and a piano solo by Miss Roxie Wilson, Fantasia in D minor (Mozart).

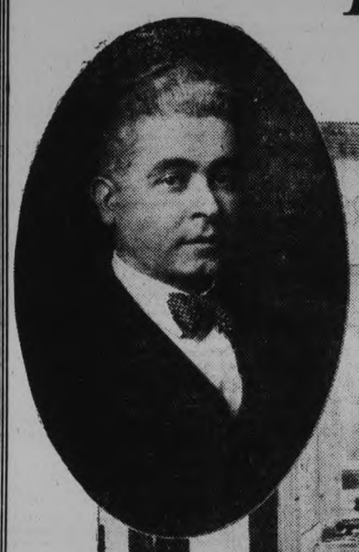
Invention Brings a Wider Range in Shoe Repairing



NEW SHOE RE-SOLEING MACHINE

INSTALLED BY M. VENERANDA

Reduces Costs to a Figure that makes it worth while re-soleing the cheapest lines of Women's Shoes Flexible Soles that make walking easy.

NO NAILS TO SCRATCH HARDWOOD FLOORS OR CATCH IN RUGS

Money-Saving Invention

No longer need women who wear the cheaper lines of shoes discard them when they need re-soleing, because the margin between the cost of repairing and the cost of a new pair is too small to make repairing worth while. For now we have a wonderful machine that does a real good job of repairing cheap shoes with a neat, flexible sole which readily adjusts itself to the movements of the foot—a sole that makes walking easy—a sole without a nail to pierce the foot or damage floors and catch in rugs. And the cost is so small that the saving of the price of a new pair of cheap shoes by having the old ones repaired will be, comparatively, as worth while considering as in the case of a more expensive pair.

Repairing to Match the Value of the Shoes

This new machine was a crying need in shoe repairing equipment. It is not shown in the above picture of our modern repair shop, but we have it in operation, and are now fully equipped to do repairing in keeping with the value of any shoes—NO MORE. No matter how cheap the shoes, you'll find them worth while the cost of re-soleing if you bring them to us—no matter how high grade the shoes, our repairing will measure up to their class.

While You Wait

Suppose your shoes need repairing, and you're in a hurry—or they are so comfortable that you'd rather not change into another pair—well, just walk into our Store with the Green Front, seat yourself in one of our comfy rest-rooms, and we'll repair them so quickly you'll wonder how it is done—and a good job at that! There are two waiting-rooms, not shown in the picture—one for ladies, another for men, this modern repair shop also excels. And cus-

Montreal Players Triumph In Tennis Trials

WRIGHT AND CROCKER WIN SINGLES GAMES

Montreal Pair Defeat Toronto Players in Davis Cup Tests.

CONCLUDED TO-DAY.

Players Compete Under Difficult Weather Coditions—Brilliant Tennis.

TORONTO, Ont., May 4 (C.P.).—Montreal players made a clean sweep of yesterday's game in the Canadian Davis Cup trials here. Dr. Jack Wright, Montreal, triumphed over Gilbert Nunns, Toronto, in four sets, 6—2, 2—6, 6—3, 6—2, and Willard Crocker, Montreal, defeated Dr. Art Ham, Toronto, in three straight, 6—1, 8—6, 6—4. In the doubles match Wright and Crocker vanquished Ham and Nunns in straight sets, 6—3 6—3.

Several times during the afternoon play was halted because of hail storms. A cold wind blowing directly across the courts also bothered the players. On the whole the brand of tennis displayed by the four men was very good.

Crocker and Ham took the court for the first match of the day. The Montreal players played splendid tennis in the first set and won it easily 6—1. The second set was stubbornly fought, with Crocker finally emerging on top 8—6. In spite of the cold weather and high wind Crocker was playing a magnificent game and he took the third set, 6—4 to win the match in three straight. Dr. Ham played a fine game but he could not fathom Crocker's playing.

The second singles match was played in between hail flurries which handicapped both men. Wright took the first set, 6—2. In the second set Nunns became warmed up to his work and he reversed the score by also winning, 6—2. Shortly after the third set got under way hail began to fall and play was suspended for a few minutes. The flurry soon passed, however, and the match was resumed. Wright took the third set, 6—3. The players did not take their customary ten minute rest, but resumed play immediately. In the fourth set, Wright played his best tennis of the day, his drives had a zip and his serve was going great guns. Nunns put up a strong game against the Montrealer, but went down to defeat 6—2.

Triumph in Doubles

The doubles match resulted in a Montreal win over Toronto. Wright and Crocker, both of Montreal, took Nunns and Ham into camp without much of a struggle by scores of 6—3, 6—3. All four players seemed to be feeling the effects of their singles play and the brand of tennis was only good in spots. The volleying of Wright and Crocker at times was brilliant. Wright was particularly good on his overhead. All four players "gummed" up some easy kills at the net.

Owing to the weather conditions Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, was unable to return to Toronto by airplane as expected. He will be here to-day for the final day's play. The Canadian team will be selected by the Canadian Davis Cup committee following to-day's play.

Hill Defeats Eulo In Montreal Bout

MONTREAL, May 4. — Showing marked improvement over his last appearance in a Montreal ring, Elzear Rioux, who for the past few years has been battling for the right to challenge for the Canadian heavyweight title, earned the unanimous decision of the judges and referee over Rosario Boutot, before 10,000 spectators here last night.

THE MAPLE LEAFS AT BAT

At the present time Manager Steve O'Neil of the Toronto Leafs, is having a tough enough struggle to lick some indifferent material into championship shape. The team has not yet performed any wonders, and is playing merely fairly good ball, though not at the bottom of the league by any means.

The batting problem proves the hardest nut to crack, but O'Neil smilingly affirms the team will soon be hitting on all four.

Little Petey Cote leads the batting list at present, while Clayton Sheedy is at bottom. But maybe this will turn out the midget's year; maybe he will yet top the list of the Leaf sluggers, and surprise them all.

The team has not been hitting up to standard outside of the consistent performance of Bedore and Cote. Joe Rabbit went wild in the opening game with Baltimore and banged out three home runs, but since then has turned in a very indifferent performance. He may find himself on the bench, unless he gets busy and shows O'Neill that his first game was not a flash in the pan.

UHLE HOLDS CHICAGO SOX

Gehringer's Home Run in Ninth Feature of Tigers' 6-1 Victory.

CHICAGO, Ills., May 3. (C.P.) — The Detroit Tigers ended the winning streak of the White Sox at four straight yesterday by taking a 6 to 1 victory. Gehringer's home run in the ninth was the feature of the game. George Uhle kept his record for the year clean by holding the Sox to five hits.

TIMMINS MAY PLAY IN SENIOR HOCKEY

TIMMINS, May 4. — Expectations that Timmins will be represented in the N.O.H.A. senior group next winter are being entertained locally, although no definite announcement has yet been made. It is also anticipated that the grouping for the seniors will be more compact than was the case last winter, as it is understood that Haileybury will not be included in the league, and there are some doubts regarding Kirkland Lake's position.

It is believed locally that the group next season will include South Porcupine, Iroquois Falls and Timmins, with a possibility that Kirkland Lake may be an additional entry. If only the three first named participate, travelling expenses will be reduced to a minimum, as it would be possible, by the use of special trains, to return home on the same evening as the games are played. The trip to and from Kirkland Lake would involve an overnight stay for each team in turn.

Reports in circulation about the district indicate that both the present champions, Iroquois Falls, and South Porcupine, will strengthen for next winter. The former has a sound defense, which is expected to be available again, despite the lure of professional offers, but there will be changes in the front line. South Porcupine, it is said, will building around Jemmett, Mills and Spence, with the last named as a substitute forward. Lou Hudson, of course, would be claimed by Timmins if a team is entered from here. Further developments are pending.

No Games Played In International

again! This is getting monotonous. Not a game played in the International League. Hail, snow, rain and bitterly cold winds kept the players idle yesterday, which likely means that there will be doubleheaders at Rochester, Montreal and Buffalo this afternoon, as well as at Leaf Stadium. Those rival managers, Steve O'Neill and Fritz Maisel, while not enamored over postponements did not object when it was decided not to start hostilities yesterday. They conceded victory to the Weatherman without a murmur. This afternoon, however, they hope to send their athletes through the scheduled doubleheader and thus complete three-quarters of the series. "Hoot" Gibson and "Lefty" Martin are likely to do the hurling for Toronto, while Fritz Coumbe and Jack Wisner or "Lefty" Bolen are in line for the Baltimore assignments. But irrespective of the final appointments, there will be good "pitchin'," the Orioles and Leafs boasting two of the strongest staffs in the league. Tomorrow the O'Neill men will be idle, but on Monday the trailing Newark Bears, featuring Manager Tristam Speaker and other colorful performers, will open a series here.

EDMONTON GRADS DEFEAT PARKDALE

Western Team Superior in Every Way—Wins 23-17 Victory.

TORONTO, May 4. (C.P.)—Edmonton Grads, girls' world champions in basketball ranks, continued their winning ways here last night when they defeated the Parkdale Ladies' Athletic Club by a score of 23 to 17. The Grads were never headed and were tied only once—shortly after the second half got under way—but again forged to the front, and were then never seriously threatened. They led at half time by 8-66.

The superiority of the western girls was apparent throughout. Tired after a train journey that brought them into Toronto from Chicago yesterday morning, they nevertheless flashed speed and clever passing whenever the occasion demanded. Except for a lapse early in the second half, their defensive game proved too strong for the Parkdale girls.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

If you heard any groans or grunts coming from the vicinity of the Y.M.C.A. gym. Wed. nite, Mac, it was only the Peterborough Central Leaguers loosening up in the Y gym. When that gang is willing to take on physical torture to get into shape for the league opening, you can take it from me, old-timer, they've got their hearts in the game. Usually this Peterborough squad starts the season so badly out of condition that their friends in the stand hope they won't drive out no extra base hits for fear they drop dead running them out. They has been times when some of the lads looked like they couldn't stagger back to the bench after circling the bases. But this is another year, Mac, and if the Petes ain't in the best shape by May 24th they ever been in to open the season, then they ain't been a word said in Parliament this year about the Postmaster-General. They is a few bay windows to work off and a few sets of bellows to get functioning proper, and then the Petes will be ready to go.

Incidentally the Central Leaguers is likely to figger on the old boys' re-union program, at least twice during the week. It looks like home games on the Wed. and Sat., and these will be transferred to the Exhibition grounds as part of the big doings down there. The games will give the old-timers a chance to look over the present crop of material and to decide whether or not the game has improved any here since the days of long ago.

James Stevenson Park is drying out after its annual bath, and the Parks Committee oughta jump in there and put it in shape before the grass beats them to it. Usually the hay has jumped into the lead right off the reel, and then they has been a tough battle to get the grounds fit for baseball. This is offered merely as a tip to Mister Stocker and his committee, who appear to be keen to give the baseballers every chance.

Owing to misinformation coming from a bug what listened to the game over the radio, this paper the other day give Mayor Sam McBride, of Toronto, credit for a hit off Premier Ferguson's delivery in the Toronto opener Wed. That was all wet, for Fergie fanned Toronto's Mayor with plenty to spare, which, if you think its a easy task, ask the Toronto Telegram. The Premier usually has a lot on the ball, whether in politics or baseball, and it might be that $60,000 job that Fergie was supposed to get was a position pitching for 1 of the big league clubs, although the boss of the Govt. would likely find something harder than Billy Sinclair to throw them at in that company.

Fishing opened this week, Mac, but as yet I ain't made a single cast, so I can't tell you much about that. Only I'd like to say that some of them birds what is gaffing pickerel oughta be speared by the authorities and give a lesson. Fellows like that shouldn't oughta be allowed to get near the river—they're killing the fishing game and killing it quick.

Well, Mac, they'll be more about baseball next week, and in the meantime I gotta get out and talk a coupla guys into voting for daylight saving.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

This Only Says What Nearly Everyone Knows

The blunt, uncompromising truth is that if you want the superlative type of performance which Cadillac and La Salle provide, you cannot get it except in Cadillac and La Salle.

If all the millions which the Cadillac Motor Car Company and General Motors have expended in developing the closest, finest, highest type of precision manufacturing in the world did not show itself in performance—it would be love's labor lost. But it does demonstrate itself with immediate emphasis.

All you need do is to drive some car aspiring to compete with Cadillac and La Salle—and then turn to the latter. The contrast will prove so startling as to be unanswerable. The moment you step into a Cadillac or La Salle and drive away—you know that there are hours and days and months and years of supremest satisfaction ahead of you which no other cars can yield.

The difference is perhaps more obvious today than ever before. For there are embodied in the newest Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods on these chassis, exclusive features of safety, performance and driving ease that contribute a measure of enjoyment and freedom of mind surpassing any other conceivable motoring experience.

In any driving crisis there is no more vital safety factor than the Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission. It permits quiet, easy, instantaneous shifting of gears—at any speed—without pausing in neutral—and without the slightest suggestion of clashing.

The second great safety feature is the Cadillac-La Salle Duplex-Mechanical System of Four-Wheel Brakes. No other cars have comparable braking protection for the reason that no other cars have brakes so powerful, so positive in action, so responsive to the slightest pedal pressure. For these cars and these alone are equipped with this new braking system.

A third great element of safety rests in the fact that all windows, doors and windshields are equipped with Cadillac-La Salle Security-Plate Glass. This means that the Cadillac or La Salle owner may forever dismiss from his mind all concern about being injured by flying glass fragments.

Make the comparison yourself. Drive one of those cars seeking to class itself with Cadillac-La Salle. Then drive a Cadillac or La Salle. The conclusion is inescapable.

In addition to twenty-three refreshingly beautiful Fisher Bodies for the new Cadillac and the new La Salle there are fifteen exclusive and exquisite custom-built models, Fleetwood designed and Fleetwood built.

Cadillac-La Salle dealers welcome business on the General Motors Deferred Payment Plan.

GRAND OPENING ON MAY 24TH

Additions Have Been Made To Equipment and Grounds Improved.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

A full and enthusiastic turnout of all members were present at the fourth annual meeting of the Beaver Meadow Club held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Wednesday evening. The report of the last year's activities read by R. MacMorran, the secretary-treasurer, showed a balance, which proved the club to be in a strong financial position.

The folowing officers were elected: President, F. Bowness, for the fourth term in the chair; vice-president, J. Frnech; secretary-treasurer, R. MacMorran, the original founder of the club. B. Watts and A. Solliott were appointed as the Greens committee and the competition will be managed by J. Dishart and A. Sollitt.

From a very small club the Beaver Meadow Golf Club has grown to one of very sizable proportions and there is every indication that this year will be one of the best yet in its history. Adidtions have been made to the equipment and the grounds have been improved, and a greatly increased membership is expected.

With good weather conditions it is hoped that the grand opening may be held on May 24.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The East Peterborough Baseball League is holding a meeting this afternoon.

WEATHERMAN BREAKS SCHEDULES.

With rain and cold weather prevailing throughout Canada and the United States, the baseball season has been all upset. The professional leagues have been struggling along all week playing before half empty stands, and during the last two days the driving rain has forced many postponed games in every circuit. It has proved a poor week for Toronto to hold its curtain-raiser.

Local sports have suffered, too. The whole baseball machine has hardly turned a wheel, and yesterday the weather made one think of hockey rather than baseball, tennis or golf. However by May 24, with the Central League team having indoor workouts they should be fully prepared to step into Oshawa for their first victory.

ANNUAL MEETING OF GOLF CLUB.

The Beaver Meadow Golf Club held its first annual meeting this week, and success seems to be pointing a sure finger at this young club. Although only beginning on its fourth year, the club has improved its course from its first pastoral condition until now they are attracting an ever increasing number of golfers. A lot of the players hit their first screamer on this course, and they are improving, too. The grand opening will be held on May 24. R. MacMorran is the father of the club, and he has been given valuable assistance by all the members.

SWIM AWARDED TO TORONTO.

It is announced that the fourth Wrigley marathon swim has been awarded to the Canadian National Exhibition. One of the new regulations in regard to the fifteen mile test for men and the ten mile test for women that will meet with the sympathies of the fans is that the water must be at least 58 degrees before the swim will be started. All the spectators who watched the swimmers toil through the icy waters last summer and saw them drop out one by one, with cramp and exhaustion, felt that it was an unfair test, and more than blood and flesh should be called upon to endure.

Many of the stars who entered in previous years have already expressed their intention of competing again. A series of short, speedy sprints have been added to the program.

SPORTSMEN FAVOR DAYLIGHT SAVING.

The successful passing of the Daylight Saving Bylaw was hailed with delight by every sporting organization in the city. Ball games will not be finished in semi-darkness and every league will be able to map out a schedule of twilight games with confidence. The passing of the bylaw is in great part due to the combined efforts of the sportsmen, too, and now all will benefit, the fisherman, gardener and motorist.

CHELSEA, Okla., May 4.—(Canadian Press).—Officials of C. C. Pyle's cross country race expected some of the Bunion boys to drop out to-day on the 70 mile tramp to Muskogee. The run is one of the longest of the derby.

Ottawa Senators Deny Rumors About Clancy

OTTAWA, May 4.—Rumor and conjecture regarding the possible sale of Frank Clancy, sturdy defenceman of the Ottawa Senators, to another Nation Hockey league club, have been definitely discounted by Frank Ahern, president of the local club. In a statement issued yesterday, he said:

"Not one club in the N.H.L. has opened any negotiations wth the Ottawa Hockey association about Frank Clancy, either directly or indirectly. Nor have they approached the Ottawa Auditorium Ltd., which now holds an option on the Ottawa hockey association. None of the negotiations mentioned between the outside clubs and the Ottawa Hockey association have occurred, nor have any of the outside clubs hinted at openeing negotiations regarding Clancy."

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"VARSITY" WITH CHARLES (BUDDY) ROGERS, CHESTER CONKLIN AND MARY BRIAN, AN AUTHENTIC STORY OF COLLEGE LIFE, OPENS AT THE CAPITOL ON MONDAY. THE PICTURE YOU'VE BEEN WAITING FOR.

It is safe to say that no moving picture in the past has succeeded in portraying college life with any such fidelity as "Varsity." The change from the usual slapstick variety of college picture to this lovely and dignified story with a college background, in which Charles (Buddy) Rogers proves his right to the starring honors, with which Paramount has presented him in this film, is a welcome surprise. Capitol patrons will be warm in their praise for this splendid picture of college life, when it opens at this popular theatre on Monday. It is a tale of the love of a father for his son. The father, Chester Conklin, is the janitor of one of the buildings at Princeton university and a campus character. The son, who is unaware of his parentage, is a student at the university.

The son is beset by dangers from which the father, with heroic self-effacement, rescues him. The son completes his college course with honors and a lovely girl, played by Mary Brian, for his wife.

"Varsity" is truly a soul-stirring picture. The story is built on the vital human emotions, the love of a father for his son. The background is one of beauty and dignity, the scenes having been taken on the campus of Princeton university.

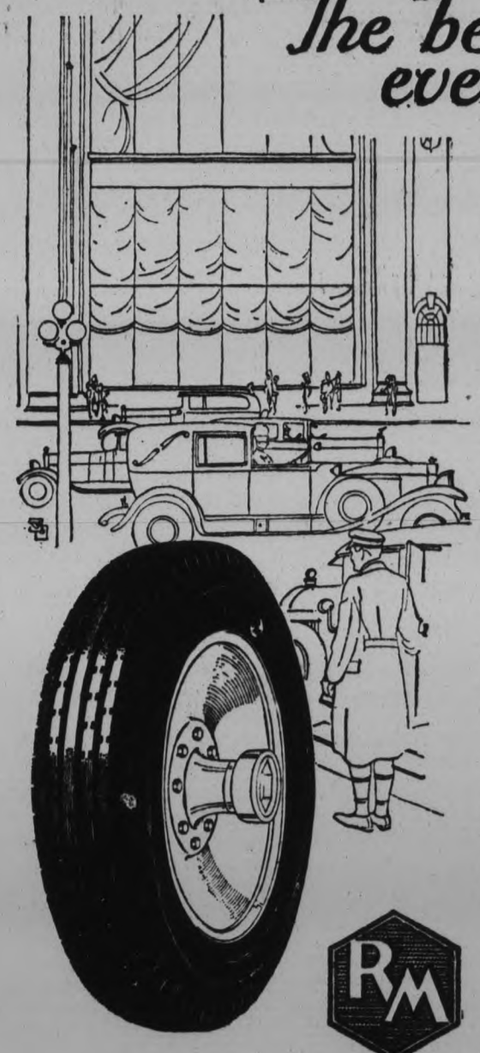
The ROYAL MASTER
The best Tire ever made—



THE ROYAL MASTER is the best tire that has ever been made, and it should be, because it has been built with deliberate disregard for its costs.

The only aim in planning the Royal Master was to make a tire which would match the rest of the modern car — permit high speed with safety — remove the hazards of blowouts — do away with the nuisance of flats.

The Royal Master is no tire for the man who buys a car to drive for only one year. It costs too much and lasts too long. But if continued safety at any speed and through any conditions are what you want, the Royal Master is an insurance and an economy.

THE other day in Montreal, we stopped a taxi equipped with Royal Masters, back and front.

It wasn't a particularly luxurious taxi and it had cost fifty dollars extra to give it Royal Masters.

But the driver said they paid him. After 11,700 miles their deep treads were practically unworn in spite of hard braking, sudden starts, all kinds of roads and all kinds of weather. He figured his Royal Masters would give him another twenty to thirty thousand miles without trouble.

That is what the Royal Master is built to do.

Not one in a thousand will ever puncture.

Not one in five thousand will blow out under two years of service.

When Food Sours

Sweeten the stomach—instantly

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia — just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE 'FRAID CAT

Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis)

The happy, jolly time which Skippie, the little squirrel, was having in the hollow stump bungalow came to a sudden end, Skippie, as I told you in the story last night, had gone over to Uncle Wiggily's house to play a game of "Baby in the Hole" with some of the rabbit boys and girls. They played this game by rolling a rubber ball over a box that had holes cut in the bottom.

But when Skippie started to get up off the box to go home, after the game, the little squirrel could'nt find his tail.

"And I don't dare go home without it!" he said, half crying. "For Mother told me 'specially to be careful and bring my tail back with me, Oh dear"!

Of course you should be careful of your tail" said Uncle Wiggily, who had been playing the rolling rubber ball game with Skippie and the rabbit children. "But you can't have lost your tail since you have been here. And I'm sure you had it on when you came in."

" Yes" chattered Skippie. "I know I had it. But where is my tail now? Please tell by that, Uncle Wiggily"!

Uncle Wiggily looked and no tail was to be seen on the little boy squirrel. Nor were there any loose tails on the floor. Then Uncle Wiggily had a new idea.

"Ho, there, Buster and Custer!" he called to two of his little boy rabbits who had been playing the game, "did either of you take Skippie's tail for fun and hide it?"

"Oh, no, Daddicums!" said the rabbits.

"Well, where is it then " asked Mr. Longears for he could see that Skippie didn't have it.

"Maybe Baby Bunty has it" said Buster, for the little orphan rabbit

Mr. Longears had a fine surprise.

had come in just as the rubber ball game was finished.

"Oh, no!" said Bunty. "I wouldn't take Skippie's tail. I have a tail of my own. Of course it isn't a nice, big, bushy tail, like Skippie's" went on the little orphan bunny, "but it's a tail just the same"

Just then, all of a sudden, Tooter, another little rabbit, said:

"Oh, Daddicums! Do you know what?"

"What?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Well" went on Tooter, "I think Skippie's tail is down one of the holes in the box cover that he's sitting on—one of the holes that you rolled the rubber ball in. Maybe Skippie's tail is dangling down in a hole and that's why he thinks he has lost it."

"Maybe so," said Uncle Wiggily. "I never thought of that. Get up, if you please, Skippie, until we see if your tail is in the hole."

And, as truly as I'm telling you, no sooner did Skippie get up than out of the hole in the box he was sitting came his tail, safe and sound!

"Oh, I'm so glad" chattered the little squirrel. "Now everything will be all right when I go home."

"Yes" agreed Uncle Wiggily. "Everything will be all right, I'm glad!"

But when Skippy went to the door to go home, it was raining very hard. It was April and as you know, showers come and go very quickly. It was only a little way from the hollow stump bungalow across the garden to the hollow tree where the squirrel lived. But Uncle Wiggily looked at the drops dashing down and said:

"You'll be wet through in a second, Skippie. Here, take this old umbrella to hold over you and your tail so you won't get wet."

"Thank you, Unkie Wig" chattered Skippie.

Nurse Jane opened the bungalow door for him, and put up the umbrella for it was so large and Skippied was so small, that he could not raise it himself.

"And call your mother to put it down for you when you get home" said the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"I will, thank you ever so much" chatterd Skippie. He called "Good-by!" to the rabbit children and started across the garden under the big umbrella. And Skippie was so small that he, himself, could not be seen at all. It looked like an umbrella walking along by itself.

Just then the Bob Cat, who had been sneaking around all afternoon, crept toward the bungalow, hoping to slip in and hide under Uncle Wiggily's bed. But all of a sudden the Bob Cat looked and saw what he thought was an umbrella walking through the rain all by itself.

"My gracious!" howled the Bad Chap "Uncle Wiggily has a magical walking fairy umbrella. I'd better let him alone!" So the hungry creature ran away through the rain and Skippie, under the umbrella, seeing him go, cried teasingly: " 'Fraid cat! 'Fraid cat! Yo, ho! 'Fraid cat!"

Then Skippie safely reached home with his tail and umbrella and everything was all right.

And if the ice cream cone doesn't scratch the lollypop and make it cry, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily in the movies.

POPULAR ARTIST TO SING AT ST. PAUL'S

Wishart Campbell Will Be Heard in Presbyterian Church To-morrow.

Wishart Campbell, baritone, Canadian gold medalist and popular radio artist, who is heard over the air with pleasure by so many Peterborough people, is making a return visit to St. Paul's church to-morrow, where no doubt many will attend to hear him face to face. We understand that he has forwarded a large selection of songs in which are some old favorites. At the morning service the sermon title is, to say the least of it, very suggestive and calculated to arouse considerable interest and discussion. During the minister's absence in Toronto, where he will attend Synod next week, the Wednesday night service will be addressed by Rev. R. Keith Mills.

LABOR FAILS TO ACCEPT POLICY

It approved a report by the I.L.P. living income committee, which discusses means to give effect to the living wage resolution adopted at the Norwich conference of 1928. This resolution favored:

(1) Provision of family allowances paid from state funds of at least $1.25 per week in respect of each child under or of school age.

(2) Establishment by law of a living wage to all workers irrespective of occupation on the basis of a 44-hour week; "until an adequate living income as determined by Parliament (including the right of 14 days' annual holiday on full pay) is secured to every worker in the country, and the transfer from private to public control of land, coal, electric power, banking and food and raw material imports is completed, as set out in the living income program of the I.L.P."

Establish Commission

"The I.L.P. proposes," Mr. Maxton explains, "that a commission should be set up to examine in detail the question of what every family needs, materially, educationally and culturally to give to each member of the family a decent, healthy life. Having arrived at a figure, the government should then proceed to apply the standard to all its own employes and to government contracts, and to exercise pressure on municipal authorities to do likewise. This would have the effect of levelling up wages all round."

And "Socialism With Speed," a pamphlet issued by the I.L.P. publications department, a pamphlet to which Mr. Maxton writes the foreword—declares that not only does the I.L.P. want to capture the strongholds of capitalism and to raise the standard of the whole working class above destitution, it wants to act rapidly. "It is this insistence upon bold, speedy action," the pamphlet adds, "which most strongly differentiates the I.L.P. policy from that of the Labor party."

Become Great Power

"The Labor party has become a great power in the land," it continues, "but as is the habit with human institutions, the tendency has been to lose its early revolutionary spirit, to feel less keenly the urgency of the injustice and the tragedy of poverty to become moderate in its respectability, to compromise and to go slow. It has succumbed to the fatal philosophy of the inevitability of gradualness. No one suggests that we can step into Socialism in a day, but those whose mission it is to bring Socialism and bring it as rapidly as possible, lost their inspiring and creative power as soon as they settle down to acquiescence in its long-drawn-out coming."

And the pamphlet gloomily adds: "If the Labor party gets into the mood of accepting slowness of development and the continuation of destitution for many years to come, it will create not enthusiasm, but despair. It is the feeling of hopelessness which is the cause of the present apathy. The workers are despairing of politics, of trade unionism, of everything. Spiritual death is creeping upon the Labor movement."

AIDED DEFEAT OF BY-LAWS

To Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir.—The opinion of many of the ratepayers is that the recent action of the City Council in voting themselves salaries without the consent of the electors had a very large influence in defeating the two money by-laws voted on yesterday.—L. S.

BAIT CASTERS TO PRACTICE TO-NIGHT

Second of a Series of Meetings To Be Held in Armories at 8 p.m.

The second of the series of Saturday night practices for the bait casters in the city of Peterborough will be held to-night in the Armouries at eight o'clock. There was great enthusiasm shown last week at the meet and interest was generally awakened. These men as members of the local Fish and Game Protective Association, are all lovers of the rod and reel and have realized that there is a real art in casting and that the real sport of catching fish, not only lies in the thrill of feeling the tug of the line, but also in placing spoon or fly in proper place.

WEDDING BELLS

WARD—GARDNER.

An interesting but quiet wedding was solemnized by the Rev. W. Harold Young, B.A., B.D., at St. Paul's United Church Parsonage, Toronto, Ont., on Tuesday, April 30th, when Eva Elizabeth, youngest daughter of Mrs. Sara Gardner, and the late James Gardner of Norwood, was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Mr. S. Mason Ward, second son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Mason Ward, of Peterborough.

The bride was charmingly dressed in a beige georgette dress with coat of beige satin broadcloth, trimmed with ermine fur and hat and shoes to match.

They were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Humphries of Norwood, sister and brother-in-law of the bride.

After the ceremony dinner was served at the King Edward Hotel. Later the happy young couple left for California and Mexico. The bride was attired in a travelling costume of embroidery cloth ensemble suit with hat to match.

The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents, among them being a club bag, a gift to the bride from the Bethel United Church and School, East Emily, Ont., where the bride has been a teacher for the past three years, and a silver tea service and silver pepper and salt shakers from the C.P.R. staff, Peterborough, of which the groom is a valued member.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Ward will reside in Peterborough.

In Police Court

Five boys of about ten years of age appeared before Magistrate Langley in the Juvenile Court yesterday afternoon, charged with having broken windows in a building in the Exhibition Park. Joseph Wearing appeared for the boys, and all pleaded guilty. Repair of the damage was promised by the parents, who were present, and after a lecture by the Magistrate, the boys were allowed to go with the charges withdrawn.

The police state that much damage been wilfully done in and around the Exhibition Park, and they are determined that such depredations shall cease. It was declared that any boy found destroying property in the park will be judicially dealt with.

Around the City

The Honorable G. N. Gordon, said that The Examiner's report of his interview was altogether wrong.

Mr. Gordon said that he was telephoned at Ottawa Thursday regarding his interview appearing in the Fortnightly, and it was reported to him that a story was being circulated that Mr. Gordon did not have confidence in the Hospital Board and Management. In answer to this Mr. Gordon said that the interview he gave the Fortnightly appeared in the Fortnightly just as he gave it, and that was "that large public expenditures should be carefully scrutinized, and the need clearly proven before the rate payers should be called upon to meet the liability." Mr. Gordon said that he still adhered to this position, and up to the present time he had not seen demonstrated by figures at least the need for the expenditures for the Nicholls Hospital.

BROADUS FARMERS VIOLIN PUPILS PRESENT MOST PLEASING RECITAL

Audience in Collegiate Auditorium ears Some Extraordiary Good Music.

ASSISTING ARTISTS.

Albert Steinberg Outstanding Canadian Violinist, Receives Hearty Applause.

(By Jeanette.)

The audience that attended the recital in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute last evening had an opportunity of hearing some extraordinarily good music and the fact that they applauded long and enthusiastically the last number of a program whose late starting, at half past eight, gave it a fairly late ending also, was assurance of the interest and pleasure taken in the efforts of the musicians.

Broadus Farmer, of Toronto, brought a group of his pupils to the city and they gave a program of beautiful music. They were assisted by Mrs. Edith Parker Liddle, contralto, of Peterborough, termed by Mr. Farmer in the course of his brief speech during an intermission, as "one of the best singers in Canada," and by Edgar Goodaire, pianist, a pupil of Ernest Seitz, also by pupils of Roy Rome of this city, who is taught by Mr. Farmer.

The audience had an opportunity of hearing a violinist of outstanding type last night, in the person of Albert Steinberg, who is a wonderfully clever violinist, and a radio artist of repute, also several of Mr. Farmer's pupils who have won medals in violin competitions in Toronto.

Singing Well Received.

Mrs. Liddle was at her best last night. The very fine range of her voice, which sent her easily up to B flat in the selection from "Samson and Delilah," and the rich, melodious timbre of the contralto register, made her singing pleasing in the extreme.

The noble Latin words of the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria," with violin obligato, on muted strings, by Roy Rome, formed her first contribution, a selection that was glorious in its melodious beauty.

The second selection, for which the accompaniment was also played by Mr. Liddle, was the well known and lovely excerpt from Saint Saens' "Samson and Delilah," "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice." Its soaring strains, with the faint pianissimo that forms an interlude, brought renewed applause and a dainty encore, in "The Answer."

Albert Steinberg, whose violin solos were the outstanding gems of the program, is a musician of electric, vital type. His music, compelling and brilliant, exhibits a finished technical grasp of difficult instrumentation and he appears to excel in selections that call forth a great deal of tricky bowing and fingering. He has the assurance and ease of a complete master of his instrument and he plays with a vital finish that sends his music dancing and vibrating along the pulsating strings. His selections were suited to his temperament, in their vivid charm and color.

The "Dance of the Goblins" was Mr. Steinberg's first contribution, with its nervous, enthusiastic tempo and little shimmering cadenzas of harmonics dancing out under the flying bow. Each selection by Mr. Steinberg brought repeated applause, but he responded with only one encore, owing to the length of the scheduled program.

He played Sarasate's "Caprice Basque" as a second selection that demonstrated again the clear-cut, crystal melody of the legato and the staccato cutting edge to the sautille, or dancing bow. This is a showy, brilliant piece of the bravura type, with an embroidery to the music, a tricky bit of instrumentation, achieved by the plucking of the strings with the fingers of the left hand, while the music progresses uninterrupted. It is just a trick of the violin, but it was done with a facile ease that proclaimed the expert.

The player's third solo number was "Le Trille du Diable," a lengthy and exacting numbe: that shivered over the nerves with its macabre music that suited the title almost too well. There is an almost unbearable section to this composition that brings the little dancing imps quite clearly to the eyes, in a bit where a sombre, weird, unaccompanied section of staccato double-stopping saws out the strange music.

Mr. Steinberg's encore number, a cameo of gay brilliance, was a brief thing called "The Cane Brake."

Of the assisting members of the group from Toronto, perhaps Miss Olive Hayter pleased the most, although all were wonderfully fine musicians. Miss Hayter, a young girl showing superb technical ability, plays with a sweet, cantabile tone of broad firmness that sends her music pulsating through the hall with a strength quite out of keeping with her apparently slight frame. She is absorbed in her own music and gives the impression, as so many fine musicians do, of merely being the custodian of the instrument, which appears to be playing itself, without any effort on the part of the performer.

Miss Hayter played two lovely opening numbers, Svendsen's dreamy "Romance" and a short, gay old dance, a "Passepied."

Later, she gave two more solos, in a pensive, sweet thing called "Poem," by Fibich, and a fantastic bit of original composition entitled "Tambourin Chinois," with catchcy variations to the tinkling music.

Miss Helen Macdonald, another clever girl player of much charm and ability, with a dainty fingering and expert technical grasp, played, in solo, some of the difficulty Chopin-Sarasate music, in a "Noctune in E flat," and "Variations," by Tartini-Kreisler. The two girls played a Dancla "Duet" together.

A quartette of young men players was a pleasing addition to the music of the Toronto contingent. Marked once again with that ease and assurance and fine demonstration of conquered technique, which was demonstrated throughout in the playing of Mr. Farmer's pupils, they were accorded enthusiastic appreciation of their ensemble music. They played "The Rosary," with a contrasting bit of happy, gay type in "Frasquita," and ended the program with Sarasate's "Gypsy Airs," light, free, colorful. The members of this quartette are Albert Steinberg, Archie Blake, Antonio Campagna and the youthful player, Mark Peel.

Edgar Goodaire, the pianist of the evening, whose accompaniments added much to the pleasure of the audience in hearing the young musicians, also gave a very fine solo piano number that demonstrated his ability. He is the possessor of a cool, smooth, polished tone and a firm, virile touch that brings out his music in masterly style. He proved himself a musician of brillance and power in his playing of the "Hungarian Rhapsodie No. 6" by Liszt; the many swift transitions of mood and melody in this characteristic composition of Czech music, characteristic and interesting, called forth all the resources of the young musician in a manner that brought him repeated encores. He played, in response, the likeable bit by Torjussen, "To the Rising Sun."

Local pupils of Roy Rome who made a fine impression on their hearers, were a solo played, Kenneth Gadd, giving the lovely music of the "Farewell to Cucullain" ("Danny Boy") in fine, careful style, and a clever quartette of youthful players who demonstrated their skill in Tschaikowski's "Morning Prayer," a dainty, pleasing composition. The quartette includes Kenneth Gadd, Bert McFadden, Vera Downes and Delbert Coward. Accompaninents for those were played by Miss Marguerite Rome.

During the evening, pretty bouquets of flowers were received by Mrs. Liddle and Miss Rome, the presentations being made by two small girls, Irene Houghton and Dorothy Cunningnam.

During the intermission, Mr. Farmer and Mr. Liddle spoke briefly, thanking the audience for their attendance and applause.

Ushers for last evening's performance were the Misses Marjorie and Gladys Byers, Dorothy and Lillian Wyman, also Orville Rome, Cecil Lapp, Delbert Lucas and Jim Morley.

How Long Will It Take?

A question frequently asked the Chiropractor by his patient is, "How long will it take me to get well?" It is impossible for anyone to answer this question definitely. Many factors determine the rapidity of progress. If you have been failing in health for a period of years it is unreasonable to expect recovery in a few weeks. Your own habits of living, your age, your vitality, must all be considered.

Your Chiropractor can only estimate the time by telling you what has occurred in somewhat similar cases. He knows that actual improvement starts when you begin treatment, however, that improvement may not be apparent to you for a considerable time. Nature requires time to repair diseased tissue. Your Chiropractor knows that when nerve constriction has been relieved natural building up of weakened tissues will take place. He also knows that your fidelity in following his instructions is a big factor in determining the length of time required for you to regain your health

NATIONS WILL EAGERLY AWAIT ACTION OF FIVE NAVAL POWERS DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE ENDS

Commission Leaves Date of Reassembling Open—Will Wait For Progress.

SEMI-HUMOROUS INCIDENT.

Soviet Representative Says Accomplishments of Conference Have Been of Negative Character.

GENEA, Switzerland, May 6.—(C. P.)—The preparatory disarmament commission adjourned to-day with the next move toward disarmament awaiting action by the Big Five naval powers.

In adjourning, the commission left the date of the next meeting open, but with the understanding that it will be convened anew when the naval nations announced that they have achieved enough progress towards a naval agreement to justify summoning of what is expected to be the last session of the commission before convocation of an International conference on disarmament.

One semi-humorous, semi-serious incident marked the closing moments of the session.

While Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Commissar, in a final speech was scourging the work of the session as absurd and useless, flames suddenly shot up from the conference table in front of the French delegation. A delegate had thrown a lighted match on a leaky gasoline cigarette lighter. There was a recoil of the delegates as the flames soared, but General Requin of the French group seized the huge tray where the fire was centralized and bore it to the window.

Negative Character.

M. Litvinoff, entirely unmoved by the incident, continued to attack what he felt was the negative character of the commission's activities and demanded that an International disarmament conference be called as early as possible when he hoped the peoples' voices for real disarmament could be heard.

The Commission adopted a Japanese proposal to postpone further consideration of the naval chapter of the draft treaty so as to permit direct conversations between the five powers.

In his valedictory address Chairman Politis of Greece insisted that the conference had achieved appreciable results and expressed certainty that the American naval suggestions would have a happy influence on the outcome of the endeavors to reduce armament burdens. He was convinced that the first International conference would mark a first step, however modest, toward solution of the great problem of disarmament.

HUNDREDS PAY SILENT TRIBUTE AS BODY OF GIRL IS LAID TO REST

Funeral of Miss Helen Wright Was Held Yesterday in Trinity Church.

LARGE FUNERAL CORTEGE.

Rev. David Wren and Rev. J. L. Harton Conduct Service.

While hundreds of citizens mourned and gathered to pay their last silent respects, the body of Helen Wright was laid to rest yesterday afternoon in Little Lake Cemetery. The funeral gave mute testimony to the popularity of the young girl and the deep sympathy that the whole city felt for her bereaved family. It was the largest funeral held in this city in many years.

Trinity Church was hushed, while every available seat was filled by the silent throng of mourners. Many who desired to enter the church, had to remain on the steps, it being taxed to capacity.

The pulpit was banked with flowers, whose perfume pervaded to every corner of the church. At the base of the pulpit, with the flowers forming its background, was the silver-colored casket with one bouquet of red roses upon it.

Rev. David Wren, the pastor, assisted by Rev. J. L. Harton, of Park Street Baptist Church, conducted the beautiful service. Mr. Wren referred to the Christian qualities of the deceased which had endeared her to all with whom she had come in contact. Her service to her home, her community, and her church were lovingly recalled.

Soft subdued music was played by Miss Mabel Clarry during the service, and the black-robed choir, of which Helen was a member, filled the choir loft. The casket was reverently borne from the church while the "Dead March" from Saul was played on the organ.

Hundreds joined in the funeral cortege that escorted the body to its last resting place in Little Lake Cemetery. The floral tributes filled two motor cars.

The pall-bearers, all close friends of the deceased, were: Sidney Rushton, Melville McCall, Gordon Sabin, Albert Wright, Clifford Shea and Henry Guilders.

Representatives of County Orange Lodges and the Rebekahs were in attendance.

SIR HAMAR GREENWOOD FAILS TO STAND FOR RE-ELECTION

Native of Whitby Will Not Contest Seat in Coming General Election.

STARTED A LIBERAL.

Col. Grant Morden, Another Canadian, Seeks Re-election in Brentford and Cheswick.

WALTHAMSTOW, Essex, May 6. —(Canadian Press Cable). — Sir Hamar Greenwood, native of Whitby Ontario, who achieved distinction in public life in Great Britain, is not seeking re-election in East Walthamstow in the coming general election. He was elected as Conservative representative for the seat in 1924, having a majority of 3,066 in a three-cornered contest with Liberal and Labor opponents. Sir Hamar is still well known in all parts of Canada, though he has been in Britain for a great many years, and his sister is the wife of Rt. Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, secretary for the dominions.

Started a Liberal

Starting as a Liberal, Sir Hamar finished on that side of the House of Commons as the last Chief Secretary for Ireland, 1920-22, at the time when Sinn Fein intensity on the one hand and the "Black and Tans" on the other created one of the most bloody eras of civil strife which even turbulent Ireland ever experienced. Sir Hamar, whose personal courage could never be questioned after his war services from 1914 to 1916, has the unenviable distinction of being the last man prominently connected with Irish troubles to remain under the constant shadowing of detectives.

In 1924 he joined the Conservatives and since has been a private member of the house. He is now chairman of a large London Catering Company and has many other business interests, which cause him to feel he cannot do justice both to these and to his constituents. Sir Hamar is now 59 years of age.

Col. Grant Morden, another Canadian who has reached prominence in England, has been in indifferent health for some time but will nevertheless contest Brentford and Chiswick again. He has represented this division since 1918, and in 1924 was re-elected with a majority of 5,984 over Labor and Liberal opponents. Col. Morden, who was born in Prince Edward County, Ontario, 49 years ago, was the founder of Canada Steamship Lines, Limited.

Rescuer Of General Umberto Nobile Averts Airplane Tragedy Near Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, May 6. (C.P.)—Captain Einar Paul Lundborg, a member of the Swedish Air Force, and rescuer of General Umberto Nobile, was instrumental in averting an airplane tragedy in Manitoba on Sunday, when flying from Emerson, Manitoba, to Winnipeg. He saw the undercarriage of one of his escort planes hanging low and ready to collapse

Flying from St. Paul, Minn., Captain Lundborg was joined at the boundary by an escort of local planes, and shortly after leaving Emerson, the world-famous aviator noticed the damaged undercarriage of a machine piloted by Alvin Keith of Winnipeg, and in which Miss Dorothy Zell, local aviatrix, was a passenger. Speeding up his plane, Captain Lundborg managed to fly alongside of Keith and signal him of his danger.

Reaching Winnipeg, Keith, who had been a pilot but for a month, made an expert landing at the Winnipeg flying club aerodrome. Touching the ground lightly he managed to taxi some distance on one wheel, later depositing the other wheel safely and lightly on the ground, bringing the plane to a safe stop.

1,400 PATIENTS RESCUED IN FIRE

Wing of Hospital For Insane is Burned During Early Morning Hours.

INMATES MARCHED OUT.

MORRISTOWN, N.J., May 6.—(C.P.)—Fire which early to-day destroyed the right wing of the New Jersey State Hospital for the Insane at Greystone Park, near Morristown Plains, caused damage estimated at $1,000,000, and frightened the 1,400 male patients housed in that section of the building as well as over 2,000 other inmates. At six o'clock this morning the fire was still burning, but it was believed to have been practically under control .

The fire broke out shortly after midnight in the cupola of the wing and the flames ate their way down to the fifth story before it was discovered.

Quick work on the part of the institution's fire department and the doctors and nurses, prevented injury to any of the inmates in the danger zone. They were marched in orderly fashion to remote sections of the building, although many of them, not knowing the danger they were in, were moved with difficulty. A few yelled in frenzy but were easily controlled by the guards, who marched them, clad in nothing but their night clothes, out of the burning wing.

COURT ALLOWS AUGER APPEAL

Counsel For Defendant Bases Case On Judge's Charge To Jury.

MAJORITY JUDGMENT.

TORONTO, Ont., May 6 (C.P.).—Louis M. Auger, ex-M.P., for Prescott who was sentenced by Justice Wright to nine years' imprisonment for a serious offence against Laurence Martel, a Hawkesbury stenographer who had applied to him for assistance in securing a civil service position, has been granted a new trial by a majority judgment handed down by the First Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall to-day. The majority was three to two, Justices Magee and Hodgins would have dismissed the appeal of the young Parliamentarian and confirmed the conviction, while Chief Justice Mulock, Justice Middleton and Justice Grant favored allowing the appeal and granting a new trial, principally on the ground that the jury should have been warned of the danger of convicting on such a charge on the uncorroborated evidence of the girl.

Judgments Written

As at the hearing of the appeal the court room was crowded to the docks when the court delivered judgment today. The main judgment was written by Chief Justice Mulock, and was concurred in by Justice Grant. Justice Middleton wrote separate reasons and at greater length, but he reached the same decision as Chief Justice Mulock. Justice Hodgins and Justice Magee wrote separate judgments.

The Chief Justice in his judgment says: "This is an appeal by the accused from the conviction of a serious offence. The vital issue was consent or non-consent, and the only evidence of consent was that of the prosecutrix; all the rest of the evidence was as consistent with consent as non-consent, thus her evidence on the vital issue was uncorroborated.

Desperate Efforts Are Made by Crew To Call Assistance

Everything Available On Board Ill-fated Steamer Was Burned To Make a Torch To Attract Attention of Life-Saving Crew.

TRANSFERENCE OF CAPTAIN AND CREW TO LIFEBOAT WAS RISKY AFFAIR

"We Had Just Given Up Hope and Were Waiting for the End When We Saw the Lifeboat From Thunder Bay," Says Engineer Jacobson.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 6 (Canadian Press). — Captain Sam Shields, of the motor barge O. E. Parks, which foundered in Lake Huron near Thunder Bay Island last Friday, is expected back in Sault Ste. Marie this evening from Alpena, Mich., where he went after the rescue of himself and the twelve members of his crew by a life-saving boat from the island.

Harry Jacobson, of Escanaba, engineer of the Parks, gave more particulars of the vessel's plight to-day. Everything available on board was burned to make a torch to attract attention, he said, and great difficulty was experienced from the mountainous seas which swept the deck. Captain Shields' hands were badly frozen as he worked with the men, he said.

Anchors Were Dropped.

To enable the Parks to meet the seas head-on anchors were dropped in 125 feet of water. The pumps were all utilized as the seas flooded the vessel, and when the big pump began to fail Jacobson worked in the engine room with water to his waist, without avail. "We had given up, and were just waiting for the end when we saw the lifeboat from Thunder Bay Island coming out," he said.

The transference to the lifeboat of the captain and crew was a risky affair. "Sometimes the lifeboat was 20 or 30 feet above us and sometimes that much below, and we had to wait our time and jump," he declared. "One or two at a time we all made it and even 'Peggie,' Captain Shields' dog, was tossed into the boat."

The lifesavers made the rescued men comfortable until they were able to leave for Alpena later on Friday.

Jacobson declared Captain Shields issued his orders calmly and at all times treated his men with consideration and kindliness.

COLONEL BAUER DIES IN CHINA

German Military Adviser to Chinese Government Succumbs to Smallpox.

SUCCESSFUL STRATEGIST.

SHANGHAI, May 6 (C.P.).—Colonel Max Bauer, German military adviser to the Chinese Government and former right hand man of General Erich Ludendorff during the Great War, died to-day of smallpox.

Death came to Colonel Bauer when he had just concluded a military campaign in Central China which began with all the odds against him and ended in complete and decisive victory.

Bringing together the incohesive elements of the Nationalist army he effectively routed strong opposition of the Wuhan City clique and in a short campaign drove the conspirators from Hankow and Wuchang far up the Yangtse Kiang, where loyal Szechuanese cut their army to pieces.

Colonel Bauer was about sixty years old. During the Great War he was attached to General Erich Ludendorff's staff and evolved a method of reducing fortresses by attacking with artillery supported by immediate infantry movement which proved highly successful at Antwerp, Liege and other places.

Chief Gimblett stated that fire started from an overheated stove in the brooder and that the floor was the first to catch.

TRAINING OF THE BOY VOICE

Frederick G. Mann Addresses Rotary On This Interesting Subject.

SPLENDID SINGING.

The teaching of music in the public schools of this county is confined chiefly to teaching pupils to sing tunes, and does nothing to develop the quality or expression, Frederick G. Mann, organist and choirmaster of St. John's Church, told members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon to-day.

Mr. Mann gave an interesting talk, "The Training of the Boy Voice," and a most enjoyable demonstration of the success of his methods was given by 12-year Roy Pitchford, one of Mr. Mann's outstanding pupils whose fine, true soprano voice was heard to great advantage in two groups of numbers. The young singer sang with splendid expression and effect, "Come to the Fair," Purcell's 'Passing By," the popular "March of the Toy

Steel Automobile Tires As Next Development In Superspeed Racing

WINDSOR, May 6.—Steel automobile tires may be the next major development in superspeed racing, believes Captain J. S. Irving, British automobile expert, who designed Major H. O. D. Segrave's Golden Arrow.

Captain Irving is of the opinion that the present-day rubber and fabric racing tire has about reached its limit, as far as withstanding traffic force is concerned. If the speed record goes much higher, he says, steel tires may have to be put into use.

"One of the great hazards of high-speed racing," Captain Irving says, "is in the tires. I have been considering using steel tires for some time, but I'm not ready yet to let a man risk his life with them."

If the limit ever is reached, he believes it will be in the neighborhood of 350 miles an hour for two-wheel-drive cars and 400 miles an hour for cars with four-wheel drive.

After the police found his papers in order he was permitted to proceed toward Trier this morning.

The Archduke Franz Josef [illegible] Hapsburg has long been known as a scholarly vagabond. The Almanach de Gotha gives his address as Barcelona, Spain, where he went two years ago with the intention of studying the customs of the Spanish gypsies.

He was born at Vienna on Feb. 4, 1905, and at an early age developed a penchant for ethnology. He is the ninth child of the Archduke Salvator, brother of the father of Emperor Franz Josef, and Blanche de Castile, Princess de Bourbon.

Telephoning From Speeding R.R. Train Achieved

C.N.R. Test Proves Most Successful; Leads the World

W. D. Robb, Vice-President, Speaks to Toronto Officials on Fast Moving Train Somewhere Between Toronto and Allandale.

TWO-WAY CONVERSATION IS HEARD PERFECTLY
SIR HENRY THORNTON SENDS CONGRATULATIONS

C.N.R. Engineers Accomplish Feat Which Has Hitherto Been Regarded As a Dream in Communication Circles.

TORONTO, Ont., May 6.—(Canadian Press).—One of the most important scientific developments of the radio age was successfully demonstrated yesterday when complete telephonic conversation was maintained for two hours between a moving train on the Allandale Division of the Canadian National Railways and the telegraph head offices of the system in Toronto. Passengers on board moving trains with this equipment may reach any point served by the ordinary telephone system; similarly passengers on these trains may be communicated with by telephone from any point reached by local or long distance telephone.

The demonstration was officially opened on the train yesterday by W. D. Robb, Vice President in charge of the telegraph and telephone department, Canadian National Railways. With the train moving at 40 miles an hour Mr. Robb lifted an ordinary telephone receiver and asked for W. G. Barber, general manager of telegraphs at Toronto. A connection was made within a few seconds.

"Is that you?" said Mr. Robb. "This is the first time I have had the pleasure of telephoning you from a moving train. I wish to express the thanks of the president to you and the staff for all you have accomplished in this direction."

Communicate with Home or Office.

Subsequently a number of railway officials and newspapermen on the train talked with Mr. Barber. The voice from the other end was quite clear and distinct and reception was nearly perfect. With trains equipped with this apparatus the traveller is no longer isolated from oral communication with his home or office.

Another outstanding feature was demonstrated when Mr. Robb spoke over the long distance telephone on the moving train, his remarks being carried by telephone to CNRT, and broadcast to a radio audience. The broadcast was picked up on the radio receiving set on the observation car on the same train from which he spoke. It was the first time this has been accomplished.

The demonstration was witnessed by a number of newspapermen from Canadian and United States cities, who despatched a joint message of congratulation to Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C.N.R. on the accomplishment of perfected telephoning from a moving train.

The type of radio telephony perfected by the company's engineers, working under the direction of Mr. Robb ,is entirely a new departure in this field of research work. A carrier telephone system of this kind was worked out some time ago in Germany and is in use on trains there. The way of the German engineer, however was beset with many problems, and voice transmission under the system in vogue there is a slow process involving the switching over from speaking to listening, the two operations being very difficult to carry out at the same time.

In developing their idea the Canadian National engineers under the supervision of J. C. Burkholder, made use of their special test car, equipped with a laboratory. This car has its own electrical generators run by a gasoline engine. Electricity threads its way through the car, can be tapped esily at any point in the laboratory, and stepped up or down to convenient voltages. It was on this car that most of the preliminary work was done and on which the demonstration was carried out yesterday.

Aerial on Roof of Car.

By the new system communication is provided between a telephone set on a moving train with a telephone operator in charge and another telephone set in a terminal on the railway right of way, adjacent to the telegraph lines. This is made possible by the use of an aerial on the roof of the car from which the voice jumps to the telegraph lines running parallel to the railway tracks. The terminal station is equipped with a switchboard through which connection is made with the regular telephone system.

When a person wishes to telephone from the train the operation is the same as placing an ordinary long distance telephone call. He steps up to the operator on the train and tells him the name and number of the party to whom he wishes to speak. The train operator then signals the terminal operator and gives him the necessary information. When the call is ready, which takes no more time than the ordinary long distance call, the operator notifies the passenger, and the latter is then able to converse with his called party as over an ordinary telephone circuit.

THIEF SECURES $250 IN STORE

Campbellford Store Has Till Robbed Some Time During Saturday Night.

NO FORCED ENTRY.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 6 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Some time during the early hours of Sunday morning, the first robbery of any size was staged here, when Pattenick's store, Front Street, was relieved of two hundred and fifty dollars. The loss was discovered Sunday morning by the owner when he paid a visit to the local branch of his business. The police were notified and further developments are expected almost at once.

Pattenick's store deals in ladies' ready-to-wear and gent's furnishings, boots and shoes, etc. The local staff consists of three, the manager and two clerks. It has usually been conceded that the store was one of the busiest in town. It was at first located on Bridge Street, but when MacIntosh Bros. removed from their Front Street site. Pattenick took it over.

As nearly as can be learned, the day's business was brought to an end in the usual manner, about eleven o'clock. The doors were locked and the staff took their departure. Some time later, a person, or persons, in possession of a key, entered the place of business and relieved the till and cash of approximately two hundred and fifty dollars. The money was in bills, cheques and coins. Police investigation revealed no trace of an entrance having been forced, and they have expressed the opinion that the person who entered was in possession of a key or that the robber managed to conceal himself in the store when it was time to close up, and made his haul and escape when the coast was clear. The night constable, interviewed, stated that he tried the doors along Front Street between one and two in the morning, and between three-thirty and four-thirty. They were locked when he made his rounds.

It appears that the orders issued to the local staff are clear on the disposal of the money from the Saturday's business. The usual amount of change is always left in the till. Even that had been tampered with. Yesterday morning, Mr. Pattenick came to town to look over his business and the discovery was made. Chief Grassick was notified and commenced investigation. He would make no statement as to his progress last night, other than to state that "developments were expected."

INQUEST IS CALLED.

KITCHENER, Ont., May 6 (Canadian Press).—Crushed by a motor truck as she was standing in front of a local garage here Saturday night, Miss Luella Bowyer, 17, Bridgeport, Ont., died a half-hour later in hospital. Elbert Tomlinson, driver of the truck, was detained by the police on a charge of criminal negligence.

Tomlinson backed his truck out of an alley and went over the curb. According to his statement, the police say, he forgot to change his gears after being in reverse, and when he intended to proceed the truck backed with a lurch, pinning the girl against the side of the garage door. PLOWMEN OPEN COUNTY TEAM COMPETITION

Three Boys Under Eighteen Will Form Team From Each County For International.

VALUABLE CUP.

Boys Will Be in Charge of the Representative of Agriculture in Various Counties.

J. J. Duffus, president of the Plowmen's Association, has just returned from a meeting of the executive, which convened for a whole day at the Parliament Buildings in Toronto last week, for the purpose of working out problems in connection with the annual International Plowing Match and Power Farming Machinery Demonstration, which is to be held on the Government farms adjoining the city of Kingston on October 15, 16, and 17 next.

Due to the work of Mr. Duffus, a new and very interesting competition will be included in this year's prize list. The competition will consist of three boys under 18 years of age from each county in the province. This will enable the boys at the best age to compete. Mr. Duffus states that the age at which the boys will be taken, which is under eighteen years, is the most critical in the life of the lads, and this should ensure a greater interest in these matches and tend to arouse the interest in the competitions in the future, even after they have passed this age.

J. B. Nelson, the agriculture representative for this district, is also very interested in this new competition, and believes that there will be many entries from Peterborough, as the distance to Kingston is not so great as to hinder anyone from going. He is working out plans for this meet and arousing the interest of the boys in the district who are eligible.

The judging of this new entry into the prize lists will be judged on the combined points of all of the three who will comprise one team. The team that wins the highest number of points will be presented with a silver trophy, valued at $125.00, which they will hold as the county continues to win it In addition, the three competitors will be given replicas of the trophy, which they will retain.

This competition will stimulate the interest of boys from all over Ontario and should be one of the most keenly contested classes to be held at the Kingston match this fall.

The teams from the various counties will be in charge of the local representatives, which will add materially to the pleasure of the contest, and it is hoped in view of Mr. Duffus' great interest in this competition and the work of Mr. Nelson, that the Peterborough County boys will be the winners of the initial event this year.

LIFE SAVING CREW REMOVES MEN AS VESSEL SINKS IN LAKE HURON

Captain and Crew of O. E. Parks Taken Ashore Early Friday Morning.

SENT OUT S.O.S.

Engineer of Ill-fated Ship Pays Tribute to Thunder Bay Life Savers.

SAULT STE. MARIE Ont. May 6 (C.P.).—Snatched from storm-swept decks of a sinking vessel Captain Samuel Shields and twelve men comprising the crew of the steamer O. E. Parks were safe ashore yesterday after having battled against one of the worst gales on the Great Lakes in years.

The O. E. Parks went down in shallow water in Lake Huron off Thunder Bay at 4 o'clock Friday morning. The crew was removed as the first streaks of dawn showed the craft floundering helplessly and with her cargo of lumber lost to the waves.

Revealing a story of fine courage in the face of difficulty and danger, the rescued men attribute their safety to the life-saving crew from Thunder Bay Island.

"If it had not been for them it would have been all up with us," Harry Jacobson of Escanaba, engineer of the ill-fated ship, declared.

Decks of Vessel Swept by Waves

Jacobson said the decks of the O. E. Parks were awash with mountainous waves when the crew of the life station arrived in answer to their distress signals. He was unable to explain the cause for the foundering of the ship. The storm came up unexpectedly and before the crew could make the vessel ship-shape, it had been swamped by high waves driven by a northeasterly gale.

The Parks left the Michigan Sault a week ago to load pulpwood for Alpena and left Richards' Landing on St. Joseph's Island, Thursday morning, with fair weather, which continued through the day. "We had no warning of the storm," Jacobson said. When the vessel passed Detrour early Thursday evening the sky was clear and there was no wind. No storm signals were displayed at any of the points the vessel passed.

LAKE ERIE SUMMER RESORT IS THREATENED BY FLOOD WATERS

Hundreds Left Homeless As Village of Erieau Cut Off From Mainland.

HEAVY PROPERTY DAMAGE.

Feared Many of Elaborate Summer Homes Will Collapse Under Strain.

CHATHAM, Ont., May 6 (C.P.).—The village of Erieau, popular Lake Erie summer resort and port, was threatened with complete demolition last night as the waters of the lake continue to pound out their fury on the surrounding beaches. Cut off from the rest of the mainland except for the thread-like embankment of the Pere Marquette Railway, the peninsula settlement is virtually marooned, while unless the winds and waters abate it is feared that many of the elaborate summer homes will collapse before long into a watery grave.

In the surrounding districts the waves have at last triumphed over the dykes and thousands of acres of low land were inundated last night, rendering hundreds of families homeless and piling up a toll of damage which will amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In the Dover and Tilbury East districts, it is estimated that 2,200 acres are inundated, while in Harwich township, it in the vicinity of Erieau, 500 acres of the Burke drainage scheme are under three feet of water, and there is imminent danger of the collapse of another dyke which will cause the flooding of approximately one thousand acres of the upper section of the scheme.

MAY REDUCE WESTERN RATES

U. S. Railways Discuss Reduction of Grain Rates On Western Railroads.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 6.—(C.P.)—Voluntary reductions in grain export rates, announced by eastern railroads at the suggestion of the Federal administration Friday, will be followed by like reductions in the same rates on the part of western railroads, and will be extended to wheat flour. This was indicated on Saturday after conferences of members of the Interstate Commerce Commission with traffic vice-presidents of several western trunk lines and represetnatives of the Hoover administration.

Conrad E. Spens, vice-president of the Burlington system and chairman of the Railroad committee, announced at the termination of the meetings that he had summoned representatives of all western lines to meet in Chicago Tuesday for the purpose of acting on the request for export grain rate reductions which has been made by the administration.

The first cablegram was sent from London to New York on August 28, 1857.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 6. — Instead of helping to uplift grain prices, cuts in railroad freight rates on export shipments did the opposite on Saturday. The cuts resulted in lower quotations on wheat at Liverpool, and largely as a consequence the wheat market here plunged downward below the bottom-most level heretofore reached by nearly all the active deliveries. Other grains, too, were very weak, though not showing as big declines as was the case in wheat.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 6. — Weakness at Chicago was reflected on the wheat market here yesterday, and prices broke sharply at the opening, sinking 2c to 2¼c below Friday's close. Values came up from their low levels near the close and final quotations were 1¼c to 1¾c lower.

Lack of export interest and poor local support aided the market in dropping to low levels.

Cash wheat trading was dull, with prices generally unchanged.

Oats and barley were fairly active and were well bought at fractionally higher prices. Flax and rye trading was small and prices eased slightly.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 6.— The butter market was quiet, buyers having bought their supplies for the week. Prices were unchanged from Friday. The receipts for the week were 13,649 boxes, of which 8,712 were from New Zealand.

Trading was inactive on the cheese market, with prices remaining steady. Last week's receipts were 4,513.

Eggs likewise were steady, maintaining the same price levels. The week's receipts were 19,722 cases.

Potato Market Easier.

Potatoes, after advancing from 10 to 25 cents during the week, closed with a slightly easier undertone prevailing, caused by heavier arrivals and the fact that most buyers were inclinde to take their profits on purchases. Offerings increased from Prince Edward Island, but continued light from New Brunswick, heavy rains still interfering with haulings in that Province. Prices in carload lots, track Montreal, were 85 to 90 cents for New Brunswick Green Mountains per 90 lbs., in bulk, with Prince Edward Island potatoes at 85 to 90 cents for whites, and 95c. to $1 for Green Mountains per 90 lbs., in bags.

2,000 KILLED BY EARTHQUAKE

Persian District Has Been Shaken For Past Three Days.

VILLAGES DESTROYED.

TEHERAN, Persia, May 6.—(Canadian Press).—Two thousand dead were reported to-day in unofficial telegraph advices of three days continuing earthquakes from the Chorassan district of northeast Persia.

The telegrams said several villages have been destroyed, with 700 buildings demolished in the cities of Shirwan and Bujnurd, near the Turkestan border. The tremors were said to have caused "three days of terror."

Four violent earthquakes were reported from Askhabad, Russian Turkestan, last Friday, with a heavy death toll reported in Persian villages along the international line. Eleven were killed and 40 injured in the Turkestan cities. The Turkestan government rushed medical aid to the Persian victims.

In 1812 Christopher Cowen erected the first rolling-mill at Pittsburgh, Pa.

The first telegraph line in this country was built in 1844. It ran from Washington to Baltimore.

CHIEF NEWHALL DENOUNCES FIRE ARM BILL

Local Chief Constable Asks If This is Any Time to Disarm the Police.

REMEDY SUGGESTED.

Would Amend Criminal Law To Make Carrying of Fire-arms Jail Offense.

"Would it not be better for Senator Lynch-Staunton to devote his time and brains to the conducting of a coddling school for criminals?" smiled Chief of Police S. J. Newhall, Vice-President of the Canadian Police Chiefs' Association, in an interview with The Examiner this morning regarding the Hamilton Senator's bill introduced for its second reading in the Senate Thursday afternoon, and by which the Criminal Code would be amended as regards the use of force to prevent escapes. "Is this any time to disarm the police or even to talk about it, when gun-totting is more prevalent than ever?" asked the Chief indignantly. "The disastrous effect is readily foreseen, for Canada would look most attractive to gunmen from across the line. With only an imaginary line between Canada and United States one of the worst law-breaking countries in the world, it is ridiculous to compare the Dominion's conditions with those in England.

"In my eleven years with the Metropolitan police in London and with the Liverpool police, I only encountered firearms twice, and in both cases the offenders were Americans, in Liverpool. Over there, they use feet and fists, and if they chance to have foreign blood, a knife may be expected, but the British criminal is not the addict to firearms that they are on this continent. How long would a policeman in a big Canadian or American city be on duty before he would encounter firearms?" queried the Chief significantly.

Suggests Remedy

"If they would amend the code where it needs amending—that is, start with the criminal and make the punishment for the carrying of firearms two or three years instead of a paltry fine, gun-totting would soon be on the decrease and there might be some justification for disarming the police, but as long as a man can carry a gun at night and, on being taken into custody, get off with a fine,—let's talk sense.

"I see by The Globe that Senator Lynch-Staunton quotes Peter White, K.C., and others as saying that they thought the present law "shocking and unnecessary" and further down he says he had been told that there has not been a case in Toronto in years where firearms had been necessary in making an arrest. If the Senator is quoted correctly, then all I can say is that he must have been asleep in that time. Bank hold-ups and fur robberies have occasioned the use of firearms and furthermore, no man is qualified to speak regarding when guns are or are not justified, unless he has done police patrol duty. Often a policeman has not a sixteenth of a second to decide, as it is on very rare occasions that an officer catches these slippery gentlemen in the act of committing their crimes.

I was very much surprised to see Peter White, K.C., and Eric Armour, K.C. quoted as agreeing with Senator Staunton's views. I feel there must be some mistake as these two gentlemen are fully alive to the danger which exists in weakening the powers of the police at the present time, and I am quite sure that both these gentlemen will agree with me that the first measure that should be adopted should be one to weaken the crook's chance of securing and carrying these unlawful weapons. Along these lines every police officer and law-abiding citizen should work."

KNOX MISSION BAND PROVIDES PROGRAM

Willing Workers' Organization Put On Concert of Unusual Merit.

On Friday evening an entertainment of unusual merit was presented at Knox United Church, by the members of "The Willing Workers" Mission Band under the direction of Mrs. Howard Clegg. The children of the band contributed the entire program, their childish precision and skill winning much favourable comment from the audience and evincing very careful training by those in charge.

As an opening number the band contributed a chorus entitled "Missionary Bells". The tiny tots of the band delighted the audience with chorus "Jesus Loves Me." Six little girls carrying dolls sang the lulla. by "Hush.a.Bye". A chorus of seven members rendered "Spring Time" with violin obligato by Mr. Benson.

Readings were contributed by the Misses Eva Battle, Eleanor Wells, Nellie Buck, Gertrude Lanchashire, Jennie Herd, Eunice Thexton, Marjorie Thexton and Eleanor Dunford.

A piano number by a little tot aged five, Miss Nora Hughes ,won much appreciation and applause. Other piano numbers were contributed by the Misses Marguerite Wood, Helen Hetherington and Master Stewart Laing. A violin solo by Master Harold Wells was much enjoyed.

One of the most interesting items on the program was a dialogue entitled "The Mite Box Convention" in which each member taking part was enclosed in a box and represented a mite box. The conversation between the boxes depicted the various attitudes adopted by the givers of the "mite" to missions and contrasted the wrong with the right spirit in giving.

Rev. William McDonald at the close warmly commended the youthful entertainers and the efforts of the leader.

Mrs. Harry Williamson acted as accompanist.

THE POSTOFFICE ESTIMATES.

The official Opposition has displayed good judgment in withdrawing its blockade against the passing of the postoffice estimates and in allowing these votes to be made in time for the Postmaster-General to attend the Postal Congress in England.

Any further opposition to the estimates would have been viewed by the public generally as an injustifiable interference with parliamentary business, and as an expensive filibuster carried on in a spirit of revenge.

The Opposition was, of course, justified if they believed there had been features of Hon. P. J. Veniot's administration that deserved censure in calling attention to these things, and in holding up the estimates until they were satisfied that the people of Canada had had an opportunity to learn something of postoffice affairs under the Veniot regime.

But to go on holding up the vote day after day merely to attack the Postmaster-General and satisfy their own desire to strike at him would have been neither good business for the country nor good tactics on the part of those responsible.

In the final analysis the people are the jury who will decide the points at issue, and that jury would quickly condemn prolonged obstruction where nothing in the public interest was to be gained.

LEVEL CROSSING ACCIDENTS.

"If accidents are to be lessened," says a report of the Dominion Railway Board in discussing grade crossing fatalities, "the sane motorist must educate the culpably negligent motorists."

The truth of that statement is apparent, but, unfortunately, it does not help much.

If the almost daily headlines in the newspapers announcing level crossing deaths do not warn reckless drivers, what method can be followed that will give results?

The commissioners declare that accidents of this type are on the increase, that people take chances and disregard safety, and that safety devices and cautionary signals do not help motorists from rushing into danger.

And the number of accidents reported by the board as taking place at protected crossings is proof that their charge is in the main correct.

Sixty-seven accidents at protected crossings of the Canadian National lines in the last three months of 1928 and 154 cases on the Canadian Pacific in the last four months of last year, are a striking commentary upon the tendency of many drivers to disregard stop signs, signals and other safety devices.

These accidents must have all been caused by gross negligence or sheer recklesnes, for they took place at point where protection of some kind had been provided.

DEBENTURE DEBT.

Municipal statistics just issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and covering the year 1927 afford an opportunity for some interesting comparisons.

Take the question of debenture debt which has been referred to frequently during the campaign that prefaced the voting on the by-laws last week, and a glance over the figures shows that in that year at least Peterborough stood in a fairly favorable position as compared with other cities in the Province.

The returns for 1927 give Peterborough's debenture debt as $4,251,145, made up of $1,289,061 for general purposes, $561,414 for schools, $768,590 for local improvements and $1,632,080 for public utilities.

Of all the cities in the Province with a population of 10,000 or over—28 in all—the lowest debenture debt reported was in Ford City, $98,944, while the largest, of course, was Toronto's, with $176,869,754.

Nine Ontario cities, Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa, Windsor, Brantford, Fort William, Port Arthur, Kitchener and St. Catharines, showed a higher debenture debt than Peterborough, while the debt of Guelph and Sault Ste. Marie was almost the same.

London did not make a return as to its debenture debt, but reported total liabilities as $14,458,970.

Of the smaller cities, the two at the head of the lakes, Fort William and Port Arthur, had the largest responsibility in regard to debentures, the former $8,581,312 and the latter $7,245,490.

THE POLICE AND REVOLVERS.

Senator Griesbach was close to the mark when he declared that the remedy for indiscriminate shooting by the police is proper training.

The attempt that is being made by a brother Senator to put into effect legislation that would make it illegal for police officers to use a gun for any other purpose than self-defense is unnecessary and would prove a handicap to law enforcement officers.

There is no need of such a law; better instruction of police officers as to when and where they should use their revolvers is all that is necessary.

There have been several shootings by police recently that the public refuses to believe were justified.

The killing of Brennan is an illustration; there was not the slightest indication that the shooting in that case was done in self-defense, for the victim was running away, and in blazing away at him the officers were usurping the authority of the courts.

It is impossible to believe that the Provincial Police responsible for that death had ever been given an adequate schooling in the use of revolvers; otherwise they would have known that their duty did not justify them in shooting at a fugitive under such circumstances.

Every police officer should be thoroughly coached as to his responsibility in this respect and if that were done and the lesson fully absorbed there would be no need of any further legislation in the matter.

MR. FERGUSON AND EMPIRE DAY.

The Empire Day booklet issued to all Ontario schools by the Department of Education is an admirable work. It is compiled for a purpose—to impress upon the boys and girls of the present generation not so much the idea of the greatness of the British Empire as the causes of that greatness. The Hon. G. Howard Ferguson strikes the keynote himself in his personal message, an appeal to keep united an Empire founded on the rocks of "liberty, justice and truth.' The same theme is carried forward in extracts from the messages of great statesmen of the past—inspiring words from the lips of great Canadians from Sir John A. Macdonald to Sir Lomer Gouin.

It is the fashion, in some quarters nowadays, to heap abuse on all things military, and to class all wars as concerted crimes. "Britain and World Power" is the title of an admirable anonymous article in this year's Empire Day booklet which, in amazingly short space, summarizes the reasons for epoch-making British wars with Spain, France and Germany. There is no trace of blatant jingoism in this thoughtful little essay, which every searcher for truth can read to advantage.

There is no shadow of political partisanship in Mr. Ferguson's selections. Great Liberal statesmen are quoted perhaps more freely than great Conservatives. The article on the Union Jack quotes Macdonald, and adds: "Every Prime Minister of Canada since that time has been equally outspoken in his devotion to the British flag."

The Globe believes that future generations will look back to certain outstanding steps, taken during Mr. Ferguson's Prime Ministry, as decidedly retrograde; but that his administration of the Department of Education will win no less certain future approval. In some respects Mr. Ferguson has proposed reforms whose only defect is that they are a little ahead of the possibilities of the times. In others, as in the case of this Empire Day leadership, he has acted as the great majority of the people, regardless of party, would have wished him to act.—The Globe.

CANADA'S ATTITUDE.

Abolition of compulsory military service, proposed by China before the Preparatory Disarmament Commission of the League of Nations, seems to have a good many influential supporters, although it may be some time before the league passes a formal resolution along these lines.

Canadians will be interested, of course, in what their representative had to say on the subject. Dr. W. A. Riddell, our advisory officer at Geneva, outlined the Canadian attitude, stating that the people of this country are against the system of compulsory military service. He expressed sympathy, on behalf of Canada, with the Chinese proposal and said that this country associated itself with Great Britain, the United States, Sweden and Holland in the matter. Among other contributors to the discussion was Count von Bernstorff, the German delegate, who said that he, too, favored abolition of compulsory army service, while Mr. Litvinoff, a Russian spokesman, admitted that he was not opposed to the principle involved.

It was to be expected, of course, that Canada, Great Britain, the United States and certain other countries would favor a world plan for the abolition of compulsory service, for the very good reason that these nations do not use it, except in time of war. It is decidedly interesting, however, that the German delegate should give adherence to the idea, because Germany has always been keen for the principle that every youth should serve a fixed period in either the army or the navy.

There are some arguments that can be made for compulsory service in times of peace. It teaches respect for superior authority, it inculcates the lesson of duty to the State, and certainly it is an excellent thing from the physical standpoint for the young men so engaged. On the other hand, it uses up a valuable period in life, it may have an injurious effect on individualism, and its tendency is to breed a military machine so efficient as to actually encourage its use. This, of course, means war, and war is the last thing that the world needs or wants.

One can well understand that the work of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission must break down the habits and the prejudices of centuries. It is discussing the abolition or the reduction of features of national life that have been more or less standardized. It seeks ways and means to discard some of the things that make for war and to institute, in their stead, agencies for the promotion of peace. Obviously, the task of the commission is not an easy one nor will its troubles be necessarily over with the presentation of its report to the league, for in the larger body may be heard objections that were not considered or that seemed relatively unimportant to the smaller organization.

There can be no more important work in the world of to-day than that of furthering the cause of universal peace. Though less than ten years have elapsed since the last gun was fired in the Great War, the professional militarists are active in more than one country. Their cry is ever for more and stronger weapons of warfare. Undismayed by the shattering, in 1914,1918, of their maxim, "The best way to secure peace is to be prepared for war," these forces urge the recruiting of larger armies, the building of greater battleships and the making of every nation into an armed camp. The other side is heard, though, in the League of Nations. At Geneva we find the statesmen of many countries engaged in the discussion of methods by which armaments may be scaled down, through which the crushing load of militarism may be lifted from the backs of the various peoples and an opportunity provided for the use of all the energy and all the treasure thus saved, in productive enterprises for the good of each country and the world in general.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It looks as if the coal dealers are the real Queens of the May this year.

The Opposition having ceased fire on the postoffice department perhaps Parliament may be able to get some business done this week.

When Miss MacPhail suggested that Canada should set the pace in the disarmament program, she may have been thinking of the Provincial Police force.

Kingston will celebrate in 1934 the 150th anniversary of the coming of the U. E. Loyalists there. The place has been much about the same ever since that time, it is understood.

Horoscope

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Tuesday, May 7, 1929

Benefic aspects seem to rule today, according to astrology, which reads many signs of great promise for the United States.

Women are supposed to benefit more than men while this configuration prevails. They should push all their important interests.

Love affairs will probably multiply under this sway which makes for romance especially among the young.

This is likely to be a devasting day among college students who have time to indulge in flirtations, for they will be unusually susceptible.

Wise boys and girls will pay attention to books instead of to one another while this direction of the stars continues.

Jealousy, ambition, envy and a tendency to quarrel may be apparent in the association of young folk.

This is not an auspicious sway for domestic harmony and there should be care to avoid all argument.

Clashes between idealism and materialism may be frequent at this time when thought fashions are to change with the modes of everyday apparel.

All the signs seem to presage for the tremendous advancement and big opportunities.

Girls are to find their right places in the general scheme of world progress but they will not compete with their brothers except where they have especial fitness for a vocation ,the seers prophesy.

Postoffice service is to be improved, it is foretold, because all the country is to stress efficiency and to recent unnectssary waste of time.

One of the new awakenings will be a recognition of the real value of time, which nevertheless seeks to eliminate hurry.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of serene happiness. They should make the most of the period of real sunshine.

Children born on this day probably will be fond of outdoor life and exceedingly wholesome in their outlook on life. Many musicians are born under this sign.

Anton Seidl was born on this date 1850.

To Editor of Examiner:—

Dear Sir.—The first letter referred

CRUSHED STONES A MENACE TO ROAD BUILDING.

The first letter referred to the wear and tear of auto tires where a stretch of crushed stone was laid on the Keene Road over a year ago, and is to-day a first-class road, having carried up all spring, whilst a little farther on where no crushed stone has been applied, the wallowing in the pits made by the trucks injured tires more in five minutes than crushed stones would do all year, in fact, crushed stones do not injure tires, and all auto owners who are not prone to growl will tell you the same, but mud pouts like mud and are out of place under any other condition.

With regard to the ditch being lined with stones off the road as one other growler states, is not in accordance with the facts, but if the writer will form a joint stock company to finance him through, a wager will be met that there is not a wheelbarrow full of stones in the ditch all along the stretch where those crushed stones have been applied. It is easier to complain than operate, yet unwarranted utterances or writings will not reach any GOAL even when shouted from the platform, as a result of disappointment.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXXII.

Drake drove on some little distance in silence, then he said gently:

"Don't cry, my dear. Nothing is worth crying about if we can only see it that way. I always try to think that trouble and unhappiness come along very much as the measles and whooping cough do. You've got to have them—at least most of have—and after all we get over them all right."

Ana struggled with a sob.

"Some people die," she said.

"Yes, but you don't," he assured her. "You're too brave. In a few days you'll be laughing and happy again."

"That's all you know," Ana thought passionately. In a few days! Was it possible for anyone to stop loving as she loved in a few days?

"You haven't answered my question," Drake said presently. He slowed the car down and drew it to the side of the road. "Marry me, Ana. I'll be so good to you. I'll do my best to make you happy. You may not care very much for me, but if there's nobody else you care more about—"

"There is," Ana said sharply.

And then for a little while neither of them spoke.

"There is," Ana said again at last. "I have to tell you. I want to be quite honest. I should like to marry you—in a way I should." She tried to explain helplessly. "I dread the thought of being alone all my life, and nobody else has ever asked me to marry them—nobody else has ever—"

She had been going to say "ever loved me," but she knew that was not true. She knew that Anthony Hambledon loved her. Even though he had gone away, gone back to Mollie who cared nothing for him no matter how cleverly she might pretend, Anthony loved her and always would.

A sudden wave of desolation swept her soul.

Nothing to hope for—nothing! and yet in spite of that knowledge there was a tiny hope far down in her heart which she could not quite kill. Things came right in books. On the very last page things had a wonderful way of coming right and of letting people live happily ever after. Why shouldn't it happen to her—to her and Anthony? Something, some desperate thing might happen to turn the scale one day. Life might step in with kindly tread instead of cruelly as it was doing now.

Drake was speaking, very kindly and gently.

"This other man—is it anyone who—well, forgive me for asking you, Ana, but doesn't he care for you?"

"He can't marry me."

"I see." But she knew that he did not consider what she had told him very seriously; she knew that he thought it was just a passing fancy which she would live down or forget.

She answered that thought defiantly:

"I shall never care for anyone else. I have never cared for anyone in all my life till he came."

"I'll be content to be second best."

Ana smiled in the darkness.

Second best! When it would be so many miles behind the beloved first. She temporized and asked, "What would your sister say?"

"She guesses. Besides, she likes you."

"I like her, too," Ana said.

"Well, then—" He laid his hand over hers. "Why not?"

She shivered in the cool evening air.

"Not yet. I couldn't. If you'll wait."

"As long as you like, if it's not too long. Life's short, you know, and I don't believe in wasting opportunities given to us for happiness."

"Don't you?" Ana said drearily, and thought of the day she had waited in vain for Anthony in the hotel lounge. All her life she would remember that afternoon, and every detail of her surroundings — even the face of the girl at the desk and the red-faced man who had sat opposte to her reading a newspaper.

The faded rose had been eloquent after all—eloquent of hopes that had died just when they were so sweet and full of promise. She lost herself in unhappy thoughts, and Drake let her alone. He cared for her enough to understand her mood, and not to intrude upon it too closely.

There were no great heights or depths to Drake's capabilities for love, but with him a woman could be quietly happy without ever tasting ecstasy or despair, and he loved Ana as well as he would ever love. He wanted her to be happy; he hated her being lonely; he wanted to give her a home of her own and children, and simple pleasures, whereas Anthony Hambledon would have wanted to give her the moon and the stars.

"Are you still alone in that house?" Drake asked presently, and Ana told him yes, but that Miss Sawyer was coming home the next day.

"She should never have left you alone," Drake said angrily.

Ana laughed.

"I've been quite all right until—" She broke off with bitter memory.

"May I come one day and see Miss Sawyer?" Drake asked.

"If you want to, but you won't like her, and she'll disapprove of you; she disapproves of me—she disapproves of everyone."

"I fancy I can survive that. Which day may I come?"

"I'll let you know. I'll write."

"Thank you." He drove on again. "Shall I take you home now?"

"Please, and thank you for coming."

"Don't say that. I came because I wanted to."

Ana lay awake for hours that night, unable to sleep, her eyes burning and her head throbbing.

Two men loved her.

"I wonder why?" she asked herself drearily. "I'm not pretty, I'm not anything. Nobody ever looked at me till Anthony came."

And now Anthony had gone; gone back to Mollie who did not love him.

"I may never see him again," Ana told herself, but somehow the thought did not hurt. Her heart seemed to gave gone numb, as if it had borne all the pain it could bear.

If she married Tom Drake—

"I can't. I never could. I don't want to be anyone's wife but Anthony's. I'd rather be lonely all my life." But life is long, and to most people loneliness is the biggest bogey of all. She closed her eyes and tried to live again those last moments during which Hambledon had held her in his arms.

"Good-bye, all my beautiful happiness, good-bye, my sweetest, dearest—"

Hot tears, which she dared not let fall, scorched her lids. She must not cry any more, her eyes would be red and swollen tomorrow, and Miss Sawyer would be sure to notice and make remarks. Ana was glad that her aunt was coming home. She would be someone to talk to, even if they only talked on uninteresting subjects; it would give her an occupation, even if that occupation was only fetching and things.

"And perhaps some day—" That was the last unfinished thought in Ana's weary mind before she fell asleep.

The little hope that would not die! The little false hope that kept her from utter despair.

In the morning when she went down to light the fire, the maid from next door was on the back doorstep. She held a telegram in her hand.

"The boy couldn't make anyone hear when he came," she explained. "I heard you come in late last night, miss, and I thought you was tired and laying on a bit, so I took it from him, and here it is."

Ana thanked her.

"I was tired, and I didn't wake till nearly nine. I expect it is from my aunt to say what time she will arrive." And yet it was not like Miss Sawyer to waste money on telegrams. She always said that if news was good it could wait, and if it was bad there was no need to hurry to break it.

But in this case the news was bad, and was sent by one of Miss Sawyer's cousins with whom she had been staying at Brighton.

"Your aunt very ill. Please come at once."

Ill! Miss Sawyer's letter yesterday had said how unusually well she was feeling. She had never had a day's illness in her life, not real illness, Ana thought ,as she hurriedly dressed, without further thought of breakfast. She left a message with the people next door, and explained that she would be back soon.

"Probably to-night, unless my aunt is very ill. I will let you know, and if anyone calls—"

"A gentleman called yesterday evening, miss," the little maid told her. "He went round to the back and tried all the doors, but I told him I thought you was out."

"Yes, thank you. I suppose I was out," Ana answered hurriedly. "And I don't think he will call again, but if he does—if he does, please tell him Miss Sawyer is ill and I have been sent for." No, Anthony would not call again, she was sure. This was the end, unless something very unforeseen happened—as it did in books!

There she was again, hoping, always hoping.

"And there isn't any hope—no hope at all," Ana told herself as she hurried to the station "Only a fool would ever think there might be."

But all the way to Brighton that hope sang in her heart. Some day! Some day! To-morrow, or the day after, or the day after that—or perhaps even months or years ahead something would happen that would give Anthony back to her—something must happen on some great to-morrow. But as all the world knows, to-morrow never comes.

John Rae accepted the position of vice-president and William May was appointed secretary. These new officers were duly installed by Robert Hendry. A vacant position in the executive was filled by W. Robert Veitch, on behalf of the members, wished them good luck in their new venture. Two new members were added to the roll After the business meeting was over refreshments were served by the committee, and after a few dances engeged in to music supplied by Robert Gilmour on the melodeon, and a pleasant evening was brought to a close.

NEW OFFICERS ARE ELECETD AT MEETING

Encouraging Reports Read At Annual Meeting of Stirling Women's Institute.

EXHIBITION DATE CHANGED.

Interesting Lecture Given Under Auspices of Stirling Horticultural Society.

STIRLING, May 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—The annual meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the ladies' rest room on Thursday evening. The secretary-treasurer's report showed receipts for the year to be $419.03 and expenditures $356.93, leaving a balance in the bank of $63.10. The officers elected for 1929-30 are: President, Mrs. A. Shaw; 1st vice president, Mrs. H. Rollins; 2nd vice president, Mrs. H. Tulloch; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. G. Butler; directors, Mesdames G. Bailey, W. West, A. Corrigal, and P. Bronson; district director, Mrs. P. Bronson; flower committee, Mrs. M. W. Sine and Mrs. Nina Morton; representative to convention, Mesdames Shaw, Rollins, Sine, Morton; auditors, Mrs J. B. Belshaw and Mrs. Nora Wescott.

Date of Fair Changed

At a meeting of the directors of the Stirling Agricultural Society held on Monday evening, it was decided to change the dates of the Fall Fair from September 18-9 to September 23-24, so that the championship school fair can be held in Stirling.

Gives Fine Lecture

On Wednesday evening the Stirling theatre was filled with people from the village and surrounding district who came to hear H. J. Moore, of Toronto, who gave a lecture on "Beautification of the home." The stage was decorated with ferns, potted plants and cut flowers, which made a very pleasing appearance.

J. B. Belshaw, president of the Stirling Horticultural Society, under whose auspices the lecture was given, presided. After welcoming the large audience, two choruses were sung by pupils of the local public school and rural schools adjacent to the village They were under the direction of Principal Jackson, with G. Clute as accompanist.

Mr. Moore explained that to make a permanent beautification, shrubs and perennials should be used, the cost being much less than the purchasing of annuals each year.

"Every home should be surrounded with a lawn which makes cleanliness, sanitation and a healthly condition."

Directons for planting shrubs and the best kind to use were given. "If one desires to hide unsightly places such as board fences, buildings, etc., plant shrubs, instead of perennials. A perennial border should be placed so as to receive the sunlight. Arrange to have high plants at the back and gradually taper with low ones at the front of the bed. Width of beds may be 6, 8 or 12 feet wide according to the size of the lawn."

Following this talk an illustrated lecture was given where many shrubs and flowers were shown in their natural colors, which made a very interesting addition to the program. Views of residences and grounds were also shown. A number of questions were asked which Mr. Moore answered. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Moore for his interesting and instructive lecture.

Plot Being Beautified

The memorial committee recently engaged the services of a landscape gardener to lay out the memorial plot. A hedge of evergreen has been planted along the west side and as soon as the plan is sent from Toronto the work of planting shrubs and making flower beds will be completed.

CALL MONEY ADVANCES TO 12 PER CENT

Early Gains Wiped Out in Heavy Mid-day Selling Movement.

TIME MONEY FIRM.

New York Market Opens With Outburst of Strength in Morning Session.

(By Stanley W. Prenosil, Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 6.—An unexpected advance from 10 to 12 per cent. in the call money rate turned the course of prices reactionary in today's stock market after an early outburst of strength had carried a score issue into new high ground. Early gains of 1 to 7½ points were cut down, or wiped out, in the heavy midday selling movement, and a long list of stocks sagged 1 to 6 points below Saturday's final quotations.

Call money renewed at 10 per cent. but the supply at that figure was insufficent to meet the demand created by the recent increase in speculative activity. Time money and commercial paper rates also held firm. Wall Street had been expecting an easing of money rates this week with the May 1 demands out of the way.

In the early outburst of buying, General Electric and Westinghouse Electric were each bid up more than five points to within a few points of the year's highs, but the gains quickly melted away when a general selling wave swept over the market.

Chicago Wheat Prices Drop To New Low Level

CHICAGO, Ills., May 6.—(Canadian Press).—Confronted by Liverpool quotations much lower than expected, all deliveries of wheat here underwent a sharp setback to-day to below any level heretofore touched this season. Advices were at hand that Canada and Argentina were pressing heavily to send wheat abroad. Opening ⅝ of a cent to 1⅞c off, Chicago wheat later continued to point downward. Corn, oats and provisions were easy, with corn starting ⅜ to 1c lower, and afterward showing but little power to rally.

In Police Court

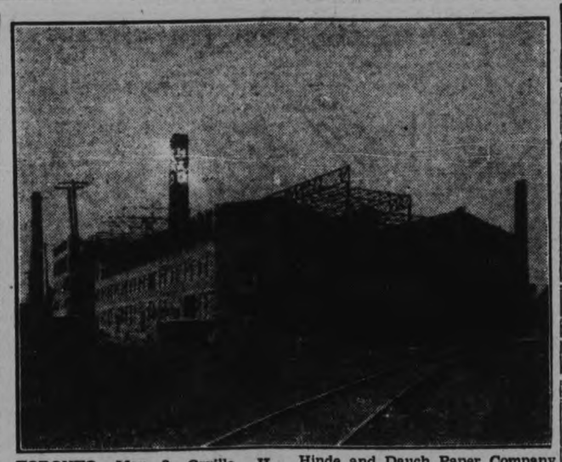
"I had a few drinks of wine anyway, so I won't say 'No'" declared a native of Sunny Italy, when he appeared before the police magistrate this morning, charged with being intoxicated in a public place on Saturday. A fine of $10 and $6.50 costs was imposed.

Another local man faced a similar charge and was penalized to the same extent.

Three young girls, between the ages of 17 and 22, wept profusely, and told the magistrate of the trials and tribulations that had come into their lives during the past couple of weeks. One of them was allowed her freedom that she might return to her home in Hamilton, while the other two were remanded until Tuesday on charges of vagrancy.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, May 6. (C.P.)—Foreign Exchange steady; demand rates (in cents): Great Britain 484 7-8; Canadian dollars 47-64 of one per cent. discount.



TORONTO, May 3.—Orville H. Moore, Managing Director of Hinde and Dauch Paper Company of Canada, Limited, of Toronto, Montreal and Trenton, stated to-day that the $1,500,000 extension to the Toronto plant at Atlantic avenue and Hanna avenue was progressing according to expectations and that machinery will be installed next month.

For some time the present box factory and mill in Toronto have been working twenty-four hours a day and the company has been under the necessity of increasing capacity. For this purpose, the company acquired a site adjacent to its present plant near the King street subway, and a new mill of brick and steel construction, five storeys high, will be completed by June 15th. An order has been placed for the largest box board machine in Canada, and the company's capacty for the manufacture of corrugated and fibre board boxes will be trebled. The company's paper machinery is now turning out 50 tons of box board daily and the new machine to be installed will have a capacity of 150 tons per day. The floor space of the Toronto plant will be increased from 100,000 square feet to 330,000 square feet.

Mr. Moore also stated that operations in the Toronto, Montreal and Trenton plants have been on an increased scale during the past year, and it is expected that the financial statement for the year ended December 31st, 1928, which will become available shortly, will reflect the growing production. Substantial additions to plant facilities are in progress and a program of further expansion was intimated.

The company is the largest manufactured in Canada of fibre shipping boxes and corrugated paper products and is also the largest producer of straw board for corrugating purposes. The demand for paper board shipping containers has grown enormously in recent years and a wide variety of products is now shipped in this form, including canned goods, bottled goods, boots and shoes, clothing, furniture, foods, chinaware and electrical goods.

Hinde and Dauch Paper Company of Canada, Limited, has kept in step with this development, and has constantly improved its facilities to handle the growing business. In 1928, the company acquired all the assets of the Thompson and Norris Company of Canada, Limited, with plants at Toronto and Montreal, and last year a new plant was opened in Trenton for the manufacture of straw paper for corrugating, with an initial capacty of 35 tons a day. This output has since been increased to 75 tons daily. In Montreal, the large plant of the Thompson and Norris Company of Canada, Limited, was found to be inadequate for the increasing volume of business in the Province of Quebec, and Hinde and Dauch Paper Company of Canada, Limited, has erected an addition to the original plant for the manufacture of solid fibre boxes. This new extension practically doubles the floor space of the former Montreal factory.

Upon the completion of the expansion program, the company will have the most modern paper board machinery in Canada and the corrugated and fibre board departments will be equipped with the best and most up-to-date machinery for the manufacture of shipping containers. In view of the growing demand for packages adapted to modern selling and shipping conditions, the company is also contemplating installing machinery in its Toronto plant to manufacture a complete line of cartons. Mr. Moore also announced that as soon as the building operations in Toronto and Montreal have been finished, it is the intention of the company to build plants at Winnipeg and Vancouver to provide for the rapidly growing business in Western Canada.

These improvements in manufacturing facilities will place Hinde and Dauch Paper Company of Canada, Limited, in a foremost position among the plants of the United States and Canada for the manufacture of corrugated and fibre board boxes. The production program also calls for substantial reduction in costs which will undoubtedly be reflected in the earnings of the company.

PAST HISTORY ALBERTA FIELDS

Some Amazing Oil Developments in Vicinity of Turner Fields.

PROMISING SHOWINGS.

OTTAWA, May 6.—One of the most important fields in the vicinity of Turner Valley will see considerable development this summer with the resumption of drilling operations at the Black Diamond well by Weymarn Oils Limited, and the spudding in of a new well by Outwest Petroleums Limited. One mile west of Outwest location Angus will drill in Waite Valley.

Oil men are very anxious to see the plans of these companies carried out, for the field has long been a favorite. The structure lies west of the southern part of Turner valley and is sort of annex to it.

The Outwest site is southwest quarter 35, 19-3-W5, and the new Black Diamond well is in 1-3-20-3-W5 and at a depth of 1,385 feet.

Drilled in 1914.

Two previous attempts have been made to get production from this field—once by the United and again by the New Black Diamond company. The United got the top of the limestone at 3,100 feet in its well drilled in 1914. Its abandonment, no doubt, delayed further development of this field for 15 years and the story of why the directors decided to pull out to drill in the Coutts area, is one of the most amazing incidents in the history of Alberta's pioneer oil industry. Then came the war and the United was somewhat in eclipse until the Spring of 1926 when it got a fresh start during the second boom.

In the intervening period oil history was being made in Alberta. Sinclair and Craig left the province, the former returning to New York and the latter to serve his country in the world war. Royalite Oil Company, Limited, Imperial subsidiary, tried out the Sinclair theory of production in the limestone down nearly 310 feet in the limestone, and then gave orders to cease drilling. Clarence Snyder, fired with enthusiasm for the well mostly as the result of previous indications of production at higher levels, followed the example of Lord Nelson when he put the telescope to his blind eye at the Battle of Copenhagen, and disregarded the order. He started another shift and brought in Royalite No. 4 thus proving the Sinclair theory and paving the way for the establishment of the Alberta oil industry on an extensive scale.

Oil pioneers are wondering what would have been the result at the United if the expert advice had been heeded. Outwest will likely be able to tell them.

Promising Showings

The New Black Diamond company drilled to a depth of 1,380 feet on a 40-acre lease, legal subdivision 1, section 3, township 20, range 3, west of the 5th meridian, in 1926 and the shutdown on account of lack of finances after promising gas showings had been struck.

The fact that the structure is divided up among small leaseholders from whom the New Black Diamond got no co-operation has been a handicap to the field. However, the Outwest group have enough acreage to make it worth while to drill there even if they will prove up their neighbors' acreage Royalite and Dalhousie have leases on the structure, which is taken as an indication that the Imperial interests have confidence in the possibilities of the area.

The minimum depth to the limestone in Turner valley is 3,220 feet, the distance which Royalite 14 went to that formation, as compared with 3,100 feet in the case of the old United well in the New Black Diamond area.

MINOR CHANGES TORONTO CLUB

Trading Confined To More Expensive Issues in Lax Session.

OIL SECTION QUIET.

TORONTO, May 6. (C.P.)—Irregularity in a mild form marked an uninteresting session of the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day when only the market leaders displayed any activity. Price changes, however, were only minor and were confined largely to the more expensive issues. The Oils were unusually quiet, with a few shares of Imperial changing hands at 117, a gain of 2 points, while the rest of the section was somewhat stronger.

Pressed Metals drew a certain amount of interest when it advanced a further 1 3-8 points to 36 7-8, while Brazilian at 3-4 and Nickel at 54, were both fractionally higher.

City Dairy came out 2 points lower at 72, while Ford Motor and Walkers were steady at 64 1-2 and 74 1-2 respectively.

Lindsay Auxiliary Is Unable To Life Engine Out of Mud.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, May 6. — The Lindsay auxiliary and crew, which labored all day Friday and a portion of Saturday to lift the C.N.R. engine out of the mud on the Port Perry line near Manchester, had to cease work until another derrick is secured. The engine which left the track on Friday morning as the result of a washout, is sunk in deep blue clay, and the crew of the auxiliary experienced great difficulty in their work, some of the men working to their middle in the mud.

Fireman Embury, in jumping from the engine was nearly buried in the mud. Engineer Gassien is suffering from several fractured ribs and a cut in the head.

When Summer Comes Can Fall be Far Behind?

THE outlay of money for next Winter's fuel may not seem a befitting thought to bring up at this time of the year.

Yet nothing is surer than the regular succession of the seasons. Nothing is more certain than that cold weather will follow warm.

The first heater days come in September. Buying your coal now means, at the most, buying it but a few months before you actually need its heat.

And this season offers you compensations in the way of reduced prices on Old Company's Lehigh Anthracite that do not obtain in the Fall.

This high-grade hard coal has literally been tried by fire through more than a hundred Winters. It has proved its right to be known as America's standard home-heating fuel.

Modern science has brought a notable perfection of inspection and preparation methods, so that Old Company's Lehigh Anthracite—The Best Since 1820—is even better in 1929 than ever before.

Tune in on the OLD COMPANY'S SINGERS with SIGMUND SPAETH Sunday Evening at 7 p.m. Eastern Day. light Time. at 6 p.m. Eastern Stan. Time. WEAF and Associated Stations.

CHURCH PASTOR RECEIVES HONOR

Presentation Made Rev. J. E. and Mrs. Todd at Mission Circle Meeting.

GOOD PROGRAM.

The April monthly meeting of the Twilight Mission Circle of George Street United Church was held on Thursday evening. A short religious and business session was held, with Miss Helen Burns in the chair. The meeting opened by singing a hymn followed by prayer by Mrs. W. McMillan and the 23rd Psalm repeated in unison.

The secretary, Miss Aileen Clark read a very comprehensive report of last month's meeting and the treasurer, Miss Vera Squire, gave an encouraging report of the finances. After a short business discussion Misses Pearl Carruthers and Lillian Stonhan delighted the audience with a beautiful vocal duet, accompanied by Miss Helen Burns.

The meeting was then changed to a social nature, when games and contests were enjoyed. When merriment was at its height a large circle was formed around Rev. J. E. and Mrs. Todd and the following address was read by Miss Vera Squire:

To Mr. and Mrs. Todd:— It is with regret we realize that the ties that bound you to George Street United Church are about to be severed by your removal to Calgary, so we wished to have you spend one more evening of your valuable time with our Mission Circle. Our Circle is not old, being organized during your pastorate and we feel that your prayers, together with the eloquent addresses each Sunday, Mr. Todd have inspired us all to a higher spiritual life.

You both came among us with noble aims and you have endeared yourselves to the hearts of all and at the same time you have gained a very warm place in our Friendship Circles. Thus it is you are remembered and we pray you may be blessed in every good effort in the direction of true service as the Master has taught:

You will meet and touch others, as as day succeedeth day,
Whom you will influence, silently, surely,
Along life's rugged way;
You cannot tell what the impress you may leave on another's heart,
But we pray that all may see plainly, clearly,
You have done the Master's part.

We ask you to accept this little gift as a slight token of our regard for you.

Signed on behalf of the Twilight Mission Circle.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

Men architects are employed to design our houses and apartments, and men are employed to build them. Men design and make the furniture and most of the ornaments. But the selection and arrangement of furniture, decations and ornament are left to the women almost entirely.

Even in most business offices when it is decided to furnish a reception room or private office other than in the thoroughly austere and convention manner a woman is asked to take charge. To choose a rug or a lamp or a reception room table is something that most men consider a difficult and trying task.

It is often said that women do not furnish their houses to please the men of the family and that men would usually choose and arrange furniture in quite a different way than that usually followed by women. And yet most men, I think, are amazingly well pleased with the rooms their wives furnish. At least most men are much better content to live in rooms their wives or mothers arrange than most women would be to live in rooms furnished by their husbands and fathers.

A generation ago most men who could not afford it and whose houses were large enough had a special room of their own—a room where their taste was expressed, and their pet possessions displayed. Sometimes these rooms were called "dens"—sometimes "lounges" or "studies," even though no studying was ever done within their four walls. And quite often it was to such a room that the host and his men guests retired after dinner to smoke and feel thoroughly at home.

The fact that men soldom think about wanting a retreat of that sort must show that the general living rooms of houses nowadays are much more comfortable and agreeable to them.

CLASSES HOLD BIG REHEARSAL

Performers at Coming 'Y' Pageant Rehearse in Grand Opera House.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

Saturday morning saw the big rehearsal of the Y.W.C.A. Gymnasium classes in preparation for the coming Gymnasium Pageant.

Three hundred junior members gathered at the Y at 9.30 o'clock and were marched to the Opera House in charge of the leaders, many cars being held up at the crossings to let the children pass safely.

At the Opera House the children seemed to almost fill the house and between the numbers had the seats of honor and were able to see all the pretty marches, drills and dances.

Again at five-thirty o'clock a second rehearsal for all senior pupils was held and the pretty colored lights adjusted so that the best results could be attained.

Miss Littlefield, the phyiscal director congratulated the girls and told them it was going to be the prettiest pageant yet, and haped the Opera House will be filled to welcome their pageant Friday and Saturday nights. The girls were reminded the special ticket selling campaign with prizes for all who sell 20 or more tickets.

Easter is the first Sunday after the first full moon following the 21st of March.

FAMOUS CRIMINAL INVESTIGATOR GOES FROM SCOTLAND YARD

Old Secret of Great War Comes To Light With Dismissal of Officer.

SPOKE EIGHT LANGUAGES.

Inspector Genhoven Landed Behind German Lines and Got Valuable Information.

LONDON, May 6 (Canadian Press Cable). — An old secret of the war has come out with the dismissal from Scotland Yard of Detective Inspector Ginhoven and Sergeant Jones, for breach of confidence, communicating information to unauthorized persons, and neglect of duty, announced on Friday. The officers were attached to the special political branch, but the specific case in which they were involved was not divulged. The Yard, however, stated to-day there was no connection between the dismissals and allegations of sale of British naval secrets to the Russian Government.

Detective Ginhoven is one of the most remarkable personalities who ever served the famous Criminal Investigation Department of Scotland Yard. He was a constable 23 years ago when through his extraordinary linguistic attainments — he spoke eight European and Asiatic languages —he was transferred to the special intelligence branch dealing with confidential reports from agents abroad.

His value was considerably enhanced when war broke out in 1914, and he was frequently dropped from airplanes behind the German lines. He wandered on these occasions through Germany, obtaining entry to Krupps' great armament factory disguised as a German laborer, and brought back valuable information to England.

As a sequel to one of these visits Bulgarian and Allied airmen bombed and wiped out two German Zeppelins.

After the war Detective Ginhoven turned his attentions, with considerable success, to dealing with Soviet agents.

FINAL MEETING OF PRESBYTERY

Will Hold Young People's Rally At Woodville On July 9.

LINDSAY GATHERING.

LINDSAY, May 6 (Special to The Examiner).—The Lindsay Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church, which held its sessions in Lindsay this week, concluded its labors Friday. It was decided to hold a young people's rally at Woodville on July 9. Rev. J. C. Robertson, of Uxbridge, presented the report of the Sunday School and Young People's societies, showing a considerable increase in the numbers enrolled.

The question of travelling expenses for members of Presbytery was introduced by Sonya congregation and the Presbytery went on record as favoring a levy on all congregations in addition to what is already levied. A finance committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. G. B. Rennie, of Woodville; W. C. Moore, of Bobcaygeon, and Rev. Mr. Hare of Beaverton.

The Presbytery followed the lead of Montreal Presbytery in connection with the revision of rules and forms of procedure, known as the Blue Book. This was to the effect that a revision of the present book be sought, with as few changes as possible.

Rev. Dr. F. A. Scott Pearson of West Kilbride, Scotland, was nominated by the Presbytery for the chair of Church History Homilectics in the Presbyetrian College at Montreal. For the Moderator of the General Assembly, the Presbytery unanimously nominated Rev. Robert Johnston, of Knox Church, Ottawa. The General Assembly will meet this year at Ottawa.

TORONTO, Ont., May 6 (Canadian Press). — Kenneth Veal, 7, Toronto, was killed on Saturday when he was buried in a cave-in of sand in an excavation made for the installation of a gasoline tank of a new service station being erected on Danforth Avenue.

The little boy had been missing since four o'clock in the afternoon, and it was not until midnight that his lifeless body was found beneath four feet of sand in the excavation.

According to police the lad had been dead for over four hours when found. Apparently the boy had been playing in the bottom of the pit when the cave-in occurred. What caused the collapse is not known. An inquest will be held.

MOTORCYCLIST HITS MOVING STREET CAR

Charles Scott Runs Head-on Into Trolley Car On Hamilton Highway.

TORONTO, Ont., May 6 (Canadian Press). — Crashing into a street car at Long Branch, near here, yesterday, Charles K. Scott, 30, Toronto, was killed when the impact threw him off the motorcycle he was driving. Scott sustained a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Scott was on his way to Hamilton with about twenty members of the Toronto Motorcycle Club. Several of the drivers were proceeding along the car tracks. When the car was seen approaching the motorcyclists swerved off the tracks and passed the car on either side.

Scott, for some reason, did not do this. He kept on the tracks and crashed head-on into the street car. He was rushed to hospital, but died en route. An inquest will be held.

FARMERS UNABLE TO CONTINUE WORK

Spring Plowing Greatly Delayed Owing To Backward Condition of Weather.

LINDSAY, May 6 (Special to The Examiner). — Farmers in Victoria County, and especially those living on the low lands, are face to face with a serious situation as a result of the backward weather. Owing to the great moisture it is impossible to get on the land, so that Spring work has been greatly delayed. The weather has been very injurious to the seed at present in the ground, which has started to sprout, and which threatens to be a total loss. Many of the farmers in this section have had several bad seasons, and the outlook this

MUCH BUSINESS IS DISCUSSED AT LEGION MEETING

Members Decide To Enter Softball Team in Campbellford Town League.

PLAN GALA WEEK.

Branch Also Accepts Offer of Sole Rights of Sale of Historical Booklet.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 4.— (Examiner Staff Correspondence). —In spite of the deluge of rain, there was an interesting meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Legion in their club rooms last night. Until eleven o'clock President Free was kept busy trying to have the business transacted with as much despatch as possible. Softball was the first item up for the discussion, and the Legion decided to enter a team in the town association. The branch will also accept the offer of the sole rights of sale of the Historical Booklet of the town during Old Home Week. They also contemplate advertising in it. Gala Week and the Legion Euchre and Dance are progressing favorably, it was reported. N. Alec MacCall reported on his efforts in the line of pensions. His remarks in connection with a case now in hand, were very interesting to the members. There was a long list of correspondence and two accounts. Comrade Wilkinson had a grievance to air and did it eloquently. Comrade Smith wanted some information regarding his case with the employment committee and the Trent Canal officials or the Federal Department.

The Comrades of the branch are agreed that it seldom rains that it does not pour. A. H. McKeel, honorary member, has donated several useful articles to the post, and now another honorary member is to be added. His Worship Mayor Davidson. The motion was passed without a dissenting vote.

Hithreto, the mantel piece has been bare of any decoration save a war picture. Now there respose there, three souvenirs of former days when things were not as peaceful as they are now. Resting across the mantle is an Erfurt machine gun. Reclining at an angle from near its muzzle is a Mauser rifle. From the butt end there reclines a British Le Enfield of the short type and equipped for the use of small arms ammunition. Where the muzzles of the rifles meet there hangs a long belt for the machine gun. Just how much these souvenirs are appreciated was signified by the interest taken in them as soon as the meeting was officially closed, and the "boys" had a chance to fondle them as they exchanged reminiscenses of the days when such articles were anything but souvenirs. The machine gun and rifles are the gift of Mrs. Macoun to the Campbellford Branch of the Legion. They are donated in memory of her late husband, Major Macoun, M.D., who went overseas from Campbellford and was known as one of the distinguished M.O.'s overseas. The branch is truly grateful for the generous gift.

The Business

Softball was the first of the unfinished business. The decision to be made was whether or not the branch would enter a team. It was much discussed and finally the motion was passed, appointing President Free to represent the Legion and enter its name in the league. He will work in connection with the sports committee, but will, it is understood, have practically a free hand in so far as players are concerned.

The meeting was advised that it was possible for the branch to be granted the sole selling rights of the booklet, A Historical Sketch of Campbellford, during Old Home Week. The exact details are not definitely set down as yet ,but the Legion will take the offer on a percentage basis. The books are now being compiled, it was stated, and it is expected that they will sell for fifty cents each.

Gala Week and the Euchre and Dance were the next business to deal with. The sale of tickets did not seem to be coming up to last year's mark and a special drive is to be launched the first of the week.

Pensions.

There was some straight talk when a certain case was brought up for discussion. Some of the comrades thought that an invalid member had been slighted and did not hesitate to say so. N. Alex McCall, Pension Committee, was given the floor and gave out some information that was more than a little surprising. It was not an easy matter to secure a pension or other assistance, he explained. Referring to the case under discussion, he told of having received an anonymous letter which was the first he had known of it. The letter was not threatening, but more in the line of a cutting reminder that the Legion should look after its members. He did not know the man referred to in it, he claimed, and had some trouble finding out who it was. He had at once set to work on the case and the fruits of his initial efforts had not been very satisfactory. Dr. Brintnell had examined the man and thought he should have attention, and believed his condition was due to his war services. Comrade McCall said he had the man's war history from him and was of the opinion that his case was one of war service. Affidavits from his employers and some of his fellow workmen showed that he had been a steady and reliable worker before going overseas. Since returning he had not been in good health and unable to work most of the time. The employers claimed that he was always willing to work, but had had to be taken home on one or two occasions. All the evidence had been placed before the Board of Pensions Commissioners and the case would go on as soon as possible. In the meantime, the man had been refused admittance to Christie Street Hospital, where the local medical officer thinks he should be. The only possibility was that he might be taken is as a "compassionate"case; but even that was a remote chance.

According to Comrade MacCall, Deputy-Reeve Stone, the local representative of the Mothers' Allowance Board, is in sympathy with the case and has placed the matter before the Board at Cobourg. He believes that something will be done from that quarter. In the meantime, the Legion is striving by every means known to its members, to secure a pension which they believe their comrade deserves and is entitled to. The information, which Comrade MacCall furnished, shed considerable light on the case and satisfied the members present that there was plenty of action being taken.

Correspondence was an item of some size, although it was quickly dealt with. Among the letters was an invitation from the Peterborough branch to attend and support their carnival, May 15, 16, 17. The invitation took the form of a boomerang. It was accepted and another returned to the Peterborough branch to come down here and get in on the euchre, dance and draw and also enjoy themselves during Gala Week, May 11 to May 18. It is understood that several carloads from the local branch are arranging a fraternal trip to the Peterborough celebration.

There was a reply from the Provincial commande regarding the appointment of Dr. Johnston as local representative of the D.C.S.R. The letter suggested that since there were only a few pension cases from this district, that there might not need be an appointment made, and asked the opinion of the branch. A unanimous motion in favor of the appointment being made was passed. Two accounts recommended by the executive were ordered paid.

Honorary Member.

Last night the local branch voted unanimously to accept Mayor Davidson as one of their number. The Mayor has always been a friend of the soldiers and for many years has been a member of the local militia. As a member of the regimental band, he was a guest of the Legion at a social evening recently and was greatly impressed with the hospitality shown. His name was proposed at the meeting last night and accepted without a dissenting voice.

Grievances Aired.

J. R. Wilkinson had a lengthy grievance to bring before the branch regarding certain dealings he had had with the corporation. He thought it was time that something was done. The comrades discussed the matter for sometime and decided that the Legion could not, for the time being at least, take any definite action along the lines suggested. The matter will be further discussed.

Harry Smith wanted to know what the Employment committee had done regarding his case of employment on the Trent Canal. J. S. Dickson, the only member of the committee present, stated his stand on the matter. He said he would not take it upon himself to write to the Department in Ottawa unless he had a signed statement of the case setting forth the grievance and also the remedy desired. In that case, he stated that he was willing to act as a member of the commitee of the Legion, but not until then. Comrade Smith signified that he would take his own line of action on the matter.

MEMORIAL LEAGUE WILL RAISE FUND

Society Purposes to Pay Off Debt of Marmora Library Board.

MARMORA, May 4 (Examiner Correspondence). — Though the entire funds for the town clock have been raised by the Women's Memorial League, that live organization has decided to defer its swan song till some remote period. The league was able to donate one hundred dollars to the Library Board towards defraying the cost of new furnishings.

Recently the ladies met to decide whether the organization should disband, but discussion only served to carry on, and work for the welfare of the village in other ways. One aim the ladies set was the complete extinction of the library debt. Afternoon teas are to be held at the Library at intervals, the first of these to be next Saturday afternoon.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, May 4. — The service on Sunday evening in the United Church was conducted by the ladies of the Woman's Missionary Society. The choir consisted of members of the Society who gave excellent singing and music under the management of the organist, Mrs. Lily Turner.

Mrs. C. W. Varcoe sang the beautiful solo, "'Tis Love."

The missionary speaker for the evening was Mrs. E. C. Barnett, of Toronto, whose talk on missions and missionary work was most interesting and educational. The gist of her words, as Lowell, in the vision says: "Not what we give, but what we share,
For the gift without the giver is bare;
Who gives himself with his gifts feeds three,
Himself, his hungry neighbor, and me."

The proceeds of the day were in aid of the society.

Rev. R. M. Brown will be in charge of the service next Sunday morning, when he continues his series of sermons. His subject will be: "Give us this day our daily bread."

Service in the Morning.

The service in St. James' Anglican church will be held on Sunday morning at nine o'clock, instead of the afternoon service.

WEDDING SHOWER.

Miss Margaret Brennan Honored By Friends at Havelock Gathering.

HAVELOCK, May 6 (Examiner Correspondence)—On Thursday evening of last week, Mrs. Albert Armstrong gave a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Margaret Brennan, at the Armstrong Hotel, which was tastefully decorated in rose and white streamers. The guests numbered about seventy-five.

Dancing and card playing were enjoyed until 11.30.

To the strains of very appropriate music, played by Miss Margaret Jones, Charles Armstrong, grandfather of the bride-to-be, assisted by little Miss Edith Drain and Aubert Lamey, brought in a wheel barrow, beautifully decorated with rose and white streamers, full of many costly gifts, among them a walnut chest given by her brother, Douglas Brennan.

Miss Brennan responded, thanking her many friends for their kindness. The hostess then served a dainty lunch, which was followed by dancing.

OLD SONGS

(Contributed by "Erin's Youth")

THE BOLD FENIAN MEN

See how comes over the red-blossomed heather,
Their green banners kissing the pure mountain air,
Head erect, eyes to front, stepping proudly together;
Sure freedom sits thron'd on each proud spirit there.
Down the hills twining,
Their blessed steel shining,
Like rivers of beauy they flow from each glen,
From mountain and valley
'Tis Liberty's rally—
Out and make way for the bold Fenian men.

II.

Our prayers and our tears have been scoffed and derided,
They've shut out God's sunlight from spirit and mind:
Our foes were united, and we were divided,
We met and they scattered us all to the wind.
But once more returning,
Within our veins burning,
The fires that illumined dark Aherlow glen,
We raise the old cry anew,
Slogan of Con and Hugh—
Out and make way for the bold Fenian men.

III.

We've men from the Nore, from the Suir and the Shannon,
Let the tyrants come forth, we'll bring force against force—
Our pen is the sword and our voice is the cannon,
Rifle for rifle, and horse against horse.
We've made the false Saxon yield
Many a red battle field;
God on our side we will triumph again;
Pay them back woe for woe,
Give them back blow for blow—
Out and make way for the bold Fenian men.

IV.

Side by side for the cause have our forefathers battled,
When our hills never echo'd the tread of a slave,
On many green hills where the leaden hail rattled,
Through the red gap of glory they marched to their grave.
And those who inherit
Their name and their spirit,
Will march 'neath the banners of liberty then,
All who love Saxon law,
Native or Sassanach,
Must out and make way for the bold Fenian men.

"RED WING."

(Contributed by J.H.R.)

"There once lived an Indian maid,
A shy little prairie maid,
Who sang all day a love song gay
As on the plain she wyled away the day.
She loved a warrior bold,
This shy little maid of old,
But brave and gay he rode one day
To battle far away.

Chorus.

Now the moon shines to-night on pretty red wing,
The breezes sighing, the night bird crying,
While far beneath the stars her brave is sleeping,
While red wing's weeping her heart away.
She watched for him day and night,
She kept all the camp fires bright,
And under the sky each night she would lie
And dream about his coming by and by.
But when all the braves returned,
The heart of red wing yearned,
For far away her warrior gay
Fell bravely in the fray."

THE SUNSHINE OF YOUR SMILE

Dear face that holds so sweet a smile for me,
Were you not mine, how dark the world would be.
I know no place that holds such sweet solace,
Than in the sunshine of your dear, dear face.

Chorus.

Give me your smile, the love-light in your eyes,
Life holds for me no fairer paradise.
Give me the right to love you all the while,
My world forever, the sunshine of your smile.
Shadows may fall upon the land and sea,
Sunshine from all the world may hidden be,
But I shall see no cloud across the sun,
Your smile shall light my life till life is done.

The body of the plant Welwitschia, which grows in Southwest Africa, resembles an enormous radish. It is sometimes 12 to 15 feet in diameter. Two long leaves trail from the body on to the ground. They endure for the life of the plant, which is sometimes for 100 years.

Fashion's Forecast

SWAGGER LINES

THE STYLE No. 2777 in striped rajah is decidedly youthful and girlish for street, sports or classroom, with Peter Pan collar of linen and silk scarf tie. The two-piece skirt is attached to a shaped hipband of contrasting shade, which is also used for border on skirt, which has perforations, for use of border. Printed silk crepe in modernistic patterns with plain silk crepe trimming is smart. Wool jersey in wood-violet shade with purple, with collar of wood-violet faille silk crepe is ultra-chic. Sheer tweed in greyish blue, navy blue flat silk crepe and checked silk crepe in red and black gingham pattern are fashionable combinations.

THE PATTERN is offered at cost price 15 cents as a service to readers who sew, and can be had in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. A Picture Chart included will prove of great interest, for it shows how utterly simple it is to make this popular sports dress.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion,—I regret not answering neighbor 'Marleigh's' request sooner, but I have been very, very busy. Not knowing exactly how badly, 'Marleigh,' your oak floor is discolored now, I am sorry I cannot advise you. The floor stain recipe I sent was for untreated floors. Vandyke brown is a powder, and makes a dark oak stain, or by adding more powder, it makes a mahogany stain. Forgot to say it is mixed with oil.

The first thing you will have to do with your oak floor is remove the oil from it (you said you have oiled it). Try washing it well with benzine. This should remove the oil and also make it a lighter shade. Now sandpaper it. The finish for oak depends a great deal on what shade one desires. To finish the above, first fill with 'wood filler.' Stain to desired shade. If such be done and not as dark as required, then 'overstain' when dry. Shellac, two coats, thin white shellac, when dry. Two coats of Utilac varnish; it is waterproof and will not scratch white or mar, therefore it will make a wonderful finish for a kitchen floor.

I would like you, 'Marleigh,' to let me know which finish you used and how your floor looks when finished. I hope you have success.

With the coming of summer, our thoughts instinctively turn towards the garden and then to the garden furniture.

This having been put away all the winter, does not look its best, but a pot of paint, a few yards of bright cretonne, and a little patience will soon dismiss the gloom.

The first thing to do is to clean the chairs very thoroughly, scrub the canvas on the deck chairs, and leave them folded up while the canvas dries. This keeps the canvas taut, and will prevent it from shrinking.

A dull lacquer red looks well in the garden; blue, orange and green are more ordinary. Buy a good paint, and paint the furniture carefully.

Before painting the deck chairs, remove the canvas, and cover it with some bright cretonne, and replace on the frames. The wicker chairs should have seat pads and cushions covered with cretonne; the pads should be made with tapes to tie on to the chairs. An old rug is largely improved by covering it on one side with a sheet of mackintosh, and the other side with some plain material. Cover several cushions with cretonne, to throw on to the rug.

The table is the next consideration. Doubtless you will dine out-of-doors sometimes. In that case you will want a fairly large and firm table. I should advise using an old kitchen table. Paint the table, and get a piece of glass cut that will fit over the top. Then make a tablecloth in cretonne exactly the same size as the table, and place under the glass. You now have a table on which hot lunch can be served, with no fear of hurting the paint.

I will be pleased to hear that 'Marleigh' has a lovely floor. You are a darling, 'Marion,' if you send this at once to 'Marleigh.'

Love to all the neighbors, keeping a lot for yourself,

"Lucinda."

Thank you for the additional advice to "Marleigh," and for your kind thoughts, "Lucinda."

I have heard recently that for hardwood floors it is an excellent plan to scrape paraffin wax over them and dance on them. The dancing works all the dirt into the wax and leaves the floor wonderfully white. Some exercise, too! Better throw a party the day you clean your floors!

Your ideas about summer furniture are good—and so inexpensive, that most of us can use some of them.

* * *

"Dear Marion,—I have been intending to write to you for some time, but just didn't seem to get at it, and I have been so busy.

I don't know where the neighbors have gone to unless they have left early for their summer vacation.

Marion, would you please send me the helps I have marked. Will try not to be so long in writing again. Cheerio,

"Bluejay."

Thank you for you letter, "Bluejay." I hope the neighbors come back soon—this is no weather for holidaying!

"Dear Marion,—I have been going to write to you for some time, but somehow I did not get the time.

Both my babies have been sick, one with a cold and the other with a burnt hand, but are quite well again. I am enclosing coupon for pattern, thanking you now. I am sending in recipe. With the best of luck,

"Min."

Glad to hear from you again, "Min," and to know the babies are better. Thank you for the recipe for string beans.

"Dear Marion,—Many of us are emerging from the dirt and dust of hidden germs, that have lately been so rudely torn from their secret places. I am glad that I can at last write 'finis' after my annual cleaning. Much time and fatigue can be saved by using the right kind of 'tools' for all cleaning jobs. I also think the wise housewife will provide herself with a pair of rubber gloves. The hands should have as much care as the complexion, and rubber gloves will keep them clean.

Well, there has been lots written of mothers, daughters and farm wives in your late letters. While I adore my own mother, and respect all mothers, I still blame mothers for the following reasons. There are schools for developing muscles, but not enough institutions for developing will power and self-control. Often the fault lies with the early training; many good mothers feel that their duty begins and ends with cooking a good dinner, and forget that children should be taught to control their tempers and learn the meaning of obedience. It saves trouble to let the child have its own way, and so the bad seed is sown. For twenty years the parent watches the child grow, and takes no trouble to correct her mental habits, and yet expect to find a model daughter! Can you wonder why girls stay out so late, and ignore their mothers? When the mothers take more trouble with the training, then I believe the children will show it in their behaviour. 'Do we expect our garden to come to perfection without weeding? Why expect human nature to do so?'—Yours,

"Pom Pom."

Yours is a very interesting and instructive letter, "Pom Pom," and I'm very pleased to see your name at the end of a letter again. Don't stay away so long next time!

"Dear Marion,—Would you be so kind as to order for me the pattern I have chosen, also a 'Fashion Book.' I have enclosed the money for both. I would like to say that I enjoy reading your page, and I especially like the 'Old Song' column, and the neighbors' letters. Your Whatnots are very helpful and interesting.

I would like to join your page, but I am very busy at present. I may find time later on to contribute something.

I close, wishing your success.

Yours truly,

"M. H."

We will be delighted to have you as a neighbor, "M. H." I'm glad you like our pages.

"Dear Marion,—Once more I am coming with a coupon almost full of X's for helps. Thank you so much for these. The others I received were splendid.

Isn't this old world a good place to be when the sun shines and things begin to grow. There is a newness about everything.

We are thinking about our holidays already, and are going to spend them, if all's well, in a big house tent again this year, where we had a glorious two months last year, just twelve miles from Peterborough, on the west shore of Lake Katchewanooka—a real beauty spot. So many folks go many more miles to find an ideal place, and there are plenty so near—good bathing, excellent fishing and natural beauty. There are only a few who appreciate the beauties of our own waters.

I wager the lakes and rivers will appeal greatly to the folks who come back for Old Home Week.

Don't you think it would be fine if each township or a village in each would co-operate with our city and have a big community picnic during the week. It would help the ones of each locality to see their own returned 'homers' and relieve the crowds that are sure to be in the city where we won't be able to see half the friends we wish.

My hint is to keep the oiled dust cloth in a sealer (covered). When it is needed it is easily found—no unsightly spot where it hangs, and no oil wasted. When it needs more oil, put some in the jar, and the cloth absorbs it before it is needed again. Best wishes,

"Peter."

Your ideas are splendid, "Peter." Thank you very much.

It certainly would be nice if the townships fell in with your plan—the returning old boys and girls would appreciate the picnics.

The idea about keeping the oily cloth in a sealer is splendid, too—and, another point, might prevent fire.

* * *

"Dear Marion, — Am enclosing coupon for the help—the little girl's sleeveless frock. Will be very glad to have it. Am also enclosing a recipe for ice box or over-night cookies which some one might like to use.—Thanking you,

"No Name."

Thank you for the recipe, "No Name," which seems very attractive.

* * *

"Dear Marion,—I received the dahlia bulbs, and thanks ever so much. I am enclosing herewith some aster, cosmos and marigold seed.

I wonder if anyone has the old song that runs something like

'An old Indian sat in his little canoe,
He floated all over the water so blue.'

Would like very much to get it, as mother used to sing it when we were kiddies.

To remove or soften lime in the tea kettle, try boiling soft water in the kettle. I find it very good.

It's also very handy to have some browned flour on hand for gravies or dark cake. Just sprinkle half an inch of flour on the bake pan, set in a hot oven for ten or fifteen minutes, or until nicely browned, then roll and sift. Keep in a baking powder can or a gem, and it will come in handy some day.

Well, I must get away as housecleaning time is sure busy and I don't think I can add any new ideas to those already offered, only that it is nice to have lots of cookies and cake, pies, or whatever the family are fond of, so you won't have to be worrying about cooking along with the painting.

Best wishes to you and the neighbors,

"Harvey."

These are splendid hints, "Harvey." I'm glad you plan ahead so as to have cooking out of the way as far as possible during housecleaning time. Send some more ideas soon.

That Body of Yours

(By Jas. W. Barton, M.D.)

.. MEDICAL STUDENTS AND COOKING

While it has always been women's work to cook food for the household, it must be admitted that when men get right down to it they make excellent cooks also.

But that any group of men should undertake a course in cooking as part of their regular work may come as a surprise to you. And that this group of men should be professional men, doctors, many still further surprise you.

And yet a news item some months ago announced that the medical students of John S. Hopkins University will be given a course in cooking. Now whilst Hopkins is not the oldest medical college in the United States, it ranks with the very highest, and that it thinks it necessary for a medical students to know how to cook, is an indication of how very important is food and its preparation, for sick folks. The news item stated further "The importance of diet in the treatment of disease is generally recognized. Students should be taught not only what food to prescribe for their future patients but also how it should be prepared to make it digestible and tasty."

Now the cooking end is most important and these new methods whereby the juices in which food is cooked are retained, means that the patient gets the full value in calories of the food cooked, and also the vitamins.

And food is now prepared in a way that makes digestion easy. However the other point, its taste to the palate, how the patient wants or looks forward to eating, is just as important as the quality, cooking, and digestibility of the food.

You know how it is, even when you are well, but have remained indoors or been kept there by weather conditions, how you are not really keen for food, not hungry. If you are well and have been outdoors you come in and will eat anything that has been prepared.

You can readily understand then how an individual who is not well, lying in bed indoors, must have something to induce him to eat. So even good food, well cooked, but served in an uninviting way does not stir his appetite.

What is necessary?

These medical students will have to learn how to make the food "look nice" and the tray and dishes also, if they are to start the digestive juices running.

For you will remember that not only the saliva in the mouth but the gastric juices in the stomach start flowing at the "sight" of a meal that is attractive to the patient.

This may be the hard part for these medical students to learn.

1 teaspoon mustard.
1 cup cream (sweet or sour).
½ cup vinegar.

Heat vinegar and add other ingredients creamed together, then cook all together, stirring constantly. Some milk could be substituted, but a little cornstarch would need to be added.

She was left a cripple!

Now walks as well as anyone.

"I think it only right to let you know of the wonderful benefit my wife has received from your Kruschen Salts. She had rheumatic fever in 1911, and was left a cripple by it till 1913, when I was advised to try Kruschen. I thought it a waste of money at the time as I had tried almost everything. I got a bottle from our druggist. Within a month she was better, and can now walk as well as anyone. This is no bunkum, as all people in this place know. We are always telling people about it." E. A. L.

Original letter on file for inspection.

Kruschen is a perfect blend of those six natural salts which are vital to your bodily well being. The analysis is on the bottle. There are sodium and magnesium to clear away the waste matter that clogs your system and poisons your blood. To feed your tissues, there's the tonic potassium. The daily dose of Kruschen will keep you in constant good health. Buy a bottle to-day and start a new life to-morrow.

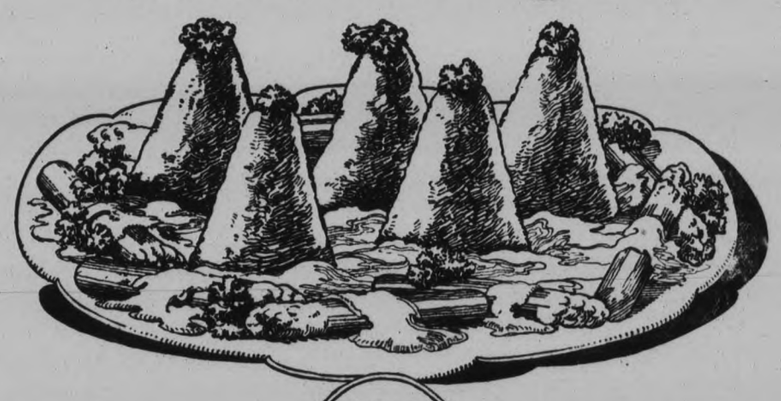
This Perfect Shortening Stands Unchallenged!



HERE are the reasons why you'll select Domestic Shortening—the perfect all-purpose shortening, developed and improved by years of research.

It is a purely vegetable product made by a special process. It contains no animal fat. Better than lard as a shortening. It equals the best butter — and costs less. Its high quality makes it possible to use ¼ less.

It is splendid for pastry—cakes are smoother, richer-textured. It never smokes at high temperatures necessary for good frying and you can use it over and over again without the slightest risk of taste or odour being carried from one food to another.

You get added smoothness and finer texture in cakes and pastry because Domestic is homogenized.

At butchers and grocers everywhere in 5 lb. and 3 lb. pails and 1 lb. cartons.

Veal and Chicken Croquettes

1½ cups Cold Diced Veal,
½ cup Cold Diced Chicken,
2 teaspoons Domestic Shortening,
1 teaspoon Chopped Onion,
1 teaspoon Chopped Green Pepper,
2 tablespoons Chopped Celery,
1 cup Chicken or Veal Broth,
1 teaspoon Salt,
1/8 teaspoon Pepper (White),
3 Eggs ¼ cup Flour.

Cook onion, celery and green pepper in Domestic Shortening for 5 minutes. Add the flour and mix thoroughly. Add the veal or chicken broth, stirring constantly. Allow to boil. Add seasoning and egg yolks beaten slightly and the diced chicken and veal. Mix thoroughly and allow to cool. Shape. Dip in crumbs then egg mixture, then crumbs again. Fry in deep hot Domestic Shortening (365°F) or when an inch cube of bread browns in 40 seconds. Drain and serve with white sauce.

SPRING SEWING! The time has apparently arrived.

* * * * * * *

These days of so much darkness and rain, one simply can't continue with the cleaning, so we take up our needle and thimbles and keep busy at something.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

Machine stitching in sewing may be used to make a number of attractive trimmings for children's dresses.

* * * * * * *

Yokes, cuffs, and pockets may be given an interesting diagonally checked design by running diagonal rows of stitching three-quarters of an inch apart in contrasting color.

* * * * * * *

I noticed a sweet little tub silk frock of white in a George Street window on Saturday, and it was stitched in red at the yoke, cuffs, and pockets. It made a complete change from the all-white costume.

* * * * * * *

A good plan is to cut the parts you wish to embellish in this way and then with a ruler trace lightly the diagonal lines. Then thread the machine with colored thread and stitch along the lines just indicated.

* * * * * * *

If you have a double thread machine, you may use a somewhat heavier thread—a fine embroidery cotton—in the shuttle, and stitch on the wrong side.

* * * * * * *

A little experimenting on a piece of scrap material of the same material of the same sort to be used will show how much—if any—the tension needs to be loosened to accommodate the coarser under thread.

* * * * * * *

With your machine and ordinary thread you may stitch the outlines of scroll, zig-zag or other ornamental border, and then with embroidery thread whip along the machine stitching, inserting the needle in every other machine stitch.

* * * * * * *

This given an even and very easy sort of outline embroidery. Then for the foundation machine stitching you may find it convenient to make the stitch longer and the tension a trifle looser than that used for usual stitching.

* * * * * * *

Rickrack braid makes an attractive and inexpensive trimming for wash dresses, and nowadays rickrack may be bought in a wide variety of attractive shades.

* * * * * * *

This braid may be applied so that it all shows or it may be stitched along the edge of cuffs, pockets, etc.—so that only half appears in the form of piping.

* * * * * * *

Aren't the cuffs cunning on the new spring frocks?

* * * * * * *

It certainly takes something of this sort to take the home-made effect off the sewing we do ourselves. It makes the frock more dressy, too.

* * * * * * *

But like every other summer, I suppose women will evade this question at least for the summer by wearing the sleeveless frocks for sport and country wear.

* * * * * * *

And then the little jackets that are the invariable accompaniment of the sleeveless frock cling to the straight lines. And long sleeves when they appear in dinner dresses are also quite plain though many of them of sheer material are made quite snug.

* * * * * * *

It is the long-sleeved day-time dresses, not of sport wear, that show the tendency to elaboration—and the afternoon dresses of the fussier sort which women consider more feminine than the simpler sport type.

* * * * * * *

And I notice, too, while shopping, that when the long sleeve appears the trimming is between the elbow and wrist.

* * * * * * *

Have you ever noticed what a difference there appears in the hand which appears below rather ornate cuffs—it is usually more interesting and large hands appear smaller because of this trimming!

* * * * * * *

One pretty idea is carried out in circuar ruffles from the elbows that split at the front so that when the arm is bent they appear to be pendant drapery from the elbow.

* * * * * * *

Another rather cute, but more simple trimming is a short slit in the sleeve at the top of the arm at the wrist and a little lace handkerchief or other fussy trimming drawn through.

* * * * * * *

And yet another has a small silk cord running from the wrist to elbow here it is tied and has little tassels on the ends. Others have frills from wrist to elbow, some pleats, and still others with little bows tied every inch or so from the elbow to wrist.

* * * * * * *

So don't forget when doing your spring sewing that just a little touch of this sort makes all the difference in the world to a frock—it takes away the home-made touch which we want to get away from.

* * * * * * *

It appears quite easy for some women to go shopping and notice all these things and then go home and work them all out. But it is impossible for others. So if you are not gifted with this art of making French touches appear on your frocks, it would be better for you to have someone do your sewing for you—for you know your family appreciate having you look just as nifty as possible!

* * * * * * *

Fringe, too, helps to transform any frock This week's help gives a sketch of a new fringed skirt drapery arrangement. The fringe is attached to a removable wide hip yoke, and may be worn or left off to suit the occasion.

* * * * * * *

The directions show, too, how easily it can be made at home, because the cost of the silk needed is very much less than the cost of the fringe.

The Hall Bedroom

By JESSIE D. FOX

If Camilla White had not fallen into his arms, Andy McDonald would never have given her another thought.

He was clumping up the last flight of dark, oilcloth covered stairs, when he heard a little gasp and then something soft and yielding was flung head first into his arms. He caught her as easily as he had caught the ball when he was fielder, and having set her on her feet gently asked in his big voice with the trace of huskiness in it, "Hurt any?"

She breathed quickly, and answered, "I—I guess you saved my life!" There was just the suggestion of a laugh in that voice that went straight to Andy's heart.

"You see I must have caught my toe in the oilcloth," she explained.

Andy thought she had the softest, sweetest voice he had heard for a long time.

"I think my dinner is forever lost!" Camilla said sadly, stooping to feel about the dark stairs.

They found at last the head of lettuce, the two rolls still in their bag and the lemon that was to help make up the dinner. In the process they said several things to each other, altogether trite and yet somehow most illuminating.

So it was not strange that the second time Andy ran into the occupant of the hall bedroom he lifted his hat and stopped to talk.

The third time they met Andy asked directly, "Would you take a walk with me this afternoon?"

The faintest tinge of color showed through Camilla's white skin and she said—for it was Saturday—"I'd love to!"

They walked along Fifth Avenue, stopping before the shop windows to peer in and feeling a part of all the thrill and stir of an afternoon on the avenue.

Camilla's eyes were shining and she was actually prettier each time Andy McDonald looked down at her.

The next Saturday it rained and Camilla hesitated and then knocked at the door on the second floor that bore the card: "Andrew McDonald."

"I thought you might have tea with me, it's such a cold, dismal kind of afternoon," Camilla offered shyly.

At the answering gleam of pleasure in his eyes Camilla hurried up the flight of stairs. She knew it would mean that she must lunch meagerly all the following week, but she bought crumpets—toasted them over her gas burner—and a tiny jar of marmalade, and a spray of narcissus to put in the bowl by the window.

She waited for him eagerly and with a queer fluttering expectancy, wondering if he would like her hall bedroom.

At his loud rap she opened her door and smiled up at him.

Andy laid down a box of candy as he said, "I brought it for the party," and looked about him curiously.

For it was the oddest hall bedroom he had ever seen. He had imagined a room with a bureau and an iron bed, and enough room just to sit on the one chair What he saw was a room with two windows and an alcove, a room that looked sunny in spite of the fact that it was raining, because the walls were yellow and charming sunny colored chintz hung at the windows and covered the cushions of the two brown tinted wicker chairs.

Gleaming brass candlesticks were on a table in the corner, a brilliant color print of blue mountain and an ice mountain brook hung over the gray painted table. A couch under a tumble of cushions—and a black luster bowl held the frail narcissus in the window

Camilla sitting down at the table pouring tea into clear yellow cups, he suddenly saw as another girl. A girl removed from his own hard struggles by all the beauty of this charming room. Why, she must earn more in a week than he did to have a place like this!

For a month Camilla scarcely saw the owner of the room on the second floor. When she did meet him by chance he hurried past her with an abrupt "Good evening!" that was worse than chilly.

But once when she climbed the two flights of stairs and saw that Andy's door was open and a strange girl was standing by the black marble mantelpiece her heart seemed to be a piece of lead. She could scarcely drag herself away.

"Oh, do you live on the floor above?" the strange girl asked eagerly. "I've seen your room and it is so pretty—"

Camilla answered wondering how she could go on talking when the bottom of her little world had dropped out.

"I bought the hangings on Sixth Avenue at a sale, and the candlesticks in Allen Street for $1.75; you can find some second-hand furniture and paint it yourself; oh yes, I'll show you how." She smiled wistfully and went on up the stairs.

But the blood thrummed in her ears madly when she heard clumping steps behind her. Camilla turned to see Andy McDonald coming toward her with a bewildered, dawning happiness in his eyes.

"I heard what you said," he began without any introduction. "I had to come back I thought I'd go away and try to forget you—for I knew I couldn't ask a girl with all you had to marry a poor fellow like me—you mean it, Camilla, you've fixed up that room out of nothing?"

He caught her hands and looked down into her eyes.

"Don't you know I love you?"

"But—" she whispered.

"I was ashamed to ask a rich girl to marry me," he said as he took her in his arms.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOURS

Suppose there were no tourist agencies to help us when we travel abroad. In a limited summer how many would take the best routes and see the most their purses could afford?

Suppose there were no advertisements in this newspaper and you had to go down town to shop for your family and be back to prepare lunch. Honestly, would you not sorely miss the information that now guides you to select the best goods and to know the shops where they can be obtained?

The woman who routes her shopping tour in advance from the advertisements in her daily newspapers saves many hours to be spent in pleasure which other women would waste and afterwards lament. Half your selections can be made leisurely in the comfort of your own chair; many of them can be ordered by telephone.

Newspapers are really an intimate part of your lives and they are the daily guide posts that point the road to right buying. A friend that saves you time and money is a friend that is worth cultivating.

I think so; don't you?

The Early Phoenicians

During the time of Pharaoh Necho of the 24th Dynasty, Phoenician traders circumnavigated Africa. It is recorded that in the event of the navigators being lost at sea, Necho promised to deliver to their dependents several cattle (pescus) as security

This is the first of a series of historical advertisements depicting the evidences through the ages of mankind's need of what we know today as Life Insurance

A beautifully illustrated booklet containing the entire series can be secured by writing to

EVEN before the Golden Age of Greece, the Phoenicians were known for their commerce. Their fleets of argosies, laden with amber, tin, spices and cloth, penetrated regions where no one else dared to go.

But pirates and foreign foes, storms and the dangers of uncharted seas made it a hazardous business. And so it became the custom for moneylenders to underwrite cargoes and frequently to insure the lives of merchants for the duration of each voyage.

Not only did the Phoenicians give us the alphabet—to them goes the credit for this, the first form of insurance.

To-day, through The Dominion Life Assurance Company, thousands of Canadians enjoy the benefits of modern insurance protection. Established forty years ago, this Company ranks as one of Canada's strong financial institutions. Conspicuous in its success is the outstanding reputation it has maintained for paying large profits to policyholders.

HOOT GIBSON PITCHES LEAFS TO 4-1 VICTORY

Toronto Entry Drops First Game of Double-header to Orioles 5-3.

BIRDS DROP CATS 8-3.

Baltimore Wins 6-1 Decision From Bisons in First Game of Series.

TORONTO, Ont., May 6 (Canadian Press).—Three guesses were taken by Steve O'Neill, director of the Leafs' destinies for 1929, before he spotted a pitcher capable of making the Orioles behave in the first game of Saturday's doubleheader, the first of the season. Then it was too late, the Maisel flock, by the time Joe Samuels, pitcher-boxer from Scranton, appeared on the hilltop, having clicked off a four-run lead. They finally won out, 5 to 3, though the Leafs gave them quite a scare in the seventh and eighth, and Andy Chambers had to be called into the affair in the seventh by Britz Maisel to Squelch a rally that threatened to break out all over the place.

Two-Gun Hoot Gibson pitched the Leafs to a 4 to 1 victory in the second and share of the bargain bill, and it was the former Detroiter's' first win since donning Toronto toggery. Six thousand brave fans saw the old-time rivals split the points.

ORIOLES DROP BISONS.

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 6 (Canadian Press).—The high-flying Baltimore Orioles looked their part here yesterday afternoon, when they bowled the Buffalo Bisons over in the first game of the series by a score of 6 to 1. Jack Hollingsworth, former Buffalo heaver, was invincible until the eighth, when the Bisons grouped three singles to escape a shut-out.

EDMONTON GRADS BEAT ALL-STARS

Successful Invasion Culminates in 31-13 Victory For Westerners.

TORONTO, Ont., May 6 (Canadian Press).—The Commercial Grads of Edmonton, ladies' basketball champions of the world, won their second game in as many nights on their visit when they defeated an all-star aggregation of Toronto players at the Auditorium Saturday night. The Grads breezed through to an easy 31-13 win, never being in danger despite a spurt by the All-Stars in the second half. So completely did the Western girls dominate the play, particularly in the first half, that they trotted off the floor at the interval with a 10-2 lead, the Stars' lone tally coming in the last minute before the breather. With a little more luck, the Toronto girls would not have been so far behind. The Grads kept the Easterners' scoring chances down, many of their shots being lifts from well out on the floor. The Stars fell down miserably in their free shots, scoring only once in ten chances throughout the whole game. On the other hand, the Grads fared little better, gathering in only three out of another possible ten.

Quakers Fall Before the Woollens

WOOLLENS WIN LEAGUE GAME FROM QUAKERS

Many New Players Turned Out—Wade Scored Against His Own Team.

FOUR TO ONE.

Quakers' Erratic Shooting—Winners Dominated Play in Closing Period.

Unpleasant weather on Saturday afternoon did not prevent the soccer fans from turning out to witness the Dominion Woollens defeat the Quaker Oats, in a league game, at King Edward Park, before a good attendance of spectators, by the score of four goals to one. Both teams were in a quandary in the early stages of the tussle, but the Woollens altered their style of play that awarded them the two points at the Quakers' expense.

Opening Slow.

Opening stages revealed that the players were unaccustomed to the specified positions and it was a good while before anything startling took place. Forcing work by the Woollens' forwards was nullified when they would get within shooting distance of the goal by the Quakers' full backs.

Colors Very Distinctive.

There was no question as to respective teams because the Woollens wore a green sweater and white pants; while the Quaker Oats relied upon their old favorite, blue and white stripe and white pants. After five minutes play a high ball from the foot of Read had the Quaker custodian guessing as it dropped over the bar. They continued to press but their shooting was very erratic, in fact the whole forward line had ample time to open the scoring when Gore put the ball across the goal mouth, but the defence cleared. Craig transferred the attack to the other end, where Williams made progress inside the full backs.

A Surprise Goal.

They tried to close in upon him but a parting shot from a Quaker player found the right full back lift his leg at an unfortunate moment to deflect the sphere away out of the reach of the Dominion Woollen's custodian. Exchanges continued even thereafter until the Woollens started to swing the ball from wing to wing, Whitely passing out to his wing men, who made raid after raid upon the Quaker's citadel. After repeated attacks in which Craig had a busy time, he had to concede defeat from the head of the Woollens' centre forward.

Headed the Equalizer

A triangle play between the forwards and the half backs brought success to them when Gore dribbled into the corner, then let Dundas rapp a hot drive for goal, but it was diverted into the far corner out of the reach of the Quaker goal keeper to gain the equalizer.

Encouraged by their desired effect of attack, they went right back again within the next five minutes to get another goal. Just seven minutes before the interval, Taylor of the Woollens broke up a dangerous attack and left Dundas in a favorable position on the left wing. Gore carried the sphere into the dangerous area where the inside left passed the ball to Montgomery who made no mistake with a rising shot that went under the bar. Half time: Woollens 2; Quakers 1.

Half Time.

When the game was resumed the Quakers were the more aggressive, and spoiled their chances by carrying the ball too far into the goal where the defence closed in on them repeatedly. The proceedings livened up a lot, a corner kick to each side bringing no better reward. Another flag kick created a scrimmage in front of goal where Craig made some daring saves in his new position as a custodian. The sphere was cleared time and again but always came back into the Quakers' territory, where scrimmage after scrimmage ensued. After many attempts to score by the forwards, Montgomery had another try but realized that he could not penetrate the mass of players gathered in the goal area.

Mitchell Put Woollens Ahead.

The inside man manoeuvred around to get a shot at goal but finally gave it up when he passed the ball back to his half back——Mitchell—who sent in a lightning drive that found the resting place in below the bar for the third goal. As time went on it was evident that the Quakers were outclassed in every attack, because they would fail to get the necessary finish when right in front of goal. On one occasion Williams beat the defence on individual play that should have terminated in a goal but he had nobody with him to do the needful. The Quakers had the pull in the exchanges that followed, and Dyer had a grand chance to score, but was too slow in trying to take it, although he had a splendid effort a few minutes later. A flag kick for the Quakers saw Cridland kick away and the ball ultimately went to the other end where attack after attack continued amidst great excitement. Finally the play was brought to a close when Dundas gave the goalkeeper no chance to clear from close in. A few minutes before that he spoiled an opening in front of goal, all of a sudden, he forgot himself when he punched the ball through the goal; perhaps he thought he was in a basketball game. Play continued for five minutes more without anything of interest taking place. Full time: Woollens, 4; Quakers 1.

Goal scorers: For Woollens, Whitely, Montgomery, Mitchell and Dundas. Quakers: Williams.

Referee: Jack Clark.

Quakers: J. Craig, goal; Cross and Bridworth, full backs; Honor, T. Craig and Armstrong, halves; Watkins, F. Dyer, Walker, Dickson and Williams, forwards.

"TAD" DORGAN, ARTIST AND SPORTSMAN, DIES IN NEW YORK AFTER GREAT CAREER

NEW YORK, May 6. — Thomas Aloysius Dorgan, widely known cartoonist, who signed his pictures "Tad," died at his home in Great Neck, L. I., last week. He had been seriously ill with a heart ailment for about nine years.

"Tad," as he was familiarly known in the sport world, was one of the best cartoonists engaged in newspaper work. He was the originator of more slang expressions than any man in America, and his clean, original humor made his feature widely read and discussed.

One of the greatest fistic experts in America he wrote many ring classics. His series of the 39 greatest fights, which ran last year in the Hearst papers were epics of their kind. Dorgan was a humorist, and boasted a great number of friends and had numerous contributors in all parts of the world.

Many Contributors.

People wrote him quips and wise sayings from all over and his most famous contributor was a man who signed himself "Canada Cal's Cheerful Chirps." For over a dozen years this anonymous contributor has sent many brilliant observations that gleamed with wit and sapience, but Tad never knew who he was, and declared that while they had been coming for over a decade he had never had any clue to the identity of their author.

W. O. McGeehan several years ago wrote a story on "The Gamest Man I Know," in a widely read magazine. It referred to Tad, who for nine years had been immured in his home at Long Island, forced into exile from the Broadway that he loved, the friends that he doted on, and the glitter and glamour of the sport world that he adorned. Here he labored with his pencils and drawing boards, sustained by his philosophy of content, harried by sickness that racked his spare frame, but showing an unquenchable optimism and a cheery smile to those few friends permitted to see him.

He listened to the fights on the radio, read prodigiously, but never ventured out, and in the daytime faced the sunlight as he worked. friends from all over called him up, sometimes from half way across the continent. Often it would be "Sunny Jim" Coffroth calling up from Tia Juana or San Diego, Jim Corbett or Jack Dempsey, never forgetful of a friend, or newspapermen who worked and toiled with the brilliant author of "Tad's Titbits."

Tad's indoor sports have been greater guffaw producers than any other series of cartoons. He knew newspaper work and newspaper men, their troubles and their fancies, and his caricatures on the types you meet around the newspaper offices were mirth provoking. The sport writers were his favorite targets and many a bright bon mot and eye fetching bit of work done with an ironical twist, brought forth appreciative laughs from colleagues of the press.

THREE MONTREAL PLAYERS ON DAVIS CUP TENNIS TEAM

Wright, Crocker, Ham and Rainville Comprise Final Selection.

ONE FROM TORONTO.

TORONTO, May 6. — (Canadian Press).—The Canadian Davis Cup team which will represent the Dominion against the United States team in first round of the American one playdowns at Montreal on May 16, 17 and 18 was selected following the completion of the trials here yesterday.

Dr. Jack Wright, Montreal, ranking number 1 player, Willard Crocker, Montreal, ranked number 2, Marcel Rainville, also of Montreal, ranked number 3, and Dr. Art. Ham, Toronto, ranked number 4, will carry the Maple Leaf in the matches for the historic trophy.

The only new member of the team from last year's is Rainville. He replaces Gilbert Nunns, Toronto, ranked number 3 in the Dominion last year. Rainville won the fourth place on the team by his splendid performance of the past week and by his showing in tournaments in the southern States during the winter.

Just how the four men will play is not yet known. Two men who will play in the singles matches have not been announced and the doubles team is also a mystery.

Features of play

Two singles matches were played yesterday afternoon in the trials. Dr. Art. Ham sprang a surprise by beating Marcel Rainville in three straight sets, 6-4, 8-6, 8-6, while Wright vanquished Crocker in four, the scores being 1-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Dr. Ham and Rainville took the court for the first match of the day. Both players were at the top of their form and the match produced some brilliant tennis. The Toronto player's drives were more severe than Rainville's and his passing shots were a treat to watch. Dr. Ham won the first set 6-4. He won the second set after training 4 games to love. He finally took the set 8-6. The third was a nip and tuck battle with first one player taking the lead and then the other. With the score 6-all Ham took his service at love and then broke through Rainville's to capture the set 8-6 thus winning the match in three straight.

The second match also saw both Wright and Crocker playing magnificent tennis. Crocker started off in whirlwind fashion to win the first set easily at 6-1. Wright showed a complete reversal of form in the second set and by some terrific hitting won it 6-2 to even the match at a set apiece. In the third Wright continued to play superb tennis and he took the set at 6-4. After a ten minute rest they went at it again. Crocker seemed a trifle off in his game in the fourth set and Wright won it 6-4 to take the match three sets to one.

The doubles match between Crocker and Rainville Canadian indoor champions, and Wright and Ham was cancelled owing to the lateness of the hour following the finish of the two singles matches.

During the week-end Garnett Meldrum, president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, was invited by the United States Lawn Tennis Association to act in the capacity of official referee of the series between Canada and the United States. He accepted the honor. Dr. Ross Cleveland, Montreal accepted the position of captain (non-playing) of the 1929 Canadian Davis Cup team.

The personnel of the United States team was not known when the Canadian try-outs concluded.

SEASON OVER FOR ENGLISH SOCCER

Championship Teams Are Soundly Beaten By Lesser Squads on Saturday.

LONDON, England, May 6 (Canadian Press Cable). — "Finis" was written to the English soccer football season on Saturday when the champions of the minor leavues were decided on and and demotions and promotions in the various sections of the league definitely settled.

Sheffield Wednesday won the championship of the First Division last week just in time, because on Saturday they were soundly beaten, 4-1, by Aston Villa. Another spectacular beating was that administered to the cupholders, Bolton Wanderers, by Leicester City, the latter team winning by 6 goals to 1. In the Second Division the featured match was the struggle for the championship between the two top teams, Middlesborough and Grimsby, the former getting away with the honors by three goals to nil.

UNITED STATES' DAVIS CUP TENNIS TEAM IS SELECTED

Will Be Comprised of Lott, Hennessey, Allison and Van Ryan.

PLAY AT MONTREAL.

Tilden and Hunter Will Take Part in European Matches.

TORONTO, Ont., May 6 (C.P.).—The United States Davis Cup team to play against Canada in the first round of the American zone games will be made up of George M. Lott, Jr., Chicago; John Hennessey, Indianapolis; Wilmer T. Allison, Texas; and John Van Ryn, Princeton. The games will be played on the court of the Mount Royal Tennis Club, Montreal, May 16, 17 and 18.

Announcement of the personnel of the team was made by E. B. Moss, executive secretary of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, in a telegram to-day to Garnet H. Meldrum, president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association. Eugene Dickson will accompany the team as non-playing captain.

Furnish Stiff Opposition

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 6.—America's team in the American zone play in the Davis Cup tennis matches was selected by high tennis officials last night after a series of competitive matches here in which William T. Tilden and Francis T. Hunter furnished stiff competition.

Neither "Big Bill" nor Hunter were candidates for the American zone team, as they leave for Europe this week and would not have been available for the matches in Montreal, even if they had been selected. They will practice near Paris until the French championships begin May 20 and will go later to Holland and to Wimbledon for the English championships, which begin June 24. It is their intention to prepare for the Davis Cup interzone finals, provided the younger players come through in the American zone.

Samuel H. Collom, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, said Tilden and Hunter could be chosen members of the American team any time during the cup campaign, provided the selections were announced twelve days prior to the start of competition.

LOTT DECLINES TO PLAY.

CHICAGO, Ills., May 6.—(C.P.)—George Lott, third ranking American tennis player, is more eager to concentrate on studies at the University of Chicago, than to become a member of the 1929 United States' Davis Cup team. Lott said to-day he would not play against Canada in the first American zone test at Montreal May 16, 17, 18, unless other other members of the squad are unable to play.

BASEBALL LEAGUE MEETING TO-NIGHT

Full Turnout of Those Interested Hoped For By Executive.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the importance of the City League Baseball meeting to be held this evening in the board room of the Duffus Bowling Academy. At this meeting a fair indication of the success of the league and its scope for this season should be gained.

The grounds committee and the committee that has been working to awaken interest among those fitted to take on the duties of coaches will likely make their reports.

A full turn out of all those interested in maintaining the high standard of baseball in Peterborough is hoped for by the executive.

C.G.E. RUNNERS HOLD ROAD RACE

Local Track Men in Training For Toronto Meet On May 24.

SHOW GOOD STYLE.

The first road race of the season was held on Saturday afternoon from the Y.M.C.A. by members of the track and field branch of the C.G.E. Social and Athletic club, who hope to be represented at the meet to be held in Toronto on May 24.

Alex. Mitchell Sr., who is coaching the C.G.E. runners, acted as timekeeper on Saturday, and was more than pleased with the performance of three juniors, Harold Stewart, Bill Snowden and Dick Williams, especially Stewart, who shows every sign of being a real comer. Sam Freeman, Herb Tranter, Dick Bates, and Willoughby, an unattached runner, were also out. Freeman, who is a newcomer with a nice, easy style, showed up fine and was leading Bates until he developed cramps in the stomach but was able to finish.

These Saturday afternoon races and hikes which are being held regularly by the C.G.E. club, are giving added impetus to the promotion of mddle distance running locally, inasmuch as they provide the inexperienced runner with sufficient competition at the same time that he is in training and should induce several others to participate.

Next Saturday a cross-country run will be staged starting from the Y.M.C.A. at 2 o'clock.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

CHARLES (BUDDY) ROGERS, CHESTER CONKLIN AND MARY BRIAN, AND "VARSITY" ARE A COMBINATION THAT SHOULD PACK THE POPULAR CAPITOL DURING THEIR THREE-DAY ENGAGEMENT, OPENING TO-DAY.

At last a college picture with a new, a different approach has been produced. At last the intriguing round of college life in the United States has been divorced from all the fanfare and slapstick of former, so-called college pictures which sickened collegiates and non-collegiates alike. At last Paramount has produced "Varsity," with Charles (Buddy) Rogers ably handling a difficult role and Mary Brian and Chester Conklin furnishing support.

"Varsity," which opens at the Capitol to-day, pictures college life as it is. It is a true and living record which any college man or woman can recognize as such and appreciate. There is none of the win-the-ball-game-for-alma-mater type of balderdash woven into its dignfied and beautiful theme. "Varsity" is the kind of picture Princeton university, one of the oldest and most respected of the institutions of higher learning in the United States, can well afford to sponsor.

The story deals with a whimsical janitor whose aim in life is achieved when his son comes to college.

The scenes for "Varsity" were actually taken on the campus at Princeton university and were supervised in the making by a committee from the faculty of the university. The picture is splendidly conceived, ably directed and competently acted, a true and living portrait of contemporary American college life.

Ottawa City Players With Iroquois Falls

OTTAWA, Ont., May 6 (C.P.).—Three star performers of senior city hockey league teams last season will not be seen in action next year in the Capital, it was learned Saturday, Frankie Lavigne, Clyde Murray and Reg. Chields have succumbed to the lure of outside clubs and will play their wares next year with the Iroquois Falls team of the Senior N.O.H.A. There is a possibility that Hec. Jodouin of Shamrocks will also wear Eskimos uniform next season.

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 6.—(C.P.)—A compound fracture of both legs, and one arm, with a fractured skull are the main injuries sustained by an unknown man now lying at the Brantford General Hospital, taken here last night after he had been hit by an automobile on the Brantford and Hamilton highway. Charles M. Thompson, Toronto, driver of the car, is being held by the police here.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Grafton's bantam team has called a practise for this evening.

WEATHERMAN PUTS DAMPER ON BALL PRACTISES.

Cold, driving north-west winds, which brought snow in the morning, put an effectual damper on nearly all sporting activities in the city on Saturday. Ball teams that had counted on getting in a lively workout, wisely called off their practise, not chancing any stiff arms or injuries due to the frigid atmosphere and slippery condition of the diamonds.

However, the C.G.E. Track and Field Club held their planned two mile jaunt around the north end, and despite the cold the runners all turned in good performances. Indeed, the run proved conclusively that this club has some coming middle distance runners on its roster. Some of them are plannning to compete in the big meet of the Monarch A.C. at the Varsity stadium on May 24. With continued training, on their showing Saturday, several should make their presence known in the junior races.

WOOLLENS WIN FROM QUAKERS.

The hardy soccer players were not deterred by the weather and Dominion Woollens and Quakers clashed in a brilliant game at King Edward Park. The Woollens won the argument 4 to 1, but the losers were always in the hunt.

The game in Deloro in which the C.P.C. were to have engaged, had to be postponed. Deloro phoned in the morning to say that snow covered the field.

NEED TO BALANCE STRENGTH IN E.P.L.

More discussion on the situation in the East Peterborough League featured the meeting of the league's officials, held on Saturday afternoon. It was decided that some action must be taken to balance up the strength of the four teams, which will form the league this season, but no proper solution of the difficulty was reached. It was decided that the election of officers would be postponed to a later date.

SECOND OFFICER GIVES EVIDENCE

Leslie Watson Says Vestris Failed to Steer at Noon Sunday.

SHIP OVERLADEN.

LONDON, May 6 (C.P.).—Second Officer Leslie Watson, continuing his testimony at to-day's resumption of the Board of Trade enquiry into the Vestris disaster, attributed the sinking to "a combination of circumstances."

That the ship was overladen "had a lot to do with it," he said, adding that the ship failed to steer at noon on Sunday, but that he did not think this a matter of importance. The master was there and would know what the ship could do.

Asked if he did not think an S O S should have been sent out sooner than it was, Watson replied: "No, not at that time, I did not think so." He did not think that an S O S should be necessarily sent out when a ship fails to steer.

TWO BUNIONEERS DROP FROM RACE

Giusto Unek Cuts Down Lead of the New Jersey Policeman.

OKMULGEE, Okla, May 6.—(Canadian Press.)—With 1,612 miles of the 3,400 mile trek from New York to the Pacific coast covered, the 24 remaining bunioneers in C. C. Pyle's Transcontinental Derby to-day plodded along on a 70 mile lap to Holdenville.

Two runners, Anthony Winninger, Williamsett, Mass., and German Kester, Sawtelle, Calif., dropped out yesterday on the 44 mile tramp from Muskogee to Okmulgee.

Giousto Umek, Trieste, Italy, scored his third consecutive victory yesterday by finishing in first place. He sliced an hour from the margin of Johnny Salo, Passaic, N.J., second in elapsed time. But still is 12 hours behind the policeman, Salo and Pete Gavuzzi, Southampton, England, first in elapsed time, tied for third place. Paul Simpson, Burlington, N.C., finished second.

OTTAWA TEAM SECOND.

TORONTO, Ont., May 6.—(C.P.)—The Hamilton team, composed of Miss Monnie Moncur, Miss Elsie Hunter and Miss Mary Moodie, won the Lieutenant-Governor's challenge trophy which was competed for here during the past week at the annual Toronto Horse Show. The show ended Saturday night.

The Ottawa team took second place in the competition with Oshawa third, Toronto fourth and St. Catharines fifth.

SCHEDULE DRAWN SOFTBALL LEAGUE

C. G. E. Loop Will Play Their Games at Rear of Local Plant.

The inclement weather of the last few days has not in the least dampened the enthusiasm of the C.G.E. sofetball executive, and players, as the schedule is already drawn up for this year and several teams have had their first workouts.

A plot of ground at the rear of the plant, which is large enough for two diamonds is at present being ploughed, graded and rolled, and should be in first class condition by May 27, when the frst league games will be played.

The teams this season will begin the single schedule almost a week earlier than last year and will finish up around August 23. This will assure the teams in the play-offs plenty of daylight and more suitable weather than last year, as the finals should be over by September 8. There will be three teams in the play-offs, and the championship will be decided by a three-game tournament, games to count. The teams in second and third places in the league will play a sudden death game to decide who will meet the first place team.

The club has decided to enter a team in the City Softball League, and are calling a practise at an early date. Jimmie Newson has been appointed manager, with an advisory body consisting of Jack Pilling, Harold Foster and "Bun" Frost to assist him.

A great deal has been done to encourage the organization of a ladies' softball league, and provision has been made for their accommodation, but as yet very little enthusiasm has been shown by the girls.

BASEBALL PRACTICE.

Loyal Order of Moose juveniles will practice at King Edward school grounds at 6 o'clock on Tuesday evening, May 7. All players desirious of playing juvenile ball are asked to be on hand early.

The Big Swing Is To ESSEX THE CHALLENGER

Hear the radio program of the "Hudson-Essex Challengers" every Friday evening

It Challenges Your Interest in These Important Ways

EASY TO BUY

FOR INSTANCE, in this city your first payment, with your present car included, may be as low as $100.00 and your monthly Payments $25.00

Your present car will probably cover the entire first payment. The H. M. C. Purchase Plan offers the lowest terms available on the balance.

EASY TO OWN

On our own streets Essex the Challenger, under competent observation, averaged 24 miles per gallon. The average owner in this city can expect 18 to 20 miles and upward. Hundreds of records all over the country during "Challenger Week" prove Essex economy. Commercial users operating large fleets of Essex cars say that service and maintenance costs covering millions of miles of operation, are lowest of any car ever tested.

The buying public has picked Essex the Challenger as the greatest value of 1929. They are giving it the biggest business even Essex has ever known. By thousands they are trading in other makes for the great Essex value. Never before has public approval been so near universal.

A Wide Choice of Colors at No Extra Cost
The variety is so great you have almost individual distinction

Here is a BIG adult-size "Six"—fine to look at—roomy and comfortable—built as strongly as any car at any price. Upholstery and appointments are rich and handsome. There is such a wide variety of colors, that no matter what your choice you have almost individual distinction.

A SUPER-SIX motor—challenging up to 70 miles an hour—60 miles an hour, hour after hour—in getaway it challenges any car at any price—it challenges all in climbing hills.

Hydraulic shock absorbers are standard—they do not cost one cent extra. The same with radiator shutters, air cleaner, windshield wiper, safety lock, chromium-plated cowl lamps. Add up for yourself the extras Essex offers to added cost and you will see about $100 in extra value in those items alone.

Yes, teeth lighten

when you remove dingy film

Remove it daily to keep teeth white and sound

WINNING smiles depend on glorious white teeth—and teeth like that depend on freedom from what dentists know as film. Film is a stubborn, clinging coating that ordinary ways fail to remove successfully. It is the chief source of serious tooth and gum disorders—of decay and pyorrhea—a constant menace.

To remove film dentists prescribe the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film so that brushing easily removes it in gentle safety to tooth enamel.

In a few days teeth grow whiter and begin to sparkle. They continue to improve for months. Start today. Get Pepsodent at any drug counter or write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 191 George St., Toronto 2, Ont., Can.

EVENING rates on station-to-station calls now begin at 7 p.m. with about 25% off the day rates. A convenience in two ways — you can place a call at the reduced rate before you go out for the evening — and you are more apt to catch the called party at home between 7 and 8.30 p.m.

After 8.30 p.m. and continuing till 4.30 a.m. there is a further reduction which is about 50% of the day rate.

Charges can now be reversed on station-to-station calls when the rate is 25 cents or more.

THE SICK OF THIS CITY ARE EAGERLY AWAITING ARRIVAL OF HUSKY EXPERT

Authority From Famous Laboratories at Toronto Will Reach City To-morrow To Explain To Local Sufferers How To Use Husky, Which Is Now Relieving Thousands Throughout the Dominion—Indigestion, Constipation, Rheumatic Pains, Chronic Headaches, Catarrhal Troubles and Kidney Ailments Among Ills Responding To This Medicine.

EVERYONE IS INVITED TO CALL ON THE "HUSKY" EXPERT AT BOND'S DRUG STORE—HIS INFORMATION IS FREE

"Husky," the medicine which is restoring health for thousands throughout Canada, is going to be explained free to every man and woman in Peterborough and vicinity. Thousands of sufferers in this section are making arrangements to take advantage of this opportunity.

An authority from the Husky Laboratories, at Toronto, will arrive in Peterborough to-morrow and will meet the public daily at Bond's Drug Store, where he will explain how the best and quickest results are obtained from this medicine. You are invited to call on him to-morrow. His information is free and he will be here for the sole purpose of assisting you in regaining health through this medicine just as thousands of others throughout the Dominion are now doing.

BREAKS ALL RECORDS.

Husky has amazed all Canada and has proven its value so well in every case that it is now the largest selling medicine in the Dominion. It has broken all sales records.

ILLS WHICH HUSKY RELIEVES.

Indigestion, constipation, rheumatic pains, chronic headaches, catarrhal troubles and kidney ailments are among the ills which respond quickly to Husky. Those who were weak, tired, couldn't sleep and were underweight report that after using Husky they sleep all night, get up feeling fine and have new energy for their work.

REASONS WHY HUSKY HELPS

"The reason for this is simple," says the Husky Expert. "Excessive acidity is perhaps the worst evil which has gotten a hold on humanity to-day and Husky gives such splendid relief because it has been especially prepared to free the human system of this trouble. This acidity inflames the delicate mucous lining of the stomach, steals your appetite and sours your food. It robs the blood of the red corpuscles, which it must always have plenty of to keep it from becoming thin and watery. It binds the bowels so they can't carry off the waste from what you eat. That's the reason you can't eat, can't relax into restful sleep at night, suffer from rheumatic aches and pains, skin becomes sallow and breaks out with pimples and eczemic inflammation.

"Husky has been so phenominally successful because its effect is so simple. It positively does nothing but sweeten the stomach and stimulate the bowels and kidneys. But that is exactly what gets rid of chronic acidity. Then excessive acids can't gather and remain in the stomach, because the bowels will carry off promptly all the starch and sugar wastes from your food, which are the cause of acidity and gas."

INTERESTING CASE IS CITED.

Mrs. B. O. Wardell, of 24 Wilson Street, Hamilton, Ont., one of the many praising Husky, says:

"It is remarkable how my nervousness and headaches have disappeared since I've been taking Husky and now I can tell everybody that it is a truly great medicine.

"My nerves were all shattered and some nights I couldn't get any sleep and ached so I would roll and toss. I was so weak and nervous I couldn't control myself and would have to cry I had terrible headaches.

"Now that I'm taking Husky my nerves feel so much better and I'm so much stronger and really just seem to feel more interest in life. I enjoy the night's rest, now, too, where I used to dread to see night come. And then I do not have those bad headaches any more either."

Because "Husky" is an extraordinary preparation it is highly recommended to the people of Peterborough and vicinity by Bond's Drug Store. Get a bottle of Husky and note how soon its treatment whets your appetite, makes sleep more restful and sound and increases your strength. Call on the "Husky" expert to-morrow and let him tell you how best and quickest results are obtained from the use of Husky. He will be at Bond"s Drug Store all day.

THREE YOUTHS LAID TO REST

Funeral Is Held In St. Mark's Church, Prescott, This Morning.

KILLED IN ACCIDENT.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., May 6 (C.P.)—The funeral at Prescott this morning of Joseph O'Reilly, Francis A. Black and John Howard Easter, the three young victims of the motor accident which occurred on the outskirts of the town early on Saturday morning, formed one of the most touching spectacles that Prescott had witnessed for many years. All three were members of St. Mark's Roman Catholic Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the curate, Rev. Father Carty, in the presence of a congregation that filled the church to capacity, many being unable to obtain admission. Hundreds of cars from Prescott and the surrounding country were in the cortege and the streets through which it passed were lined with people. Floral offerings were exceptionally large and hundreds of spiritual offerings were received. The remains of O'Reilly were taken to Throoptown for burial, while those of Black and Easter were interred at Prescott.

REDUCTIONS ANNOUNCED

BROCKVILLE, Ont., May 6.—Further reductions in water and gas rates were announced to-day by the public utilities commission with effect on July 1. Under the new rates that for gas drops to $1.44 per 1,000 cubic feet net while water rates are reduced by an additional six per cent.

TRAINING OF THE BOY VOICE

Soldiers," and "A Sleepy Street," and all four numbers were thoroughly enjoyed.

Vice-President Ross L. Dobbin was chairman of to-day's luncheon in the absence of President W R. Morris, who is in attendance at the district conference at Erie, Pa.

Mr. Mann pointed out that the training of the boy voice presented different problems than those offered by other forms of musical training. There were, he said, four different kinds of voices in this class, and with proper training something could be made of each kind. In the Old Land boys had an advantage over the Canadian youth in the matter of musical training, the speaker pointed out. The fact that boys went to one school and girls to another meant a better opportunity for voice training among the boys.

While there was a certain amount of musical training in Canadian schools, it did not help a great deal in the development of boy singers, Mr. Mann explained, as little attention was paid to the quality or expression.

The speaker said that he preferred boys to start training at nine years of age, an age that he had found most satisfactory. The training they received as boys was of great benefit to them in adult years. Mr. Mann stated when they reached the adolescent age and their voices broke, they should not sing at all for two years. Then they could return to singing helped by the musical education they had obtained as boys.

Mr. Mann pointed out that there were many benefits received from training as choir boys. First, they learn to sing; something of lasting value to them. They came into intimate knowledge of the church to which they belonged. They benefitted by the contacts they made which offset some of the less worthy influences encountered elsewhere, and the self-control that they learned was a valuable contribution in character building.

Rotarian Fred L. Roy expressed the thanks of Rotary to the speaker and presented Roy Pitchford with a box of chocolates as a mark of the club's appreciation of his singing.

Alfred Mortimer, organist of the High Park Choir of Toronto, was among the guests to-day.

Workmen Find Body of Young Man, Drowned Few Hours, Nearby.

NO VIOLENCE.

Girl Was Drowned Shortly After Disappearance On March 21.

MONTREAL, Que., May 7 (Canadian Press).—A country-wide search for Miss Barbara Pitcher, missing McGill University student, who disappeared from here March 21, was brought to an end to-day with the finding of the young woman's body in Back River, near a convent at Sault Au Recollet. Workmen also found the body of a young man at the same spot, which had apparently only been in the water for two or three days.

The two bodies were found floating in the river by employees of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company, who were working nearby.

Morgue officials stated that the body of Miss Pitcher gave every indication of being in the water for some time—probably since the day she was missing — and showed no marks of violence.

After the discovery of the body and its removal to the morgue, the Pitcher family was notified. It was found that Mr. and Mrs. Pitcher were absent from the city, as was Sir Charles Gordon, an uncle. Professor Eve, of McGill University, another uncle, was notified, and with Colonel Wilfrid Bovey, registrar of the University, came to the morgue. He declined to make positive identification, but this was later made by J. B. Conley, chauffeur to the Pitcher family, who was in the habit of driving Miss Pitcher to and from the University.

Professor Eve stated, however, that the body "strongly resembled Barbara."

Northern Ontario Deputation Will Ask Minister to Increase Bounty On Wolves

TORONTO, Ont., May 7 (Canadian Press). — The possibility of deer becoming extinct in Ontario as a result of the ravages of wolves is to be used as an argument to-day by a Northern Ontario deputation in appealing to Hon. Charles McCrea, Provincial Minister of Mines and Fisheries, for an increase in the Government wolf bounty.

The suggestion to be offered to the Government by the deputation is that the wolf bounty, which is at present $15.00, with the return of the pelt, be increased to $50.00, with the Government to retain the skin. This, it is felt, would not only compensate the trappers for their time and loss of the pelts, but would eliminate the "red tape" which at present delays the return of the skins to the trappers.

MILITARY FUNERAL IS PLANNED FOR CANADA'S FAMOUS SOLDIER

Brigadier General C. H. Bell Plans Most Impressive Military Spectacle.

ALL BRANCHES PRESENT.

Remains Will Lie in State in Toronto Armouries On Thursday and Friday.

TORONTO, Ont., May 7 (Canadian Press).—Canada to-day mourned the death of General Sir William Dillon Otter, one of her most famous soldiers, who died last night in his 86th year. Military District No. 2, whose General Officer Commanding is Brig.-Gen. G. H. Bell, is planning to make the funeral of Sir William on Friday afternoon the most imposing military spectacle Toronto has seen since the World War.

It will be a soldier's funeral in every way. He will be accorded full military honors, but owing to the fact that General Otter was on the retired list, he will not be given a last salute of guns. Instead, the usual three volleys will be fired over his grave in St. James' Cemetery, and the "Last Post" will be sounded.

Every Unit Represented.

Every unit in the permanent force and the militia units of the Toronto Garrison will be represented. It is expected Colonel the Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, and the whole General Headquarters staff, together with all branch of artillery, infantry, cavalry, air and naval forces also will be represented.

Plans for the funeral are still in the tentative stage, and will not be completed until late this afternoon The Queen's Own Rifles, of which Sir William was Honorary Colonel, and is the oldest surviving commanding officer, and the Royal Canadian Regiment, one of whose battalions served with him as commanding officer of the Canadian contingent in South Africa, will furnish the guard of honor and the firing party.

Thousands of persons are expected

GENERAL OTTER PASSES

SIR WILLIAM D. OTTER,
Native son, military genius and patriot, who died last evening at his residence in Toronto.

EXPERTS MAKE FINAL EFFORT

German Conditions Are Presented to Delegates From France and Belgium.

CERTAIN RIGHTS ASKED.

PARIS, May 7 (Canadian Press).—The reparations experts to-day resumed confidential personal talks in a final effort to come to an agreement on a basis of the figures proposed by Owen D. Young, of the United States delegation.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German delegation, conferred with Mr. Young this morning and delivered the text of certain conditions under which the Germans are ready to accept the proposed settlement.

These conditions were at once communicated to the French and Belgian experts who conferred regarding them with Sir Josiah Stamp, the British delegate, who now seems to be taking part of the burden of the final work of the conference off Mr. Young's shoulders.

The conditions, already known in the main, demand the right to revision of the plan or suspension of unprotected payments at any time that the Reich may find itself in economic difficulties.

Demand Certain Rights.

They also ask for the right for Germany to demand the convocation of another committee of experts to consider whether the reparations payments shall not be further reduced under certain circumstances. The unprotected part of the annuities, which would be the part attributable to interest on bonds for commercialization of part of the total debt, would be payable under all circumstances and would amount, according as the German offer or the allied demands prevail, to from 750,000,000 to 900,000,000 ($180,000,000 to $216,000,000).

It is on this point, how much of the reparations debt shall be mobilized and what shall be the part of the cash thus realized to go to France, that forms the knotty point of the negotiations. The French Government welcomed the idea of commercialization as part of the plan of application of the Locarno policy adopted at Geneva last September because it promised the chance for Premier Poincare to amortize at one stroke 50,000,000,000 francs of the internal debt and to reduce the interest charge in the budget by 2,500,000,000 francs, affording an opportunity to let up somewhat on complaining French taxpayers.

Apartment Gutted Today

Margaret Bird Played Second Lead in "Flaming Torch" Last Night.

MAN ALSO VICTIM.

Forrest Cummings, Director, Overcome in Struggle To Break Door.

TORONTO, Ont., May 7 (Canadian Press). — Two prominent members of a local stock company, Miss Margaret Bird, 35, and Forrest Cummings, 52, were burned to death in an apartment on Jarvis Street early to-day. They were with the Victoria Stock Company of the Victoria Theatre, which opened a new play last evening.

With the exception of Cecil Dampre, who occupied the apartment immediately above Miss Bird's suite, other occupants of the house left by front and rear stairways. Some were not even awakened until they heard the firemen rushing in with their equipment. Dampre was awakened by smoke and leaped from his window to a neighboring roof, 20 feet below

Second Leading Lady.

After last night's performance, Miss Bird, who was second leading lady, returned to her apartment in a state of high nervous tension. Several friends dropped in to congratulate her and to talk over theatrical matters. Among them was Mr. Cummings, the director, who remained a while after the others had left, so police were informed.

Firemen were unable to force the door of the apartment, and it was only after crashing through a heavy window they found the body of the director, slumped against the door as if in a last desperate effort he had attempted to force open the door. It was not until after the fire had been brought under control the firemen found the body of Miss Bird, lying where she had fallen close to the bed. The body of the actress was scorched almost beyond recognition. The body of Mr. Cummings was badly burned and seared, but was easily recognized by those who had known him.

The house was of wooden construction, but quick work on the part of the firemen confined the blaze to one section of the building.

J. Lightstone, manager of the theatrical company, told police Miss Bird was very nervous during last night's performance, and had told him a number of times she was afraid she would be unable to "carry on."

Both bodies were removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held, the date of which has not yet been announced.

Miss Bird had been on the stage since she was 14 years of age, when she ran away from school to become an actress. She had played stock in New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Albany, and many other cities in the United States as well as the leading cities in Canada.

Couple Married.

The manager of the company declared that the two victims were man and wife, the latter keeping her maiden name for professional purposes. Investigation showed, however, that Cummings lived apart from Miss Bird.

The cause of the fire was a burning cigarette butt, it was claimed. Participants at the party declared that there was no liquor.

This suite was completely gutted. Among the articles destroyed was Miss Bird's extensive and costly wardrobe and many gifts and souvenirs from admiring friends and patrons.

Cummings was born in New York. He came here from San Francisco, where he was stage director with the Duffy Players. Miss Bird was born at Richmond, Va., her present home in Philadelphia.

The Weather

The thermometer last night only went down to 38 degrees. The highest point yesterday was 58 degrees. The rainfall last night totalled .09. There has been rain every day in May so far. Likely a little shower to-night, and fine and warmer to-morrow.—W.P.

LIQUOR MEN APPEAL.

TORONTO, Ont., May 7.—Samuel Meyer and Louis Harris, exporters of liquor, appealed to the First Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall to-day from a judgment of Mr. Justice Logie in the action brought by William T. Westgate, of Windsor, who claimed $23,400 for rental of premises leased from him at Ford City, Ont.

LIBERAL PARTY WILL NOT PLACE LABOR IN POWER

Sir John Simon Says Experiment of 1924 Will Not Be Repeated.

PRESERVE INDEPENDENCE.

Conservatives Will Not Oppose Eminent Jurist in Yorkshire Constituency.

LONDON, May 7. — (Canadian Press).—Sir John Simon, former Liberal cabinet minister, eminent jurist and chairman of the Indian Statutory Reform Commission, in an address at Liverpool last evening reiterated the absolute refusal of the Liberal party to repeat the experiment of 1924 of putting Labor in power, should no party gain a clear majority in the coming general elections.

"The Liberals will set themselves to serve the best interests of the country, not forgetting the King's government must be carried on, but they will at all costs preserve independence and freedom of action" he declared.

To Start Speaking Tour

Sir John, whose constituency of Spen Valley in Yorkshire and the attitude of his riding opponents is attracting great attention just now, visits the king a Craigwell House, Bognor, to-day. To-morrow he will start a speaking tour in Wales.

Apparently the proposal to run a Conservative candidate in Spen Valley has been dropped, in accordance with the opinion expressed by Premier Stanley Baldwin in a letter to the local Conservatives last year, when Sir John was appointed chairman of the Indian Commission. The Prime Minister has just made this letter public, rather dramatically intervening at a time when it was believed Conservative headquarters had prevailed on the constituency caucus to run a Conservative in opposition to Sir John, because they deemed he had not met them in the same conciliatory spirit. Immediately on his return from India a few days ago Sir John began vigorously supporting Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George's unemployment program and criticizing the Conservatives.

Party Considerations Second.

The Prime Minister, however, it is officially announced, adheres to the opinion expressed in his letter—that party considerations should take second place and Sir John should be left free for the work of the commission.

Sir John will still be opposed, it seems, by a Labor and a Communist candidate. H. H. Elwin is the Labor candidate and the Communist is S. Asmani, president of the Indian Trades Union Congress, now await-

Ladies' Rest Room By-Law Is Shelved; Disagree On Site

On Recommendation of the Board of Works the City Council Last Night Passed the By-law to Pave a Number of Streets in West Ward.

NOTICE IS GIVEN BY ALDERMAN McNABB OF BY-LAW REGULATING HALF HOLIDAYS AND OPEN NIGHTS IN CITY

Alderman McNabb and Mayor Denne Clash When Notice of the By-law is Given—Stormy Passage is Expected in the Council at Next Meeting.

In accordance with a recommendation from the Board of Works, and following Chairman Alderman Hamilton's explanation of the benefits and advantages of such a step, the City Council, in regular session last night, passed a by-law to authorize the execution of an agreement with the Warren Bituminous Paving Company for the paving of certain city streets. A second by-law which had been given its first reading, and which has been much discussed since that time, was left in abeyance after its second reading last night. Fostered by Alderman C. H. Huffman, it would have provided for the erection of a ladies' rest room on the Market Square—the matter has now been indefinitely shelved, while the spirit of the meeting did not auger well for the fate of by-laws which will be introduced by Alderman J. A. McNabb at the next meeting according to his notice of motion. They will be based, he more than intimated, on the petitions of local merchants, and will, if passed, provide for Wednesday afternoon holidays in Peterborough stores during the summer months, as well as for early closing previous to Christmas.

Not So Smooth.

Desultory firing that on several occasions sharpened to a barrage-like crispness, rendered last night's meeting interesting following an unimpressive start. Most of the business had been disposed of when Alderman J. A. McNabb arose to give notice of his intention to introduce at the next meeting the above mentioned by-laws. He outlined the scope of the petitions as coming from a large representation of the city's merchants and business men, and went on at considerable length to show the advantages of such by-laws if passed, and was still expounding their virtues when Mayor Denne unexpectedly declared: "I think you are going to kill the city, passing such half-holiday by-laws. Let those whose names are on the petition, close if they want to, but I don't think it is up to us. (Applause from the gallery.) Why not keep the by-law regarding the early Christmas closing, separate, to be dealt with at the next meeting?"

Alderman Lowe: "If they are agreed to close . . Alderman McNabb says they are, why pass the buck on to us? There are some who haven't even seen the petition. Why should we force men to close their places of business, who have paid business taxes. It is up to the merchants themselves."

Mr. McNabb: "We are only passing on a petition asking for such a by-law after getting all of the business places, save a few, and except the druggists and the hardware men, who are in a different class of business."

The Mayor again suggested that the notices regarding the proposed by-laws be kept separate, to be dealt with individually. Personally, he felt that a by-law making Wednesday afternoon a half-holiday would help to drive business away from the city.

Alderman McNabb began to speak again.

Mayor Denne: "You've spoken to the motion three times now."

Ald. McNabb: "You've been speaking quite a lot yourself."

Mayor Denne: "Yes, and I will continue to talk as long as I'm in this chair."

Ald. McNabb: "So will I."

Mayor Denne: "You retract that statement!"

Ald. McNabb: "I won't."

Mayor Denne: "All right," significantly.

Reports Received.

The report of the Parks Committee, submitted by Alderman Stocker, was not lengthy, merely voicing the committee's recommendations that the matter of allotting dates at the James Stevenson Park to baseball

HUSBAND GETS $1.

TORONTO, May 7. — (Special to The Examiner).—In a will which was filed for probation at the city hall, Mrs. Mabel L. B. Spry, who died on December 26 last, disclosed an estate valued at $95,238, of which $8,800 is comprised in realty and stock held in Peterborough. By the terms of the document the deceased's husband, Frank McLean Spry of Pointe Au Pic, Quebec, received the sum of one dollar, "he having had his share of moneys during my married life," the clause states. The will then bequeaths the entire estate to Mrs. Marion Maude Robinson, a sister living at 45 St. Clair avenue, Toronto, to divide as she sees fit." A caveat was filed by Rupert H. Bradburn, a brother of the dead woman, living in Los Angeles, claiming right to one third of the estate on the grounds that the will was executed in the state of California where Mrs. Spry was domiciled, "and that the alleged will has not been duly proved and registered in California, nor has it been proved that it was executed according to the laws of that state." Furthermore it is argued "that the alleged will has not been recognized as valid by the state of California" and "that the estate of the deceased

Intoxicated Drivers Should Get 30 Days

TORONTO, Ont., May 7. — (Canadian Press)—A sentence of 30 days in jail for motorists who drive while intoxicated is a fitting punishment, said Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, today. The sentence at present for a first offense is from seven to 30 days and if a convicted person gets less than the maximum "he is lucky" said the Attorney-General. He is not contemplating raising the penalty, but is in accord with imposition of the maximum sentence.

Soldier Refused Aid By Two Governments Despairs of Relief and Shoots Himself

PRIEST RIVER, Idaho, May 7.—(Canadian Press).—After writing that he was refused aid by both Canadian and United States Governments, Charles Feder, a trapper and former Canadian soldier, fired a fatal bullet into his head near Bismarck Ranger station, north of here, word received to-day said

In a note pinned to a stump, the trapper said that he had been refused assistance by Canada because he had become an American citizen and by the United States because he had served in the Canadian army.

You may call this act suicide," said the note, directed to the coroner, "but I call it deliverance." He had intimated that he had been suffering from cancer. He was buried "with his boots on like a man," as he had requested.

SWIMMING CLASSES ARE OPEN FOR SEASON AT Y.M.C.A.

Many Boys Take Opportunity To Learn Under Expert Guidance.

SPLENDID INSTRUCTION.

Proper Breathing Is Taught Before Pupils Enter Pools.

The 1929 swimming season was successfully inaugurated at the Y.M.C.A. yeterday afternoon. Classes for boys occupied the afternoon period commencing at 4.30, while the men's class was in operation during the evening. A large number of boys seized the opportunity to learn to swim under expert guidance and timidly entered the pool for their first lesson.

The Y.M.C.A. officials assured The Examiner that they are anxious to do all in their power for the non-swimmers of the city and they stated that there were many teen age boys who had yet to learn the art. They stated that experience has shown them that in the majority of cases the average boy or man will learn to swim during the course of the first week of instruction and after this progress he only requires coaching and an application to practise to become expert. In some cases the first fear is not so easily overcome so that he requires greater attention and is given instruction alone.

The Examiner was impressed by the fact that before any student entered the pool or had any movement demonstrated to him he was first instructed in the proper breathing.

Warsaw Man Brings in Eight Hogs That Weigh 1,620 Pounds and Score 100 Per Cent. Select

Among the many good litters of hogs being received daily at the Canadian Packing Company's plant an exceptional one was received last week from J. N. Clysdale of Warsaw. There were eight hogs in the litter, weighing 1,620 pounds, and they graded 100 per cent select bacon. The last litter marketed by Mr. Clysdale also graded 100 per cent select.

Commenting on this litter of hogs, D. A. McKinnon, the local grader, said that they were the finest litter of hogs he had seen in some time. He said that every hog was a perfect specimen of what the market demands, carrying the required finish, length of side and smoothness throughout.

TOWN COUNCIL IS DEADLOCKED WHEN VOTE IS TAKEN CHOOSING SITE FOR JAIL AND POST OFFICE

Campbellford's Mayor Casts Tieing Vote—Procedure Will Be Looked Up.

PARKING QUESTION UP.

Deputation Asks That C..N.R. Train From Toronto to Port Hope Be Re-routed.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7.— (Examiner Staff Correspondence.) — When does the Mayor of a town vote? Does he vote whenever he desires? Has he that privilege Or does he only make his voice heard when a deciding vote is necessary? Should he choose to vote and that vote make the decision a tie—then what? That was the final question the town solicitor was called upon to answer at last night's council meeting, and he was not sure. The clerk, John McGregor, thought the mayor was permitted to vote whenever he desired and required to vote in order to break the tie should one occur. In the matter of his vote creating a tie, he claimed that the motion, whatever it was, was lost. But neither was he certain of his contentention. Since the council chamber is used for court and various meeting, there is not a copy of the municipal act kept there. The solicitor will look up the act and the solution will be forthcoming at a special meeting to be held in the near future.

The unexpected situation which caused such discussion at the end of the meeting, arose from the fact that Councillor Wiggins had asked to be excused earlier in the meeting. The matter of where the police office and jail would be located came up after he had gone. Some favored one site while others wanted the old jail renovated and used again. The vote was taken on what was believed by some to be the report of the police committee. Deputy-reeve Stone claimed that his motion had been worded, recommendation of the police committee. Reeve Bygott would not support it if that were the case, he said, and a new vote was taken. The count was four to three and then the Mayor voted. At once his right to vote was questioned and after some discussion it was more or less agreed that he had that privilege. Then the question arose as to what was the result when his vote made it a tie. Although some of the councillors and the solicitor and clerk had very strong beliefs that certain circumstances prevailed, they did not have the courage of their convictions to state it finally nor did they quote any authority. As a result, nothing can be done about the jail until the matter is settled and Councillor Wiggins has a chance to vote, as one method of clearing the situation.

Usual Procedure.

The meeting last night opened with all the earmarks of the usual peaceful session of routine business. There were about twenty spectators. All the members of the council were present except the deputy-reeve, who came in after the minutes had been read. Communications were the next order of business. The first was from the Department of Agriculture re the appointing of a weed inspector for the municipality. Chief Grassick agreed to look after it.

A. J. Jenkins resignation from the public library board was presented in a letter from the secretary of the board, E. H. Greig. Jenkins is one of the members appointed by the council and his resignation is due to his leaving town. Reeve Bygott gave notice of motion that he would appoint the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace to fill the vacancy, but later it was deecided to present a new by-law and understood that the Rector's name would be filled in in the blank space.

Complains of R. R. Service

As soon as the mayor asked if anyone wished to interview the council, T. J. Horkins was on his feet. He complained of the poor railway service through the town during the latter part of the day and pointed out that it could be improved in the train leaving Toronto at ten minutes to five in the afternoon were routed from Peterborough to Belleville via Keene, Hastings, Campbellford and Stirling, instead

FIRST CANADIAN ARMY GENERAL CLOSES DISTINGUISHED CAREER

Sir William Otter, Long a National Figure, Passes Away.

KNIGHTED IN 1913.

Born in Clinton, Ontario, in 1843, He Began Life as Clerk in Toronto.

TORONTO, Ont., May 7 (Canadian Press). — General Sir William Dillon Otter, K.C.B., C.V.O., the Grand Old Man of Canada's military forces, has answered his last parade call.

Death came last night to the man who from coast to coast was famed as the leader of the Canadians in the South African War, and the father of the Canadian Militia. He died at 7.55 o'clock at his home in the Alexandra Palace, University Avenue.

Sir William was in his 86th year. In declining health ever since he fell and broke his ankle on a street car nearly two years ago, the aged veteran had faded noticeably during the past several months, and a few days ago it became evident that the end was near. The final turn for the worse occurred early yesterday morning, and in the ensuing hours he sank gradually but surely.

His only child, Mrs. Edrol Morton, and her daughter, Miss Jacqueline Morton, were at his bedside for a considerable period during the final hours, but he was unable to recognize them. They had left the room but a short time before the two nurses Miss Emma Hamilton and Miss Eileen Hudson, noticed a change and summoned the general's physician, who was his old friend, Surgeon-General J. T. Fotheringham. But the great soldier had breathed his last before the hurrying doctor arrived.

National Figure.

His part in the various troubles that mottled Canada's history during the latter half of the last century had made Sir William a national figure years before he took command of the Canadian contingent to South Africa. His services against the Boers won him the cabled thanks of Queen Victoria, the C.B. decoration, and the publicly-expressed gratitude of the Canadian Parliament and the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He became Canada's first general and in 1913 he was knighted.

All these honors were heaped upon a man who had risen from the ranks of the Militia, for Sir William Otter went into the Army as private. He was the Canadian example of Napoleon's dictum that every private carried a marshal's baton in his knapsack.

Born in Clinton, Ont., in 1843, Sir William as a young man began life in Toronto as a clerk, first with the Canada Company, a one-time colonization concern which owned large areas of land in Western Ontario. Later he worked in the offices of the John Macdonald Company, dry goods dealers. It was during this period that he joined the old Victoria rifles which later became the Sixth Company of the Queen's Own Rifles.

Sir William's natural talent for mathematics—the gift that every great soldier has possessed—is indicated, perhaps, by his early trial at a business career, for he was a bookkeeper down town. His keen appreciation of the difficulties of the civilian soldier or militiaman probably sprang from his own experience. It was the combination of these two qualities — mathematical organization and the civilian rather than the military point of view — that was the underlying factor of his success at militia work.

TWO HUNDRED MEN MAROONED IN NORTHERN MANITOBA STORM

Hudson Bay Railway For 65 Miles is Completely Blocked By Snow.

RELIEF FAILS.

Two C.N.R. Work Trains Are Stranded Somewhere in Big Snow Drifts.

THE PAS, Man., May 7 (C.P.).—At least two hundred men are marooned on the plains of Northern Manitoba by the worst blizzard ever known to have swept those sections of the province. They are passengers on two work trains on the Hudson Bay Railway which for 65 miles is completely blocked by snow.

Supplies of food on the trains are believed to be nearing exhaustion. Attempts at rescue have so far failed.

The blizzard which started ten days ago, is still blowing, making rescue efforts almost impossible. Realizing the serious situation, railway officials started supplies out to the stalled trains by horses at the outset of the storm. But the teams could not buck the drifts. Then dog teams were sent out. The second effort failed Now three huge tractors of the type that have conquered the roadless wilderness are slowly fighting their way through the drifts from Churchill. They carry food and other supplies sufficient to temporarily relieve those who are stranded, but it may be several days before they arrive.

TO MODIFY POSTAL BILL

Re-adjustment of Post Office Salaries Comes Before House of Commons.

WINNIPEG STRIKE.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 6 (Canadian Press).—Ten years after it took place, echoes of the Winnipeg strike were heard in the House of Commons yesterday. Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, laid before the House a proposal to provide for readjustment of salaries of postal workers who went on strike but were subsequently re-employed at reduced salaries. The resolution of the Postmaster-General would, in brief, have the effect of restoring to these employees the money which they have lost by the fact that they returned to work in inferior positions. The cost of doing this is estimated to be approximately $125,000.

Mr. Veniot's resolution met with a good deal of criticism, the net result of which was that the committee finally rose and reported progress so that it might be revised.

In support of the proposal to reimburse the former striking postal employees, it was urged many of these men had been re-employed at a low rating and then required to do the work at which they were engaged prior to the strike. Premier Mackenzie King said the Government felt its employees should be paid for the work which they were doing. A Conservative Government had decided these men should be re-employed. This having been done, the present Government thought the men should be paid for what they did. He agreed the resolution might be re-drafted so as to make it clear the readjustment of salaries was being made on the basis of the services rendered by the employees concerned.

GRAIN TIE-UP AT MONTREAL

76 Lake Vessels Are Waiting In Harbor to Unload Their Cargoes..

ELEVATORS FULL.

MONTREAL, Que., May 7.—(C.P.) —Steamship companies which have ships tied up in Montreal with little chance in the near future of delivery of the grain in their holds, have released most of the crews, keeping but the minimum necessary to operate them. An arrangement has been made by a number of the companies whereby the crew may live aboard and receive its meals at the expense of the owners. In this way is avoided the extreme hardship which would occur if so many seamen were suddenly paid off for an indefinite period of time. It also assures the companies having their men ready when the need for the ships comes.

76 in Harbor.

The number of lake vessels in port yesterday was 76. While the grain congestion here, due to world conditions of supply and demand, is great, it is possible that more grain has been received into the harbor elevators same period last year.

There are now 12,993,253 bushels of grain in the four harbor elevators, and .623,100 in the holds of the 76 vessels, making the total amount of grain in port, afloat and ashore, 19,616,355 bushels.

It is learned that the second half of May may see some relief to the present situation, as some 40 tramp steamers hve been chartered to carry away grain. It is more than likely, however, that some of the ships here now will remain until June. The ships will be unloaded in the order of their arrivals from the lakes.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, May 7. (C.P.) —A further decline in the price of butter was effected on the wholesale produce market yesterday, and No. 1 finest creamery was quoted at the range of from 36 1-2 to 37c per lb., and No. 2 grade sold at from 35 1-2 to 36c per lb. Dealers reported that trading was slightly more active but the retail trade are still operating in hand to mouth fashion. Domestic production is active and supplies from this source are more than sufficient to look after the consumptive demands. Butter from New Zealand was being unloaded and distributed to the local dealers yesterday.

Egg Prices Steady.

Quotations to country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, were steady at the following scale: Fresh extras, 28c per dozen; firsts, 26c, and seconds, 23. Dealers reported that outside brokers are offering eggs on the market in carlots at the present price levels, which would indicate an easier undertone prevailing throughout the country. It is also stated that Montreal dealers have stopped storing eggs at present prices. Local buyers are restricting their buying to shipments that they are already committed to, and the feeling prevails that prices will have to move lower before active storing is resumed.

Cheese is Reduced.

An easier feeling has developed in the wholesale cheese market during the last few days, and the price of No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and government-graded supplies was reduced. The lower price range is attributed to fresh supplies reaching the market, and the easier prices that exist on dairy boards throughout the country.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 7.—With the 1929 United States wheat harvest expected to commence inside of two weeks, all wheat future deliveries in Chicago dropped yesterday to a new low price record for the season. The chief immediate cause assigned was an unexpectedly sharp break in wheat quotations at Liverpool, where reduced railrates in the United States were reported to have brought about increased cheap offerings of wheat, both from Canada and Argentina. Corn and rye, as well as wheat, outdid in some cases here the season's previous bottom figures.

Wheat in Chicago closed nervous, 1 7-8c. to 3¼c a bushel net lower. Corn finished 1 7-8c to 2 7-8c down, oats, 3-8c to 1¼c off and provisions unchanged to a setback of 50c.

Downturns in wheat values yesterday were in the face of a big decrease of the United States' wheat visible supply total and notwithstanding a cold wave in Canada. Traders' eyes appeared to be glued to blackboard figures showing that the Liverpool market was much lower than had been looked for, and that keener competition from Canada and Argentina was in evidence. Under such circumstances, Chicago traders flocked to the selling side of the market, and buying was largely confined to previous sellers collecting profits. On the ensuing downward swing of the market, many standing orders to let go of holdings were forced into execution at various price boundaries which had been pre-arranged as a limit to losses.

Wheat Cutting in Texas.

Adding to the momentum of the fall wheat values was a comprehensive crop report from railroad sources indicating that cutting of wheat in Southern Texas will start within a fortnight, and that expectations are for good yield. This is the first wheat to be harvested from the 1929 domestic crop. The report added that an early heavy movement of the crop is looked for, and that the condition of wheat is generally good all over the soluthwest except in the region just south of Amarillo, Texas.

In view of such bearish advices, little attention was given to word that the domestic wheat visible supply yesterday had fallen off 2,103,000 bushels, compared with a week ago, the total supply being still nearly double the aggregate at this time last year.

TOWN COUNCIL IS DEADLOCKED

of to the main line at Port Hope. That would make it possible for those requiring several hours in the city to go and come the same day. As it is now, the traveller must spend a night on the road or else motor. Many of the business men were going to Havelock and travelling C.P.R., he pointed out. Hopkins also claimed that Keene and Hastings were inclined to that if Campbellford would lend its weight to the suggestion, the required change might be granted by the railway officials.

Mayor Davidson epressed himself in favour of the change and wanted to include Stirling in the deputation. He suggested that a committee be formed of men from the different towns along the line. Reeve Bygott said he knew the train referred to and thought the point was well taken. Since coming to Campbellford he had availed himself of every opportunity to have the deal put through. As a local official of the road he assured the speaker and the council that the higher officials of the road would give their appeal a courteous hearing and that every consideration would be forthcoming. He thought that the change of route of the train in question would mean added revenue for the Canadian National Railway.

Harold Dunk secretary of the local soft ball association, asked the loan of the town steam roller in preparing the high school diamond for the season. He also asked if the council would consent to grant a few loads of loam for the work. He did not ask for any money. He was met with the reply that it was still too soft to get the roller out, but that the association would be given the loan of it for a day when it was started. The earth, it was understood, will be forthcoming, too.

New Bandstand Proposed

A. H. McKeel, proposed a new bandstand, and submitted a sketch of the proposed structure to be built in the front of the Ogilvie property on Tice Street which is now used as an armouries. The addition as he saw it, would provide an elevated bandstand, speakers platform, rest room, and would be of suitable architecture to blend with the rest of the building. The cost would be in the neighborhood of six hundred dollars, he thought. Deputy reeve Stone was not in favor of either the site or the expense. He thought the council should keep their expenditure as low as possible for the year. W. S. Wiggins suggested that the matter be left over till the next meeting. On motion of these two members of the council, that procedure was adopted.

Parking Question

Reeve Bygott wanted to know what ruling the council proposed to enact regarding the parking of cars. The lines on the streets should be painted at once he thought. A. H. McKeel as soon as the matter was brought up asked leave to speak. The council listened respectfully while he spoke in favour of prohibiting parking entirely in the business section of Front Street. Councillor Wiggins was on his feet as soon as McKeel had finished and opposed the proposition. When McKeel tried to interrupt, Wiggins silenced him by saying that he had his say. Stone, the deputy reeve, asked McKeel where there was any other town with such a by-law, and McKeel claimed that he had been ordered to move on both sides in Peterborough and Belleville. But these were not towns the size of Campbellford, the deputy reeve pointed out. He was aware of the parking laws in Peterborough and had left his car parked on the main street of Belleville for hours at a time, he claimed. He thought that to prohibit parking on Front street here, would cause plenty of trouble. General discussion followed with various remedies being suggested. Finally J. R. Wilkinson moved that angle parking be permitted on the east side of Front Street and none on the west side. Stone and Wiggins moved an amendment that the council meet at 8.00 p.m. Thursday and investigated the situation, and decide on what the ruling should be. The amendment carried. Chief Grassick was asked for his opinion of the situation and he favoured parking on one side only and none on Bridge Street at the end of the Bridge. He claimed that this was a dangerous practice.

T. L. Diamond waited on the council to request that the town rent him the property which the railroad had formerly owned and had deeded back to the corporation. He pointed out that he had already taken over using some of it and had paid the rent of one dollar per annum for its use. He requested that the use of the same amount of the property for the same rent. Should the corporation ever desire its use or occupancy, they could have it on fifteen minutes' notice. The request was granted.

Seeks Information.

Reeve Bygott wanted certain information. He asked if the police department's typewriter had arrived. It had. Had the greatcoats and handcuffs come? They had. He had noticed that there were no lights in the church sheds, and understood that the council had agreed to furnish power. Had the connection not been made? They had, he learned, but there were no lights installed. The people seemed to be waiting for the town to do that. This was not in the agreement, he claimed. The council had only agreed to furnish the power. It was up to the people of the churches to see about their own bulbs. Councillor MacDonald mentioned that he thought the council were expected to furnish the lights, but his remarks did not alter the opinion of the rest of the council.

The Reeve next wanted to have a statement every three months from the Water and Light Commission, as as called for in the act. Their affairs were the affairs of the town and he thought that the co-operation between the commission and the council was about as cold as it could possibly be. He requested that the mayor, as a member of the commission, make a request for the statement at the next meeting of the commission. Councillor Wilkinson was also in favor of the report being forthcoming. He thought that the council should be in closer touch with what the commission was doing.

Considered Himself Overcharged.

Mayor Davidson wanted to know if Councillor Wilkinson was referring to the employment of the engineer's son to read meters. If that were the case he was of the opinion that the boy did not draw any regular salary but was only paid for the time that he was actually on the job. Asked if that were not so, the clerk made no reply. Once more Councillor Wilkinson got to his feet, and this time he related how he had considered himself overcharged for two months electricity, and of the argument he had with the engineer of the commission. His demand to have his service discontinued was the means of having the meter re-read, and a reduction of more than two dollars made in his bill. This, the councillor claimed, was two weeks after the first reading had been taken. "I think it is high time that something should be done," he said, as he reseated himself.

Reeve Bygott made himself clear that he had nothing to do with Councillor Wilkinson's grievance, but merely wanted to live up to the terms of the act which established the commission. The Mayor promised to bring it up at the commission meeting. Deputy-reeve Stone said that the same request or a similar one, had been made two years ago, but the council had got no reports just the same. The Reeve and Councillor Wilkinson put their request in the form of a motion then. It carried, and a statement will be expected every three months from the commission.

Wants Work Started.

Grant Anderson asked what was being done about the watermain and sewer for Saskatoon avenue. He understood that the council had passed it some time ago, and thought it was time that a start was made. The matter was discussed for a few minutes and left with the road and bridge committee to commence operations immediately, if possible. It was pointed out that when the sewer was passed by the council the weather had not been suitable for operations to begin.

The clerk, at the request of the mayor, read the agreement between the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, Henry Redden, and the town of Campbellford, re the sale of a gravel pit to the county for the sum of $600. The agreement was signed by the country road superintendent, Henry Redden and Mayor Davidson. The town had purchased the gravel pit behind Mrs. Williams' residence, it was stated by the Mayor, for $100.

Further Requests.

George Grills asked that when the parking lines were being painted on Front street, a space be reserved in front of the St. Lawrence hotel for the use of the taxi men and guests of the hotel. The request was granted.

Mayor Davidson said that the Agricultural Society had asked for the same grant as last year, $300. The request was granted. There was a rider attached this year, however, that the society fix up the track for racing during Old Home Week.

Reeve Bygott asked for the use of the market square for the Legion's gala week. This request was also granted.

By-law Number 950, providing the necessary authority for the local police to enforce the Liquor Control Act was presented by Deputy-Reeve Stone, given its three readings, passed, signed and sealed.

Police Question.

Councillor MacDonald, chairman of the Police Committee, reported verbally that the committee had been looking for a suitable location for a police office, and had viewed several sites, none of them, for one reason and another, being found suitable. He and his committee favored the renovation of the old Jail to meet the requirements of the police. Mayor Davidson was in favor of purchasing the small building on the corner of Mill and Front Streets, now occupied by A. J. Meyers as a service station. The building could be bought, he believed, for $200. It was on Government property. Meyers, he said, was vacating it soon. Councillor O'Sullivan thought it was high time something was done, and spoke strongly in favor of fixing up the old jail and not purchasing any other property. Stone and O'Sullivan moved that the report of the Police Committee be accepted. The motion carried. This was interpreted by some of the Council to mean that the repairs to the jail building would be proceeded with. The Reeve did not think so. He claimed that the Council had merely accepted the report of the committee, not authorized and work. Then an argument started as to whether the word report or recommendation had been used. Stone said he was willing to substitute the word recommendation for report if the latter had been used. Reeve Bygott stated then he could not support the motion.

Just then Councillor Wilkinson interrupted the argument to ask what was the delay with the deed from the Canadian National Railways. He said that there was considerable work to be done along the old right-of-way and operations were being held up. The solicitor informed him that he had received a communication from the railway, advising him that the deed was in the company's offices at Montreal for verification. He supposed that it would be along any time and expressed the opinion that with large companies there was a certain amount of red tape that slowed up such proceedings.

Once more the police question came up and the discussion became more animated than before. D. J. Lynch, the solicitor, upheld the Reeve's interpretation of the situation. He did not think it necessary to act on the report, but believed, as did the Reeve, that the Council had merely accepted the report, which was a matter of form. Some low-voiced remarks regarding the written reports that were not forthcoming from other committees were heard around the Council table, and during the discussion, the report was written. It was brief, but answered the purpose. Deputy-Reeve Stone and Councillor O'Sullivan withdrew their motion and asked the clerk to read the report. It was read. Councillor MacDonald and the Deputy-Reeve moved that it be accepted. Reeve Bygott moved an amendment that it be not acted upon, since he did not believe the old Jail was central enough for the purpose for which it was proposed to use it.

Councillor O'Sullivan was not in favor of the Mill and Front Streets building. He claimed that the most the town would have would be squatters' rights, since the building stood on Government property. Councillor Wilkinson went somewhat farther into the future when he suggested that the present lease on the Armories would expire and the building could be turned into a municipal office building. The old Jail building would be a suitable place for a drill hall and band room. For police offices in the meautime, he was strongly in favor of the Mill and Front Streets building. He pointed out that it was not so long ago since several hundred dollars had been spent on the jail building and that it had been condemned for a number of years as a place to keep prisoners.

Councillor MacDonald countered Wilkinson's argument by offering to "swap leases." Wilkinson replied by sending Reeve Bygott's amendment. The motion carried but the Mayor did not vote. "I want it understood," he said, "that while I didn't vote, I am not in favor of the motion. I don't think it is a fit place." MacDonald wanted to know who was to look after the work, and Stone and O'Sullivan moved that it be left with the Police Committee. The vote was taken and the Mayor decided to have his say. His vote tied the count, due to the fact that Councillor Wiggins had been excused some time before.

Immediately the Mayor's right to vote was questioned. Some claimed that he could not vote except in the case of a tie, when his vote must be used to determine the issue. The Mayor claimed that he had the right to vote on all questions and the privillage of either voting or not voting as he wished, except in the case of a tie, when his vote was required to be cast. No one was certain, not even the solicitor, who could not remember of a similar occasion ever having come to his attention. He fancied, however, that the Mayor was correct, and could vote if he so desired. The clerk began to look up the ruling but could not find it. He expressed the opinion that the Mayor could vote, and that, in the event of his vote making a tie, the motion, whatever it might be, would be lost. Since there were no authorities on the matter, at hand, it was left with the solicitor to look up the ruling and report his finding to the Council. In the meantime, the question rests.

The accounts and paysheets were presented and passed, and the Council adjourned at 11.30.

LADIES' REST ROOM BY-LAW IS SHELVED

teams and the procuring of a license and amusement tax tickets be left with the chairman; and that the appropriation for musical organizations be $800.00 to the Peterborough Rangers Band, $200.00 to the Salvation Army Band and $200.00 to the Male Voice Choir.

The Finance Committee's report recommended that the committee chairman and the City Treasurer be authorized to open a special account for the Old Home Week and Centennial celebration.

By-Law Passed.

Referred to above, the by-law which was passed on recommendation of the Board of Works, authorized the execution of an agreement with the Warren Bituminous Paving Company for paving with Warrenite Bitulithic, Monaghan Road from Charlotte Street to Elm Street; Gilmour Street from Park Street to Albertus Avenue; Homewood Avenue from Belmont Avenue to Monaghan Road; Belmont Avenue from Homewood Avenue to Weller Street; Walton Street from Homewood Avenue to Weller Street; Leslie Avenue from Gilmour Street to Homewood Avenue, and St. Joseph Street from Charlotte Street to Gilmour Street; the prices to be the same as accepted for the pavement on Park Street from Charlotte Street to Lansdowne Street, and the company to do the extra work as stated in their letter to the City Engineer dated April 23, 1929.

Advantages Shown.

In support of the by-law, Alderman Hamilton addressed the Council, stating that the estimated cost of this amount of paving would be approximately $160,000. Of this amount, the property owners along the streets to be paved, would pay about $72,000, while the city would pay out of the general tax rate, approximately $88,000. The interest and sinking fund on the $88,000 (the city's share) at 5 per cent., ten-year debentures, would be about $11,721.00 yearly, but since the roads are in such bad shape at the present time, the City Engineer had estimated that it would cost $9,500 to repair them properly this year alone. In future years, the average annual cost of maintaining the roads, unless paved, would be about $4,500, so that in reality, the increased cost yearly of paved streets would be only about $7,200 to the city.

Alderman Hamilton further explained that the debentures would not be issued until next year, when the city will have about $85,000 of debentures to be retired, so that the general tax rate will not be increased.

Those owners of property along the streets to be paved will have an increased tax to pay, amounting to about 40 cents a foot frontage, yearly, for ten years or, in other words, on a 40-foot frontage, $16.00 extra a year frontage tax.

That committee also recommended that notice be given of the intention of the Council to construct as a local improvement under the provisions of Section 8 of the Local Improvement Act a sidewalk on the east side of Gilchrist Street from London Street to Dublin Street; that the River Road on the west side be repaired as soon as a supply of cinders is available; that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company be advised that if the company will widen the bridge on Wolfe Street the city will pave Wolfe Street, and that notice be given of the intention of the Council to pave Wolfe Street from Aylmer Street to George Street, and Charlotte Street from Water Street to the easterly end of Charlotte Street as local improvements under Section 8 of the Local Improvement Act.

Left in Abeyance

That there had been considerable pre-meeting disagreement regarding the site of the proposed ladies' room, was proved when Alderman C. H. Huffman arose and expressed his regret that it would again be necessary to withhold the by-law, though it had already been given its first reading.

Ald. McIntyre: "I think we should go ahead with it. The City Trust has agreed to supply the money. I am not in favor of passing it over."

Ald. Huffman: "Neither am I. I move that since it has been given a first reading, the council go into a committee of the whole for the second reading."

Alderman McIntyre seconded the motion, which was acted upon accordingly.

Alderman Holland: "I do not think that, in view of their recent expression on the Hospital and Park by-laws, the public are kindly disposed toward this thing just now." I move a amendment, that the committee arise and report the matter left in abeyance."

Alderman Huffman explained, in speaking to the moton, that the money which the City Trust was offering the city for the purpose of building the rest rooms had been lying unused at a small rate of interest for years, and that the citizens would not feel the cost as it would not affect the tax bill.

Alderman McNabb favored the idea of a ladies' rest room, but was not favorable to the proposed site. He favored leaving the matter in abeyance.

Alderman McIntyre: "If it were going to cost us anything, then I would kick, but it will not increase the tax rate. It is difficult to choose a site suitable to everyone, but I think the one chosen was the most satisfactory."

Alderman Phelan was of the opinion that the city would ultimately feel the expenditure since the Trust was only making the loan. The committee arose and the by-law was shelved.

Proposed Restaurant

V. J. McElderry, K.C., appeared in behalf of a Chinaman seeking the council's approval for a proposed new restaurant over the E. L. Payne's drug store, corner of Simcoe and George streets, but Aldermen Stocker, Macdonald, and McIntyre thought they smelled a rat and demanded more information. They feared the possibility of an all-night dance place.

Alderman Hamilton: "I cannot see any reason why we should be so worried about a cabaret if such it may be. They have them in other places, and, my gosh, if a person can't get up and have a little dancing in his meals, it's a funny thing to me."

Ald. Macdonald: "We should know what we're voting for."

Mayor Denne and other were not satisfied that sufficient detail had been given, and the matter was laid over. Mr. McElderry explained that there was no intention of running a dance hall. He will likely appear before the council at a future date, as his client is anxious to proceed with the work.

Grant to Choir

Just before the close of the meeting, Alderman McNabb asked if the council could do anything further in assisting the male voice choir, in view of its trip to New York. He recalled that some time ago, council had promised to do what it could in the way of financial assistance. He therefore moved that a grant of $100.00 be given the choir. Alderman Stocker seconded the motion, which passed; Aldermen Lowe and McIntyre opposing it.

At the next meeting of the finance committee, the matter of the Utilities Commission surpluses will be a subject of discussion in accordance with a decision reached during last night's meeting. The council felt that in view of the large surplus which the commission has made, steps should be taken to have the Hydro supply power at a closer approach to cost price. It was moved last night that the finance committee invite the Utilities Commission chairman to meet the committee.

MUNICIPAL STATISTICS.

In the matter of assessment valuations, figures given by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that Peterborough stands high up in the list of Ontario cities.

Out of the 28 cities with a population of 10,000 or over, Peterborough stood eighth in 1927, the total taxable valuation being given as $22,791,567.

Of this sum $5,546,025 was for land, $13,245,815 for buildings, $3,099,917 for business and $899,810 for income.

The only Ontario cities that showed a larger total of taxable valuations in that year were Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa, London, Windsor, Brantford and Fort William.

Other municipal statistics of interest show Peterborough twelfth in point of population in the provincial list, and fourteenth as regards area, with Stratford the closest in actual size, the average of Peterborough being given at 2,827, while the Classic City had eight acres more.

GET THEM TOGETHER.

The announcement that veteran bandsmen of the city may get together and organize a band to take part in the Old Home Week celebration, will be received with deep interest, not only locally, but among hundreds of the old boys and girls who have happy memories of the enjoyment they obtained from listening to these bandsmen in the days of yesteryear.

A band of this kind would make a decided contribution to the success of Old Home Week.

It would be a link with the past that would be appreciated by old citizens as well as by former residents.

There cannot be too many of such features.

Old bands, old fire brigades, old choirs, old organizations of all kinds would furnish a background of history for the celebration that would be of inestimable value to the success of the occasion.

All efforts to organize these bodies should receive the hearty support and co-operation of everybody who is interested in Old Home Week.

They will furnish a sentiment and a color to the program that no modern attraction, no matter how ambitious or spectacular, could supply.

CANADA LEADS THE WORLD.

Peterborough radio enthusiasts sat in their homes Sunday afternoon and calmly listened to a new page in the history of communication turned over.

Most of them, calloused to scientific wonders, were scarcely aware of the significance of the occasion, or realized that they were listening to two men doing what had never been accomplished in American before, carrying on a telephone conversation from a moving train and carrying it on as easily as if they were speaking from two 'phones located in the same city.

The success of the demonstration, executed by the Canadian National Railways on Sunday, should thrill all Canadians by the evidence it gave of the success of Canadian achievement and of scientific and engineering skill.

The experiment marked a distinct advance in the field of human communication, and paved the way for the speedy introduction on an every-day basis of telephone service as a new railway feature of practical use and importance.

In this development Canada leads the world, and too much credit cannot be given to the engineering staff of the Canadian National Railways for a success that promises to revolutionize communication.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

The real object of the beautify Toronto campaign that has just been launched is stated to be the encouraging of an environment that will produce better citizens in the future.

That is something to be remembered in the drive that is being made locally for a more beautiful Peterborough.

Up to the present the emphasis has been put upon the effect of a clean and beautiful city upon Old Home Week visitors and upon the stranger within our gates.

But there is something more than that in a city beautiful campaign, something more lasting and more permanent.

The creation of a better environment, the bringing up of children in an atmosphere of neatness and beauty, are made possible by a successful effort along the lines at present being followed.

In other words, we are building not for this year but for every year.

In seeking to encourage a love for trim lawns, beautiful flowers and neat premises and the removal of all eye-sores and ugly spots, the whole atmosphere of a community is made sweeter and the effect upon children growing up under such conditions is of lasting benefit.

The campaign deserves to succeed, therefore, not only for the temporary advantages it will give, but for the impression it will make upon the city of to-morrow.

ONTARIO'S MINES.

Speaking before the South Ottawa Conservative Association on Tuesday night, Mr. Charles McCrea, Ontario Minister of Mines, said:

"Irrespective of what the stock tickers may say, there is abroad an enthusiasm and a mining development that has not been exceeded in any previous year. From Hudson Bay to North Bay there is a mining and prospecting activity that is bound to bring very substantial results to the people of Ontario. Our mines are going down to three and four thousand feet, and ore bodies of great wealth are being plotted and blocked. Great days are now ahead in copper and nickel mining, particularly in the Sudbury district."

This is wholesome optimism. It is a profound mistake to judge the condition of the mining industry, or, indeed, of any industry, by the fluctuations of the stock market. In the case of mines, too many people have failed to make a distinction between mining prospects and mines that are being operated and producing concrete results. In other words, they have confused speculation with investment.

The consequences of this mistake, reflected by the ups and downs of the stock ticker, have not affected the production of mines. To-day, more than ever before in our history, Ontario's mines are richly productive, yielding treasure undreamt of twenty years ago, in a fair way to make this Province and this country among the richest in the world.

This does not mean that there are necessarily great ore bodies wherever eager prospectors may stake a claim, or that all we have to do to get rich is to buy a mining stock. What it does mean, however, is that, no matter what the tickers may say from day to day, there is great prosperity in store for Ontario and for Canada, and that wise investment in mines of demonstrated value will ultimately bring substantial results.—Ottawa Journal.

STRENGTH FOR ANY SHOCK.

The success of Canada's war effort was due in no small measure to the fact that the country was able to add some two billions of dollars to its national debt without running into virtual bankruptcy. Our public debt in 1914 may have seemed large to the people of that day; as a matter of fact, it was very small for a nation that had opened 33,000,000 acres of land to the plow, that had 30,000 miles of railway in operation, that was using 48,000 miles of telegraph line, and had built canals capable of handling 52,000,000 tons of freight yearly.

No one now foresees any early emergency that will require the addition of another billion or two billion dollars to the national debt, but it would imperil Canada's financial position greatly to be forced to undertake large governmental borrowings on any account. Our present national debt is not sufficiently below the post-war peak to give comfort to those who realize that periods of debt expansion often come without warning.

One of the great financial ministers of history, Alexander Hamilton, in a statement made at the time when the young American nation was worrying about its Revolutionary War debt said that "as the vicissitudes of nations beget a perpetual tendency to the accumulation of debt, there ought to be in every government a perpetual, anxious and unceasing effort to reduce that which at any time exists, as fast as shall be practicable."

This advice can be taken to heart by Canada today. Ten years after the war we still have no plan for the extinction of the national war debt; no mathematically devised plan for ridding ourselves of a burden that would prove a very serious obstacle to the financing of either a period of expansion or calamity.

There are times when nations find it impossible to avoid adding rapidly to their debts. The war and the post-war period together comprised such a period. There are times when it is very easy to reduce national debts. The present is such a time for Canada. And so we are wise to make substantial payments off our obligations.

But we are not wise nor far-sighted in our method of doing it. Roughly speaking, the Minister of Finance is adopting the plan of balancing up his accounts at the end of each year and using whatever surplus he has accumulated to pay off bonds without issuing, making new refunding issues. By this method the net debt has been decreased by $226,708,000 or a yearly average of $37,700,000. When the surplus approximates the maturities this rough and ready plan seems to work like a charm, except that it may deny to the tax-payers much-needed relief if a surplus that should be divided between debt payment and tax reduction is used solely for the first purpose. The time is approaching when Canada will have maturities in a single year greatly in excess of any possible surplus. And there are bound to be times when revenues will fall off and expenses increase, a time when surpluses may be converted into deficits.

There should be a well defined plan of debt retirement by the Dominion Government. The exact details of the plan may be left to officials of the finance department to work out, but the skeleton plan has already been developed for the Government by able financiers. It has been established that a sinking fund payment of approximately $23,000,000 a year, plus interest on bonds redeemed through the operation of the fund, would pay off the entire Dominion debt in forty years. If during the forty-year period the debt were increased by new issues of securities, these should be issued on a sinking fund or instalment plan of payment so that at no time would the Dominion Government have any bonds outstanding for which definite repayment provision had not been made. On the average, during the past six years, the Minister of Finance has provided more than $23,000,000 for debt repayment, but the lack of an orderly plan vitiates his methods.

Mr. King has indicated his sympathy with debt retirement by plan and it is now the duty of the Government to implement the carefully guarded promise of the Prime Minister. If such a plan were adopted and carefully adhered to as a minimum, Canada's financial structure would in a few years be sufficiently strong to resist any strain that might arise.—Financial Post.

Kindly stars seem to rule today, according to astrology. It is a day auspicious for most minor activities.

Again women appear to be well directed and they should use their energies wisely.

Warning is given against over-exertion and waste of strength through too much amusement and too little rest.

There is a sign supposed to indicate danger through drinking and stimulants of every sort. Many startling breaks in health will be reported, the seers foretell, but they will teach important lessons.

All the aspects are read as presaging widespread uncovering of perils to the nation through its individuals who indulge unhealthy appetites.

This is an average day in financial transactions and most auspicious for the payment of debts of every sort.

There is a sign of good import for those who buy homes in the country. The tide of population is to recede from the centres of business after sundown, it is foretold.

Astrologers foretell that the total eclipse of the sun tomorrow is most significant in its effect upon banks and financial resources.

It is interpreted as presaging for the United States much discussion of armaments, military and naval affairs will occupy much attention.

Severe storms may be expected in many parts of the world, but the United States will be more fortunate than other countries, it is foretold.

Those who read the stars prognosticate a period of such tremendous prosperity that the past contains nothing comparable to it. Thousands of new millionaires will be counted in the next decade, it is foretold.

Once more astrologers point out the trend toward superb achievements in building here in the United States. Architecture is subject to the most benefic influences.

Why We Do What We Do.

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph. D.
Author of the Springs of Human Action

There is both an historical and a pshychological reason why we have Sundays.

Historically, our modern Christian Sunday is the lineal descendant of the Jewish Sabbath, which fell on Saturday. The ancient Hebrews placed great emphasis upon the Sabbath, the symbol of their religious life. We are told in the Bible that after creating the earth and all living things in six days the Lord rested on the seventh or Sabbath day.

It is not difficult to see why so much of the religious life is bound up in the observance of the Sabbath and why so many acts are prohibited on this holy day. One of the so-called blue laws of New England forbids a man to kiss his wife on Sunday.

Sunday is now observed less as a holy day and more as a holiday. It is the occasion for playing golf, motoring, picnicking, and engaging in other activities that one has not time for during the week. Commercialized amusements, such as the theater, athletic contests, dancing and the like, have done much to break down the holy-day idea.

Thus while Sunday and the Sabbath have a religious origin and purpose, their usefulness does not end there.

A day of rest is a physical and psychological necessity. The rhythmic nature of man requires one day in seven for relaxation and rest, rest in the sense of change and diversion. One needs to get away from the constant grind of the daily task ever so often if he is to retain any interest and enthusiasm for his work. Every football coach knows what it means to have his team go stale; so does every manager of a baseball team or a prize fighter.

In times past certain countries have tried to abolish Sunday as a needless waste of time and in every case they have had to come back to it. One day in ten has also been tried without success.

The seventh day as a day of rest is a psychological necessity. To some it means a holy-day, to others it is merely a holiday. But to all it means change and relaxation which is demanded by our physical and mental make-up and without which life would become a burden.

Why do you do what you do? Ask Dr. Thomson. Write him care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Life Steps In

By RUBY M. AYRES

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Ana got to Brighton before lunch. She rose to the extravagance of a cab and drove up to the house where Miss Sawyer was staying.

"Just the kind of house she would choose," Ana thought with a little shiver, as she looked at the neat lace curtains drawn carefully across the windows to exclude inquisitive eyes. "I wonder why some people are content always to stay in the same rut. I believe Aunt Hilda would die if she had to live in a house with casement curtains or electric light instead of gas."

But Miss Sawyer had died as it was—died quite suddenly in her sleep, so one of the weeping cousins told Ana, as shocked and stunned by the news she stood among them.

The weeping cousins had had no love for Miss Sawyer; they had in fact been looking forward to the day when she would leave them and go back home, and now she had left them indeed, and gone nobody knew where.

"She enjoyed her holiday so much," they wailed, being of the type of person who thinks that death and wailing must of necessity go hand in hand. "She looked so well, and this morning as she did not answer when they took her tea, we went in, and she was lying like she is now, one hand stretched out."

"She used to put out her hand like that to poor old Benny," Ana whispered when later she stood beside Miss Sawyer, looking down at her quiet, cold face, and sudden tears rushed to her eyes.

"I wonder if, perhaps—" she said, and then checked herself, for the cousins were of the type who would have been terribly shocked had she dared to suggest that perhaps poor old Benny had heard the step of his beloved mistress coming along the lonely road of Eternity, and had run away from the Happy Hunting Ground to meet her.

"She loved Benny better than anyone," Ana told herself as she turned away. "And Benny loved her — the only one who did." So that was that.

"And now I'm quite alone," Ana thought, when four days later she went back to Wimbledon, and walked round the house pulling up the drawn blinds, followed closely by Martha, who had met her at the station.

Martha was more eloquent than she had ever been in her life.

"It don't seem possible," she said over and over again. "It really don't seem possible, Miss Ana! and her so well and strong. I'm sorry for you, miss—all alone. What will you be doing?"

"I don't know. I haven't had time to think yet."

But there were two things she could do if she wished, she knew—go and live with Jessica, or marry Tom Drake.

They had both written to her, and Tom was coming to see her that afternoon.

"I'm not going to say I'm sorry," the First Prayer had bluntly commenced her letter. "To me death of my relatives is never a cause for sorrow, but I'm sorry you're alone. Anyway, my offer holds good if you care to take it. Come and live with me. Think it over and let me know. I won't bother you by coming along unless you want to see me, but if you do, send a note."

"That's kind of her," Ana thought gracefully, but she was not sure that she wanted to live with the First Prayer.

Their mode of living was so different.

"There I am—afraid to get into a new rut," Ana told herself disgustedly.

Drake brought her a basket of wonderful roses. "If only he knew how I hate roses!" Ana thought wildly, remembering the one she had fastened so happily into her coat the day she started for Paradise only to find the gates barred in her face.

"You can't stay in here alone," he told her. "Let me take you to my sister's. She'll be delighted to have you."

But Ana would not.

"I must stay here and settle things up. I'm not alone now. Martha is with me. I'm really quite all right."

He did not mention marriage to her again; he contented himself by saying, "Well, you know where I am when you want me."

"I shall never want him, not in the way he means," Ana thought as she watched him drive away down the road. "He's a dear, but I don't want him—I never shall."

There was no word from Anthony, and Ana was afraid to write to Mollie or ask for news of the General.

A week dragged by. Miss Sawyer had left no will so the few possessions she had went to Ana as the nearest relative.

Ana put the house up for sale and arranged to dispose of the furniture.

"It will be the first step out of the rut," she told herself. "I must start life again with everything different."

She gave Martha the aspidistra, much to Martha's delight.

"My mother will take care of it, miss," she declared. "It'll do beautiful in our front parlour window. It'll get all the sun." Ana wanted to say that Miss Sawyer always said sunshine ruined the leaves, but she held her peace. What did it matter after all? She felt strangely detached during those days. It was almost like living in a dream. The "TO BE SOLD" board at the gate seemed the greatest part of the unreality. How Miss Sawwyer would have hated it! and the muddy marks the auctioneer's clerks left about the house when they came to look at the furniture and catalogue it.

So much seemed to have happened in such a little while. The quiet stream of life had suddenly changed into a tempestuous stream that was rushing her along on its bosom leaving far behind the old landmarks to which she had grown so accustomed. Soon there would not be one of them left.

Still there was no word from Anthony, though she thought of him every moment of the day—and then one afternoon when Ana was having a cup of tea in the front room which tomorrow was to be dismantled and cleared out for the auction to be held in it, Martha came beaming to the door.

"A lady to see you, miss. I said you was at tea, but she said she was sure you would see her."

Ana frowned; she was not in a mood for visitors, and she was sure it would only be one of Miss Sawyer's cronies who had come round to poke an inquisitive nose into affairs.

She rose from the table. "Who is it, Martha? Didn't she give a name? I don't want to see anyone today."

It's Mrs. Hambledon, miss," said Martha.

"I will not see her," were the words that rushed to Ana's lips, but with great effort she checked them. At least she would hear something of Anthony.

"Ask her to come in, please," she said slowly.

Mollie was obviously rather nervous. She was beautifully dressed, as usual.

"All new clothes again," Ana thought with a pang as she contrasted the cheap black frock, which she had bought as a sop to conventionality, with Mollie's smart coat and expensive little hat.

Mollie waited till Martha had shut the door behind her, then she came forward with a little rush.

"I hope you don't mind me coming. I've only just heard about your aunt, and I'm sorry. I wanted to write, but it's so difficult to write letters like that. Ana, you look frightfully ill."

"Do I?" Ana flushed crimson. "I've had rather a worrying time one way and another. Won't you sit down? I'll get you some fresh tea."

"Not for me."

"Oh, but you must have some."

Ana was glad to escape for a moment. She gave the pot to Martha and went up to her own room to try and compose herself, but she was shaking in every limb, and in her heart she was saying passionately over and over again, "I hate her — oh, how I hate her."

Uncle Wiggily

A Bed-Time Story by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGLYS LOLLYPOP—C
UNCLE WIGGILY'S LOLLYPOP PARTY

Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis)

With Baby Bunty, Jingle and Jangle tagging after him, Uncle Wiggly hopped across his newly made garden to the corner where the little rabbit girls had said they planted some pennies.

"The idea!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily to himself as he twinkled his pink nose. "The silly idea of these little bunnies thinking if they planted pennies in the garden, as I plant seeds, that the pennies would grow into nickles and dimes in one day. Ha! Ha!"

For that is what Baby Bunty, Jingle and Jangle thought as I told you in the story before this. In the morning, on their way to school, they had begged some pennies of Uncle Wiggily. He stopped his garden making long enough to pull out a paw full of dimes, nickles and other money, and gave the little rabbits all his brown pennies.

In the afternoon they wanted more pennies, and when he asked what they had done with those he gave them in the morning, Bunty told about planting them.

"But it was silly! said Mr. Longears. And now he was on his way to the corner of the garden where the little bunny rabbit girls had pointed out as the place where they had dug holes and put their pennies under ground. "It was very silly. I'll dig up the pennies you planted and show you they haven't grown into even more pennies, let alone changing into nickles and dimes."

"I thought pennies were like cabbage seed," sighed Bunty. "You plant little cabbage seeds and pretty soon they grow into big cabbages. I thought pennies would grow, too."

"So did I!" said Jingle and Jangle.

"Nonsense!" laughed Uncle Wiggily.

With his spade shovel Uncle Wiggily began digging in the corner of his garden. Standing in front of him, looking eagerly at the brown earth as he turned it over, were the three little rabbit girls.

"Did you plant the pennies very deep?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Not very," answered Jangle as her father turned over a shovel of earth. "Oh, look, there's one now!" she cried, pointing to a penny.

"Yes, so it is," said Uncle Wiggily, stooping to pick it up. "Well we'll soon have all your money back, and after this don't be so silly as to plant any more of it."

He turned another spade full of earth and, all of a sudden, Baby Bunty jumped up and down and, pointing her paw, cried:

"Look, there's a nickel!"

"And a dime!" shouted Jangle.

"Two dimes!" exclaimed Jingle. "Oh, what a lot of money! Look! Our pennies have grown! See, there's a quarter and fifty cents and a lot of dimes and some nickels and Oh! Oh! We're rich!"

Uncle Wiggily could hardly believe his eyes, but, surely enough scattered among the brown pennies which the little rabbit girls had planted was quite a lot of other money — domes, nickles, quarters and even a big half dollar or fifty cent piece.

"Oh, goodie! Goodie!" cried Baby Bunty.

"Isn't it wonderful!" shouted Jingle.

"Now, Daddicums! What about it?" asked Jangle, pointing her paw at Mr. Longears. "See! We told you the pennies would grow if we planted them in your garden."

"No! It can't be! It's impossible!" said Uncle Wiggily, using a big word he was so excited. "I'm dreaming!"

All of a sudden Bunty leaned over and pinched him

"Ouch! What's that for?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

That's to sow you're awake and aren't dreaming!" laughed the little rabbit orphan. "But isn't this a lot of money and didn't it grow from the pennies we planted?"

Uncle Wiggily didn't know what to say until he happened to put his paw in his pocket and then he found a hole. And he knew how it had all come about. After he had given the little rabbit girls the pennies in the morning, he remembered that he put the rest of the money back in another pocket. And it was a pocket that had a hole in it. So the dimes, nickles, quarters and half dollar dropped out on the ground and, in raking in his seeds, Uncle Wiggily covered the money over.

Then the bunny girls planted their pennies in that same place and, of course, when Uncle Wiggily turned the earth over he found the money that had dropped through the hole in his pocket and he also found the planted pennies. He told the little bunnies this was how it had happened.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Bunty, Jingle and Jangle. "Then money won't grow in the garden!" And they were sad until Uncle Wiggily took a dime and bought some lollypops and made a party with an old stump for a table.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

PLANTING TIME

The springtime is the planting time.
Plant something as you go.
I do not mean a vine to climb,
Or just a rose to blow,
Ah, no!
Plant something kind
In someone's mind,
And leave it there to grow.

The planting time is not the spring,
One season more or less.
The world could be a lovely thing,
The lives of men to bless,
Ah, yes,
If hearts would leave
In hearts that grieve
The seeds of happiness.

It may be just a bit of verse,
Yet hearts will say, "how true!"
Yes, make it better and not worse.
This world that you pass through—
Ah, you
Could make this earth,
A place of mirth
If you remembered to!

All lifetime is a planting time,
So plant the minds of men
With words of love, with bits of rime
From some sweet singer's pen—
Ah, then
The world would be
So fair to see,
An Eden once again.

Any monies that will be expended on this stretch will be for maintenance only. It is pointed out that stretches of the highway were constructed last year and had not properly settled as yet. This condition was further aggravated by the heavy rains this spring, which have damaged the roadway in some places.

GOODYEAR TIRE REGISTERS GAIN

General Lack of Interest Held Responsible For the Decline.

DE FOREST ADVANCES.

TORONTO, Ont., May 7 (Canadian Press). — Stocks showing any progress were exceptions to the general price trend on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, when practically all the leading issues were forced downward by a general lack of interest. There were, however, a few issues, such as G. S. Wares, De Forest Crosley, and Goodyear Tire, which continued their advances of yesterday. Goodyear made another gain of 10 points to 370, while De Forest in fairly active trading, shot up 3 points to 67½. A few shares of G. S. Wares changed hands, 1½ points higher at 34. International Nickel clung to the morning's high of 53, fractionally stronger while Pressed Metals and English Electric B both showed some improvement.

Liquidation in Lake Superior sent the price tumbling to a low of 17¼, with the noon price of 21, the morning's high, showing a net loss of 1¾ points. Ford A at 63, Massey-Harris at 73, Hayes Wheels at 63½, and G. W. Saddlery at 22½ were all a little softer

Wheat Receives Setback, Corn and Rye Also Down

CHICAGO, Ills., May 7. (C.P.) — Despite moves to utilize government ships to carry surplus grain to foreign markets, wheat values here started a sharp early setback to-day. Generally selling on account of increased weakness of European markets carried wheat, corn and rye down to new low records for the season. Opening 1-2 to 3-4c lower Chicago wheat later showed additional downturns. Corn started at a shade to 3-4c decline, but afterwards scored gains. Oats held about steady. Provisions were firmer.

ISSUES SOAR HEAVY TRADING LATE SESSION

Market Opens Weak Due to Low Supply of Available Money.

RATE AT 14 PER CENT.

Influenced By Merger Rumor Public Utility Shares Lead Advance.

(By Stanley W. Prenosil, Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 7. —The stock market gave an impressive demonstration of strength to-day in the face of unusually high call money rates. Prices faltered somewhat at the opening when it became evident that the supply of money available was low, but a rally set in soon after the renewal rate had been fixed at 14 per cent. and continued through the early afternoon trading.

Public Utility shares were again in the forefront of the advance with buying influenced by merger rumors, reports of large current earnings and talk of new electrification and superpower projects. International Telephone soared 10 points to a new top at 157 5-8. American and Foreign Power, American Waterworks, and Columbia Gas each sold at least 3 points above yesterday's final quotations.

While a few high priced specialties in which favorable developments are pending continued to show outstanding strength, there was a noticeable shift in speculative activity to the low priced shares, influenced in part, by the high carrying charges on marginal accounts.

PRICES SLUMP ON WINNIPEG MARKET

Proposed Railway Grain Rate Reduction Throws Curb Into Turmoil.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 7 (C.P.).— Proposed grain rate reduction in United States railway lines threw the wheat market here to-day into a turmoil. May wheat dropped 5¾ to $1.14; July fell back 6⅞ cents to $1.13, and October 7⅛ cents at $1.13½. These figures are all new lows for the season. Slumps at Chicago and Liverpool were also recorded and the Winnipeg market quickly fell in line with drastic declines.

OIL GOSSIP

Through Solloway, Mills and Company.

ASSOCIATED

Associated Oil, which has been neglected for some time, moved up Friday. It is being recommended for a hold in well informed circles. Now drilling into sands where good crude oil products are expected. They are taking 11-inch casings down to Dalhousie sands and if crude products warrant, it will run a new 8-inch casing to limestone. Associated prospects of being big producer bright.

Southwest Pete.

With 640 acres in south end of Turney Valley and only 500,000 shares issued at last report, public beginning to appreciate possibilities of Southwest Petroleum. Geologists say that study of structure shows west boundary as shown on maps and which takes in about half Southwest Pete's acreage, should be pushed west and run along westerly boundary of Southwest Pete. This is an accepted theory and explains why so many oil men think so well of this Imperial subsidiary operation.

CALMONT

Drilling campaign laid out by Calmont is most pretentious of independent operators in Turner Valley and is exceeded only by Royalite, the major operator in field. Further Calmont is already receiving drilling outfits to go ahead. Acreage to be drilled regarded ideal as new wells will offset Okalta 1 and Home 1, two of Valley's million dollar wells. No other company in Valley has acreage to offset these two huge producers.

SUNLIGHT

Sunlight Oils acreage lies across southern part of the structure. It is about one-sixth of a mle deep, that is north to south, but a half mile across the face of structure, that is east to west, which provides an interesting number of drilling sites from centre or dome of structure down side of east flank almost to present accepted easterly limts.

EAST CREST

Drilling being resumed on East Crest after delay awaiting some casing to shut off gas. This well is high on structure, much the same as that of Southwest Petroleum and for this reason is beng watched closely. Success of this operation will mean a great deal to section south of Home and on east flank of structure.

OPPOSE AUTOMOBILES.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, May 7.—The Bermuda House of Assembly has again rejected proposals to introduce automobiles into the island. The present bill proposed the use of a limited number of motor buses to be operated by the Government until a railway now under construction had been completed.

TRADING LAX ON MINE CURB

Noranda Holds Unchanged While Lake Shore Suffers Light Loss.

MINOR PRICE CHANGES.

TORONTO, Ont., May 7 (Canadian Press).—With the active leaders still to be found in Newbec, Ajax and a few of the lower-priced oils, trading turned quite listless on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning. Price changes, though numerous, were, except in a few cases, insignificant. Noranda had about only half of its usual turnover and held unchanged at 54.00, while Lake Shore eased 25 to 26.50, as did McIntyre to 17.75, Home Oil to 24.00, and Pend Oreille to 6.25.

Ajax was subjected to profit-taking and broke to a low of 1.30, but later recovered to 1.40, still off 7 points. Newbec was off ½ at 45½. Lowery Petroleum was inactive and slumped 24 cents to 4.75, while Sterling Pacific dipped 21 to 2.30. South-West Petroleum 15 to 6.60, and Baltic 15 to 3.35. Big Missouri in a fairly substantial turnover, held unchanged at 1.44.

NEWS FROM THE MINES

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

FALCONBRIDGE NICKEL

Shaft is down to 800 feet at Falconbridge. Will be continued to 1,000. Several levels will be opened up simultaneously. On 250 level 73 feet of 3 to 5 per cent copper-nickel ore developed. Narrower on 350 level. Diamond drilling showed better widths below this. Site cleared for smelter and excavations starting. Smelter will consist of blast furnaces, crucible, and two converters, one as spare. Capacity of 200 to 250 tons per day of combined metals. This can be added to should circumstances warrant

TREADWELL YUKON

Recent results underground have been much better at Treadwell Yukon. Probable that No. 2 shaft will be continued from 630 feet to 1,500. Diamond drills exploring depths up to 1,500 feet. Concentrator handling 300 tons per day. Concentrates of lead and copper shipped to New York. Zinc concentrates to Belgium. Concentrator is doing much better lately.

SUDBURY BASIN

Two drills are working on shore of Vermillion Lake on Sudbury Basin property. Understood results have been good. One hold cut 45 feet of 5 per cent. copper and 8 per cent. zinc, with 8 oz. of silver. Newly acquired property in Strathcona Township being diamond drilled. This is a copper-nickel prospect.

McVITTIE GRAHAM

Shaft down to 300 feet and some drifting done on Moose Lake property of McVittie Graham. Results to date inconclusive.

BUNKER HILL EXTENSION

Have sent a party into Crow River.

CENTRAL PATRICIA

Eight holes now drilled at Central Patricia. All expect one hole cut ore which showed better than commercial values over good widths.

OFFICERS INSTALLED INTO LOCAL LODGE

Past Grand Master's Jewel is Presented to Sheik F. J. Batten.

The regular monthly meeting of Cyzicus Sanctorum, No. 24, Ancient Mystic Order of Samaritans was as usual a success in every way and included the installation of officers, conferring degrees, moonfeast and music.

Visitors from Khari Sanctorum, No. 235 Bowmanville included P.D.D.S.M. F. J. Moore; P.G.M. J. C. Hobbs; Gd. Mon. Al Densen; Ven. Friar W. Mills; Gd. Councillor B. Cauldwell; Vice Gd. Mon. R. French; Gd. Chief Guide T. C. Garton; Gd. Herald E. Forsey, and Samaritans F. Bookham; P. Lambrino; W. S. Sheardown, and W. J. Hoskin.

Following the transaction of general business, the officers surrendered their chairs to District Deputy Supreme Monarch Edwin Norman and his suite, when the following officers of Cyzicus Sanctorum were duly installed into their several offices: Ven. Friar, F. J. Batten, P.G.M.; Gd. Mon., G. J. Wyatt; Vice Gd. Mon., D. J. McIntyre; Gd. Councillor, A. H. Mowry; Registrar, W. F. Green, P.G.M.; Banker, Edwin Norman, P.G.M.; Gd. Monitor, R. Bates; Gd. Chief Guide, H. Anderson; Gd. High Ex., Wm. J. Bull; Gd. Herald, J. Beckerman.

At the conclusion of the installing ceremony, D.D.S.M. Norman called Sheik F. J. Batten to the front, and in a few well chosen words presented him, on behalf of Cyzicus Sanctorum, with a beautiful past grand monarch's jewel, suitably engraved, and for which Sheik Batten expressed his sincere thanks and appreciation for the honor done him.

The degree team of No. 24 then took charge and conferred the degree of humility on a class of neophytes, after which the Moonfeast was heartily partaken of, catered for by Samaritan Willam J. Bull.

Arrangements are already being made by a number of the Samaritans in this city and district to attend the annual session of the order in Hartford, Connecticut, where a splendid program of activities has been provided, covering four days and nights. Every event being free to visitors, with the exception of the airplane sight-seeing trips for which a small charge is made.

There are 1536 churches in New York.

FOUR CLASSES OF FURNITURE

A. D. Bennett Speaker at Weekly Luncheon of Campbellford Rotary Club.

MEMBERS ABSENT.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Since five of the local Rotarians are attending the convention in Erie, there were several vacant chairs around the luncheon table yesterday noon. In the absence of the president and secretary, H. N. Carr and Elie Brunelle filled the offices pro tem. The guests at the luncheon were George Hooten, Reeve of Cavan, and M. A. Powell, of Ottawa, of the Department of Immigration. Rev. Bob Tait was the soloist. He sang "Give Me the Open Road" (Delmair).

Furniture was the subject of the classification speech delivered by A. D. Bennettt. In opening his address, he said, "it would probably be disjointed to a certain extent, like the missionary sermon that had once been preached." The minister he claimed, had selected his text then "Gone all over preaching the Gospel." He did not attempt to describe antique furniture, but based his remarks on the standard types of the present age. This was made in several classes. Case goods was entirely of wood which was manufactured and crated ready for shipment. It included such articles as bedroom suites, dining tables and chairs, office furniture. Then there was the upholstered brand in which the structure was hidden by cloth or leather upholstery. The third classification was woven goods such as reed and wicker work. This, he said, was mostly manufactured by machinery at the present time. Bed mattresses and similar articles formed the fourth classification. In this line the purchaser had to depend almost entirely on the honesty of the manufacturer and the dealer from whom they made their purchase, since most of the quality was hidden in the inner portions of the article.

In the manufacture of wooden articles, oak, birch, and walnut were the principal woods used, although mahogany, willow, elm, and several others also found their way into the process. There were numerous finishes for each of the woods, and this together with the style and workmanship, had much to do with the price of the article. Stain and varnish was, perhaps, the cheapest finish. This was the usual method employed with such articles as kitchen chairs that retail at low prices. The more expensive furniture has usually had a more complicated and smoother finish that has required much more time, material, and labor. This, of course, added to the cost of the article.

"Modern furniture factories were surprisingly interesting," he said. Last winter he had had occasion to visit a large factory in Montreal, and the modern machinery employed there had been a revelation to him. The lumber was brought in in truck load lots and delivered automatically to an expert sawyer, who cuts the boards into standard lengths, at the same time cutting out the knots. These lengths were carried on a conveyor belt to a sorter who sent them to their proper destinations. Briefly then, Mr. Bennett described the method used in making table tops and legs. The legs were manufactured automatically by machinery. An armful of posts cut to the proper length were dropped into the feedway of the machine and it fed itself automatcally, discharging the finished product. "The finishing and polishing was practically all done by pneumatic tools," he said.

The manufacture of coil springs for mattresses was the last detail he dealt with, explaining the process from the time the wire arrived in huge rolls till it came out of the other end of the series of operations, coiled and covered and ready for the assembly process which would make it into mattresses or chair cushions as desired.

Peterborough's Y.M.C.A. was Founded 60 Years Ago

HISTORY OF LOCAL INSTITUTION HAS BEEN ONE OF PROGRESS AND EVER-INCREASING IN ITS SCOPE

Peterborough's Young Men's Christian Association Was Established in 1869.

ACTIVITIES ARE MANIFOLD.

Organization Was Started Through Faithful Efforts of Sheriff James Hall and Mr. Gilbert.

Progress and the ever-increasing scope of its activities and membership have marked the history of the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association since its inauguration in 1869. It is just sixty years ago since its first founding and this year, in order to mark its Diamond Jubilee, the Association is planning to take yet a larger place in the life of the city. The membership has swelled until it has now reached the largest in its history, 726, and in every respect this promises to be a banner year.

The extent of the activities of the "Y" are manifold. It is the athletic centre of the city. It is the rendezvous and social centre for hundreds of men, young men and boys. It trains, teaches and inspires, and develops the healthy body along with the clean mind and intellect that fits the boy for success as a man. During the sixty years of its activities such progress has been made through the wise-planning of its directors, that now it is admirably fitted to take its responsible place.

The history of the Y.M.C.A. has been one continual struggle but, with one exception, it has never faltered in its steady progress. Started in 1869, through the faithful and devoted efforts of Sheriff James Hall, grandfather of the present sheriff, and the late Mr. Gilbert, the Y.M. C.A. continued along through a stormy sea until 1879, when for financial reasons it had to be discontinued.

Revived in 1881.

In 1881, however, it was revived again by the energetic efforts of Mr. Gilbert and G. S. Williams, who was the first paid secretary. The home of the Association consisted of two rooms over "The Fair" on George street, somewhere near where the Peterborough Hardware Store now stands.. From that time there is a record of unbroken progress and success. After several years occupation of these rooms it became incorporated under the name "Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association" and secured new and larger quarters over the old Post Office, where a progressive work under the secretaryship of R. J. Collville, and Mr. Stephens was conducted. More extensive quarters were again required and these were obtained over the store of James Long. Shower baths and a small gymansium were at the service of the members. These were at once appreciated by the young men and the association enjoyed a strong wave of popularity.

Mrs. Nicholls' Legacy to the "Y."

In 1890, the late Mrs. Nicholls died, leaving a legacy to the association of $20,000. The directors then felt warranted in proceeding with the desired building operation. On March 31, 1895, plans for a new building were submitted by William Blackwell, architect, and in 1897 the Association moved into its present home, corner of George and Murray streets. Since that time all phases of the work have been successfully conducted.

During the time from its inception until the erection of the building, the work of the association was carried on with considerable worrw and anxiety on the part of those actively interested, owing to the difficulty of obtaining subscriptions to liquidate the annual expense. On several occasions, but for the strenuous, faithful and persevering efforts on the part of one or more of the directors the association's doors would have been closed.

An agitation was started in 1894 for the erection of a dormitory in the association where young men away from home might enjoy the atmosphere of a Christian organization. After very careful consideration the board of directors favored the proposition and in May, 1905, dormitories were erected.

Camp Site Bought in 1906.

In July, 1906, a camp site at Clear Lake was purchased, which was used, until a few years ago, for the annual camp in the summer.

In July, 1908, the association broadened its activities again by installing bowling alleys and enlarging the Boys' Department.

Billiard tables were placed in the association's rooms in 1912 for the use of the members, who thus were enabled to participate in th's fine game under proper influences

The property to the south of the building now used as tennis courts was acquired in 1906, and in the fall of 1915 the southern wing of the building was added, which increased greatly the size of the Boys' Department, and added another entrance.

The following men gave honorable and faithful service as president of the association up until the year 1914: S. M. Roger, H. S. Griffin, O. C. Rouse, J. W. Bennet, B. F. Ackerman, R. E. Harding, J. H. Connal, J. F. Jeffers, J. W. Flavelle, D. B. Gardiner, Alfred Parker, W. M Madill, P. C. Shook, J. C. Turnbull, J. W. Hilliard, G. J. Earley, W. D Scott, M.D., E. B. Edwards, J. J. Turner, Jr.

Besides those mentioned above the secretaries gave many years of faithful service in that capacity during the years of the association's greatest trials. These were: W. F. Chapman, R. O. Crowe, H. V. Smith, C. H. Williamson, H. C. Wright, F G. Hassard, H. N. Gilchrist, and A. A. Hainsworth.

Well Fitted Building.

The Y.M.C.A. building, although beginning to feel rather crowded because of the large number who are now taking advantage of the athletic, social, recreational, and Christian fellowship that it offers, is admirably fitted for its purpose The large lobby and lounge room is comfortably fitted up with numerous easy chairs and chesterfields. The piano in this room is constantly being hammered by those musically inclined to the delight or discomfort of those nearby. A feature, lately added, but that has enjoyed great popularity is the six-tube radio set that brings in music at all times. To the south of the lobby is the reading room, which contains all the best in newspapers and magazines.

The Boys' Department in the south wing is a large bright room and it is the sanctum of the youth of the city. There after school hours, young heads are puckered over chess, which is enjoying a great rush of popularity, checkers and ping-pong.

The second and third floors of the building contain the dormitories, kitchen and dinink room, which also serves for meetings. In all there are 27 dormitories, comfortable, airy and spotlessly clean. These form a comfortable home for many young men. Besides the usual transit guest, who is always most pleased to stay at the "Y," accommodation was given free of charge to an average of four English immigrant boys a week during last year. In this way the Y.M.C.A. officials are not only enabled to give them comfortable, clean sleeping quarters, but they also give them good advice and get them over their first loneliness and strangeness. They often find employment for them and give them a four weeks' membership to the association free of charge, which grants the boy free use of the showers and social privileges.

270 in Boys' Department.

There are in all 270 boys in the boys' department under the supervision of F. G. McNeeley, boys' secretary. Besides the activities in physical training, group games and athletics in the gymnasium the boys have a stamp club, which meets to learn to identify stamps, mounting, and all the interesting points about this hobby. They also have the annual Hobby Show which is managed except for some of the details by the boys themselves. Then, too, there is the bi-monthly movie show and supper in the gymnasium.

The boys are taught swimming in the tank under expert teaching and constant coaching. .This is now being opened up to all those who desire to learn swimming and from now until the warm weather daily classes will be conducted in the tank to teach all who come the art.

Divided into the four groups, intermediate, senior, young men and business, the rest of the membership —456 in number—enjoy the full privileges of the gymnasium and showers. Such group games as basketball and volley ball are constantly in progress in the gym and in the classes those who wish it are taught apparatus work on the rings, bars and horse and tumbling on the mat. In the tower of the building is the handball court and the boxing room, both of these activities are gaining in popularity and scope.

Social Activities.

Some of the social activities are the Friday Supper Club with a membership of 72 boys, who meet for supper on Friday evenings. The boys hear addresses on subjects of inspiration and instruction by outside speakers, and the club is under the direction of J. F. H. Wallace. On Thursday evening the Y's Men's Club, an older group, meets for supper, lectures and social good times. On Wednesday evening the Leaders' Corps meets to plan and develop themselves to take an active part in serving as leaders in the various phases of "Y" work. During the winter months the Sunday Night Club holds a Sunday evening supper meeting, when they discuss and study the Christian life. The Harriers' Club, which was organized by the boys themselves to develop middle-distance running, is having great success.

The Ladies' Auxiliary meets monthly and raises the funds to equip and decorate the dormitories as well as being always present to help when any of the clubs or organizations are serving a supper or banquet.

The Ministerial Association uses the reading room of the "Y" for its regular monthly meetings, and many of the ministers are keen members of the gymnasium classes.

The Y.M.C.A. has taken on the duty of directing the Rotary Boys' Camp at Clear Lake, and the association also supplies the older leaders for this splendid summer camp.

Considering all this, it must be said that the Y.M.C.A. fills a place in the city of Peterborough that can never be reckoned in dollars. The contribution it makes to healthy bodies, sportsmanship and good citizenship can not be overly estimated.

GOOD ROADS MEETING.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 7. (C.P.) — Assembled for a two day convention to discuss plans for the improvement of Canada's highways, to contemplate policies which would further protect the public and still further spread the network of roads over the Dominion, some thirty delegates attended the opening session of the Interprovincial Conference of the Canadian Good Roads Association here to-day. Delegates from Alberta in the west and from Prince Edward Island in the east, representatives of railway systems, and various public bodies, will spend to-day and to-row considering transportation problems generally, giving special consideration to a study of the cost of construction and maintenance of highways, regulations, and the advisability of seeking Federal aid for Provincial roads.

MAN STILL MISSING.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 7. —Despite a thorough search of the surrounding district and the river front, no trace has yet been found of Peter Dunphy, 65, who disappeared from his home Sunday night, wearing a light sweater and bedroom slippers. A reward of $200 has been offered by his family for iinformation regarding the case.

OLD BUILDINGS CAUSE INTEREST

Story Told of Structures Now Being Wrecked at George and Simcoe.

(By F. H. D.)

The wrecking of the buildings at the corner of Simcoe and George Streets has provoked numberless questions as to by whom were the structures erected, who supplied the capital, in the early years, and who occupied the stores after they were ready for occupancy. So a word or two may settle for disputants these mooted questions.

The buildings under demolition were built by Elias Burnham, barrister and business man. Indeed he was the first lawyer to settle in Peterborough, coming in about 1843, and at once gained a fairly large practice. In those days the matter of metes and bounds, meaning the areas of lots and locations, all poorly defined on the original survey of the town site, provoked innumerable law suits. In handling such Mr. Burnham proved to be very skilful.

Two years after the incorporation of the town he undertook the erection of the block on the corner. He had secured land on the west side of George street, reaching from the corner of Simcoe street south for nearly three-quarters of the face of the block. Land did not cost much at the time. The site of the original building of the Peterborough Lock Works (the old Helm foundry) cost only thirty dollars.

The buildings were of four stories and impressive height in those days. The mansard roof was an after addition. William Eastland, general merchant, occupied the corner store, with A. Coddote, grocer, and John Moloney, groceries and liquors, completing the tenants of the first building. As opportunity offered Mr. Burnham added other stores, so that by the end of 1858 the west side of the street held several important places of business, including that built for hotel purposes and leased to Leon Caissie, who moved over from the corner of Hunter and Water streets to the new premises. In after years the depth of the stores, that is from entrance to rear, was extended to make room for enlarging trade. The site of this block was esteemed largely the best in the town, so much so that the upper premises above the stores were promptly leased for many purposes. George A. Cox, who was coming into prominence as a rising business man, and had taken the first agency for the newly organized North-Western Telegraph Company, moved over to the upper rooms and added, in his care, the local business of the Canada Life Insurance Co., recently organized. He also took custody of the library of the old Mechanics' Institute, and in slack hours dispensed books to those who were inclined to read.

The time was when it seemed as if the business section of the town would grow to the north, up George street. It has been practically confined to three blocks, south from Brock street. From Hunter street to Charlotte street, the west side has never been without a tenant for the last fifty years. So plainly was this preference apparent that nearly thirty years ago the important drygoods business of Richard Hall & Son removed from Simcoe street (where the firm had built a very fine premises) to occupy three of the Burnham block stores, combined in one large emporium. By this time the Burnham block had lost all recognition under that name and had passed into other hands. For a time the corner, a valuable business site, was occupied by Kingan & Co., hardware merchants and jobbers, the firm taking possession in the year 1893, remaining until disposed by the purchase of the site by other interests.

In the meantime, before the Kingan occupancy, the Dolans, W. Fairweather, Thos. Kelly and others occupied the corner store, all after the death of the original tenant, W. Eastland.

The building now being taken down is a pretty fair sample of pre-Confederation building. It is immensely strong and sturdy, standing on stone foundations three feet thick, with cut stone courses supporting the brick. William Yates, who built the stone hotel, now known as the Montgomery House, was the contractor for the foundations. The old hotel building is a fair sample of the sturdy and rigid work done by this contractor. It was built for Richard Winch, Sr., who, when finished, carried on a meat business in the east end of the ground floor, while the old Commercial Bank found quarters in the west end.

The rear of the ground floor, occupied by the Kingans, contains a room about twenty feet square. This was, for a time, the first office of the Bank of Toronto when it was organized in Peterborough. The wall still shows an iron grating inserted in an aperture about one foot square, supposedly for ventilation, in case any one was trapped in the vault.

GIFT OF $25.

A pleasing and most acceptable letter came in the mail this morning to Mayor Denne from A. R. Bennett, of Great Neck, N. Y., speaking in terms of praise of the enterprise of the Old Home Week, and enclosing a postal order for $25 as an evidence of good faith. His occupation when in Peterborough was that of a painter, and doubtless many will remember him in the years that have gone. Mention is made of Mr. Bennett's gift as an example to others.

His former home was on Townsend street and a brother still resides at 268 London street.

No Place Like Home.

Darrell Shannon, 6058 Hazlett avenue, Detroit, left his home here in 1918. He resided at 133 Stewart street and his wife was Katherine Willshaw. Mr. Shannon says, "Nothing is ever just like the old home town."

There With Bells.

"We will be there with bells on." says JaJmes Hendry, 383 Earl Street, Kingston, whose home was at 135 Lansdowne avenue. Two brothers, Tom and Bob, still reside in Peterborough

Mr. Hendry left here in 1917, and remarks, "Peterborough being my first Canadian home, I have a very warm feeling toward the old town."

E. F. McGee, secretary of Loyal Orange Lodge, county of West Peterborough, writes to advise that the order will erect an arch and thus share in the Old Home Week decorative preparations. The position of the arch has not been determined, but will be discussed with the chairman of the Committee on Decorations. Ald. R. S. Cotton.

From Waterloo.

"During my seven years residence in Peterborough, I thought it was one of the finest places in the world in which to live" says Charles C. Parsons, Waterloo, Ontario, "and I have no doubt that I would still think so should I find my lines cast in the old City again."

Mr. Parsons, who is a bank manager, left his home at 182 McDonnell street in April, 1918. His wife was formerly Katie Leary.

Hopes To Be Here.

Edward W. Squires, 6 Beulah Ave., Hamilton, who left his home on Albert street in 1895 and is now a salesman with the Dominion Rubber Company Ltd., says, "I always have a warm spot in my heart for Peterborough and I hope to be with you Old Home Week."

Admires Beauty.

REGISTER Of Social and Business Meetings

The Register is published to enable organizations planning major meetings to know in advance, and reserve, evenings on which there are no rival attractions. It will pay Peterborough organizations to consult the Register prior to settling dates. Responsible officers should mail notices well in advance.

Before deciding a date for any event, consult the Register to ascertain that there is no conflict with other events—and then send in YOUR date quickly so that other organizations will not use it.

TORONTO HAS BIG MEETING

Old Boys and Girls Organize For Return in July.

BRING BAND.

Special from Toronto to-day comes the advice that a most enthusiastic meeting of ex-Peterborough Old Boys and Girls was held in that city at noon when, at a luncheon given by Frank O'Connor, well known locally as head of the Laura Secord Company and keeper of fine horses, some twenty persons gathered. This number, forming the skeleton of the large Toronto Old Home organization, elected its officers, including Frank O'Connor as chairman, William J. OBrien as secretary, and C. E. Sisson, treasurer, and then proceeded with the organization of its plans for the visit to the Peterborough Old Home Week and Centennial celebration. It was decided to have Tuesday, July 5, set aside as Toronto day, for the Queen city visitors will bring along one of the best bands it can obtain for two days as well as fireworks, and special entertainment features. Led by the band, the entire organization will arrive before noon, and while more or less putting on much of its own entertainment, will have a special contact man to keep in touch with the Peterborough committee.

RAINY WEATHER DELAYS SEEDING

Very Little Work Done On Farms in Bailieboro District.

LAND INUNDATED.

BAILIEBORO, May 7 (Examiner Correspondence).—Very little work has been accomplished on the land during the past fortnight. The continued rains and cool weather have set seeding back at least two weeks.

The wheat and new seeds, despite weather conditions, are holding their own and looking strong, but newly-sowed grain is in danger of being damaged before it gets a chance to sprout. Many pea fields are under water, and no doubt will be more seriously damaged than oats or spring wheat.

The farmers are now at a standstill so far as tilling the soil is concerned and are patiently awaiting bright warm weather.

On many farms in this district there is no seeding done as yet, and other farmers who have rushed their seed into the ground, wish that the seed were safely back in the granaries again. The heavy rains have soddened the soil and when it does dry the grain will find it a difficult task to break through the hard surface.

The early bird does not always get the worm in the case of farmers, but quite often the farmer who works his land thoroughly and sows his seed when there is a good growth to let his crop get away to an early start is the man who comes out on top.

ANNUAL PIE SOCIAL SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

Event Held Under Auspices of Petherick's Corners' Ladies' Aid.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, May 7.—With rain and snow falling almost steadily, and the thermometer registering winter temperatures all day long, prospects for the Friday evening Ladies' Aid pie social at Zion were very discouraging, but contrary to all expectations, when 8 p.m., arrived, Sentinel Hall was packed to the doors. Standing room was at a premium and several carloads of visitors were turned away for lack of accommodation.

The main item on the program was the play "Deacon Dubbs," presented by the local Dramatic Club, under the direction of Rev. F. G. MacTavish and Mrs. Lorne Barnum. Before the play opened and during the intermissions Booth Brothers' orchestra supplied excellent music while John Storie was well received with his comic song numbers. The Ladies' Aid members served the usual feast of pie at the close of the program. Proceeds were the largest ever received from this event, being nearly 115. The cast of characters was as follows:

Deacon Dubbs, from Sorghum Centre, West Virginny, Roy Fry.

Amos Coleman, his nephew, a young lawyer, Lindsay Anderson.

Rawdon Crawley, a wolf in sheep's clothing, Clarence Barnum.

Major McNutt, auctioneer and justice of the peace, Alfred Simpson.

Deuteronomy Jones, a country product, Fred Fry.

Rose Raleigh, the brave little school ma'am, Nellie Bennett.

Miss Philipena Popover, with both eyes on the deacon, Jennie Fry.

Emily Dale, the richest girl in town, Ethel Barnum.

Trixie Coleman, full of mischief, Gladys Simpson.

Children, Cora Petherick, Pearl Kerr, Doris Barnum.

Friends and visitors, Laura Watson, Elsie Forde, Evelyn Barnum.

The story of the play in brief: The deacon, a jolly widower from Sorghum Centre, has decided to visit his nephew, Amos Coleman, and the play centres around his adventures in the village and in the city. Amos is in love with Rose, who is more or less of a mystery owing to her three years spent in the city. Her farm is about to be sold for non-payment of mortgage and the deacon lends Amos the money to bid it in. Rawdon Crawley represents the holders of the mortgage and will bid any price to get it as there is iron on the property. Major McNutt, the auctioneer, likes a drink once in a while so places three bottles of "documents" in the water cooler. Deuteronomy drops ice into the cooler, and the mixture is free to all as the result of the broken bottles. The deacon likes the taste of the water and under the exhilarating influence of the beverage he pushes Crawley into the old well and sits on the top, while the farm is sold back to Miss Raleigh.

Act II.—Several weeks later is the wedding morning of Rose and Amos. During her three years stay in the city Rose had married Rawdon Crawley, who turned out to be a crook. She had learned of his death and believed herself free to marry Amos. The deacon tries to propose to Miss Philipena in a very funny manner. He is tricked by his niece, Trixie Coleman, who impersonates the modern lady. Rawdon returns to renew his pledge with Emily Dale, whose affection he has won, and finds Rose is about to be married, and interrupts the ceremony only to be arrested by the Deacon.

In Act III Rawdon has escaped from the penitentiary and returns in the midst of a husking bee held in honor of the deacon's return from a visit to New York. Yennie Yensen, after many unsuccessful attempt to win Deuteronomy, finally lands him after he has been turned down in a proposal to Trixie. The deacon, after many ludicrous interruptions, finally puts the ring on Miss Philipena's finger. Rawdon, trying to escape is killed in a railway accident, and the play closes with the Deacon suggesting a honeymoon for four back to Sorghum Centre, State of West Virginny.

NEW METHODS OF POULTRY RAISING

Farmers Breaking Away From Old Ways—Purchase Baby Chicks.

OTONABEE, May 7.—(Examiner Correspondence).—As an indication of changed conditions in the poultry branch of farming, is the erection on so many farms of brooder houses and the purchase of baby chicks instead of the time-honored practice of letting old biddy do the incubating. The change is partially due to more study and information and more scientiifc methods in poultry raising and partly due to changed seasons. Undoubtedly the spring seasons are colder than they were and it is almost impossible to raise chickens in the open. Gradually farmers are coming to realize that the old method of feeding hens all winter and having them lay few eggs or none at all is wasteful and unbusinesslike. Not so many years ago farm folks thought if they had a supply of eggs for Easter Sunday they were doing well. Graduates of the splendid Guelph farm school are pioneers everywhere in putting system and business methods into the poultry business. In no branch of farming is the good work of the school so evident. The graduates work on their own farms and the interest thereby aroused in their neighbors' minds, has been the leaven that has raised the industry to a new plane. No branch of farming gives more returns for the labor expended. All that is now needed is better marketing methods and this will soon come.

It is a matter of regret that more farmers do not send their sons for at least one term to the Guelph school.

Weather Backward Here.

Farmers are impatient at the delay the backward weather is causing. Most barns begin to look empty at this time of year and the sooner horses can be put to work and cattle turned out the more the farmer is in pocket. So far growth is poor and even young stock cannot be left out at night.

Have you all of your own teeth?

Unless you take preventive measures now, the day is coming when you may know, to your sorrow, that the true meaning of the phrase "artificial denture" is often the extravagant price of self-neglect—false teeth. Here's the reason and the way to help safeguard health against the coming of this day.

Teeth are only as healthy as the gums. And gums, undernourished and under-exercised, soon surrender to dread diseases that ravage health and often destroy teeth. To prevent this, avail yourself of the best care that modern dentistry offers. Place yourself in the hands of your dentist at least twice a year. And brush your gums when you brush your teeth, every morning and night.

But for this purpose—use Forhan's for the Gums . . . the dentifrice designed to help firm gums and keep them sound, thus protecting them from the attack of disease.

Use Forhan's regularly. You'll be delighted with the way it makes your gums look and feel. In addition, you'll notice that it effectively and safely cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay. Get a tube of Forhan's—today!

HISTORY OF LOCAL INSTITUTION HAS BEEN ONE OF PROGRESS AND EVER-INCREASING IN ITS SCOPE

Peterborough's Young Men's Christian Association Was Established in 1869.

ACTIVITIES ARE MANIFOLD.

Organization Was Started Through Faithful Efforts of Sheriff James Hall and Mr. Gilbert.

Progress and the ever-increasing scope of its activities and membership have marked the history of the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association since its inauguration in 1869. It is just sixty years ago since its first founding and this year, in order to mark its Diamond Jubilee, the Association is planning to take yet a larger place in the life of the city. The membership has swelled until it has now reached the largest in its history, 726, and in every respect this promises to be a banner year.

The extent of the activities of the "Y" are manifold. It is the athletic centre of the city. It is the rendezvous and social centre for hundreds of men, young men and boys. It trains, teaches and inspires, and develops the healthy body along with the clean mind and intellect that fits the boy for success as a man. During the sixty years of its activities such progress has been made through the wise-planning of its directors, that now it is admirably fitted to take its responsible place.

The history of the Y.M.C.A. has been one continual struggle but, with one exception, it has never faltered in its steady progress. Started in 1869, through the faithful and devoted efforts of Sheriff James Hall, grandfather of the present sheriff, and the late Mr. Gilbert, the Y.M.C.A. continued along through a stormy sea until 1879, when for financial reasons it had to be discontinued.

Revived in 1881.

In 1881, however, it was revived again by the energetic efforts of Mr. Gilbert and G. S. Williams, who was the first paid secretary. The home of the Association consisted of two rooms over "The Fair" on George street, somewhere near where the Peterborough Hardware Store now stands. From that time there is a record of unbroken progress and success. After several years occupation of these rooms it became incorporated under the name "Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association" and secured new and larger quarters over the old Post Office, where a progressive work under the secretaryship of R. J. Collville, and Mr. Stephens was conducted. More extensive quarters were again required and these were obtained over the store of James Long. Shower baths and a small gymansium were at the service of the members. These were at once appreciated by the young men and the association enjoyed a strong wave of popularity.

Mrs. Nicholls' Legacy to the "Y."

In 1890, the late Mrs. Nicholls died, leaving a legacy to the association of $20,000. The directors then felt warranted in proceeding with the desired building operation. On March 31, 1895, plans for a new building were submitted by William Blackwell, architect, and in 1897 the Association moved into its present home, corner of George and Murray streets. Since that time all phases of the work have been successfully conducted.

During the time from its inception until the erection of the building, the work of the association was carried on with considerable worrw and anxiety on the part of those actively interested, owing to the difficulty of obtaining subscriptions to liquidate the annual expense. On several occasions, but for the strenuous, faithful and persevering efforts on the part of one or more of the directors the association's doors would have been closed.

An agitation was started in 1894 for the erection of a dormitory in the association where young men away from home might enjoy the atmosphere of a Christian organization. After very careful consideration the board of directors favored the proposition and in May, 1905, dormitories were erected.

Camp Site Bought in 1906.

In July, 1906, a camp site at Clear Lake was purchased, which was used, until a few years ago, for the annual camp in the summer.

In July, 1908, the association broadened its activities again by installing bowling alleys and enlarging the Boys' Department.

Billiard tables were placed in the association's rooms in 1912 for the use of the members, who thus were enabled to participate in this fine game under proper influences

The property to the south of the building now used as tennis courts was acquired in 1906, and in the fall of 1915 the southern wing of the building was added, which increased greatly the size of the Boys' Department, and added another entrance.

The following men gave honorable and faithful service as president of the association up until the year 1914: S. M. Roger, H. S. Griffin, O. C. Rouse, J. W. Bennet, B. F. Ackerman, R. E. Harding, J. H. Connal, J. F. Jeffers, J. W. Flavelle, D. B. Gardiner, Alfred Parker, W. M Madill, P. C. Shook, J. C. Turnbull, J. W. Hilliard, G. J. Earley, W. D Scott, M.D., E. B. Edwards, J. J. Turner, Jr.

Besides those mentioned above the secretaries gave many years of faithful service in that capacity during the years of the association's greatest trials. These were: W. F. Chapman, R. O. Crowe, H. V. Smith, C. H. Williamson, H. C. Wright, F G. Hassard, H. N. Gilchrist, and A. A. Hainsworth.

Well Fitted Building.

The Y.M.C.A. building, although beginning to feel rather crowded because of the large number who are now taking advantage of the athletic, social, recreational, and Christian fellowship that it offers, is admirably fitted for its purpose The large lobby and lounge room is comfortably fitted up with numerous easy chairs and chesterfields. The piano in this room is constantly being hammered by those musically inclined to the delight or discomfort of those nearby. A feature, lately added, but that has enjoyed great popularity is the six-tube radio set that brings in music at all times. To the south of the lobby is the reading room, which contains all the best in newspapers and magazines.

The Boys' Department in the south wing is a large bright room and it is the sanctum of the youth of the city. There after school hours, young heads are puckered over chess, which is enjoying a great rush of popularity, checkers, and ping-pong.

The second and third floors of the building contain the dormitories, kitchen and dinink room, which also serves for meetings. In all there are 27 dormitories, comfortable, airy and spotlessly clean. These form a comfortable home for many young men. Besides the usual transit guest, who is always most pleased to stay at the "Y," accommodation was given free of charge to an average of four English immigrant boys a week during last year. In this way the Y.M.C.A. officials are not only enabled to give them comfortable, clean sleeping quarters, but they also give them good advice and get them over their first loneliness and strangeness. They often find employment for them and give them a four weeks' membership to the association free of charge, which grants the boy free use of the showers and social privileges.

270 in Boys' Department.

There are in all 270 boys in the boys' department under the supervision of F. G. McNeeley, boys' secretary. Besides the activities in physical training, group games and athletics in the gymnasium the boys have a stamp club, which meets to learn to identify stamps, mounting, and all the interesting points about this hobby. They also have the annual Hobby Show which is managed except for some of the details by the boys themselves. Then, too, there is the bi-monthly movie show and supper in the gymnasium.

The boys are taught swimming in the tank under expert teaching and constant coaching. This is now being opened up to all those who desire to learn swimming and from now until the warm weather daily classes will be conducted in the tank to teach all who come the art.

Divided into the four groups, intermediate, senior, young men and business, the rest of the membership —456 in number—enjoy the full privileges of the gymnasium and showers. Such group games as basketball and volley ball are constantly in progress in the gym and in the classes those who wish it are taught apparatus work on the rings, bars and horse and tumbling on the mat. In the tower of the building is the handball court and the boxing room, both of these activities are gaining in popularity and scope.

Social Activities.

Some of the social activities are the Friday Supper Club with a membership of 72 boys, who meet for supper on Friday evenings. The boys hear addresses on subjects of inspiration and instruction by outside speakers, and the club is under the direction of J. F. H. Wallace. On Thursday evening the Y's Men's Club, an older group, meets for supper, lectures and social good times. On Wednesday evening the Leaders' Corps meets to plan and develop themselves to take an active part in serving as leaders in the various phases of "Y" work. During the winter months the Sunday Night Club holds a Sunday evening supper meeting, when they discuss and study the Christian life. The Harriers' Club, which was organized by the boys themselves to develop middle-distance running, is having great success.

The Ladies' Auxiliary meets monthly and raises the funds to equip and decorate the dormitories as well as being always present to help when any of the clubs or organizations are serving a supper or banquet.

The Ministerial Association uses the reading room of the "Y" for its regular monthly meetings, and many of the ministers are keen members of the gymnasium classes.

The Y.M.C.A. has taken on the duty of directing the Rotary Boys' Camp at Clear Lake, and the association also supplies the older leaders for this splendid summer camp.

Considering all this, it must be said that the Y.M.C.A. fills a place in the city of Peterborough that can never be reckoned in dollars. The contribution it makes to healthy bodies, sportsmanship and good citizenship can not be overly estimated.

GOOD ROADS MEETING.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 7. (C.P.) — Assembled for a two day convention to discuss plans for the improvement of Canada's highways, to contemplate policies which would further protect the public and still further spread the network of roads over the Dominion, some thirty delegates attended the opening session of the Interprovincial Conference of the Canadian Good Roads Association here to-day. Delegates from Alberta in the west and from Prince Edward Island in the east, representatives of railway systems, and various public bodies, will spend to-day and to-row considering transportation problems generally, giving special consideration to a study of the cost of construction and maintenance of highways, regulations, and the advisability of seeking Federal aid for Provincial roads.

MAN STILL MISSING.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 7. —Despite a thorough search of the surrounding district and the river front, no trace has yet been found of Peter Dunphy, 65, who disappeared from his home Sunday night, wearing a light sweater and bedroom slippers. A reward of $200 has been offered by his family for iinformation regarding the case.

OLD BUILDINGS CAUSE INTEREST

Story Told of Structures Now Being Wrecked at George and Simcoe.

(By F. H. D.)

The wrecking of the buildings at the corner of Simcoe and George Streets has provoked numberless questions as to by whom were the structures erected, who supplied the capital, in the early years, and who occupied the stores after they were ready for occupancy. So a word or two may settle for disputants these mooted questions.

The buildings under demolition were built by Elias Burnham, barrister and business man. Indeed he was the first lawyer to settle in Peterborough, coming in about 1843, and at once gained a fairly large practice. In those days the matter of metes and bounds, meaning the areas of lots and locations, all poorly defined on the original survey of the town site, provoked innumerable law suits. In handling such Mr. Burnham proved to be very skilful.

Two years after the incorporation of the town he undertook the erection of the block on the corner. He had secured land on the west side of George street, reaching from the corner of Simcoe street south for nearly three-quarters of the face of the block. Land did not cost much at the time. The site of the original building of the Peterborough Lock Works (the old Helm foundry) cost only thirty dollars.

The buildings were of four stories and impressive height in those days. The mansard roof was an after addition. William Eastland, general merchant, occupied the corner store, with A. Coddote, grocer, and John Moloney, groceries and liquors, completing the tenants of the first building. As opportunity offered Mr. Burnham added other stores, so that by the end of 1858 the west side of the street held several important places of business, including that built for hotel purposes and leased to Leon Caissie, who moved over from the corner of Hunter and Water streets to the new premises. In after years the depth of the stores, that is from entrance to rear, was extended to make room for enlarging trade. The site of this block was esteemed largely the best in the town, so much so that the upper premises above the stores were promptly leased for many purposes. George A. Cox, who was coming into prominence as a rising business man, and had taken the first agency for the newly organized North-Western Telegraph Company, moved over to the upper rooms and added, in his care, the local business of the Canada Life Insurance Co., recently organized. He also took custody of the library of the old Mechanics' Institute, and in slack hours dispensed books to those who were inclined to read.

The time was when it seemed as if the business section of the town would grow to the north, up George street. It has been practically confined to three blocks, south from Brock street. From Hunter street to Charlotte street, the west side has never been without a tenant for the last fifty years. So plainly was this preference apparent that nearly thirty years ago the important drygoods business of Richard Hall & Son removed from Simcoe street (where the firm had built a very fine premises) to occupy three of the Burnham block stores, combined in one large emporium. By this time the Burnham block had lost all recognition under that name and had passed into other hands. For a time the corner, a valuable business site, was occupied by Kingan & Co., hardware merchants and jobbers, the firm taking possession in the year 1893, remaining until disposed by the purchase of the site by other interests.

In the meantime, before the Kingan occupancy, the Dolans, W. Fairweather, Thos. Kelly and others occupied the corner store, all after the death of the original tenant, W. Eastland.

The building now being taken down is a pretty fair sample of pre-Confederation building. It is immensely strong and sturdy, standing on stone foundations three feet thick, with cut stone courses supporting the brick. William Yates, who built the stone hotel, now known as the Montgomery House, was the contractor for the foundations. The old hotel building is a fair sample of the sturdy and rigid work done by this contractor. It was built for Richard Winch, Sr., who, when finished, carried on a meat business in the east end of the ground floor, while the old Commercial Bank found quarters in the west end.

The rear of the ground floor, occupied by the Kingans, contains a room about twenty feet square. This was, for a time, the first office of the Bank of Toronto when it was organized in Peterborough. The wall still shows an iron grating inserted in an aperture about one foot square, supposedly for ventilation, in case any one was trapped in the vault.

GIFT OF $25.

A pleasing and most acceptable letter came in the mail this morning to Mayor Denne from A. R. Bennett, of Great Neck, N. Y., speaking in terms of praise of the enterprise of the Old Home Week, and enclosing a postal order for $25 as an evidence of good faith. His occupation when in Peterborough was that of a painter, and doubtless many will remember him in the years that have gone. Mention is made of Mr. Bennett's gift as an example to others.

His former home was on Townsend street and a brother still resides at 268 London street.

No Place Like Home.

Darrell Shannon, 6058 Hazlett avenue, Detroit, left his home here in 1918. He resided at 133 Stewart street and his wife was Katherine Willshaw. Mr. Shannon says, "Nothing is ever just like the old home town."

There With Bells.

"We will be there with bells on," says JaJmes Hendry, 383 Earl Street, Kingston, whose home was at 135 Lansdowne avenue. Two brothers, Tom and Bob, still reside in Peterborough

Mr. Hendry left here in 1917, and remarks, "Peterborough being my first Canadian home, I have a very warm feeling toward the old town."

E. F. McGee, secretary of Loyal Orange Lodge, county of West Peterborough, writes to advise that the order will erect an arch and thus share in the Old Home Week decorative preparations. The position of the arch has not been determined, but will be discussed with the chairman of the Committee on Decorations. Ald. R. S. Cotton.

From Waterloo.

"During my seven years residence in Peterborough, I thought it was one of the finest places in the world in which to live" says Charles C. Parsons, Waterloo, Ontario, "and I have no doubt that I would still think so should I find my lines cast in the old City again."

Mr. Parsons, who is a bank manager, left his home at 182 McDonnell street in April, 1918. His wife was formerly Katie Leary.

Hopes To Be Here.

Edward W. Squires, 6 Beulah Ave., Hamilton, who left his home on Albert street in 1895 and is now a salesman with the Dominion Rubber Company Ltd., says, "I always have a warm spot in my heart for Peterborough and I hope to be with you Old Home Week."

Admires Beauty.

REGISTER Of Social and Business Meetings

The Register is published to enable organizations planning major meetings to know in advance, and reserve, evenings on which there are no rival attractions. It will pay Peterborough organizations to consult the Register prior to settling dates. Responsible officers should mail notices well in advance.

Before deciding a date for any event, consult the Register to ascertain that there is no conflict with other events—and then send in YOUR date quickly so that other organizations will not use it.

TORONTO HAS BIG MEETING

Old Boys and Girls Organize For Return in July.

BRING BAND.

Special from Toronto to-day comes the advice that a most enthusiastic meeting of ex-Peterborough Old Boys and Girls was held in that city at noon when, at a luncheon given by Frank O'Connor, well known locally as head of the Laura Secord Company and keeper of fine horses, some twenty persons gathered. This number, forming the skeleton of the large Toronto Old Home organization, elected its officers, including Frank O'Connor as chairman, William J. OBrien as secretary, and C. E. Sisson, treasurer, and then proceeded with the organization of its plans for the visit to the Peterborough Old Home Week and Centennial celebration. It was decided to have Tuesday, July 5, set aside as Toronto day, for the Queen city visitors will bring along one of the best bands it can obtain, for two days as well as fireworks, and special entertainment features. Led by the band, the entire organization will arrive before noon, and while more or less putting on much of its own entertainment, will have a special contact man to keep in touch with the Peterborough committee.

Routine Matters Discussed By Members of Dunsford Church Society.

DUNSFORD, May 7 (Examiner Correspondence)—The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter Hore, the president, Mrs. T. J. Thurston, in the chair.

Mrs. Vernold Thurston gave a synopsis of the chapter in the study book, "Drums in the Darkness," and Miss Lorena Hore and Mrs. J. F. Everson each gave readings of interest. The watch tower was responded to by Mrs. F. E. Gordan, who read a paper on "Temperance," and Mrs. Everson a paper on "China."

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Hinton, of Bobcaygeon, were present. Mrs. Hinton spoke a few words of encouragement to the society, emphasizng the importance of the work. Mr. Hinton also gave a short address and offered the closing prayer. Lunch was served at the close. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Walter P. Thurston.

BABIES GAIN BY THIS SIMPLE METHOD

Doctors say, souring waste in baby's digestive tract is usually back of any failure to gain weight according to schedule. And the best proof, this is true, is the quick way, weak, fretful, puny babies improve when you cleanse their stomach and bowels and put them in order with a few doses of purely-vegetable, pleasant-tasting Fletcher's Castoria. This gentle, harmless preparation is the doctor's first thought to relieve those ills of babies and children, such as colic, gas, constipation, diarrhea, colds, etc. Just be sure you get genuine Castoria in the bottle that bears the Fletcher signature.

TWELVE MILLION TOURISTS EXPECTED

So Far This Year Officials State There Has Been a 33 Per Cent. Increase.

TORONTO, Ont., May 7 (C.P.).—Twelve million motor tourists from the United States will visit Ontario this year, Provincial Highway Department official estimate. This, they believe, as a conservative estimate.

There has been a 33 per cent increase so far this year, officials say, in the number of inquiries received from United States points as to maps and routes in Ontario. For the past six weeks the inquiries have been coming in at the rate of 25 or 30 a day, officials state.

Last year, according to Dominion figures, 2,762,162 United States cars were registered at the border as entering Ontario. There were in addition thousands of other, officials declare, which merely entered for a day or less and did not register. Government statisticians computed that on an average registered cars contained 3.2 persons. This would mean that last year nearly 9,000,000 motor tourists entered in cars which were registered.

Members of W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid Gather at Home of Mrs. Hunter.

ENTERTAINING PROGRAM.

CAVAN, May 7.—(Examiner Correspondence.—On Thursday afternoon there was a well attended meeting of the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid of Cavan church held at the home of Mrs. David Hunter.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. R. S. Staples, Mrs. H. Snider took charge of the meeting and Mrs. J. C. Swain conducted the devotional exercises.

The treasurer, Mrs. W. Seymour, gave her monthly report, stating that the Easter offering had been $20. Mrs. Swain read an article on "Prohibition."

Mrs. A. B. Kennedy was appointed superintendent of the Watch Tower committee, and asked to take "Temperance" as her subject. Mrs. J. C. Swain was requested to collect and give information on "Africa." Mrs. M. G. Matchett on "Formosa"; Mrs. D. J. Hunter on "China", and Miss Francis Hunter on "Our Canadian West." Mrs. M. G. Matcheet read an article on "Formosa."

Mrs. J. C. Swain read extracts from letters written by two women workers in Indian, describing a trip through that country and something of the conditions and customs of the people encountered.

The fifth chapter from the study book on Africa, was taken in a very interesting manner by Mrs. R. Syer using a map of Africa to show the location of the mission stations mentioned. The study book was assigned to Mrs. F. M. Staples to prepare the sixth chapter for the next meeting.

Ladies' Aid Society.

The president of the Ladies' Aid Mrs. A. B. Kennedy, was also absent, so Mrs. R. Matchett conducted the meeting.

Reports were given by the convenors of committees and other officers. Correspondence was read by the corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. W. Perrin. No new business was taken up, and the meeting concluded.

The lunch committee served lunch and a social time was spent while waiting for the conveyances in which to return home.

NATIVE TAXES ARE ABOLISHED

Natives of Samoa Are Demanding Home Rule From New Zealand.

GESTURE OF GOOD WILL.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, May 7 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters). — Sir Joseph Ward, Prime Minister of New Zealand, has made a gesture of goodwill towards the natives of Samoa, this Dominion's mandated territory, by abolishing the native personal taxes and substituting a small charge for medical treatment which is based on the cost of the service and the patient's capacity to pay.

Samoa has been a troublesome spot for New Zealand since Home Rule agitators became active and formed the Mau, or League of Native Samoans, which has conducted obstructionist tactics and whose leader, Tama Sese, is now in prison in New Zealand.

Premier Ward states the Government will adopt a conciliatory and generous attitude with a view to holding a conference soon to settle all disputed matters. He declared all that was necessary now was for the Mau to cease defying the administration.

Why tens of thousands of motor car buyers will consider only those cars with body by Fisher

Four basic advantages enable Fisher so remarkably to increase body value while holding down price, as to make Fisher Body, for tens of thousands of motor car buyers, the determining factor in motor car selection. This preference is the result of the greater Fisher Body value which—in cars outside the Fisher Body group—is obtainable only in cars costing several hundred dollars more.

1 First of these fundamental Fisher advantages, is the enormous resources of the Fisher Body Corporation.

Some idea of the extent of Fisher resources may be realized when one considers that Fisher operates the world's largest manufacturing plant for automobile body hardware and fittings (Ternstedt); one of the largest plate glass manufacturing plants in the world; and harvests timber from its own 200,000 acres of forest lands and converts that timber into lumber in its own mills.

2 Another reason for the unprecedented value of Body by Fisher is Fisher's huge production, with all that means in reduced costs of fabrication and assembly and huge saving by reason of great purchasing power.

As everyone knows, quantity production is one of the chief factors in manufacturing economy. Fisher employs more than 60,000 persons, who build annually in 48 great factories, upwards of 1,250,000 automobile bodies. Some idea of Fisher Body purchasing power will be gained when one notes that in the twelve months of 1928 Fisher required for the manufacture of Fisher bodies, more than 600,000,000 pounds of steel, 285,000,000 board feet of lumber, 26,000,000 square feet of plate glass and about 20,000,000 yards of upholstery cloth.

3 A third basic reason for Fisher Body value is Fisher's certainty of market.

That market consists of the companies manufacturing General Motors cars—Fisher Body Corporation being a division of General Motors. Fisher, therefore, does not bid for contracts—it always knows well in advance what its manufacturing program is going to be, and to co-ordinate its operations so as to achieve still further economies while maintaining highest quality.

4 A fourth basic reason for Fisher Body value, is the proximity of Fisher Body manufacturing plants to the chassis plants of its customers.

This eliminates much costly handling and holds down transportation expense, and thus permits Fisher to put still greater value into its bodies.

This explains why Fisher is able to build value so superior as to make Body by Fisher the determining factor today in thousands of motor car sales. Compare Fisher Body cars, listed below, with other cars in their respective price fields and you see that in Fisher Body cars alone does your money purchase all the body value you have a right to expect in a motor car.

BULLET ENTERS BOY IN HIS BACK

Waterford Youth Is Accidentally Shot When Playing With Rifle.

IN BRANTFORD HOSPITAL.

BRANTFORD, May 7. (C.P.)—Murray Wales of Waterford, is in hospital here with a bullet in the back. So far as can be learned by the police, the lad was shot yesterday while some boys were playing with rifles.

According to the police, Wales and a comrade were playing with borrowed rifles. Wales aimed his gun at David Wilson, his companion, and pulled the trigger. The gun was unloaded. Wilson then with the impression his rifle also was unloaded, pointed it at Wales, and pulled the trigger. His rifle, however, was loaded, and the bullet entered Wales' back.

WEDDING BELLS

KRAEMER—O'CONNOR

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Peterborough, by Rev. J. J. O'Brien on Tuesday, April 30, when Anna Mary, eldest daughter of Mrs. Teresa O'Connor and the late John O'Connor, of Otonabee, was united in the hold bonds of matrimony to Edward Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kraemer, of Walkerton, Ont.

The bride was becomingly dressed in a gown of marron glace crepe romaine, with hat and shoes to match and carried Columbia roses. She was attended by her sister, Clara O'Connor, wearing beige georgette, and carrying Premier roses.

The bridegroom was assisted by his brother, Jack Kraemer, also of Walkerton.

The happy couple will reside in Greenock, Ont.

MUST HAVE HIS FUN

CORAL GABLES, Fla., May 6.—Practical joke jokers must have their fun. An example of such a pest is A. S. Wolf, who recently decided to be playful and ring a lot of fire alarms. On one night he got firemen out of bed with three false alarms. In jail, it is said that Wolf sounded two false alarms in Miami and three in Miami Beach.

That Body of Yours

(By Jas. W. Barton, M.D.)

THE TONSILS AND THE APPENDIX

Perhaps you think about that body of yours and the wonderful way it does its work.

You think of the nervous system and how it controls everything; of your eyes, your ears, nose, the love for music, art, beauty of any sort; how the food is converted into energy; about the wastes thrown out of the body; of the powerful little pump, the heart; of your lungs and skin and their ventilating ability.

And then you begin to think about the tonsils and also about the appendix, and you just wonder why the Creator put them into the body if they were not meant for use. You wonder if doctors are doing the right thing by removing the appendix and the tonsils.

You think a little further, and you remember about friends who have been afflicted with rheumatism or rheumatic attacks for years, followed by serious heart complications.

Everything has been done without avail and then when the tonsils are removed with all their poisons, your friend gets better and has no further attacks.

Similarly with the appendix. You see a friend have an attack off appendicitis. The operation is delayed for a day or two and by the time the surgeon operates, the appendix is about ready to burst, and severe complications, perhaps death itself, is only avoided by hours.

Now what about the tonsils and appendix?

Well they are in your body for a purpose.

The tonsils filter out poisons from surrounding tissues and as long as they can "take care" of these poisons and kill off their organisms, then the tonsils are helping the body.

When the tonsils are unable to do this work, and get enlarged and filled with these poisons and the organisms themselves, then just as a filter on a water tap that is filled with matter from the water becomes a danger instead of a benefit, so with diseased tonsils.

They should be removed.

Similarly the appendix has the job of getting rid of a portion of the harmful organisms and their poisons from the intestine. When the appendix, like the tonsils, is unable to do its job properly, its lining tissue gets so inflamed and irritated that it sets up such a serious condition it must be removed.

The thought then is that tonsils and appendix have uses, but when they fail to do their work properly, they must be removed for the safety of the body itself.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book, "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

Peggy Sells Hats

By JANE OSBORN

It was the morning after the dance at the Northfield Country Club and the usual sort of post-mortem discussion was going on around the late breakfast at the Randolph country home.

"Who was the girl with squint eyes, talked baby talk and came with Frank Drew?" Bob Randolph was asking.

"She hasn't squint eyes at all," protested Clara, his sister. "That's Rebecca Yates—loads of money and terribly good family."

Bob had acquired enough courage by this time to ask the question that had been uppermost in his mind ever since the evening before.

"By the way," he began, to make it sound casual, "who was the girl, quite young, dark eyes, light hair, who came with Bob Dawson? I just happened to notice her."

"Why that was Peggy Nelson," said Clara. "Peggy's a dear, though probably you wouldn't find her attractive. Men don't. Peggy's father died, and she had to do something so she started a hat shop. I think it was so brave of her. You see she couldn't teach, as she'd never been to college, and she had to do something, and we're all boosting her. She calls it the Peggy shop—it's on Walker Street, just off Main."

The next day Randolph took a walk along Walker Street near Main just to locate the Peggy shop. The next day he walked past it twice. Then he stopped and looked in the windows and before the week was out he ventured within the gray curtained doors. This took much courage. Peggy, dressed in a clinging frock of gray, was preoccupied with a voluminous dowager seated before a gray dressing table trying on garden hats. An assistant asked him if there was something he wanted and Bob stammered out: "Yes, I want to buy a hat."

"What kind of hat?" asked the young woman.

"It doesn't make much difference. I want it for—for—for my aunt."

After a rather confused and confusing dialogue, Bob Randolph bought and paid thirty dollars for a hat. When the young woman asked for the address he gave that of his apartment in town.

Bob Randolph found himself thinking of Peggy Nelson, sometimes as he had seen her at the Country Club dance, but o'tener as he had seen her in her little ha shop. Keeping a hat shop, it occurred to him, was a charming occupation for a woman, especially a hat shop in soft French grays and flowered chintz like Peggy's. But of course she needed a boost. If he were married he would certainly persuade his wife to buy her hats there, and he would urge her to have many. While thinking thus one day he wandered again toward Walker Street, entered the store and stood wondering what to do next, when Peggy herself, with her best saleswomanly manner, came toward him.

"May I do something for you?" she asked sweetly but impersonally.

"I'd like to buy a hat," said Bob Randolph.

"For your wife?" asked Peggy sweetly.

"Goodness, no. It's for my—my mother."

Another day Bob went to the Peggy shop and finding Peggy in asked for a hat.

"For your mother?" she asked. "Why don't you bring her with you so she can make her own selections?"

"It's for my sister this time. She couldn't come." And Bob ordered two more hats that time. That made five hat boxes to be stowed away on the shelves of his wardrobe and closets. One evening he got one, a brown tam o' shanter out and posed it on the top of a standard lamp and tried to imagine the face of the brown-eyed blonde Peggy beneath. It was then that his sister made an unannounced visit before he had time even to get the tam o'shanter out of the way.

"You've a grl calling on you," announced his sister. "You needn't deny it, because I see her hat." And, to save his reputation as a proper bachelor, Bob Randolph had to confess. Then he showed his entire collection of hats.

"You know you said we ought to help her along," he defended; "and of course she doesn't know who I am."

"Doesn't she!" scoffed Clara. "That's one reason I dropped in. I met Peggy the other day, and she told me about it. She asked if I was your only sister, and then said you'd bought a hat for me, and that you'd bought two for your mother and some for an aunt or something. She said she thought it was wonderful to have a brother so considerate, and that it was a pity you weren't married; that a man who would be so considerate of his sister and aunts and mothers and things would make a perfect husband. And I told her you'd better get married to have someone to keep you from being foolish."

Bob thought for a moment, then he said: "You seem to know her fairly well. Why don't you invite her out for a week-end? It would do her good. Maybe I'd be able to get down."

Clara agreed. She was already thinking of the pleasure of having Peggy for a sister-in-aw. It was at that first visit of Peggy's at the Randolphs that Bob proposed and was promptly accepted.

"And now," said Peggy after they had all laughed over Bob's hat-buying escapade, "now may I borrow some of the hats you bought? You know they say a shoemaker's children always go barefoot. Well, I am simply suffering for a new hat."

OLD SONGS

THAT PIECE OF SONG,
That old and antique song we heard, last night.

Changing Color
(Contributed by "Lucinda")

Oh, every one was sorry for Ned!
"It's a perfect shame," so the people said;
"And who was Ned?" Why, don't you know?
Ned was the deacon's daughter's beau—
Honest and manly, hard to beat,
Five foot ten in his stocking feet.

Bess was the sweetest girl in the place,
With a soul as fair as her winsome face;
The deacon's daughter, kind and gay,
And used to having her own sweet way.
Now, two good people may agree—
The deacon, Bess, and Ned make three.

Old deacon Green was a "moneyed man";
His motto was: "Get and keep if you can."
"Honest in all his dealings?" Yes,
Honest as you, or Ned, or Bess;
But charity had left his creed,
And he was stingy, in thought and deed.

"I tell you no man borrows from me;
If he wants any help let him find it", said he;
"And Bess, my girl, hear what I say,
You send that shiftless Ned away!
I have no use for the lazy dunce,
I heard that he borrowed a dollar once.

"Now when I borrow—you hear me, Bess,
Then you may purchase your wedding dress,
Until that time, Ned Brown, you see,
Must be a minus quantity."
And Bess murmured soft and low,
That's something Ned would like to know."

That night the moon and the silent stars
Saw two young heads near the meadow bars,
And heard Bess say: "I think tomorrow
Some one will really have to borrow."
Two hearts were happier, I know,
Because the new moon told me so.

Next morn, Bess seized her shopping bag,
Harnessed the deacon's corpulent nag,
And drove to town; I wonder why
She choose that early hour to buy!

A small boy with a freckled face
Was standing near the market place;
He waved his cap when he saw sweet Bess,
As fair as a flower, in her muslin dress.
"Good morning, cousin Bob," said she,
Your just the boy I want to see

"I'll give you all you ask, and more,
If you will ride to father's door,
And say to him, "Bess is in town,
Going to marry that Ned Brown.
After you tell him, drive away,
No matter what he has to say."

Imagine the deacon, if you can.
Poor Bob never saw an uglier man.
Then deacon Green that summer day
He watched his old nag trot awway.
The words he used are hard to spell,
And really wouldn't do to tell.

There is Bess in Blickingham town,
Ready to marry that scamp Brown;
I can reach her as best I may—
Even my old nag's gone today.
The padson would lend me — I must borrow,
For Bess may not be there tomorrow.
The parson lent him his dapple gray.
And he made for town without deday.
There stoog Bess in the market place
And near her the determined face
Of our friend Brown was plainly seen,
A sight to madden Deacon Green.

The young folks entered the old town hall,
The scene of many a county ball,
And Bessie's father walked in too;
I wonder what he meant to do?
This much I know—The words then said
Came chiefly from the lips of Ned.

"Deacon Green, did you borrow the gray,
That brought you to Blickingham town today?
You did? Then Bess shall be my wife,
Said Bess, "I knew dear father meant
To give his full and free consent."

"But" gasped the deacon, "I never said,
My daughter could marry you Ned".
"I heard you say", cried blue eyed Bess,
"That I might purchase my wedding dress
When you borrowed from any one.
And now, you see, the deed is done".
"It can't be helped, and, father dear,
Forgive us, won't you, now and here?"
The deacon frowned, but chuckled too;
"That's all you've left for me to do,
You're full of business, and I guess
Your head is pretty level, Bess;
You took your father's nag away,
And made him toe the mark today,
And though I'm Green, 'ere we leave town,
My only daughter shall be Brown"

Parlor tricks—so-called—of the sort that even small children can perform have an educational value that every mother should recognize. Children are always enormously interested in the sleight-of-hand tricks done by professionals, they like to see live rabbits drawn from men's hats and to see eggs appear out of thin air. This sort of thing appeals to their sense of the mysterious, and the majority of children are perfectly willing to believe that the mystery is a real one.

In fairness to the child, however, he should learn that such acts of magic are not at all past comprehension. If he is shown how to work tricks that will for the time mystify others he develops a more rational attitude toward any sort of hocus-pocus.

Learning how to do little tricks for himself teaches the child dexterity and muscular control, and the child with an inferiority complex is given a wholesome sense of self confidence if he can learn to do a few clever tricks successfully.

In almost every toy or game store you will be able to buy the paraphernalia for some of the simpler sort of tricks. If you are trying to think of some sort of game or diversion to have on hand for rainy summer days—or if you are wondering what sort of present to give some child of your acquaintance you cannot do better than to get some of the many sorts of trick outfits that are to be had for a small price wherever toys and games are sold.

A Column for Little Bits of Everything of Interest to Women Readers

HAVE YOU ever felt more tired at the close of some days than at others? Most people in Peterborough have felt just like this, but I wonder if they know the cause.

* * * * * * *

Perhaps they would say they did harder work on these days. By hard work I suppose they would mean physical exercise, but it is a wrong idea.

* * * * * * *

Each one has his or her own work to do and occupations differ a great deal. There are dozens and dozens of occupations in Peterborough and some are a great deal harder than others.

* * * * * * *

Every housewife does not have the same work to do at the same time. Even at housework all tasks are not the same and some are harder than others.

* * * * * * *

Office work too, is vastly different from that done in a factory. One who works in an office has more brain work to do and the workman in the factory has more physical work to do.

* * * * * * *

Most people think that brain work is very easy and at this one should never become tired. It is their idea that physical work is much harder and a person at this work should need more sleep.

* * * * * * *

They think that those who can sit down at their work and have to use only their brains, should never become tired. Should a brain worker happen to say, "Oh! I am tired," a physical worker will immediately say, "I don't see WHY you should be tired, you don't have any hard work to do like I have."

* * * * * * *

But such people are wrong, and I am afraid that the great majority of people in Peterborough think just the same thing.

* * * * * * *

Do you know that a person working at a job where he is constantly using his brain instead of his mucles, requires more sleep than a so-called manual worker?

* * * * * * *

Perhaps you think that doing the week's washing is just as hard a task as there is, but you would think differently should you be called upon to spend most of the day preparing a paper to be given at your next W.M.S. meeting.

* * * * * * *

Children who spend most of their time in the schoolroom then, need more sleep than their parents who have been doing much harder work physically—employing their muscles instead of their brains.

* * * * * * *

It is a fact that we are sleepier when night comes if we have been doing physical work, and usually we drop off to sleep more quickly than when we have been using our brains but not our muscles.

* * * * * * *

It has been found that bodily demand for sleep after physical exertion is more quickly satisfied.

* * * * * * *

You have noticed, I am sure, how the children during vacation time were eager to get up early in the morning and eager to be outside to play. Then when school time came, they were less eager. I suppose you thought they like play much more than they liked their school work.

* * * * * * *

The fact that they were eager to go to school showed that they were not getting enough sleep. It was altogether likely they were getting the same amount of sleep during vacation time as they were during the school term, when they should have been getting much more during the latter period.

* * * * * * *

Many mothers who have children going to kindergarten and attend school only half a day, think they should spend all the afternoon playing out of doors.

* * * * * * *

They should spend a lot of time outside, but they should have, too, a nap in the afternoon. This nap is very essential even if it is only a short one, say twenty minutes or half an hour.

* * * * * * *

This nap will help much in that it rests the brain, which the children have to use constantly while in school.

* * * * * * *

It would not be a very wise idea to let the children sleep for too long a time because you might have difficulty in putting them to bed early at night. Let them take just a short nap in a well ventilated room and they will carry on their outdoor play with enjoyment.

* * * * * * *

There is a special sketch offered this week of a new fringed frock which I think would be worthwhile to many women in Peterborough. There is a deep hip yoke to which the fringe is attached and you may for that reason, add it to any simple crepe frock without making any alterations.

* * * * * * *

The diagram also contains directions for making the fringe from silk which may be bought by the skein at much lower cost than that of the actual fringe. If you would like a copy of this help, do not forget to send the coupon in early.

* * * * * * *

There are times when housewives in Peterborough are compelled to serve a light meal. It may be that you are in a hurry to attend a meeting or social function and re ally have not time to get a whole meal ready.

* * * * * * *

If you have ever been in this position, what did you do? Did you go ahead and get the meal ready or did you serve just a light, light luncheon.

* * * * * * *

Perhaps you said to yourself that it would be just as easy to get the meal ready as to sit and plan out a wholesome luncheon. Maybe it would, but if you had a luncheon planned out for just such occasions, you would save much time.

* * * * * * *

You might find a hot sandwich a solution to the luncheon problem and in many cases certain combinations can be served to the whole family.

* * * * * * *

Many housewives in Peterborough use toast as the foundation for many sandwiches. A sandwich made of toast with a glass of milk and some kind of fruit, makes an excellent spring luncheon for adults and children alike.

* * * * * * *

Of course, there are dozens and dozens of kinds of hot sandwiches besides those with a toast foundation. Then too, there are dessert and breakfast sandwiches. It is possible to serve simple and nourishing foods in the sandwiches which everyone likes.

* * * * * * *

You may serve open sandwiches. By open, we mean without the top layer. Such sandwiches are attractive with a garnish of minced parsley, pickles or grated cheese.

* * * * * * *

Sometimes it is possible to serve combined meat and vegetable sandwiches. If this may be done, then you need not worry about having a salad besides the sandwiches, for you know that some types of sandwiches require a salad of cabbage, celery, etc.

* * * * * * *

An open asparagus sandwich, with a garnish of hard cooked egg is a very good one. Spinach and bacon also prove popular when combined in a sandwich.

* * * * * * *

A good breakfast sandwich would be one of toast spinach and poached egg. With a glass of milk and some fruit, this would make an attractive and nourishing meal.

MUSICAL EVENT OF THE SEASON WELL ATTENDED

St. Andrew's United Church Filled to Capacity to Hear Toronto Choir.

FINE MALE QUARETTE.

Miss Irene Calhoon and David Raitblat Added Attraction to Fine Program.

(By Jeanette.)

St. Andrew's United Church, with a capacity of about six hundred seats, was packed to the doors last night with an audience whose manifest appreciation of every number on a very fine program, must have well repaid the members of the choir of High Park United Church, Toronto, for their long trip by motor bus to the city.

The concert was splendid from start to finish, and the choir was one of the best that has ever visited the city. The only possible fault that could be found with it was the force and fervor of the music, which was almost too powerful for the building in which it was offered. There were nearly seventy members in the choir, two-thirds of the number being women, who, with their white gowns, made a most effective appearance in the choir loft, which was decorated with flowers.

Composed of Trained Singers.

The choir has a quality of finish which makes their music a delight. Manifestly composed of trained singers, they give their numbers with an ensemble effect, as if one mighty voice was pouring forth a melody that has beautifully harmonized aspects of deep and high tone. They sing with a smooth, resonant volume and intent watchfuness of their leader's baton. The attack was instantaneous, and the release was feather-edged in its completenness and poise. Against the rich background of the bassos, rose the soaring sweetness of the fine, clear sopranos, without that shrill overtone which so often mars the effect of choral singing, when the ladies appear to strive for a high and strong effect, rather than one of soft clarity.

Characterized by one listener as "a gem," the choir's outstanding effort was Thompson's old English number, "Come Where the Lilies Bloom." This selection, apparently simple, is one of those rather awkward things where the least touch of bravado in the singing would give it a somewhat burlesque atmosphere. The initial phrase is repeated again and again. It was exquisite in the artistic manner in which the choir sang it. The opening is one of festive, springtime gayety, and then comes the difficult section, descriptive of the night wind, where the quality of super training of choristers was apparent in the fine, sustained pianissimo of bassos and sopranos alike. The soft section swings once more into the sweetness of the opening phrasing and the selection was, in its excellence, one of those that hold the hearing spellbound to the last lovely minute of melody.

Beethoven's chorus, "Hallelujah," was the opening choral number, with the volume and power of the singers resounding through the building. Illustrative of a fine versatility in their music, was the dramatic, forceful music of the last choral selections, "The Song of the Vikings," where the bold, robust song of the salt-sea rovers rolls out in smooth, vigorous style, and the finale, "Hail, Bright Abode," from "Tannhauser."

Receives Much Applause.

The men of the choir made a hit with their rendition of two of the likeable sections from the "Soldier's Chorus" in "Faust." They sang the jovial chorus, "Glory and Love to the men of Old," and then "Comrades in Arms," which received a rousing burst of applause, and was repeated in consequence. The swift, strongly marked, staccato cadences of this chorus made it a truly popular number

The chorus, "O Praise God in His Holiness' was a superbly executed piece of music, the choir providing the background for two splendid soloists in Mrs. T. A. Armstrong, soprano and Charles Leslie, director of the choir, whose resonant baritone took the place of the announced soloist, Arthur Burry, absent through illness. Just as the music of the choir last night demonstrated the excellence of the training by their director, Mr. Leslie, so this selection exhibited his skill as a soloist and the outstanding quality of his own voice.

The Elgar Male Quartette, its personnel in George Marks, first tenor, John Hubbard, second tenor, Harry Jackson, first bass, and Hamilton Gardiner, second bass, were a decided adjunct to the music of the evening. They exhibit the same quality of smooth finesse that is demonstrated in the choral work, and their ensemble tone is one of polished haromny. Proving to be very popular with their hearers, they were recalled at each appearance, with loud applause. They sang "Mother o' Mine' with an encore in "Way Down Yonder in the Cornfield," a bit of rollicking negro melody, and later gave "Annie Laurie" in a fashion that brought them two encores. In response, they gave the familiar and likeable composition, "Lucky Jim" and a little thing called "Good Night, Angels." In these three numbers, the exceptionally fine tone of the second tenor, Mr. Hubbard, was listened to with extreme pleasure.

Solo numbers were those of Alfred Mortimer, organist, and the accompanist of the evening, Miss Irene Calhoon, elocutionist, and David Raitblat, violinist, who added much to the attraction of the very fine program.

Miss Calhoon is a reader of much force and dramatic power. Her selections were of a light type and received encores in each instance. She gave "Diplomacy,' all about who started the War, with an encore in "A Scotch Sermon," and on her second appearance recited "His Dismissal" and a double encore in the story of the bad little boy and "The Text that Suited the Case."

Alfred Mortimer's organ solo, "La Muett de Provici," was the opening number on the program. It demonstrated the organist's skill in its powerful, firm, buoyant music that alternated with sudden, crashing intervals of forceful major chords.

David Raitblat, the violinist of the evening, was a young performer whose skilful playing earned him the sincere appreciation of his hearers. He possesses a fine technical perception that makes his music easy and delightful and his tone is outstanding in its silver-edged fineness and clarity, with a soft, pliant bow that produces a plush-like, poetical sweetness. He played Poldini's "Dancing Doll' as an opening number, with the lovely "Farewell to Cucullain" ("Danny Boy") as an encore. His second group, demonstrating swift-tempoed attractive music of a light, delicate timbre, included the pretty number, "Tambourin Chinois" and "Prasquita," with a lovely encore, in response to repeated applause.

The Rev. C. V. McLean, M.A., pastor of the church, acted as chairman and, at the conclusion of the program, expressed his sincere appreciation of a delightful program.

WINNIPEG, Man. May 7.—(Canadian Press)—Jazz has partially conquered Tito Schipa, renowned lyric tenor, he admitted on his recent visit her. "I like jazz—in its place," he said. "It has a great future. It is good for singing, dancing and musical comedies. It is easy to write and easy to play. I have very little difficulty in composing jazz music, though personally I prefer classical.

Gehrig Increases Lead In Big Six

The American league members ran away with the show yesterday in a heavy-hitting afternoon. Every member of the "Big Six" obtained at least one hit, but Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth and Goose Goslin did more than that.

Gehrig disposed of any threats to his leadership by getting two hits in three trips to the plate to raise his average to .396. Goslin moved into second place with a .370 mark, passing Rogers Hornsby, who dropped to .365. Goslin got three hits in five tries, while Hornsby got one out of three.

Ruth also advanced a notch, forcing Paul Waner into the cellar. The Babe got two hits in four attempts for .300, while Waner's one out of four dropped him to .281. Jim Bottomley's one hit moved him up to .293. The standing:

Gaston Brother Act Falls Before Tigers

DETROIT, May 7. (C.P.) — The Gaston brother act of the Boston Red Sox, was a complete flop here yesterday, an dthe Detroit Tigers won their third straight victory from Bill Carrigan's men, 8 to 4.

A pair of home runs by Harry Hellmann, the big Detroit right fielder, played a considerable part in the downfall of Milton Gaston, pitching half of the Hub City's family battery.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

A PACKED HOUSE GREETED CHARLES ('BUDDY') ROGERS AND MARY BRIAN IN 'VARSITY' AT THE CAPITOL LAST NIGHT.

An audience that filled the popular Capitol to capacity, greeted Charles ('Buddy') Rogers and Mary Brian in "Varsity" last night.

"Varsity" is unusual in that, although a picture of college life, it contains none of the customary embellishments which have hitherto appeared on the screen as characteristic of college life. It does not show any football scenes or scenes of any climatic athletic event. It has no Dean's daughter to encourage the hero. Ukeleles are missing entirely, and there is no references to clubs, fraternities or any other undergraduate social system. Back-slapping and tricks on professors are omitted and "kollege kit klothes" find no market. "Varsity" is a story with a background with college life as it is.

A very funny Hal Roach comedy, "Why is a Plumber," the latest Pathe News, Topics and Fables, and a splendid "spotlight" subject, in addition to "Varsity," rounded out a program that should continue to fill the Capitol to capacity for the balance of the engagement.

He took the lead from Cyril Tolley, British amateur, by six strokes.

SALO CUTS DOWN LEAD OF GAVUZZI

New Jersey Policeman Less Than Two Hours Behind Italian Runner.

HOLDENVILLE, Okla., May 7. — (Canadian Press). — Johnny Salo, Passaic, N.J., policeman, was less than two hours behind Pete Gavuzzi, Southampton, England, leader in the elapsed time of C. C. Pyle's cross-country Derby, as the runners trotted along on to-day's 52-mile jaunt to Coalgate.

Salo reduced Gavuzzi's lead to one hour 55 minutes and 30 seconds yesterday when he covered the 60 miles from Muskogee in 8:06:40, and finished in first place. Gavuzzi was third and Giusto Umek, Trieste, Italy, third in elapsed time, was second.

FOUR TEAMS IN EACH DIVISION

BANTAM IN JUNE.

It was indicated that there would be four teams in each of the three series in the City Baseball League at a meeting of the teams' representatives and the executive held in the board room of the Duffus Bowling Academy last evening There was nearly a full turn out of representatives and enthusiasm for the season and the success of the league expressed on all sides.

In the Junior series there were three teams represented: All Saints' A. A., Kiwanis and the Peterborough Lock Company. Another entry to complete this group was practically assured.

Four teams were lined up for the Juvenile series, namely: Canucks, Loyal Order of Moose, Kiwanis and the Beavers of East City.

Although the Bantam series will not commence until the second week in June, three teams signified their intention of entering. They were Graftons, Canucks and Maple Leafs. A fourth will assuredly be secured before this series opens its schedule.

No definite opening date for the Junior and Juvenile was set, but the season will commence on or about May 24.

It was decided that birth certificates must be secured before any player can participate in any game. The age limits are by May 1: Junior, 20 years; Juvenile, 18 years; Bantam 16 years. All players must be signed by July 15, and no team can carry more than 15 players on its roster.

The entrance fee for the Junior and Juvenile was set at $5 and this fee must be in the hands of the treasurer by May 20. The playing certificates will be distributed to the team managers on May 15.

The schedule will be drawn up as soon as the entries have been definitely settled, and the grounds for playing secured.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

The Soccer League will hold its first twilight game to-morrow evening, starting early to finish the game before dark.

OPENING GAMES ON MAY 24TH.

If the weather decides to change and remains favorable to baseball practises, the City League will hold its opening games on May 24th. Due to the cold and wet that has marked the season so far, none of the teams have been able to get in any organized workouts, and they are far behind last year's season in this respect.

It was indicated that the league will have four teams in each of the three groups, junior, juvenile and bantam. The teams are beginning to get organized, and some of them have secured a coach and manager.

BOWLING TOURNEY RESULTS ANNOUNCED.

The bowling tourney held recently at the Duffus Bowling Academy illustrated that this game is gaining in popularity, and that the standard set this year is far above any previous. Every class in the contest was keenly contested, and had a large entry.

It is announced that the prize money won by these proficient high rollers will be available at the end of the week.

HIGH STANDARD IN SCHOOL LEAGUE.

The brand of baseball being played in the public schools this spring is high grade, considering that the boys in the schools were away from the game for two years, while softball held sway. King Edward and Queen Mary played a hard, close game yesterday afternoon, and the south end boys won out in the nip-and-tuck affair..

CANUCKS STAR AT SCHOOL MEETS.

Last year the Central Collegiate Institute team of Hamilton went over to the U. S. National High School Relay Championships at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wis., and cleaned up. This year they sent another strong team over only to find that owing to so many protests from the U. S. high schools and collegiates that they had been barred from the open championship events. They relegated the Hamilton string to the division for private schools and military colleges, where the competition was much stronger, but at the meet which was held on Saturday afternoon, the Centrals took them apart, and cleaned their works for them, too. Probably next year Centrals will be barred from all competition at this meet. It does not pay for Canucks to walk over the border and take their titles away from them.

The feat of the Central C. I. team of Hamilton, in winning the team championship of the private school and military academy division of the U. S. high school relay championships is another feather the cap of Captain Cornelius, their coach, and another evidence of the health and strength of track and field athletics of all kinds in Hamilton.—Toronto Star.

QUEEN'S BANNED DANCING AT 'U' FOR 25 YEARS

Forty-Two Years Ago Struggle Began at University on Matter of Dances.

BATTLE ROYAL STAGED

Present Principal of Emmanuel College, Victoria University, Was One of Leaders.

KINGSTON, May 7.— (Special to The Examiner.)—Forty-two years ago the struggle began at Queen's University on the matter of dancing at public functions at the university. For twenty-five years previous to this date the main social function at Queen's was the conversazione, or the "conversat" for short. This was the Alma Mater Society's party of the year and consisted principally of speeches, music and promenades. It was in 1887 that a celebrated battle was staged between the forces of Mammon and of Righteousness, thirty years to the day before another famous victory on Vimy Ridge, as described by Mr. James Cochrane, Arts '91 and reproduced at the present time by Queen's University Review.

In those days the Alma Mater Society functioned vigorously and with all the Celtic passion that seems to have been consumed during the war. On this memorable day on April 9th, 1887, the old Science Lecture room became the stage for a battle between the Puritans, who wished that there be no dancing at the Conversat, and the Non-Puritans, who had brought the flighty dissipation of two-step, waltz and Polka to the dour merriment of Queen's.

Occurred On Top Flat.

The real issue was the recognition of dancing. At several previous conversats tripping the light fantastic had occurred on the top flat of the Arts Building. Alfred Gandier, the present Principal of Emmanuel College, Victoria University, Toronto, was the leader against dancing. W. J. Kidd(now a clergyman of Ottawa, and Charles J. Cameron, now an Anglican clergyman of Vancouver, supported dances. There was bedlum and unparliamentary language and threatened outbreaks of assault when at last the vote was taken on the chairman's ruling that the motion was out of order. J. J. Wright, afterwards a clergyman at Levis, Quebec, occupied the chair. The yeas and nays were called for by Mr. Gandier. Confusion again reigned while men crowded about the secretary to pay their fees and insure that their vote was legal. At last the roll of members was called and recorded on the blackboard; students stood on their chairs and frequently challenged the voters. The Non-Puritans, who all along claimed that the meeting had been packed against them, were decisively defeated seventy-two to forty. Over thirty of their supporters stated they had been deprived of their votes.

H. E. Horsey, afterwards a member of Parliament, and later deceased and a brother of Senator H. H. Horsey, another Queen's graduate, asked that the A.M.S., formerly express its approval of dancing in general so as to avoid the taunts of the outside world. He did not believe in a college that tolerated dancing surreptitiously. Mr. Cameron supported him, claiming that Principal Grant's efforts to make Queen's a national, rather than a Presbyterian College, would be defeated by such a ban on dancing.

Mr. Gandier interposed to have the motion quashed. Mr. Cochrane moved that the motion of a week previous be reviewed at the next meeting of the A.M.S. This was followed by a motion of adjournment by S. T. Chown, now Magistrate Chown of Renfrew. The chairman declared the motion carried. The Non-Puritans disputed the fact, and Horatio Lyon called for a division on the adjournment. There was lively jostling of the two actions and at ten o'clock the gas lights went out, as bed-time was announced.

Still in Session.

Groping their way outside, the defenders of dancing claimed the meeting was still in session. "Vinny" Sullivan, son of Senator Sullivan, was raised to the chair when Mr. Horsey's former motion that there be public dancing at the Conversat and that two orchestras and appropriate decorations be assembled was enthusiastically carried. This outdoor meeting was later held to be illegal, and victory lay with the Puritans.

It was their last. Even John Knox does not live forever and urbanity and gayety have long since entered the Scottish walls of Queen's. To-day too much dancing is the charge against student life. Every faculty and every year have their exclusive dances either at the College or at the LaSalle Hotel. And Queens is not singular in this respect.

RAILWAYS TO REDUCE RATES

C.P.R. and C.N.R. Will Make Application to Dominion Railway Board.

MEET U. S. REDUCTION.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 7.—(C.P.) — It is understood the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National will apply to the Railway Commission for a reduction in the rail grain rate from Port Colborne to Montreal to meet the proposed reduction in the United States of two cents a bushel from Buffalo to New York. It is also proposed in the United States to reduce the rail grain rate from Chicago to New York from 22½ cents to 17 cents per hundred pounds. These rates are not yet in effect but are almost certain to be established as part of the program to temporarily aid the western farmers of the United States.

JUVENILE IMMIGRATION HEAVY.

MONTREAL, Que., May 7.—(C.P.) —So heavy has juvenile immigration to Canada from the United Kingdom become, that more than three times the number of boys and young men handled for the first four months of 1928 have already been handled for this season's similar period by the colonization department of the Canadian National Railways.

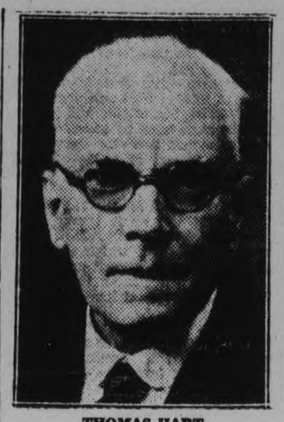
HUNDREDS OF PETERBORO PEOPLE GREAT HUSKY EXPERT AT BOND'S STORE

He Explains Medicine Which Is Relieving Thousands Throughout the Dominion of Indigestion, Constipation, Rheumatic Pains, Chronic Headaches, Catarrhal Troubles and Kidney Ailments—He Tells How Weak, Thin, Run-Down Persons Are Strengthened and Built Up By Its Use.

Husky Authority Will Be Here Several Days—Call on Him at Bond's and Learn Why This Medicine Helps So Quick —All Information Is Free.



THOMAS HART

Hundreds of residents of Peterborough and vicinity were at Bond's Drug Store to-day to greet the "Husky" expert, who arrived here this morning from the great Laboratories at Toronto for the purpose of explaining to local people how to use the extraordinary medicine called "Husky."

Nearly everyone in Peterborough had heard of this medicine, which has been restoring health for thousands throughout the Dominion, and this is believed to be the reason why hundreds of local people were at Bond's Drug Store to-day. They wanted to learn more about this medicine which is giving such marvelous results in relieving indigestion, constipation, rheumatism, chronic headaches, catarrhal troubles and kidney ailments. They were anxious to know more about this preparation which is helping nervousness, putting healthy flesh on skinny bodies and restoring strength and vigor to the weak and run down.

Speaking at Bond's Drug Store this morning, the "Husky" expert said: "You have heard about what Husky has done for sufferers in Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton and other cities throughout the Dominion and the reports no doubt seemed too good to be true. But they are true, and hundreds of you people right here in Peterborough, who have been feeling bad or suffering for years, are going to learn for yourselves that this medicine does all that is claimed for it.

"In recent years health authorities have been finding that an alarming number of our common sicknesses are due to too much acid in our system This chronic acidity, as it is called, is a modern malady and is traced to the soft foods we eat today and the lack of a 'raw diet' that kept our ancestors hale and hearty. These ravaging acids accumulate in your body, irritate your stomach, sour your food, constipate you and rob your blood of the red corpuscles it must always have plenty of to keep it from becoming thin and watery. That's why a few bites of food seem to fill you and your stomach swells and hurts from gas. That's why your headaches, stabbing pains go through your back and you feel weak and lose weight. You can't sleep and feel miserable.

"An eminent chemist, fully aware of the prevalance of chronic acidity, set about to compound a formula to counteract this trouble and his final and successful effort is "Husky." Husky has been so phenominally successful because its effect is so simple. It positively does nothing but sweeten the stomach and stimulate the bowels and kidneys. But that is exactly what gets rid of chronic acidity. Then excessive acids can't gather and remain in the stomach, because the bowels will carry off promptly all the starch and sugar wastes from your food, which are the cause of acidity and gas."

Wonderful Results Reported.

Praise for Husky is pouring in from thousands of people from Halifax to Vancouver and never before has a medicine been given such acclaim. Thomas Hart, a prominent Montreal furniture dealer, who lives at 3524 Ontario St., that city, has the following to say about Husky:

"For nine years my general health was poor, and during all that time I had to be very careful about what I ate as most everything disagreed with me.

"I suffered much from pains in my back and limbs and I couldn't walk any distance because I suffered so from shortness of breath," he said.

"I am happy to say that Husky was recently brought to my attention by one who knows about medicine. Husky has proven to me to be all and more than is claimed for it. It had me feeling better before I had finished the first bottle of this medicine. I am telling my friends that there is nothing like Husky for troubles such as those with which I was suffering."

Because "Husky" is an extraordinary preparation it is highly recommended to the people of Peterborough and vicinity by Bond's Drug Store. Get a bottle of Husky and note how soon its treatment whets your appetite, makes sleep more restful and sound and increases your strength. Call on the "Husky" expert at Bond's Drug Store and let him explain how best and quickest results are obtained from the use of this medicine. You place yourself under no obligation by calling on him. He is there for the sole purpose of explaining the Husky treatment to you.

BISHOP SEAGER TO VISIT CITY

Distinguished Prelate Will Hold Confirmation in All Saints On Thursday.

BRILLIANT PREACHER.

On Thursday and Friday of this week, the Right Reverend Charles Allen Seager, M.A., D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Ontario, will be in the City of Peterborough to carry out a program of services and meetings and to give a number of addresses. One of the outstanding bishops of the Church of England, he is a brilliant preacher and has made a great contribution to the national and church life in the field of education. He spent some years as Principal of the Anglican Theological College in Vancouver, B.C., and afterwards came to Toronto as Rector of St. Matthew's Church—an office now held by Canon Sawers formerly of St. Luke's, Peterborough. Leaving St. Matthew's Church, he became Provost of Trinity College, Toronto and it was under his administration that the college moved from its old location on Queen Street West to the fine new buildings in Queen's Park. He has been Bishop of Ontario since 1926, and in a short time has won for himself a high place both in his own diocese and in the general church life of the Dominion of Canada.

The Bishop will hold confirmation in All Saints' Church on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, and on Friday he is the guest of the Ruri-Decanal Chapter, which is meeting at Lakefield. He gives a paper in the afternoon to the clergy and will preach in St. John's Church, Lakefield, on Friday evening.

On Friday the Bishop will also make a trip into Peterborough to address the Kiwanis Club at their noon luncheon.

MILITARY FUNERAL IS BEING PLANNED

to file past the casket in the Armouries on Thursday and Friday, when the remains will lie in State under military guard. It is not certain whether there will be a public service at the Armouries or at St. James' Cathedral. It is possible public services will be held at both places.

Col. Ralston Pays Tribute

OTTAWA, May 7. — (C.P.) — In paying tribute to the late Sir William Otter, who died in Toronto, last night, Canada's Minister of National Defence, Hon. J. L. Ralston, said:

In the death of General Cir William Otter, Canada loses one of her most distinguished sons, whose life was early dedicated to the service of his country and the building up of the Canadian militia. Of himself, he said: 'It has been his privilege, luck or fate to have served in every military capacity, from the lowest to the highest rank, and taken part in every every incident of its struggles, both in peace and active service'—of few men could be be said more truly.

"Having enlisted in the Queen's Own in Toronto, in 1861, he first saw active service on the Uiagara border at the time of the American civil war. He served with the Queen's Own during the Fenian raids and commanded the "Battleford Column" in the Northwest Rebellion. Busy years followed. He mastered every phase of his profession and made it his business and his pleasure to convey sound knowledge and unfailing enthusiasm to every fellow soldier.

Served in South Africa.

"Perhaps his most brilliant performance was in South Africa when commanding the Royal Canadian Regiment at Paardesburg, but every advance in rank, and every decoration he earned by steady application and consistent devotion.

"Having reached the highest military position in Canada, he retired after more than 50 years of service, but two years later at the outbreak of the great war, he again placed his services at the disposal of his country and only in 1920 did he finally retire, having spent the last two years in creating and developing the plan of organization on which the militia is now based.

"Pre-eminently a soldier, his life is an inspiration to every youth who feels the urge to learn the use of arms for a day of need Throughout Canada to-day such men pay tribute to his memory."

In Police Court

Two young girls up on remands charged with vagrancy, a wife beater, and three youths from Havelock facing charges under the Liquor Control Act, totalled this morning's police court slate.

The two girls, first called, were again remanded, this time until May 10; while the man was allowed his freedom on suspended sentence when he appeared on a remand, charged with beating his wife. Something of a reconciliation had been effected and it was on this account that the magistrate dealt leniently with him.

Two of the three young men from Havelock were fined $10.00 and costs each when they pleaded guilty to charges of being intoxicated in a public place, while the third and oldest member of the trio, was fined $20 and costs when he pleaded guilty of consuming liquor in a place other than his own private residence.

There was also a session of the county court held in the Court House at which a Peterborough man appeared on two charges, one of consuming liquor in a public place and the other of being intoxicated in a public place. Another man who had been with him at the time of arrest was charged with having liquor without a government permit. An Indian woman, who was the third member of the party when arrested last week, was charged with vagrancy and all three cases were enlarged to next Monday May 13.

Young Oxford Golfer Scores Hole In One

GULLANE, Scotland, May 7 (Canadian Press).—R. D. Mathieson, young Oxford University golfer, playing in the British open championship today, scored a hole in one at the short fourth on the Muirfield course. Mathieson had a ten on one hole yesterday, but made amends for it with his unusual shot to-day. It was the first hole in one scored in British open championship play since Abe Mitchell scored one at Deal in 1920.

The No. 4 hole is 180 yards long. Mathieson's shot hit four feet in front of the pin and trickled in.

ing trial in India on charges of sedition. The selection of the latter was made by Communists of the west riding, another indication of the resentment borne by Communists in India and Great Britain against the Royal Commission which investigated in India to lay the foundation for political reform. A local Communist will act for Asmani throughout the campaign.

BLIZZARD ENDS.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 7 (Canadian Press). — Rising temperatures promised relief to Manitoba's far north to-day, after a ten day blizzard, ranking with the worst the bleak country has known. Aid, being hurried to the snowed-in work trains, rushed forward as the mercury, for a week hovering about 20 above, rose ten degrees, and ushered in mild weather.

GOOD PROGRAM FOR PAGEANT

Y.W.C.A. Gymnasium Classes Will Stage Presentation on Friday and Saturday Evenings.

FLOWER BALLET.

The program prepared for this year's presentation of the annual pageant of the gymnasium classes of the Young Women's Christian Association, under the direction of Miss C. Littlefield, is one of great interest. The production promises to be just as entertaining, if not more so, than the very successful pageants presented in the Opera House in the past. It will take place on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week.

The major event, possibly, will be the Flower Ballet, where "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary" and her flowers give a colorful bit of pantomimic acting. The manner in which costuming has been carried out in previous pageants and the way in which details have always added so much to their attraction, has not been overlooked this season, and the dressing of the dances promises to be even more lovely than usual.

Mary is the mistress of a garden where the gardeners and the flowers collaborate, in her absence, in a merry bit of mischief-making and on her return, with her big white poodle, she gives them a pantomimic reproof that brings penitence to the naughty blossoms. There are butterflies and a flower wall of living damsels, and a light Summer Breeze, taking part in this pretty pantomime, and the flowers are dainty small forget-me-nots, in frilly blue frocks and Dresden bonnets, geraniums in characteristic reds with saucy red petal hats, bright sunflowers, and jaunty yellow and purple and green pansies. Chiffons and flowered chintzes make their lovely gowns.

The special exercises which illustrate the more prosaic work of the gymnasium, and whose skilful presentation always catches the eye and fascinates the attention, include difficult Swedish exercises, an outstanding exhibition of club-swinging and other gymnastic drills and exercises.

There will be a Kate Greenaway polka by small boys and girls, a revival of some of the old dances that were so popular on the greensward of Merrie England, long ago, with the "boys" in green smocks and brown trousers and the girls in dairy-maid outfits, and there will be a bit of real domestic flavor in the Canadian rustic dance, a waltz clog, with the girls in bonnets and rompers of pink and blue, and their swains in blue overalls with red patch pockets.

Thirty-six little tots will do a Lovebird dance in characteristic style some of the small performers being only three years of age

There will be a novelty in an Ice dance of winter time flavor, where the performers wear white woolly costumes and swansdown hats.

The popular Grand March will be the opening this year, as usual.

Musicians for the event will be Miss Musa Cox and Miss Irene Foster at the piano, Arnold Spencer, playing violin, and Wilson Dunlop, the traps.

Members of the Kiwanis Club, the I.O.D.E. Chapters, and the Y. W. Board of Management, are taking boxes for the Pageant.

Stratford Couple Face Neglect Charge

STRATFORD, Ont., May 7.— (C.P.) A. J. Wilson and his wife, who were held jointly at fault by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Alma Olive Wilson, 15, daughter of Wilson, some weeks ago, will face a criminal charge in county court within the next few days, according to Crown Attorney G. Y. McPherson to-day.

The jury found the child had been suffering from malnutrition and charged the parents with "shameful neglect." They attributed the death to lack of proper medical attention.

The parents will be charged under a section of the criminal code which states parents are guilty of an indictable offence if they fail to provide for dependent children. Mr. McPherson said.

FEWER FIRES DURING MARCH

Decrease of $129,932 Shown in Ontario Losses in Month.

1,154 OUTBREAKS.

Although there was an appreciable decrease of 31 in the number of fires and $129,932 in the firse loss in Ontario during March of this year over the same month in 1928 the Fire Marshal's report shows that there is a slight increase in the number of fires and losses for the first three months of this year over the same period last year.

The figures show that there were 1,154 fires in March of this year, and $1,204,393 loss, but of this loss all but $160,405 was covered by insurance. In the same month last year there were 1,185 fires, a loss of $1,334,325, and only $1,094,918 was covered by insurance.

Taking the total for the first three months of the year it shows that there were 3,431 fires with a total loss of $4,395,467, of which $3,766,287 was covered by insurance and $629,180 was not. This is an increase of 359 fires, $20,563 total loss and $7,603 insurance loss.

The fires according to classification for the three months are as follows: barns, 105; dwelling, 2,426; stores, 381, and factories, 97.

The largest fire of the month was at Cochrane, when the National Grocers suffered a loss of $141,006 The Brockville Collegiate was next with a loss of $84,000, and the Northern Electric fire at London did a damage totalling $80,686, while the Gelber Building was consumed with a loss of $56,466.

ing method. In swimming it was noted that this reverses the usual teachings, in that the swimmer inhales by the mouth and exhales through the nose. It was explained that this prevented water entering the nasal passages and made swimming in rough water much easier.

The classes are conducted on a basis that will give the student ample opportunity to engage in practice. Active teaching will be the order of the day until about June 1. After that such coaching as is necessary will be given and the class members will be enabled to carry on at the beaches or in the pool throughout the summer months.

No charge for the lessons is being made to any boy or man who is at present a member of the Y. M.C.A. and for others a very much reduced membership rate is being offered which is good until October 1.

The classes are under the direction of D. A. Loomis and F. G. McNeely. Both these men have had many years of experience in the teaching of swimming in this city.
